"I was much interested," said Dr. J. A. Macdonald, speaking in Brantford, "to find that, on the very day I first met President Taft, representatives of the agricultural implement industries in the United States were in Washington protesting against the duty on their products being reduced from 45 to 15 per cent., 2½ per cent. lower than the Canadian duty. I found that the manufacturers of steam plows were making a great ado about it. The head of one large plow manufactory told the Washington authorities that he would not be able to stand against the competition of the Canadian manufacturers. I found that one of our Canadian firms had opened an establishment in Peoria, Illinois, and its four-hundred-dollar steam plows were making headway against those made in the United States. That Canadian firm was the Cockshut Plow Company of Brantford. It was a great satisfaction to me to be told that this superior implement was appreciated by the farmers of the agricultural States. I was told that there were firms rushed in seventy-five carloads of their plows, fearing the maximum tariff, which would add a hundred dollars to the duty, might be applied."

FUTURE OF GEOGRAPHY

Traveller of the Future Should be a Trained Topographer

Major Leonard Darwin, the President of the Geographical Society, says "that in looking to the future it is important to inquire, not how their past history would then be regarded, but rather how the society would be able to maintain its reputation and its usefulness in the new conditions of geographical knowledge. It was true that the South Pole was as yet uncaptured, that the map of Arabia was still largely composed of great blank spaces, and that the head of the Brahmaputra was drawn by guesswork in their atlases. But it was probable that all these problems would be solved before long, and where then would be the field in which the explorer might hope to win renown in robbing the unknown of its romance? They must sooner or later face the fact that the work by which the society had become best known in the past represented an almost finished chapter in geographical history, and to that condition of things the society would have to adapt itself. In view of the changing conditions, they ought, no doubt, to direct their efforts with more persistence than heretofore in the direction of encouraging travellers to make systematic and detailed examinations of camparatively small areas, and not merely to cover long distances with the result of doing little more than to confirm the impressions of previous explorers. The travellet of the future ought to be a trained topographer, or to have thoroughly prepared himself in advance for some definite class of investigation, if he wished to win their praises."

THE TERRORS OF THE TINY TADS

1.—The Tiny Tads are going out to have a sail, I guess.
One of them says "Come on," and all the others answer "Yes."

2.—And so they get their old Giraft and out to sea they go,
When all at once there comes a splash—something explodes, you know.

3.—An Alligatorpedo may have tried to sink them thus;
A bad Submarhinoceros perhaps has caused the fuss.

4.—Perhaps this Fricaseaserpent is he who did the deed,
For now he wriggles toward the Tads at an alarming speed.

5.—He doesn't catch them, though, because they all know how to swim,
And very soon they reach the shore, where they are safe from him.

6.—"Say, fellows," cries a Tiny Tad, as up the bank they climb,
"I think that we have had a rather Shipwrecking time."

Baby's Rash Became a Mass of Humor

Parents Decided He Could Not Be Cured. "Cuticura" Soon Made His Skin Perfectly Clear.

A Toronto man, Mr. Robert Mann, of 7285 Queen St. East, says: "Our boy was born in Toronto on Oct. 12, 1908, and when three months old a slight rash appeared on his cheek. What appeared to be a water blister would form. When it broke, matter would run out, starting new blisters until his entire face, head and shoulders were a mass of matter and you could not see a particle of clear skin. We did not know what to do for him and tried about every advertised remedy without avail, in the meantime all those odd blisters in his scalping and sore in particular, the — formed almost into one solid sore. Our neighbors advised baby doctor, doctor this, doctor that, but nothing helped him. The first part of any good, so we gave baby up to a hospital. He was treated as an eczema victim a week and he got worse. If any change. We then called in another doctor and inside of a week the boy was, in all appearance, cured and the doctor said his work was done. But the very next day it broke out as bad as ever.

"We decided that it could not be cured and must run its course and so we just kept his arms handcuffed to his side to prevent his scarring his cheek. The Cuticura Remedies were recommended. We started using them in May, 1909, and soon the cure was complete. Cuticura made his skin perfectly clear and he is entirely free from the skin disease." (Signed) Robert Mann, May 3, 1910.

In another letter, dated June 20, 1911, he adds: "My boy has never had any more trouble since using Cuticura."

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have been the most successful treatment for skin and scalp troubles of infants, children and adults. A single set is often sufficient. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. NEW LIFE, NEW HOPE

Hon. Mr. Fielding Says Reciprocity Means New Health and Strength

"I claim to be a moderate, reasonable, sane and rational free-trader," said Hon. Mr. W. S. Fielding at Digby, "but I am not prepared to do anything to strike down any legitimate Canadian interest. I determined that if the manufacturers were fair and reasonable they should have my support."

A Voice:—"But they are fighting you in return."

"It may be," continued Mr. Fielding, "that some of the manufacturers have made us a poor return; some have unwisely let themselves be guided by political alarmists, and some have even put up funds to defeat us. But all that cannot alter our position. We sought to be guided by the interests of Canada as a whole.

"It may be," continued the Minister, "that we will lose a seat here and there, because some manufacturers, mistakenly and unwisely, I think, oppose us; but for every seat we lose we will pick up two or three from the farmers and fishermen."

"That's right," shouted a farmer.

"Why should the President of the Bank of Commerce undertake to tell the farmers it will injure their loyalty to send their produce to the United States when he sends his money to Wall Street to get ten and fifteen per cent.?" asked the Minister of Finance.

"We'll show him," said a fisherman.

"Yes," replied Mr. Fielding, "there are thousands of Conservatives who are willing to follow the old flag of Sir John Macdonald, not the new flag of eighteen millionaires in Toronto."

"Reciprocity," Mr. Fielding concluded, "means new life, new health, new strength and new hope to the Maritime Provinces. Come, every one of you, Conservatives and Liberals alike, and help us to get it."

CRUEL IN THE EXTREME

Two lawyers visited the same young lady. One evening Jones alone was with her. He said, in tender tones:

"Do you think, Mary, you could leave father and mother, this pleasant home with its ease and comforts, and emigrate to the West with a young lawyer who had only his profession to live on, and search out a new home, where both could be happy?"

"I think I could, Archie."

"Well," said Jones, "there's Tom Brown, who is going to emigrate, and wants to get a wife. I'll mention it to him."

Drowning a Mystery.

North Bay, Sept. 13.—A man, whose name is supposed to be Boyd, residence and relatives unknown, was given an inquest by the Dr. La Plante Lumber Co. Saturday at Tomiko sawmill village and camp headquarters, 27 miles north of North Bay, on the T. & N. O. Railway. Monday his body was found in the small lake near the village, drowned in eight feet of water, although the body had not sunk, being held on the surface by the clothing having become fastened to a snag. The body was brought to North Bay, being held for identification. Boyd was a middle-aged man, well built and had a grey moustache. The body was found close to the shore, but how he came to his death remains a mystery.

Girl Is Exonerated.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—Judge Monck yesterday morning acquitted the Italian girl who had been charged with theft by her erstwhile fiance. The man claimed to have sent the girl money on the understanding that they were to wed when she came to Canada, and that she refused to carry out the contract or refund the money. In defence the girl testified that the man had said he would not marry her unless forced to do so, and warned her that she would be sorry if he did marry her. The judge dismissed the theft charge, but impounded the girl's bail money of $200, which was the sum alleged to have been stolen by her. A civil action will be brought to determine the ownership of the money.

Badly Battered Up.

Montreal, Sept. 13.—An unknown man was found in Fortification lane at noon yesterday in a terribly mutilated condition, and so weak he could not tell his name to the police officer who found him. At first the patrol was sent for, as it was thought the man had been drinking, but his condition was so serious that the ambulance of the Notre Dame Hospital was finally summoned, where his wounds received attention. His head and face were terribly battered, evidently by blows from someone's fists. The police are now investigating the affair.

Czar Visiting Kiev.

Kiev, Russia, Sept. 13.—The Russian court has moved to Kiev for a week. Elaborate arrangements have been made for the stay of the Emperor and Empress, and $1,000,000 have been expended in paving and beautifying the mother of Russian cities.

From the railroad station, where they were offered the traditional bread and salt on a salver on their arrival, to St. Sofia Cathedral, the Emperor and Empress were acclaimed by multitudes.

The Emperor spent a busy day visiting his territorial points, and receiving deputations, which included the Rabbis.

Will Raise $1,000,000.

Montreal, Sept. 13.—The raising of a fund of a million dollars for next year was discussed yesterday at a meeting of the Montreal Presbytery, when Rev. Dr. Mackay, moderator of the general assembly, and Rev. Dr. A. S. Grant, general superintendent of home missions, launched a scheme for merging the separate funds of the church.

"This amount would be apportioned by the synods to the various presbyteries, which in their turn would apportion it out to congregations within their bounds, and in each congregation a standing committee will be appointed to see that the required proportion is raised within the year."

Illinois Central Strike Averted.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—The strike threatened by the shopmen of the Illinois Central Railroad because of refusal of the railroad to recognize the system federation of mechanical employes, has been averted. A reorganization of the federation will be undertaken, when the demand probably will be renewed.

Of chief influence in preventing the strike was the refusal of the International Association of Machinists to authorize the strike on the ground that the system federation had not conducted its negotiations properly, and also that a strike would imperil the working agreements now existing with several of the international unions.

Practical Sympathy For Porcupine.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—That Toronto wholesale merchants have confidence in New Ontario is evident from the attitude they have taken regarding the business failures which resulted from the recent Porcupine fire. Almost all the storekeepers who were forced to assign on account of the conflagration were allowed a cash balance and given sufficient credit to re-establish their businesses.

Motorist Goes to Trial.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—Charged with criminal negligence, A. S. Tracy, Port Huron, Mich., who drove his motor car into a crowd of people at Roncesvalles avenue and Queen street, on Labor Day, injuring nine of them, was committed for trial from police court yesterday.

Drowning at Porcupine.

Porcupine, Sept. 13—Thunderstorms, quite frequent during the last fifteen days, are characteristic of the Porcupine weather, and yesterday nearly one inch of water fell. The nineteenth drowning in the Porcupine camp since June 1, was recorded yesterday afternoon, when Boat Engineer Johnston of New Liskeard fell off the Wizard in mid-lake while towing a scow.

Horton May Buck German.

Welland, Ont., Sept. 13.—Laverne Horton of Pelham is circulating a nomination paper among Liberals of that township. Mr. Horton intends to oppose Mr. German as a reciprocity candidate, and states that his entrance at this late hour will not hinder him from getting the reciprocity votes.

Mexico's Way With Women.

Woman's place in Mexican life is the inevitable mingling of the Moorish ideas of the Spanish conquerors and the savage ideas of the natives, the Milwaukee Sentinel says. The Castilian hides his wife and daughters behind stone walls and the picturesque lattices of romance, and he is their lord and master. On the other hand, the Indian tribes are, of course, still bound by the spirit of the ancient savage customs. Historians tell of one of the baptismal ceremonies of the Mesaic tribes, who fought their way to supremacy long before the Spanish arrived on the scene. To each boy baby the priests chanted this command: "Thy profession and faculty is war. thy obligation to give the sun to drink blood of the enemies and the earth corpses of the foes." To the girl baby they said with far less ceremonial: "You are to stay within the house, as the heart does within the body. Our Lord enshrines you in that place, and your office is to fetch and to grind maize in the metate."

Jokal's Joke.

At a banquet held in his honor in Toronto, Maurice Jokai was called upon to propose the toast of "The Ladies." He made an excellent speech, during which he continually toyed with the brown curls upon his forehead. Finally he said: "I raise my glass in honor of the gracious ladies of Toronto. May they all live until my hair grows gray." His audience drank to the toast, but it was easy to see by the faces of the ladies present that they did not think much of the compliment. Jokai rose again from his seat and took from his head a magnificent brown wig, showing an entirely bald head beneath it. "My hair," he added, "will never grow gray." And the ladies, who had not known of his baldness, were more than pacified.

Plants Without Roots.

The "flower of the air" is a curious plant found in China and Japan. It is so called because it appears to have no root and is never fixed to the earth. It twines around a dry tree or sterile rock. Each shoot produces two or three flowers like a lily—white, transparent and odoriferous. It is capable of being transported 600 or 700 miles, and it grows as it travels, suspended on a twig.

A Fidgety Age.

Repose of manner was considered at one time essential to the well bred woman, but this is an ideal long consigned to the past. Every one fidgets in these restless days, no one has time to sit still nor to listen for more than a minute at a time without being bored and showing it.—London Queen.

A Pile of Horseshoes.

James Jennings, a merry-go-round proprietor of Tronbridge, England, has been collecting horseshoes in his spare time for the past two years, and he now has a pile of them about seventeen feet high and ten feet through. The pile weighs about 180 tons and is worth about $2,000.

Chairs Recovered.

Two ancient sculptured chairs, originally belonging to a Lucerne church, were recently purchased in Perth by two Swiss delegates, specially sent for the purpose, for the sum of $10,000.

Innkeeper—Going to make an early start to see the glacier to-day, I see. Do you know, it moves at the rate of only one mile an hour? Tourist—Yes, but my wife is so slow getting ready that I'm afraid we'll miss it.

Axes For Chalk Lake.

As a result of the interview which Charles Calder, M.P.P. for South Ontario, had with Hon. Dr. Reaume recently, a more generous policy will be pursued in stocking the inland lakes of the east and the north with game fish. Chalk Lake is the particular place in which Mr. Calder is interested, and when the matter is taken up a more liberal policy with regard to the stocking of the lakes with bass will be inaugurated.

A Youthful Inventor.

No Man is Stronger • Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has a uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, and strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

Pure-air oven retains the turkey's flavor

You should just taste the turkey roasted in the Pandora pure-air oven. None of the flavor is lost, as in ordinary ovens where air becomes "stale," through improper ventilation. Instead, all its rare delicacy of flavor is accentuated to the fullest degree —for Pandora owners' enjoyment. ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

So perfect is the system of ventilation that air in Pandora oven cannot possibly become "stale" or even ever smell "stuffy." ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 13 1911

FAIR DIRECTORS ARE OPTIMISTIC LOOK FOR A RECORD ATTENDANCE

All They Need Now is Good Weather—Big Show Opens to Public To-morrow (Thursday) Night With Vaudeville and Fireworks.

GREAT HORSE RACING

"If this weather continues for the balance of the week, we will have the best Exhibition we ever had," remarked a director of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition to the Examiner this morning. "We are confident," he continued, "that we have everything in better shape than ever before and that as far as educational and amusement features go, we have never offered the public a better Exhibition. All we want now is good weather, and we feel certain that we will have bigger crowds than ever before, although last year's figures will take some beating."

This statement is unanimously endorsed by every member of the Exhibition Board. With the opening of the Fair, scheduled for to-morrow, the grounds to-day are a scene of great activity. For the past three days a representative of the Hand Fireworks Co. of Hamilton, has been at the Exhibition Park, placing in position the magnificent displays of fireworks that will be a feature of the evening performances to-morrow and Friday nights. The miniature Railway, which was such an attraction last year, is already on the grounds, and to-day a number of other Midway features were being placed in position, while the different displays were being arranged and the finishing touches put on the grounds. To-morrow is Preparation Day, when all exhibits must be placed and the judging will commence although there will be nothing for the public until to-morrow night, when the grounds will be thrown open and brilliantly illuminated and there will be a big programme, including a concert by the 57th Regiental Band and performances in front of the grandstand by the Bollini Troupe, the Carl Damman Family and the Trick Mule, winding up with a grand display of fireworks, under the direction of a representative of the famous Hand Company of Hamilton.

The horse racing promises to be the best ever seen in Peterborough. A representative of the Exhibition has been in Oshawa, making arrangements for the appearance here of nearly all the speed merchants who took part in the races there. In addition all the local horses will be in action as well as other horses from outside, and the programme will be a classy one throughout. Messrs. D. H. Denison, R. J. Munro, and Dr. King are the directors in charge of this feature which should be sufficient to guarantee two grand days racing. A slight change has been made in the programme. 2.23 class, scheduled for Friday, is transferred to Saturday, while the 2.30 class will be contested on Friday, instead of on Saturday, as originally announced.

Remember to-morrow night's grand opening and encourage the Fair directors from the start by turning out in large numbers.

The Conservative Compact With United States Trusts

Conservative Authority for the Statement That United States Trusts are Sending into Canada a Million Dollars to Defeat Reciprocity

OTTAWA, ONT., SEPT. 11.—The Ottawa Journal (Conservative)), which is running a fierce anti-reciprocity campaign, publishes a special dispatch from New York, definitely confirming report that Conservatives are being financed in their campaign by the American trusts.

"It is currently reported here and accepted as true, that more than $1,000,000 has been subscribed by the big trusts for use in the Canadian elections the latter part of the month.

"'Big business' is undeniably opposed to the ratification of the proposed Reciprocity treaty between the Dominion and the States, and having lost its fight on the U. S. side for the first time in its history, now seeks to influence the electorate of Canada. The money for the conduct of the anti-Reciprocity campaign there, it is reported here, has been subscribed by no less than thirty different industries, which will be hit hard if Sir Wilfrid is vindicated at the polls.

"Whidden Graham, of Allen & Graham, who is handling the publicity end of the campaign for the trusts in Montreal, is in touch with New York, respecting the developments, and, if necessary to accomplish the end sought, it is believed here, can command any additional funds that may be needed up to a reasonable amount.

"Wall Street fears there will be a big row over the use of the money in the election, after it is over, and is looking for a Congressional commission of inquiry into its sources and employment. The results of such an investigation, those who are familiar with the present temper of the administration at Washington and the controlling element in the House of Representatives think, will have an important bearing on the shaping of the new tariff measure to be enacted next winter."

WHAT DO PATRIOTIC AND LOYAL SUPPORTERS OF MR. BURNHAM AND BORDEN THINK OF THIS FROM A CONSERVATIVE NEWSPAPER?

Mr. F. W. Wilkins Declares For The Reciprocity Agreement

Another Prominent East Peterborough Conservative Comes Out in its Favour

Mr. F. W Wilkins, a resident of Norwood, a prominent Conservative and candidate for the Conservative nomination, in a long letter to the Norwood Register, published to-day, declares for the reciprocity agreement which, he says, should not have been made a party question, and shows reasons for favouring its adoption in the interests of Canada. He summarizes his position in regard to more accessible trade relations with the United States, represented by the agreement, in the following paragraph:

"In the case of the United States and Canada a very annoying and (now) wholly and unwarranted condition exists with respect to trade matters; and for my part, Mr. Editor, I can but see, in the present proposition (reciprocity), a move towards the removal of a wholly unnatural and hindering state of things, warranted, I believe, in the past, but, which under more happy auspices, in my humble opinion, has outlived its day some time since.

IN RECKLESS COMPANY

A Great And Thriving Peterborough Industry

Canadian General Electric Company is Expanding and Growing—Statistics Showing the Great Progress That Has Been Made

Some evil-disposed persons have been circulating a rumour that the Canadian General Electric would close down in two years if reciprocity in natural products carried.

As the rumour was intended to do Mr. Stratton's candidature harm, it is not hard to trace it to its source. The campaign tactics that would throw panic into fifteen hundred wage-earners and attack the stability of the largest industry in Peterborough are too despicable for words.

No wonder Mr. E. G. Patterson, the local manager of the works, was wrathful when the topic was broached. It was too ridiculous for any sensible man to believe, much more to discuss. Mr. Patterson's indignation is both proper and natural. When an Examiner reporter put the straight question to him he answered flatly: "I have heard no such rumour."

The Canadian General Electric is in a most flourishing condition. It has more orders than it can turn out on time. The shops are congested and extensive enlargements are contemplated to keep pace with the business.

The Fielding tariff has not been unkind to the Canadian General Eelctric. It has given all the protection that was needed, and when tariff amendments were being made so late as April, 1907, the Canadian General Electric was one of the long list of Peterborough industries that got everything it asked.

Since 1896 the Canadian General Electric has enjoyed the following protection under the Liberal tariff:

Item 435—Lamps .....30 %
Item 407—Covered copper wire .....30 %

This protection will not be disturbed. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the members of his Government have jointly and severally given assurance of that, as Mr. Stratton has also. They only voice the popular feeling. Manufacturing is as important a part of our national income as farming, mining, fishing or lumbering. No one wants to hurt the manufacturers. On the contrary, there is a general desire, irrespective of politics, to see them prosper. Everybody recognizes that manufacturing institutions of a various character are necessary to build up a great nation.

As a matter of fact, the Canadian General Electric protection is safer in Liberal than it would be in Conservative hands. The Conservatives drifted sadly in their doctrine of high protection. Their tariff of 1894 is something quite different from their tariff of 1878. They had to make a change because they had protected Canadian industries almost to death. The Liberals, having grasped the principle of a moderate, just and sufficient tariff, have never strayed from it since 1896. Of all Canadian tariffs the Fielding tariff has been the most stable.

With stability of tariff assured, the Canadian General Electric has gone ahead and prospered. It has a total capital of $7,392,736. The stock is on a dividend paying basis of 7%. According to the last financial statement at the beginning of this year the company had a total surplus on hand of $1,980,675. In the same report we find that unfinished business, upon which no profit had been taken into account, was carried forward to the amount of $4,000,000 and more orders were piling in. The report refers to a thousand-feet-long addition to the main machine shop completed last May, and says: "It is anticipated that this extension will afford much needed relief to the congestion of the works and will enable us to increase our output very materially."

The stock issues of the company show how the business has expanded with the growth of the country and the protection of the Fielding tariff. Up to 1900 the company's capital was $900.000. Since that time, under the wise Liberal policy of getting people into Canada and creating a market in Canada, General Electric has had to increase its capital seven times. The total capital to-day, $7,392,736, is over eight times as much as it was in 1896.

The stock issues have been as follows:

Capital stock previous to 1890	$ 900,000.00
Allotted Feb. 27, 1900, at a premium of 25%	300,000.00
Allotted Dec. 20, '01, new stock at a premium of 50%	300,000.00
Allotted April 25, '02, new stock at a premium of 50%	625,000.00
Allotted Feb. 16, '02, new stock at a premium of 50%	575,000.00
Allotted April 22, '05. at a premium of 25%	900,000.00
Sold in London, England, January, '06, new stock, at a premium of 20%	1,100,000.00
Allotted May 21, 1910, new stock at par	940,000.00

An interesting side light on the influence of reciprocity on the Canadian General Electric are the quotations on the stock exchange. For Canadian General Electric stock the following prices have been bid within the last seven months:

In January, 1911, at	$99.00
In February, 1911	101.00
In March, 1911	103½
In April at	$104.00

And according to the Toronto World to-day $109.00 is being bid for the stock.

That is to say as soon as reciprocity began to be talked about, Canadian General Electric stock began to go up. It has gone up ten points in seven months. Five points, or half the ten-point rise, has taken place since April, when reciprocity became the big political issue.

Evidently the large investor has concluded that reciprocity will mean increased business and increased prosperity for the Canadian General Electric Company.

The investor is absolutely right. One of the greatest handicaps a Canadian manufacturer can labour under is a small home market. How better can you enlarge that home market than by populating the hitherto unsettled farming and ranching districts. And since reciprocity will fill up the Northwest and give farmers in all parts of Canada a wider market and make them more prosperous, it follows that the Canadian General Electric will obtain that larger market which its expanding business demands.

The prosperous condition of the Canadian General Electric Company, which this article has shown, will be perpetuated under the assured stability of the Liberal tariff. Its protection is not and will not be affected. All the trade policies of the Government tend to enlarge the activities of this flourishing institution. The expanding home market means more business for the Canadian General Electric Company, and more business means steadier employment for the workingman at satisfactory wages.

It is positive cruelty to the workingman to fill him up with panic tales which are flatly contradicted by the facts. The statements in this article are official, being taken from the records of the company.

A vote for J. R. Stratton and reciprocity is a vote for the continued welfare and increasing prosperity of the Canadian General Electric Company and its employees.

FREE TRADE IN FOOD

Mr. Workingman and Citizen,—

A word with you, please!

Let's get away from the election clamour for a minute—"down to brass tacks" on this reciprocity question.

Do you know what it means for you — Free Trade in Food? That's all.

It takes the taxes off what you eat—saves you something that way on every meal. Last year Canadians paid over a million dollars in duties on food imported from the United States.

More than that, it gives you leave to buy what you like, when you like, where you like at the best prices.

You have noticed how the price of canned goods has gone up recently. The farmers haven't got the extra money. It has simply been squeezed out of you by the canners' combine, who are enabled by the present duty to fix prices to suit themselves — what they charge you as well as what they pay the farmer.

Reciprocity will take off all the taxes on some of those goods and will reduce the taxes on all of them.

Do you see the point? Free Trade in Food and better meals and less to pay. That's what reciprocity means for you.

PAT BURNS IS ALL FOR RECIPROCITY

Says the Pact Will Not Hurt Anyone's Business—Opposition is Selfish—Famous "Cattle King" Freely Discusses Agreement—Says That the Talk of Annexation is All Bosh and Opponents of Agreement Are Going Against Best Interests of the Country.

(Staff Correspondence of The Globe.)

CALGARY, SEPT. 8.—Mr. Pat Burns, known throughout the continent as the "Cattle King," is one of the big Canadians who are given the credit of possessing independent opinions. For that reason his views on the pending reciprocity agreement are of interest to men of all shades of political belief.

Mr. Burns is not any nearer being a party man now than he has ever been, but on the supreme issue of this election he has made up his mind definitely, and he expresses his convictions without any reserve or hesitation. These are his conclusions as given in the course of an interview with your representative:—

"I am not a politician," said Mr. Burns. "I look at this question as a business man—not only from the standpoint of my own business, but of the commercial prosperity of Canada as a whole. I don't for the life of me see how the trade agreement with the United States is going to do any harm whatever to Canada or the Canadian people.

"I know it isn't going to hurt my business, and I can't see where it is going to hurt anybody else's business.

"So far as wheat and stock-raising are concerned, the Canadian farmers stand to benefit by a great deal. To my mind that is clear beyond a shadow of doubt. Our farmers and cattleman will have the three best markets in the world to send their products to — Great Britain, the United States, and the home market. These products will compete with the best in the world, and the Canadian farmer in return for his industry will get the best price that is offered in the three markets.

SELFISH OPPOSITION.

"I think too many men, and especially business men, are considering this question in a selfish way. And I believe not a few are opposing it because they fear some damage to their personal interests, though they are convinced in their own minds that the agreement will be good for Canada as a whole.

"I think these men are making a great mistake in opposing it, because their opposition is not disinterested and it is against the good of the country. Even if my business was going to be affected adversely by reciprocity I should vote for it ,because I am convinced that it is going to increase Canada's prosperity.

"As for this talk of annexation, I consider it all bosh, and so does every man who knows anything at all about the west. We are no more disloyal than the people in the east, and we are no more sacrificing our nationality by trading with the people of the United States than are the eastern financiers who invest their money there."

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE.

The Opposition policy of "let well enough alone" is not original—it is stolen from the "Heathen Chinee." China fears foreign trade and annexation. The cry is "let well enough alone". They don't want to advance—they don't want railways. The people are rising in riot against railway building, and are murdering Canadian missionaries as a protest against advancement. They are afraid of larger trade. The elector who admires Chinese ideals can easily accommodate himself to the dead-alive cry of the opponents of reciprocity: "let well enough alone." It is a good enough cry for the Chinese, but how does it fit Live Canadians?

AN UNPRECEDENTED SALE OF FOUNTAIN PENS

The best evidence that a man can have when he goes to do business with the public is unsolicited evidence, freely given by those whose views are impartial.

Very few men have attained such excellent results in this respect as has Mr. Worthemer, who is favouring Peterborough with his presence for a few days, during which time he will endeavour by merit and straightforward business methods to introduce to a large number of Peterborough citizens a long felt want, namely, a "Worth" fountain pen. Below we submit an unsolicited letter from a well known Ottawa house, which refers to Mr. Worthelmer's recent visit to that city:

To Whom it May Concern:—

Mr. H. S. Worthelmer has been conducting a sale of fountain pens in our drug store for the last seven days and in regard to same I am pleased to state that I never had any demonstration as satisfactory. I, at first, mistrusted his statement as to what he expected to sell in a week, but am pleased to say that his estimate was much below his actual sales. I am pleased to recommend him to any store wishing a sale of this kind in his establishment and can assure them of an increased trade during his stay, our store being thronged with people all week. His organizing is both unique and profitable, and the pens have given perfect satisfaction.

J. L. BOOTHMAN.

The above letter, which speaks for itself, is one of many which Mr. Worthelmer has in his possession. It also serves to indicate the favorable record which the gentleman in question has built up for himself in his fair and upright treatment to his customers.

This unprecedented sale of pens, ranging in price from $3 to $10 will commence to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock in Wayne's drug store, when the pens will be sold at the uniform price of $1.25. There will be thousands to choose from, in variable styles and sizes.

A warning to would-be purchasers would not be amiss, to the effect that it would be advisable for them to come early as should history repeat itself, it will be found necessary to turn many away.

When your business becomes irksome and distasteful, you are not well. Miller's Compound Iron Pills will make it a pleasure to attend to business.

Canadian General Electric Company is Expanding and Growing—Statistics Showing the Great Progress That Has Been Made

This protection will not be disturbed. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the members of his Government have jointly and severally given assurance of that, as Mr. Stratton has also. The Liberals, having grasped the principle of a moderate, just and sufficient tariff, have never strayed from it since 1896. Of all Canadian tariffs the Fielding tariff has been the most stable.

With stability of tariff assured, the Canadian General Electric has gone ahead and prospered. It has a total capital of $7,392,736. The stock is on a dividend paying basis of 7%. According to the last financial statement at the beginning of this year the company had a total surplus on hand of $1,980,675. In the same report we find that unfinished business, upon which no profit had been taken into account, was carried forward to the amount of $4,000,000 and more orders were piling in. Since that time, under the wise Liberal policy of getting people into Canada and creating a market in Canada, General Electric has had to increase its capital seven times. The total capital to-day, $7,392,736, is over eight times as much as it was in 1896.

Allotted April 22, '05, at a premium of 25%	900,000.00
Sold in London, England, January, '06, new stock, at a premium of 20%	1,100,000.00
Allotted May 21, 1910, new stock at par	940,000.00

An interesting side light on the influence of reciprocity on the Canadian General Electric are the quotations on the stock exchange. For Canadian General Electric stock the following prices have been bid within the last seven months:

In January, 1911, at	$99.00
In February, 1911	101.00
In March, 1911	102½
In April at	$104.00

And according to the Toronto World to-day $109.00 is being bid for the stock.

That is to say as soon as reciprocity began to be talked about, Canadian General Electric stock began to go up. It has gone up ten points in seven months. Five points, or half the ten-point rise, has taken place since April, when reciprocity became the big political issue.

Evidently the large investor has concluded that reciprocity will mean increased business and increased prosperity for the Canadian General Electric Company.

The investor is absolutely right. One of the greatest handicaps a Canadian manufacturer can labour under is a small home market. How better can you enlarge that home market than by populating the hitherto unsettled farming and ranching districts. And since reciprocity will fill up the Northwest and give farmers in all parts of Canada a wider market and make them more prosperous, it follows that the Canadian General Electric will obtain that larger market which its expanding business demands.

The prosperous condition of the Canadian General Electric Company, which this article has shown, will be perpetuated under the assured stability of the Liberal tariff. Its protection is not and will not be affected. All the trade policies of the Government tend to enlarge the activities of this flourishing institution. The expanding home market means more business for the Canadian General Electric Company, and more business means steadier employment for the workingman at satisfactory wages.

It is positive cruelty to the workingman to fill him up with panic tales which are flatly contradicted by the facts. The statements in this article are official, being taken from the records of the company.

A vote for J. R. Stratton and reciprocity is a vote for the continued welfare and increasing prosperity of the Canadian General Electric Company and its employees.

FREE TRADE IN FOOD

Mr. Workingman and Citizen,—

A word with you, please!

Let's get away from the election clamour for a minute—"down to brass tacks" on this reciprocity question.

Do you know what it means for you — Free Trade in Food? That's all.

It takes the taxes off what you eat—saves you something that way on every meal. Last year Canadians paid over a million dollars in duties on food imported from the United States.

More than that, it gives you leave to buy what you like, when you like, where you like at the best prices.

You have noticed how the price of canned goods has gone up recently. The farmers haven't got the extra money. It has simply been squeezed out of you by the canners' combine, who are enabled by the present duty to fix prices to suit themselves — what they charge you as well as what they pay the farmer.

Reciprocity will take off all the taxes on some of these goods and will reduce the taxes on all of them.

Do you see the point? Free Trade in Food and better meals and less to pay. That's what reciprocity means for you.

PAT BURNS IS ALL FOR RECIPROCITY

Says the Pact Will Not Hurt Anyone's Business—Opposition is Selfish—Famous "Cattle King" Freely Discusses Agreement—Says That the Talk of Annexation is All Bosh and Opponents of Agreement Are Going Against Best Interests of the Country.

(Staff Correspondence of The Globe.)

CALGARY, SEPT. 8.—Mr. Pat Burns, known throughout the continent as the "Cattle King," is one of the big Canadians who are given the credit of possessing independent opinions. For that reason his views on the pending reciprocity agreement are of interest to men of all shades of political belief.

Mr. Burns is not any nearer being a party man now than he has ever been, but on the supreme issue of this election he has made up his mind definitely, and he expresses his convictions without any reserve or hesitation. These are his conclusions as given in the course of an interview with your representative:—

"I am not a politician," said Mr. Burns. "I look at this question as a business man—not only from the standpoint of my own business, but of the commercial prosperity of Canada as a whole. I don't for the life of me see how the trade agreement with the United States is going to do any harm whatever to Canada or the Canadian people.

"I know it isn't going to hurt my business, and I can't see where it is going to hurt anybody else's business.

"So far as wheat and stock-raising are concerned, the Canadian farmers stand to benefit by a great deal. To my mind that is clear beyond a shadow of doubt. Our farmers and cattlemen will have the three best markets in the world to send their products to — Great Britain, the United States, and the home market. These products will compete with the best in the world, and the Canadian farmer in return for his industry will get the best price that is offered in the three markets.

SELFISH OPPOSITION.

"I think too many men, and especially business men, are considering this question in a selfish way. And I believe not a few are opposing it because they fear some damage to their personal interests, though they are convinced in their own minds that the agreement will be good for Canada as a whole.

"I think these men are making a great mistake in opposing it, because their opposition is not disinterested and it is against the good of the country. Even if my business was going to be affected adversely by reciprocity I should vote for it, because I am convinced that it is going to increase Canada's prosperity.

"As for this talk of annexation, I consider it all bosh, and so does every man who knows anything at all about the west. We are no more disloyal than the people in the east, and we are no more sacrificing our nationality by trading with the people of the United States than are the eastern financiers who invest their money there."

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE.

The Opposition policy of "let well enough alone" is not original—it is stolen from the "Heathen Chinee." China fears foreign trade and annexation. The cry is "let well enough alone". They don't want to advance—they don't want railways. The people are rising in riot against railway building, and are murdering Canadian missionaries as a protest against advancement. They are afraid of larger trade. The elector who admires Chinese ideals can easily accommodate himself to the dead-alive cry of the opponents of reciprocity: "let well enough alone." It is a good enough cry for the Chinese, but how does it fit live Canadians?

AN UNPRECEDENTED SALE OF FOUNTAIN PENS

The best evidence that a man can have when he goes to do business with the public is unsolicited evidence, freely given by those whose views are impartial.

Very few men have attained such excellent results in this respect as has Mr. Worthemer, who is favouring Peterborough with his presence for a few days, during which time he will endeavour by merit and straightforward business methods to introduce to a large number of Peterborough citizens a long felt want, namely, a "Worth" fountain pen. Below we submit an unsolicited letter from a well known Ottawa house, which refers to Mr. Wortheimer's recent visit to that city:

To Whom it May Concern:—

Mr. H. S. Wortheimer has been conducting a sale of fountain pens in our drug store for the last seven days and in regard to same I am pleased to state that I never had any demonstration as satisfactory. I, at first, mistrusted his statement as to what he expected to sell in a week, but am pleased to say that his estimate was much below his actual sales. I am pleased to recommend him to any concern wishing a sale of this kind in his establishment and can assure them of an increased trade during his stay, our store being thronged with people all week. His advertising is both unique and profitable, and the pens have given perfect satisfaction.

J. L. BOOTHMAN.

The above letter, which speaks for itself, is one of many which Mr. Wortheimer has in his possession. It also serves to enhance the favorable record which the gentleman in question has built up for himself in his fair and upright treatment to his customers.

This unprecedented sale of pens, ranging in price from $3 to $10 will commence to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock in Warne's drug store, when the pens will be sold at the uniform price of $1.25. There will be thousands to choose from, in variable styles and sizes.

A warning to would-be purchasers would not be amiss, to the effect that it would be advisable for them to come early as should history repeat itself, it will be found necessary to turn many away.

When your business becomes irksome and distasteful, you are not well. Miller's Compound Iron Pills will make it a pleasure to attend to business.

DO SOME SOLID THINKING.

The electors of Peterborough have a serious duty to perform on Thursday, Sept. 21st—the duty of selecting a representative who shall have in trust the interests of this beautiful and thriving city and prosperous riding for the next five years—a city and country that with energetic and live representation, can be made still more thrifty and prosperous.

Down in the bottom of his heart every elector, if left to his own good sense — if not distracted with mischevious side issues, desires to make a choice between the two candidates —to choose the man that is qualified, has shown himself willing and able to do, and consequently will do, the most for the materisl growth and upbuilding of Peterborough, town and country. No elector, if left to his own mind, to his unprejudiced and unbiased judgment, will, for a moment, hesitate to decide. He has only to ask—which of the two candidates, Mr. Stratton and Mr. Burnham, would make the better and more useful member?

Which of the two candidates has done more in the past for the advancement of the interests of Peterborough and West Peterborough?

Which is the better qualified by experience and business ability, business influence and business connections, to do the most in the future?

Which of the two has shown the greater public spirit, and has more actively, practically, successfully and effectively identified himself with movements to advance the substantial interests of Peterborough, city and county? Which of the two has brought the more solid benefit to the city and county? Which has done the more in substantially aiding the religious interests of every denomination in Peterborough, city and county.

Which of the two has the more liberally embarked his means, and enlisted his energies in promoting manufacturing activity, in creating and providing employment and contributing to the prominent industrial position the City of Peterborough now occupies? In a word:—

Which possesses the greater capacity, the higher qualifications, the greater business qualities, that equip him for giving the riding and city the more energetic and effective service in all respects—who will make the better representative at Ottawa—who will do more for, and bring more to, West Peterborough—who will the better serve and represent the business and industrial interests of Peterborough—Mr. Stratton or Mr. Burnham?

The voice of common sense; the voice of experience; the voice of local patriotism and of loyalty to the best interests of Peterborough will answer, J. R. STRATTON.

Electors, do a little quiet, hard thinking, thinking without passion or party, or political prejudice, and you can come to only one conclusion, and that will be that J. R. Stratton will make the representative Peterborough needs, in relation to all its best business, industrial and general interests, and there will no doubt that he will be triumphantly returned to repeat the splendid services he has given West Peterborough.

OUTRAGEOUS FALSEHOOD.

We quote almost much more from the Review than we intended to the working majority reciprocity means free trade in manufactured products, but we would hardly suspect that a reputable lawyer and a King's Counsel would resort to deliberate lying to justify his opposition to the reciprocity agreement. Speaking at Keene, Mr. E. Gus Porter, of Bellville, the other night, said:

> "Reciprocity means absolute destruction of the Canadian home market, by the importation from the United States of cheap manufactured products which will, under reciprocity come in duty free."

This is as flat a falsehood as could be uttered. The reciprocity agreement does not remove the duty on a single manufactured article—does not make a single manufactured article "free of duty" as Mr. E. Gus Porter, K.C., falsely declared it does, on common decency.

A cause that has to be supported by straight lying is, indeed, weak. Such a style of argument employed by a reputable man is an outrage on common decency.

TRYING TO FOOL THE FARMERS

Conservative campaigners in East and West Peterborough are misleading the farmers, who know that the reciprocity agreement will give a larger market in the United States with higher prices, for his barley. They try to "load up" the farmer with the false idea that United States barley will flood the Canadian market and ruinously compete with the Canadian article. They quote the importation of barley from the United States by the Quaker Oats Company of Peterborough. That has nothing to do with Canadian barley, which by its superior A No. 1 quality, commands sale in the United States against the cheap, feed barley, such as that the Quaker Oats Company imports to mix with other grains for export feed purposes. It is imported in hand and ground for export, so that as far as competition goes, so far as its consumption in Canada is concerned this barley never enters Canada at all. It doesn't pay duty and only passes through the Quaker Oats mills and is shipped out of the country again. This low-grade barley would be of no use for malting purposes, the purposes for which Canada's gilt-edge barley is demanded by United States brewers at gilt-edge prices.

The farmer knows too much about barley and barley prices to be bamboozled with such fairy tales. He knows that the removal of 30 cents per bushel from Canadian barley entering the United States will be a big boon to him, and create a market for a money-making crop, killed by high tariff. Take the tariff away and the golden age of barley growing in Ontario comes again.

Farmers who have been voting all their lives—have never had a chance of voting for themselves—in voting for the reciprocity agreement, something that will benefit himself, personally, and will injure no other legitimate interest. Farmers have a chance to vote for the only measure proposed mainly in the farmers' interests by any Government since Confederation.

The Liberal Government has given the farmer the first opportunity to vote for himself. Will he take it?

Whitney Seeks "Larger Market" He Denies The Canadian Farmer

"Good Business" to Sell Ontario Power in Detroit but "Disloyalty and Annexation" for Farmers to Sell Horses in United States

Sir James Whitney is going up and down the Province trying to prevent the Ontario farmer from getting higher prices for his produce. One of his Cabinet Ministers, Hon. Frank Cochrane, though drawing a salary to look after the affairs of the Province, has been turned over to the Dominion Conservative Organization to do his utmost to prevent the Ontario farmer from getting into the larger market. His other Cabinet Ministers are also being used in the campaign wherever possible.

The string that Sir James harps on is that because the Ontario farmer will sell horses and apples and barley to what Sir James refers to as "an unfriendly nation," therefore, "Canada is at the parting of the ways."

It is curious that Sir James did not think of this danger when he was planning the western extension of his Hydro-Electric Commission, under which it is proposed to sell 20,000 horse-power, to be supplied, not by the farmers of Ontario, but by Sir James Whitney's government, to the manufacturers of a great rival city, situated in an "unfriendly nation." The circumstances are not recalled here in any criticism of the Ontario Government's Hydro-Electric policy, which must always remain a bright jewel in the crown of the Government of this province, but merely to demonstrate the absurdity of Sir James Whitney's position on the question of reciprocity.

The circumstances are these: the City of Windsor, and some other towns in western Ontario peninsula, wanted Niagara Falls power from the Hydro-Electric commission. The amount of power they could consume, however, was so small that it was found the cost price would be too great unless (note this phrase) "a larger market" could be secured. The proposal was then made that 20,000 horse-power should be supplied to the city of Detroit. The city of Windsor petitioned for this privilege. The Hon. Adam Beck went to Windsor and advocated the sale of this 20,000 horse power in Detroit. The matter was brought to the attention of Sir James Whitney and his cabinet including Dr. Reaume, who lives in Windsor, and was sanctioned by them, in fact the proposal to find a larger market for Hydro-Electric power was approved of by practically everyone concerned; the city of Windsor and adjoining towns, the Ontario Cabinet, Sir James Whitney, and the people of Ontario.

At present the matter is being held up by what is known as the Burton Law of the United States, which prohibits the importation of any more Niagara Falls power into the United States on account of the danger of destroying the beauty of Niagara Falls. But Sir James Whitney and his Government are properly using their best efforts to secure an amendment, which will permit of the proposed sale to the city of Detroit going through.

Sir James Whitney can sell 20,000 horse-power, generated in Ontario, to the city of Detroit, giving power to American manufacturers at cheaper rates than they could otherwise secure, (otherwise they would not buy), to permit them to compete with Canadian manufacturers. Sir James Whitney can do this without being charged with disloyalty, without being stricken with a dread fear of annexation, without being "at the parting of the ways," but all these things are to happen if an Ontario farmer desires to sell one horse across the line.

Wm. Hamilton Company Are Running Day And Night

The Practical Answer to the Yarn That Reciprocity Will Ruin Manufacturing

Reciprocity is not prospectively ruining the William Hamilton Company very rapidly.

There's nothing in the ghost stories that loud-mouthed and irresponsible persons are spinning to the workingman that reciprocity will ruin Peterborough industries and leave the working men without a job.

The William Hamilton Company has been employing 150 hands a full day But the influx of orders is so great that the present staff of workmen could not handle them and a night shift has been put on working day and night to keep in sight of filling orders.

The Reciprocity Agreement does not affect manufactured articles; it does not place a single manufactured article on the free list.

Don't take our word for it, but read it yourself.

When anybody tells you what the agreement does to injure the workingman, make him prove it; and you will find that—

Nobody can prove that there is a grain of truth in the statement that the reciprocity agreement will close a single Peterborough industry.

The man who has to resort to lying to make a point against the agreement in the pretended interest of the working man is no friend to the workingman, but insults the intelligence of the working man who thinks.

GOVERNMENT DEMONSTRATION AT THE PETERBOROUGH FAIR

The Ontario Department of Agriculture will have a demonstration tent at the following fairs in the County of Peterborough: Peterborough, Lakefield, Keene and Norwood.

There will be an exhibit of weeds, weed seeds, sprayed and unsprayed fruit, dairy testing utensils, drainage instruments and a drafted plan showing the exact location of drains in a complete system of farm use. In addition, there will be for free distribution a large number of agriculture bulletins.

Farmers desiring any information relevant to agriculture such as how to care for the orchard, how to eradicate noxious weeds, drainage problems, etc., should interview the district representative and secure such information.

This demonstration tent will be placed inside the agricultural grounds at all these Fairs so that one cannot fail to notice its position. There is to be no charge or fee for either inspecting the exhibit and securing information or for any agricultural bulletins.

INJURIES WERE FATAL

Mr. Henry Neithercutt, of Fraserville, Dies From Kick by Horse

The injury sustained by Mr. Henry Neithercutt of Fraserville, yesterday, which was caused by a kick from a horse terminated fatally this morning when the injured man passed away at the Nicholls Hospital.

It is understood that when tending his stock yesterday, a spirited colt trampled on him with the result that his leg was broken. He was brought to Peterborough and attended to by Dr. Boucher, at the Nicholls Hospital but the injury, coupled with his advanced age caused his death.

The deceased, who was 70 years of age, was born in Cavan County, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1842 For some time he resided in Otonabee, but on his marriage to Miss Margaret Smith, who predeceased him some six years since, removed to Fraserville, where for many years he carried on the farming industry. In creed, he was a Methodist, and a staunch Liberal in politics.

As an old resident of Fraserville he was generally respected and was held in great esteem by all those who were fortunate enough to know him intimately.

Three brothers survive Mr. Neithercutt, in the persons of Montgomery and Joseph of Dunkirk, Alex. M. of Glasgow, Michigan, and two sisters, Mrs. R. M. Matchett of East City, and Mrs. John Bell of Otonabee.

The funeral will take place at 2 p.m. to-morrow from the residence of his nephew, Mr. O. S. Matchett, of 20. King street, to the Fraserville cemetery.

ELLIOT'S

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

These are the things I prize
And hold of deepest worth,
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of forest, comfort of the grass,
Music of the birds, murmur of little rills,
Shadow of clouds that swiftly pass,
And after the shower,
The smell of flowers
And of the good brown earth And best of all, along the way, friendship and mirth. —Van Dyke.

DO you daily open your heart as fully as possible to the influence of the serenity and the loveliness of nature?

Few people really do, I think.

Of course almost everyone nowadays admires nature. To do so is style. But I mean more than admire.

It is one thing to say detachedly, "That is a beautiful sunset" or "How lovely that river and those meadows look."

It is quite another to be able to feel an actual glow of pleasure at the loveliness of the sunset sky, to be actually soothed into serenity and peace by the tranquil aspect of the river dreaming along through the autumn meadows.

"I have lost many things that made me happier in my life," a woman said to me the other day. "I do not have so much that is interesting and exciting nowadays but I find that I have gained one great thing as I have grown older and my life has become less active and crowded, and that is the power of finding actual happiness in the beauty of nature. There was a time when it took some event, some excitement or some expectation to give me pleasure. I admired nature but I didn't enjoy it. To-day, when I look out on the long golden shadows of late afternoon on my neighbour's lawn, or see an especially magnificent cloud effect down by the river, or pass some lovely garden, I not only admire it, but I feel actually happy over it."

In a recent magazine article a mother of several children rejoices because she thinks her children are going to find their happiness in "large interests and small pleasures" as she knows that if they get that point of view on life they will always find it easy to be happy.

Among the small pleasures she counts love of nature. Although one might quarrel with the adjective "small," one must surely applaud her philosophy.

He who can be happy with "large interests and small pleasures" will always be happy since these are free to any man.

Cultivate a real joy in nature, a real pleasure in its beautiful aspects, instead of a detached admiration, for this can be cultivated.

Train yourself to open your mind wide to nature's influences of tranquility and serenity—for the mind can be thus trained—and you will have a source of happiness and peace that no circumstances, no possible turn of the wheel of fortune, can ever take away from you.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—take them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, cleansing, too.

MR. BORDEN WOULD HAVE JUMPED AT IT

Extract from address of Mr. Fred B. Lovekin, former president of Durham County Conservative Association, now supporting the Liberal candidate and reciprocity:—

"Mr. Borden says it is wrong for you to sell in the markets where you get the best prices. But let me, as a Tory, whisper to you a little secret about Mr. Borden: If he had been the Premier and had been offered this chance, he would have jumped at it."

WAITING FOR RECIPROCITY

The West Believes It Will Greatly Increase the Price of Oats

The following letter from the National Elevator Company, Limited, of Winnipeg, a very large concern operating in the West, speaks for itself:—

National Elevator Co., Ltd.,
Winnipeg, Aug. 25.

Messrs. John B. Smith & Sons, Toronto, Ontario:

Gentlemen. — Acknowledging your favor of the 23nd inst., we wired you yesterday giving you price on oats f.o.b. cars Toronto, and you will, no doubt, have noticed our prices are somewhat higher than our earlier quotations, which is caused by our markets having advanced considerably during the summer, as notwithstanding the splendid crop prospects we have, our cat values are very firm, owing to heavy speculative buying in anticipation of the passage of the reciprocity measure, as it is believed that if we get reciprocity our values will even up with American prices, which are now some six cents a bushel higher than Canadian values.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) N. L. Leach,
Vice-President.

AFTER OUR BARLEY

A Detroit Firm Places an Order Pending the Adoption of Reciprocity

H. W. Rickel and Company, Detroit, writes as follows: "We are writing to you, and desire to request you to give us the names of grain dealers in Ontario, either with grain elevators or otherwise, equipped to handle barley or malting quality in car lots for shipment to Detroit, Mich., in the event that the proposed reciprocity agreement is accepted by the Canadian Government. In case of favorable action by the voters of the Dominion of Canada, we would be prepared to take on malting barley in car lots up to 300,000 bushels or more. We would like very much to get in touch with some of the grain dealers at this time, and correspond with them with reference to the matter herein referred to."

A CLEAR CUT ISSUE

The "Privileged Few" Against the "Unprivileged Many"

If ever there was an election in Canada in which the Privileged Few stood on one side and the Unprivileged Many on the other, surely this is that one.

The men who form the backbone of the anti-reciprocity forces are the packers with their 50 per cent. dividends; the maisters who have been buying Canadian barley at an average of 12c below Buffalo prices, and financiers and promoters who have become millionaires by the floating of mergers which the present system renders possible. On the other side is the great mass of unorganized farmers who are asking simply that they be allowed to sell certain of their products in what, but for an artificial barrier, to be the natural market, namely, Canada. The largest market in the world.

Surely, with the issue so plain, with the reason for the opposition so manifest, no farmer can doubt on which side his ballot should be cast.—Weekly Sun.

GARDENERS WILL NOT SUFFER

Mr. Thomas Vance, commission merchant, says: "There is an erroneous idea that everything that comes in early is American. The fact is," he says, "that vegetables come from Leamington four weeks, and from the Niagara peninsula three weeks, before they are ready in the vicinity of Toronto. The American early vegetables are out of the way weeks before the Toronto article is ready. If they were not, they could not be sold, for not only is the home article much better, but it is also much less expensive. Reciprocity instead of injuring the market gardeners will benefit them. The gardeners of Leamington will ship to Detroit, their natural market, the fruit and vegetable-growers of Niagara will ship to eastern American cities after the home-grown articles are done for the season, and the Toronto gardeners will have their home market to themselves."

GAIN IN SELLING

Sales on Which the Farmers Will Make a Profit

When the reciprocity agreement ratified all Canadian farm products, except wool, will be entitled to entry to the United States without payment of duty. The free list will include:

Cattle of all kinds.
Horses of all classes.
Sheep and swine.
Poultry, whether alive or dead, and eggs.
All varieties of grain.
Beans.
Garden, field and grass seeds.
Flax seed.
Hay and straw.
Potatoes, turnips, onions, cabbage, and all other vegetables in their natural state.
Apples, pears, peaches, grapes, berries of all classes; all other edible fruits in their natural state and honey.
Butter, cheese, milk and cream.

"ALL BOSH," SAYS TAFT

The President of the United States Thus Replies to Annexation Talk

In view of the frequent assertions of the anti-reciprocity press that President Taft is trying to trap Canada into annexation, the following extract from the President's speech before the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York on April 27 is of interest: "As between Canada and the United States the trade and the mutual benefit from the trade agreement will increase, it is amusing, and I am not sure that it has not some elements of consolation in it, to find that all the buncombe and all the exaggerated talk and misrepresentation in politics and all the political ghosts are not confined to our own country, and that there has entered into the discussion in Canada, as a reason for defeating the adoption of this contract by the Canadian Parliament, a fear that we desire to annex the Dominion, and the dreams of the Americans with irresponsible imaginations, who like to talk of the starry flag floating from Panama to the Pole, are exhibited by the opponents of the Canadian treaty in Canada as the declaration of a real policy by this country, and as an announcement of our purpose to push control over our neighbor of the north. I am not an anti-Imperialist, but I have had considerable experience in the countries over which we have assumed temporary control. I do not know when that control will end, but I do know that, in respect to those countries, we have taken over heavy duties and obligations, the weight of which ought to destroy any temptation to further the acquisition of territory. The talk of annexation is bosh. Everyone knowing anything about it realizes that it is bosh."

MISDIRECTED ENERGY

The motorist emerged from beneath the car and struggled for breath. His helpful friend, holding the oil-can, beamed upon him.

"I've just given the cylinder a thorough oiling, Dick, old man," said the helpful friend.

"Cylinder" said the motorist heatedly, "that wasn't the cylinder, it was my ear!"

A SLIGHT MISTAKE

The mistress of a certain infant school one day asked the children to bring any old shoes they might have so that she could give them to the poorer scholars. Next day, as she went round the classes to collect any shoes that might have been brought, she addressed one little fellow, saying:

"Well, Stanley, haven't you any old shoes in your cupboard?"

"Yes, ma'am," he promptly replied, "but mother says she's going to wear 'em herself."

FOUND RIGHT PATH

"In 1899 I began to drink coffee.

"At that time I was healthy and enjoyed life. At first I noticed no bad effects from the indulgence but in course of time found that various troubles were coming upon me.

"Palpitation of the heart took unto itself sick and nervous headaches, kidney troubles followed and eventually my stomach became so deranged that even a light meal caused me serious distress.

"Our physician's prescriptions failed to help me and then I dosed myself with patent medicines till I was thoroughly disgusted and hopeless.

"Finally I began to suspect that coffee was the cause of my troubles. I experimented by leaving it off, except for one small cup at breakfast. This helped some but did not altogether relieve my distress. It satisfied me, however, that I was on the right track

"So I gave up coffee altogether and began to use Postum. In ten days I found myself greatly improved, my nerves steady, my head clear, my kidneys working better and better, my heart's action rapidly improving, my appetite improved and the ability to eat a hearty meal without subsequent suffering restored to me. And this condition remains.

"Leaving off coffee, and using Postum did this, with no help from drugs, as I abandoned the use of medicines when I began to use the food drink." Name given by Canadian Postum Co. Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

"There's a reason." and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

UNTAXED FOOD IS LABOR'S BOON

Free Food Agreement Which Will Enrich the Workingman's Dinner Table

The reciprocity agreement is a free food agreement.

It will remove the barriers between the country worker who produces the food, and the city worker who consumes the food. The Canadian farmer knows this and is supporting the agreement heartily, and in many cases against his party feelings.

The workingman, whose wages, a large part of them, are spent on food, is equally interested. He is not the enemy, but the ally, of the man who produces the food. Between these two workers are taxes and tolls—taxes levied by two Governments—tolls levied by middlemen, whose profits are made by buying food cheap and selling it dear. Reciprocity will take off the taxes and tolls and divide them between the worker in the country andn the worker in the town.

Reciprocity will enrich the workingman's dinner-table. It will enable him to buy Southern fruits and vegetables at seasons when they cannot be produced in Canada, and when, therefore, the importation cannot hurt the Canadian farmer. It will enable food to be carried from the place of abundance and to the place of scarcity. So it will prevent gluts and it will prevent famines.

Rich men can afford to buy asparagus and tomatoes out of season. An abundant supply of fruits and vegetables all the year round is just as good for the poor as for the rich. Reciprocity will give us all access to grains, fruits, and vegetables, wherever and wherever they are grown—from the Peace River to the Gulf of Mexico, and from January to December. It will hurt nobody and it will help everybody, just as the rain and sunshine help everybody.

WOULD BE A BIG LIE

"Come, now," persisted the lawyer, "are you not able to say, of your own knowledge, that the defendant was in the room at the time and objected to the whole proceeding?"

"Yes, sir," savagely replied the witness. "I am able to say it, I reckon; but I'd be telling the biggest lie you ever heard of if I did."

How to Tell if Your Hair is Diseased

Even if you have a luxuriant head of hair, you may want to know whether it is in a healthy condition or not. 98 per cent of the people need a hair tonic.

Pull a hair out of your head, if the bulb at the end of the root is white and shrunken, it proves that the hair is diseased and requires prompt treatment if its loss would be avoided. If the bulb is pink and full, the hair is healthy.

We want everyone whose hair requires treatment to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We promise that it shall not cost anything if it does not give satisfactory results. It is designed to overcome dandruff, relieve scalp irritation, to stimulate the hair roots, lengthen the hair already in the head, grow hair and cure baldness.

It is because of what Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has done and our sincere faith in its goodness that we want you to try it at our risk. Two sizes 50c and $1.00. Sold only at our store

GOOD FOR THE FARMER

Reciprocity Will be a Big Saving to Farmers on Implements

The Grain-growers' Guide of August 30, has the following on its front page: "H. W. Hutchinson, General Manager John Deere Plow Company, Winnipeg, announces: 'We are prepared in the event of the adoption of the reciprocity pact to reduce our prices to farmers $5 on every harvester, $3 on every mower, $1.50 on every rake, $5 on every seeder, $5 on every American wagon, and other things in about the same ratio. . . . What my company will do my competitors will be obliged to do also. The farmers can save in this way, as near as I can reckon, $1,000,000 per annum.'"

FALL OPENING

A Distinguished Fashion Display Formally Introducing the New Authentic Styles for Fall

In keeping with the great Autumn out-of-doors, our store is now ready to formally reveal to you the modes which have been accorded the "seal of approval" from Fashion authorities.

When the curtain goes up on this Fall Opening it will disclose such a splendid assemblage of New correct Autumn Fashions as have rarely, if ever, delighted your eyes in any retail establishment. London, Paris, New York, and other style & trade centres have been drawn upon for our stocks. Our intimate knowledge of your requirements and preferences, coupled with our painstaking selection of correct styles and superior qualities will at once become apparent to the most casual observer.

Practical utility has joined hands with distinctive beauty in the Fashions for this Season, and the two have been ably reinforced here by our usual moderation in pricing.

Certainly, everyone who desires to learn at first hand the correct Fashion tendencies for Fall, and view the new styles in the beauty of their newness will be sure to attend our formal display. Remember it is yours to enjoy for the more coming. We extend to you a cordial invitation :--- Come!

Fall Fashion and Fair Days are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 14th, 15th, and 16th.

The New Hats Are Beautiful and Becoming

Dame Fashion was never so lavish in designing Millinery for Autumn wear—large picture shapes, wee bonnet styles, and medium-size hats galore—all correct, provided the little important details of trimming, colour scheme and so on are in harmony with fashion's dictates. And as for these essential features, our millinery stocks of past seasons are evidence sufficient that our display of models for the forthcoming season will be all and more than is expected by the discriminating women of this city. The Millinery Department alone deserves a special trip to the store to view.

Dainty Dress Accessories in Profusion

Their name is legion---and it is impossible to even mention all of them---but they are all here---all correct in colour, design, and the hundred and one little microscopic details that set apart the styles of one season from that of another---gloves, veils, neckwear, belts, bags, ribbons, buttons, and so on.

Dress Goods that Rival Autumn's Tints for Beauty

There is practically no end of new designs and colours in dress goods for Fall. Beautiful patterns in silk warp poplins, serges, cotton voiles, Scotch mixtures, broadcloths, mohairs, all sorts of novelties and variations of many of the always wanted staples fill our shelves to overflowing.

Conspicuous Examples of the New Smart Suits

The slender silhouette—refined and perfected—is the keynote of these fashionable garments. Long and graceful in outline, these new models are both becoming and practical—and are certain to win your favour and approval at the first glance of critical appraisal. Rough fabrics will be employed mainly in fashioning the new garments, though the liberal use of sheer weaves, broadcloths, and cheviots brings these fabrics also as contenders for the first place.

Dresses and Gowns That Reflect The East Indian Influence

Women's Autumn Fashions are dominated by ideas borrowed from far East India. Practical and elaborate modifications of the best of these styles are shown here in sheer materials for evening and dressy wear, and more sturdy fabrics for the street. The long slender lines which are a pronounced feature of the new suits are also much in evidence in the new dresses.

Separate Coats of Stunning Beauty & Sturdy Service

For automobiling, for evening wear over your theatre or dinner gown, and for many other purposes a separate coat is indispensable. We are showing a greater variety than ever before—all built along the lines of the best present day fashions. Large collars, revers, collars and pocket flaps as well as buttons of all kinds are notable trimming features of the new coats.

In connection with this important Fashion event we shall also make elaborate displays of artistic Home Furnishings. Never has it been possible to procure such beautiful Home Decorations for so little. Never have varieties offered been so extensive.

Visit our Home Furnishing Department to-morrow and choose from the most artistic and delightful new home needs for Fall.

Some Stoney Lake Real Estate Changes Hands

Special to The Examiner.

Real estate is everywhere recognized as the financial barometer of a country, indicating by its rise or fall the true monetary condition of its people.

If times are hard, economy is the watchword, whereas, if money is "easy", investments are the order of the day.

Stoney Lake surely is entering on a great wave of prosperity if the number of transfers of "granite" is any evidence.

Among the more recent transfers might be mentioned "Forest Nook," which has passed from the Baptie estate to Dr. Perry Goldsmith, of Toronto, who intends spending a great deal of money in near future transforming it into one of the beauty spots of Stoney Lake.

"Kosey Island," formerly owned by Mr. Piper, has as its new owner Mr. Russell, of Toronto, who intends raising the cottage and making many other improvements.

Rev. A. M. Mackenzie, principal of 'Grove School,' Lakefield, has purchased a choice location from the Le Febre estate, just north of E. Wyley Grier and quite near his brother professor, Mr. H. Mackenzie. This deal includes two little islands in the bay, in front of the main property.

Mr. H. L. Beal, who, with Mr. John Anderson, purchased the bulk of Big Island, has sold some choice building lots to Mr. Henderson, of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., Mr. Lang of the Customs House, and Mr. Blewett, formerly of the Peterborough Hardware Co.

Mr. Henderson, of Toronto, has acquired the large 'Indian Reserve' Island near the head of the lake, from the McDonald estate, on which he intends erecting a hunting lodge which will be used as a base for his shooting expeditions in the fall and winter.

Mrs. Albert Leech has just completed the purchase of the old Leech property on the back channel, near "Forest Nook."

—Simon the Sailor.

"INDIAN" FINED

An 'Indian' was fined $10 in the police court yesterday. He was found drunk in a public place in the city.

Another man residing near the city was arrested Monday for being drunk and disorderly but was later allowed to go.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

NEXT WEEK'S MEETINGS

Mr. F. D. Kerr Carrying on a Splendid Campaign

The aggressive platform campaign that has been carried on by Mr. F. D. Kerr, Liberal Candidate, during the past month, will be kept up right until the night of the 20th instant.

Meetings for next week have been arranged as follows.

Monday night—Lakefield.
Tuesday night—Keene.
Wednesday night—Norwood.
Wednesday night—Havelock.

Mr. Kerr will be assisted at these meetings by Mr. C. A. Mose, K. C., R. S. Muir, J. E. Atkinson, all of Toronto, and Mr. Cowan, Editor of Farm and Dairy, Peterborough.

Mr. J. E. Atkinson is Editor of the Toronto Star, and is a very clever speaker. He will address Mr. Kerr's Havelock meeting.

57th Regiment Holds Opening Drill Of Season—127 Turn Out

There was a rather small turnout of the Rangers last evening, as it was the first night of the fall drills, and a great number of the members were out of the city, while numerous others were not aware of the fact that there was to be drill. Both the bands turned out. Company drill was performed and instructions in the numerous manoeuvres were given.

There were 127 of all ranks who turned out, divided as follows: Officers, 12; Non-Coms., and men, 115, which were sub-divided as follows: A Company, 8; B Company, 5; C Company, 3; D Company, 14; E Company, 15; G Company; 9; and H Company, 8. There were twenty members of the brass band apd 15 members of the bugle band in attendance also.

It will be noted by the orders hereunder given that shooting will commence at once, and in addition to this it might be added that it is desired that all should shoot as soon as possible, and have it done with so that the returns can be sent in and in order that they can get in line for the winter sports.

It is also desirable that great interest be taken in the shooting, as a splendid new rifle range will be ready for use for next year. In view of the fact that such a treat is in store for the men, it would encourage the movement to take an interest in the sport.

According to a little information to hand, it is understood that a military concert of a spectacular nature is under the consideration of the officers of the Regiment, and if it materializes will take place some time in October. A proposition was put before the officers, outlining the events in connection with it by a man whose name is not to hand, but who will hold a number of such events in Ottawa, Kingston, and other military centres. The members for the exhibition will be chosen from the ranks of the local corps, and the Regimental Band will supply the music. However, nothing definite has yet been arranged, and it is possible that the local military men may not care to take the matter up. It all depends on the conditions and nature of the proposition under consideration.

Headquarters,
Peterborough, Sept. 12, '11.

Orders by the Officer Commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers:—

No. 1. Detail of duty for week ending Sept. 16th, 1911: Capt. for the week, Major Mills; next for duty, Capt. Cluxton; subaltern for the week, Lieut. Hodgson; next for duty, Lieut. Carruthers.

No. 2.—Shooting will be resumed for those who have not qualified for efficiency pay, as follows:

A. and B. Company, Tuesday evening, Sept. 12th.
C. and D. Company, Wednesday evening, Sept. 13.
E. and F. Company, Thursday evening, Sept. 14th.
G. and H. Company, Friday evening, Sept. 15.
A. and B. Company, Monday evening, Sept. 18.
C. and D. Company, Tuesday evening Sept. 19.
E. and F. Company, Wednesday evening, Sept. 20.
G. and H. Company, Friday evening, Sept. 22.

Members of the Bugle and Brass Band will shoot with the company to which they are attached.

Saturday evening will be open for those who cannot shoot on any other evening.

The officers of each company shall be present on the evenings their respective companies shoot.

D. WALKER,
Major-Adpt.

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 5th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF Y.M.C.A. MET LAST NIGHT

The Board of Directors of the local Y.M.C.A. held a very successful meeting last night in the Board Room of the Association building. Mr. J. J. Turner, the President, was in the chair and there was a sufficient number of the directors present to form a quorum.

The reports from the several departments indicated that a good programme of work had been carried on during the summer.

The building has just been thoroughly overhauled and put into first class shape for the coming season. Probably not for ten years has the building presented a more attractive appearance as it does just at present.

The financial report presented by the treasurer, Mr. Howden, revealed the fact that the receipts up to the end of August are away in advance of last year at this time, though a good deal of hard work on the part of the Directors and a greater degree of support from the friends of the Association will be necessary if the financial statement at the close of the year is to show the Association free of debt.

Mr. J. H. Connal reported on behalf of the Physical Department that things are in splendid shape for the opening of the gymnasium in a few days. The Association is particularly fortunate in being able to retain the services of Mr. Thompson as director of physical activities this year. Good physical directors are not easily found and there are none better than Mr. Thompson.

A large number of applicants were received into membership, and the membership secretary, Mr. Hall, reported that prospects are bright for a large addition at the next Board meeting.

The Boys' Committee was delighted to report that the Association had been successful in securing the services of Mr. S. L. Spicer as the new boys' secretary. Mr. Spicer has just graduated from the Western Medical College at London, Ont., and comes with the highest recommendations. Mr. Downey suggested that the parents of the boys ought to be notified that school boys who are members of the Boys' Department, are not allowed in the Association on any night in the week except Friday and Saturday nights. This rule will be strictly observed by the officers this year, and parents will do well to investigate if the Y.M.C.A. is put up as an excuse for a school boy to get out at nights. This applies equally to the members of the Boys Department who are in attendance at the Collegiate Institute.

Rev. W. C. Riddiford presented to the Board a scheme by which the Brotherhoods and Men's Bible Classes of the city could have the use of the gymnasium on one night in the week, at a special rate. The scheme was thoroughly discussed and the directors were in hearty favour, provided it is found practical. A committee was appointed to investigate and take action in the matter.

The Board heard with deep regret of the loss sustained by Mr. Holliday, the General Secretary at Westmount, Montreal, in the fatal burning of his wife.

The programme of religious work was not presented, in view of the absence of the chairman of the Religious Work committee.

As Toronto is converted to 30-Day Shorthand so is Ontario becoming converted. Hard work and satisfied graduates will do it. Our catalogue may help. Send for it. Moon College, 282-286 Yonge street, Toronto.

The Least Fuel, The Most Satisfaction.

Exchange Your Baking Worries for a "Happy Thought"

It isn't good policy and it's mighty poor economy to struggle along with an unsatisfactory range, working yourself to death, and wasting good food and high-priced fuel, when you can obtain a and possess a range that will always give you complete satisfaction. Its efficiency is based on a stove experience of over half a century. Its improvements are those that have been thoroughly tested and found to be of real value to a range.

It is made of material that will give lasting service, the parts subject to the greatest strain and wear are especially reinforced and it has a reputation to live up to that obliges the makers to see that every range turned out of their factory is perfect.

It is always good policy to be thoroughly informed about any articles before buying.

We will be pleased to explain the Happy Thought Range to you and then when you have examined the other stoves in the market—we will be ready to do business with you.

Montreal Lady Well Known In Peterborough Is Fatally Burned

Peterborough people will read with a sense of grief and shock, the following, from the Montreal Star. The paragraph refers to Mrs. W. S. Holliday who was a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. John, and who was well known in Peterborough. The Star says:

Death came on Saturday evening at the Royal Victoria Hospital, to Mrs. W. J. Holliday, of 258a Park avenue, who was terribly burned the same morning in her own kitchen. With her baby, only a year and a half old, Mrs. Holliday was alone in her house on Saturday morning and was heating a mixture of wax and turpentine on the gas stove. The vessel overflowed and caught fire and in trying to right it, Mrs. Holliday's clothing was set on fire.

Her screams of agony were heard by Mrs. P. B. Daveluy, who lives in the house below. She ran up and met her neighbour at her front door her whole body enveloped in flames. Mr. J. A. Trepanier from across the road ran over with a blanket and smothered the fire and then telephoned for an ambulance from the Royal Victoria Hospital. Waiting for its arrival, Mrs. Holliday lay on her own front door step, suffering terrible agony but still conscious. Her baby was her chief thought and when a neighbour made his way into the kitchen and carried out the child a happy smile lit up her face.

A passing motorist went for her husband at the Fairmount Y.M.C.A. where he is secretary. It was realized there was no hope of saving Mrs. Holliday's life and her death at six o'clock in the evening was not unexpected.

Coroner McMahon was informed of the circumstances and he decided that an inquest was unnecessary and accordingly the funeral was held this morning, leaving the Place Viger station for the deceased's former home at Cushing, Que. Twenty-seven years of age, Mrs. Holliday had been married three years. Besides her husband and baby, both parents, three brothers and three sisters survive her. Rev. Mr. Potter, of the MacVicar church told of the sad accident in his service yesterday morning and at the session meeting a resolution of sympathy for the family was passed.

MISSIONARIES STILL IN CHENTU

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 13.—From special cables received this morning from China, via British Foreign Offices, at London, it is evident that only a small party of British and Canadian residents in the beleaguered city of Chentu were able to get out before the rebels and revolutionists closed in on Chentu and the majority of them, including Canadian missionaries, are still in that city; in whatever position of safety and protection as it afforded them. Authoritative despatches from Tatchein, seventy-five miles south east of Chentu, state that messengers sent there, were unable to get through the lines of the rebels besieging the place. The British foreign office has received the latest reports from the Consul at Chentu, dated Sept. 8th, in which it states that the Governor-General had refused to permit the balance of the British residents to leave, owing to the rebels' lines outside of the city.

Out of Pocket.

C.G.E. To Defend R. R. Hall Cup At Exhibition

Football is again in the air, and with it comes the resuscitation of the C.G.E. champs. The latter won the R. R. Hall cup last year, and mean to again secure it as a sort of consolation for their disappointment in the Ontario finals.

Although somewhat weakened by the loss of Corless, outside wing, who has left the city, the team which had such a successful season in the Midland League will be otherwise intact, and the bunch are confident of trotting out the old classy style of game which has been the undoing of so many scalp-hunters in the past. The following players are expected to be at the service of the management:

R. Mannity, R. Evans, W. Hull, E Allan, A. Faget (capt), E. Hooper, A. French, B. Smith, W. Dawson, G Miller, W. Boycott, E. Dawson.

St. James, champions of the Church League and All Saints have challenged for the cup and the games will be played in connection with the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition this week.

What is a Bath?

What is a bath? Is it the simple bath of hot or cold water and soap, or the Turkish bath of hot air or the Russian one of steam, or the mud bath of Saint-Amand-les-Eaux, or the compressed air bath of Reichenhall, or the baths of wine favored by famous beauties, or the sun bath of modern hygienists, or the Laplander's plunge into the hot blubber of a just killed whale, or the bath of asses' milk, to provide which for his consort an Earl of Portman bought cheap the Portman estate north of Oxford street as a farm to keep a herd of asses? Now, which of these is a bath?—London Chronicle.

"The Almighty Dollar."

The idea of the forceful phrase "the almighty dollar" is much older than the time of Washington Irving. Ben Jonson's "Epistle to Elizabeth, Countess of Rutland," commences thus:

Whilst that for which all virtue now is sold,
And almost every vice, almighty gold.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

The arguments have all been made and comparative prices have been quoted at length. You have doubtless read, heard and digested. It only remains to recall the outstanding features of the question before the country—reciprocity in natural products with the United States.

Reciprocity will injure or disturb no industry or factory or workman, in Peterborough or elsewhere, but on the contrary will materially promote the interests of all.

The protection which the Fielding tariff has always accorded our manufacturing industries, will be continued unabated. Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding have time and again given assurance of this. The mutual effect of freer trade in natural products and protection for our manufacturers cannot fail of being beneficial by giving the workingman cheaper living and the manufacturer a more prosperous home market.

Reciprocity will benefit the farmer by giving him an unlimited market in the United States for those products which he cannot ship to England, or which he cannot sell at home to advantage.

Reciprocity will reduce the cost of living from twenty-five to thirty per cent. It will benefit the consumer in about sixty of the chief elements of his diet.

American eggs, all American fruits, fresh and dried, and all vegetables, will come in free of duty at the seasons when there is no production here.

Fish of all kinds, oysters and shell fish will come in free.

The existing duties will be materially reduced on fresh meats, bacon and hams, dried, smoked and salted meats, canned meat, canned fish, sardines and the like, canned vegetables, flour, oatmeal, pearled barley, macaroni, biscuits, etc.

These reductions will materially reduce the prices of these articles to the consumer.

Now, you may ask, can reciprocity raise the price to the farmer and lessen it to the consumer?

The answer is simple enough. Reciprocity takes down two tariff walls which stand between the natural products of Canada and the United States and their natural disposal.

The American tariff is the wall against the producer, against the Canadian farmer, which prevents him seeking an outlet for his surplus in that direction and leaves him at the mercy of the Canadian food combines.

The Canadian tariff is the wall against the Canadian consumer, which prevents him from getting the benefit of cheap American products at the times and places when these do no compete with Canadian products.

At present the Canadian farmer receives less for his products than the American farmer and the Canadian consumer pays more for his food than the American consumer.

Reciprocity in natural products removes these two artificial barriers and allows the food products of a continent to find the most convenient channels.

The relief to producer and consumer should be almost immediate. Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

What are the side issues that have been dragged into this campaign—the loyalty of the Liberal party, annexation, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion and the British Born.

They are almost too absurd to mention, but I will answer them briefly.

Loyalty of the Liberal party? The answer to that is British preference, South African contingents, the Canadian navy. Actions speak louder than words. The very men who are plastering the majority of the electors of Canada with the imputation of disloyalty, have a working alliance in Quebec with the firebrand Bourassa, who hates England and preaches destruction to British ascendancy and Canada.

Annexation? The answer to that is that Lord Elgin, Governor-General of Canada, in 1854, a Conservative and an ardent Imperialist, was the chief instrument in obtaining the reciprocity treaty with the United States, which lasted from 1854 to 1866. His avowed purpose in securing reciprocity, was to cure the annexation sentiment, then prevalent among Canadian business men an account of the hard times.

Lord Elgin believed, with Lloyd-George, that reciprocity in natural products between Canada and the United States, was crystallized common sense, and with the London Times, that a happy and contented member of the British Empire, is better than an unhappy and discontented one. Lord Elgin's cure worked. Instead of annexation, reciprocity brought Confederation in its train, and gave this country the great blessing of national unity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion? The Protestants of Ontario outnumber the Roman Catholics six to one. Protestantism is in no more danger from a Liberal Roman Catholic premier than it was from a Conservative Roman Catholic premier, Sir John Thompson. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has no more Roman Catholics in his cabinet than Sir John Macdonald had, or Sir John Thompson or Sir John Abbott, or Sir Charles Tupper, or last but not least, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, once the Grand Master of the Orange order. Sir James Whitney has two Roman Catholics in his cabinet, and they have shown themselves equitable and capable administraters.

The British Born? We are all British born if we are born within the Empire, and we are all equally proud of it. Those who were born in the Mother Country and have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions need not be told what the Liberal Government has done to help the workingman and to open up the great Northwest prairie to the land-hungry homeseekers. In Canada, as in England, most of the workingman's blessings have been the gift of the Liberal Government. Neither need they be told what a Liberal Government has done for the old land across the sea in the matters of British preference, the South African contingents and the Canadian navy. The British born may be depended upon to rally to the side where they find their best friends.

Hoping to receive the same confidence from the electors of West Peterborough as I have received in the past, I am,

Yours Respectfully,

J. R. Stratton

Enters Upon Her Duties Sunday

Miss Chalmers, who has been secured by St. Paul's church as successor to Miss Davis, will enter upon her duties next Sunday. Miss Chalmers comes to Peterborough highly recommended and will be an acquisition to our musical talent.

At a recital given by Miss Chalmers upon her attaining her A.T.C.M., the musical critic of the 'Saturday Night' observes that she not only has a charming stage presence and hearing, but her voice is of exceptional sweetness and purity and possesses a silvery timbre, peculiarly individual—her voice production is admirable.

The 'Globe' also comments upon her work as a "conspicuous success."

Miss Chalmers will devote herself to voice culture, concert engagements and church work.

"Oceana Roll"

Seizes New York Waiters

Ragtime walking is the latest on Broadway. It is a sort of gliding motion in exaggerated form. The pedestrian so affected pushes up a shoulder with each step. When he puts his right foot forward the corresponding shoulder goes up. When the other foot steps out the left shoulder rises slightly. With every step the entire body, from the waist up, sways. In the case of the young man so affected he frequently claps his hands with each step or snaps his fingers. That the new walk is a result of the "Oceana Roll" craze is evident from the fact that often the ragtime pedestrian will whistle or hum the tune of this novel song.

A RAILROAD EXPERT.

Manufacturers' Transportation Man Has Had a Wide Experience.

James E. Walsh, manager of transportation for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, is a mild-mannered man, and unobtrusive. His voice is not of the megaphone variety, and his eyes beam benignly behind his spectacles. No stranger would pick him out as a railway censor, but, then, appearances are deceptive.

As a matter of hard fact, Mr. Walsh is steeped in railroading. By way of emphasis, it may be added that the saturating process has been in progress for twenty-five years. That his practical knowledge has helped him in his present position can be verified by a reference to the records of the Dominion Railway Commission. The typewritten pages are plentifully sprinkled with his name and his opinions. He is not a lawyer, but he holds his own with railway counsel.

Mr. Walsh is a native of Ormstown, Quebec. He was educated at the Protestant Separate School of Huntingdon County, and at Joliette and Varennes Colleges. The classics were taught at Joliette, and business axioms were furnished at Varennes. After clerking for a short time at Ormstown, he became a timekeeper on construction work for the Canada Atlantic. He remained with that road for twenty years, and though his work was largely executive, he learned much that was useful about railroading.

From construction work he was transferred to the track and ballasting department. Then he went to the audit branch, and had charge of freight and car mileage accounts. After a glimpse of the mechanical department, Mr. Walsh was made chief clerk of the freight and passenger department. When the Canadian Atlantic was extended and reorganized, he was given charge of the passenger, ticket and baggage departments, and retained that position until the road was sold. He was with the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co. for a time, as assistant to the general manager, and on leaving the R. & O., was engaged by the Federal Government on the Georgian Bay survey, where he made a study of traffic possibilities and compiled trade statistics. His report has been considered interesting reading by earnest people.

Mr. Walsh came to the C.M.A. in 1907, succeeding J. E. Marlowe.

Mr. Walsh has been a busy man a long time. He can brake a train, run a locomotive, and do other thrilling things, but he doesn't play golf, and while he takes a literary interest in baseball reports, etc., he has not been an athlete.

Mr. Walsh will admit one weakness, though he denies it's a weakness. He is a great angler.

When Mr. Walsh was with the Canada Atlantic, he acted as guide, philosopher, friend, to theatrical companies, circus people, hard-headed men of science, and others. Ontario and Quebec boast some large bass and trout. Mr. Walsh captured many whoppers, including a five-pound brook trout, on these personally conducted tours, and in his holidays—when he took a vacation. If Mr. Walsh were a talkative man, what fish stories he might tell. But he is a silent man, except on transportation matters.

The New Bishop.

The consecration of the new Bishop of Niagara brings into the forefront of church life in Ontario a man who has hitherto been unknown outside his own diocese. During the discussion which preceded the election, it surprised outsiders to hear the name of Archdeacon Clark mentioned so repeatedly, but it was evident that he had many friends. It appeared to be generally recognized that the diocese needed an administrator, and Archdeacon Clark had been so intimately connected with this aspect of the work for many years that he was the natural choice. He is not known as an orator, a personality or a controversialist, but he inspires confidence as a man experienced in the business of his church.

Although Bishop Clark is not widely known, he has been connected with many dioceses in the course of his life. He was born in Russell County, P. Q.; he received part of his education at Bishop College, Lennoxville; he also attended Trinity College, Toronto; he was ordained in Ottawa Cathedral, and Niagara diocese became his permanent field of work.

Compiling Census Returns.

Reports from all parts of the country are flowing into the Census Department and preparations are being made for the big job of compiling the census from the enumerators' returns.

The work requires machinery as well as men and women, and up to the present little the machinery has not made its appearance. It is expected, however, that 20 tabulators and 70 card-punching machines, ordered by the Government and now in course of construction at Toronto, will be in Ottawa in a few days.

A number of girls have been given temporary positions, and will assist the regular staff, while the census statistics are being compiled.

Census Figures Don't Tell All.

While the results of the census will show a large increase in the population of Canadian cities, the first figures will, by no means, indicate the real growth since the last census was taken. When the census districts were made up thousands of residents in several of the newly-annexed districts of the big cities were not included and the result will be that there will be considerable heart-burning when the figures come out.

Army's Champion Swordsman.

Lieut. J. Betts, who recently won the army and navy foils championship, has for five years in succession carried off the challenge shield as best man-at-arms, and during the last twelve years has been the trainer of the class of non-commissioned officers from Aldershot giving gymnastic displays at the annual tournaments. Lieut. Betts was promoted in 1906 to the Victorian Order by the late King Edward, who presented him with the silver medal of the Order in recognition of his services in connection with physical training in the army.

P. C. LARKIN.

P. C. Larkin, Business Man, Elected President of the Ontario Club.

P. C. Larkin, the new president of the Ontario Club, is one of the best-known and most-popular business men in this country. Since the organization of the club two years ago he has been prominently identified with it and has been largely responsible for its success. The membership is now 600 with 300 non-resident members from all over the province. The club has secured new quarters which will be ready soon and will be one of the finest club buildings in Canada. As the organization is strongly Liberal in its tendencies the club rooms are likely to be the headquarters of the Liberal party in Toronto.

Some time ago he became vice-chairman of the board of trustees of Toronto General Hospital and has done splendid work for the institution. He has made a big effort to secure every scientific discovery which could be used for the alleviation of human suffering for the hospital and, in fact, has made the institution his one and only hobby. In all matters concerning the welfare of the country P. C. Larkin has always taken a deep interest. He believes thoroughly in commercial reciprocity and was one of the first to advocate old-age pensions in this country. He is an enthusiast on newspaper advertising and spends annually over $100,000 for newspaper space. He is also one of the heaviest insured men in Canada, carrying policies for over $400,000 on his life.

Settling a Boundary.

Mr. Eugene Lafleur, K.C., of Montreal, is the president of the International Boundary Commission which recently began at El Paso, Texas, its deliberations regarding a definition of boundary which has for a long time been a bone of contention between the big republic and her southerly neighbor. The work of the commission consists in defining the international boundary between the United States and Mexico, the location of which has been unfortunately lost through the habit the Rio Grande has of changing its course every now and then.

It was his fame as a legal authority, and some half dozen years of odd moments devoted to the study of international law, that won for Mr. Lafleur the distinction of presiding at the meetings of the Mexican boundary commission. He was the recipient of congratulations from scores of friends and fellow-members of the Bar before his departure for El Paso, for Mr. Lafleur is one of the most popular of members of the legal fraternity in the metropolis, and Montrealers considered that it was no little honor that had been bestowed by Uncle Sam on their fellow-townsman.—Star Weekly.

A Loss That Was Felt.

Captain Hardess Lloyd, the famous polo player, was talking about the cessation of flogging at the great English public school of Eton.

"I am glad," he said, "that flogging is now done away with. Eton boys used to suffer a good deal from the birch. There was one Eton master in the seventies who flogged so severely that his death, when he came to die, was announced in the papers among the shipping news. They announced it under the head:

"'Loss of a Whaler.'"

Milking Contest At Perth Fair

As a result of the cow testing work throughout Eastern Canada, a great deal of interest has been awakened, and a large number of herds have been greatly improved, by weeding out the poor cows, keeping the heifers from the best cows, by spraying in the fly seasons, by growing soiling crops, such as peas and oats to feed when the pasture becomes short and dry, and the feeding of ensilage in the winter.

As a result of this improvement has come the demand for milking contests at the fall fairs, and a number of these contests will be held during the next few weeks.

The first contest of the season was held at the Perth Fair last week, where the cows were entered in the two classes—one class being for the heifers and the other for the aged cows, or those over 4 years.

The test was for a period of 24 hours and the cows were milked dry in the presence of the judges, H. W. Coleman of Perth and A. L. Andress First milking was at 6 a.m. Tuesday, The first milking was at 6 p.m. and the last at 6 a.m. Wednesday. Twenty-five points was allowed for each lb. of fat, 4 points for each lb of solids not fat, and one point for each 10 days in milk after the first 30 days.

A great deal of interest was taken in this contest, especially by the boys, and it would seem that the keeping of a superior class of stock on the farm besides bringing in more money will, through the interest and pride which the young people take in it, help to keep them on the farm. One little girl at Perth, telling a little friend, that "My cow took first prize in the contest."

Every cow did exceptionally well and it is likely that a still larger number of cows will be entered next year, as the Fair officials were delighted with the interest shown, and have promised to improve the shows and make everything as convenient and comfortable as possible. It is expected that a similar test will be held at Peterborough and Norwood next year, where there are many promising herds.

REVIVAL OF FOOD RIOTS

Professional Agitators Are At Work Again in France

SOLDIERS FIGHT CROWDS

Paris, Sept. 14.—The war against the high price of food, which has been languishing for the last few days, owing either to the vigorous precautions of the authorities or the palliative measures of the mayors in establishing municipal butcher shops and other food depots, burst forth afresh yesterday. In several districts there were violent disorders, which indicated that professional agitators were again at work. At Creil, 32 miles north of Paris, barricades were formed with telegraph poles. One of exceptional strength was built around a huge boiler, surmounted by a red flag, and it required a large force of troops to storm it successfully. In the engagement large numbers on both sides were injured. The streets of Creil last night were patrolled by soldiers.

Charleville also was the scene of serious disturbances yesterday. Crowds of people from the country round about, armed with pitchforks, attempted a regular investment of the town. A regiment of dragoons, hastily summoned, charged down upon the manifestants, scattering them in all directions.

At L'Orient, in Brittany, the mobs, not satisfied with proclaiming a boycott of the market, upset the stalls and threw into the streets the various articles of food exposed for sale.

A Giddy Whirlwind.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 14.—A peculiar freak in Monday night's storm is reported from Chatham Township. On James Forsythe's place, on the ninth concession, a whirlwind tore a verandah from a newly-built dwelling and hurled it several yards away. The path of the hurricane described a small semi-circle, tearing gaps of fences, and hit the horse stable, part of which it wrecked. It then turned another half circle in the opposite direction and blew down the wind mill. No further damage in any part of the township is reported, and the whirlwind at Forsythe's seemed to merely trace a complete "S" and then cease operations.

May Order Bridge Closed.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 14.—The City Council may order Aberdeen bridge closed to all traffic, including street cars, unless the Chatham, Wallaceburg & Lake Erie Railway Co. comes to some agreement whereby they will help meet the expenses of repairing the bridge.

The bridge is now said to be in a very unsafe condition, owing to the heavy traffic carried over it by the railway company. The closing of the bridge would mean that all of the railway's northern traffic would be cut off right about the time the big business in sugar beet freight commences.

Big Coal Fire at Boston.

Boston, Sept. 14.—Thousands of tons of coal went in smoke when the coal wharves and pockets of the Batchelder Brothers and the F. C. Warren Coal Companies in South Boston were destroyed by fire late yesterday. The high northerly wind carried the flames in the direction of many large manufacturing plants and tenement buildings, but the fire was confined to the coal structures, which held 90,000 tons of hard and soft coal. The total loss is estimated at $75,000. The fire is believed to have been caused by a defective motor.

ARE ONLY PIGMIES NOW

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Pays Tribute to the Old Conservatives

IN LAVERGNE'S RIDING

Montmagny, Que., Sept. 14.—Flanked by the great Laurentian hills and centered in a spot of wild beauty, this little town, one of the political anomalies of Quebec, was visited by the Premier yesterday. It returns to the Federal Parliament a Liberal member and to the Provincial Mr. Armand Lavergne, lieutenant of the Nationalist party. Sir Wilfrid, fresh and smiling after the exertions of the day before, came to support the candidature of Hon. Dr. Beland, who is also running in Beauce County. An enthusiastic reception was accorded the Premier by the crowd of 4,000 people, and he spoke strongly, clearly, and effectively in support of his platform.

Sir Wilfrid dwelt on the prosperity of the country, and prophesied increased prosperity for Canada, and a benefit also to the United States, and said that all the farmers from east to west are in favor of the pact. He attacked the statements of those who said that the navy would mean increased taxation for the people, and remarked that such speakers were only fooling the people.

Macdonald, Chapleau and other members of the great Conservative party, he said, had advocated reciprocity. "I say great Conservative party, and I salute them," he repeated, raising his hat to their memory.

Then quickly replacing it, he said: "But the present Conservative leaders, what are they? Only pigmies."

He then attacked the Nationalists, characterizing their campaign as one of calumny and lies, and declaring that he still believed that the Liberals would come out victorious over the "unholy alliance" of Quebec castors, and Ontario imperialistic jingoes.

To-night the Premier will speak in Quebec for Mr. William Power, and will leave Friday morning for Rimouski.

A Whirlwind Finish.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—Sir Wilfrid has planned a whirlwind finish to his campaign for Tuesday, Sept. 19, when he will speak at Grandmere in the afternoon at two o'clock, and at Joliette at four o'clock. He will then spend the evening in Montreal, holding two open-air meetings, one at Atwater avenue, and the other in the east end, at a place not yet fixed. The other speakers at these meetings will include the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and the city candidates.

J. J. Ward's Flight.

New York, Sept. 14.—J. J. Ward started yesterday morning from Governor's Island for the long transcontimental flight from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. He is flying for a prize of $50,000 offered by William R. Hearst. Ward stated at 9.08 o'clock.

Ward is the second competitor to try for the prize for the quickest flight from coast to coast, and the first to start on the westward route. To win he must reach Los Angeles or San Francisco in thirty days.

Strengthening Jamaica Garrison.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 14.—It is reported here that the British War Office is arranging to send very soon 12,000 European artillery and infantry to strengthen the local garrison in view of the increased importance of the station, which will come with the opening of the Panama Canal. It is expected that the navy yard at Port Royal, which was burned last spring will be reopened soon.

The Shoe Man - - Peterborough

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

To the Efectors of West Peterborough:

The arguments have all been made and comparative prices have been quoted at length. You have doubtless read, heard and digested. It only remains to recall the outstanding features of the question before the country—reciprocity in natural products with the United States.

Reciprocity will injure or disturb no industry or factory or workman, in Peterborough or elsewhere, but on the contrary will materially promote the interests of all.

The protection which the Fielding tariff has always accorded our manufacturing industries, will be continued unabated. Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding have time and again given assurance of this. The mutual effect of freer trade in natural products and protection for our manufacturers cannot fail of being beneficial by giving the workingman cheaper living and the manufacturer a more prosperous home market.

Reciprocity will benefit the farmer by giving him an unlimited market in the United States for those products which he cannot ship to England, or which he cannot sell at home to advantage.

Reciprocity will reduce the cost of living from twenty-five to thirty per cent. It will benefit the consumer in about sixty of the chief elements of his diet.

American eggs, all American fruits, fresh and dried, and all vegetables, will come in free of duty at the seasons when there is no production here.

Fish of all kinds, oysters and shell fish will come in free.

The existing duties will be materially reduced on fresh meats, bacon and hams, dried, smoked and salted meats, canned meat, canned fish, sardines and the like, canned vegetables, flour, oatmeal, pearled barley, macaroni, biscuits, etc.

These reductions will materially reduce the prices of these articles to the consumer.

How, you may ask, can reciprocity raise the price to the farmer and lessen it to the consumer?

The answer is simple enough. Reciprocity takes down two tariff walls which stand between the natural products of Canada and the United States and their natural disposal.

The American tariff is the wall against the producer, against the Canadian farmer, which prevents him seeking an outlet for his surplus in that direction and leaves him at the mercy of the Canadian food combines.

The Canadian tariff is the wall against the Canadian consumer, which prevents him from getting the benefit of cheap American products at the times and places when these do no compete with Canadian products.

At present the Canadian farmer receives less for his products than the American farmer and the Canadian consumer pays more for his food than the American consumer.

Reciprocity in natural products removes these two artificial barriers and allows the food products of a continent to find the most convenient channels.

The relief to producer and consumer should be almost immediate. Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

What are the side issues that have been dragged into this campaign—the loyalty of the Liberal party, annexation, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion and the British Born.

They are almost too absurd to mention, but I will answer them briefly.

Loyalty of the Liberal party? The answer to that is British preference, South African contingents, the Canadian navy. Actions speak louder than words. The very men who are plastering the majority of the electors of Canada with the imputation of disloyalty, have a working alliance in Quebec with the firebrand Bourassa, who hates England and preaches destruction to British ascendancy and Canada.

Annexation? The answer to that is that Lord Elgin, Governor-General of Canada, in 1854, a Conservative and an ardent Imperialist, was the chief instrument in obtaining the reciprocity treaty with the United States, which lasted from 1854 to 1866. His avowed purpose in securing reciprocity, was to cure the annexation sentiment, then prevalent among Canadian business men on account of the hard times.

Lord Elgin believed, with Lloyd-George, that reciprocity in natural products between Canada and the United States, was crystallized common sense, and with the London Times, that a happy and contented member of the British Empire, is better than an unhappy and discontented one. Lord Elgin's cure worked. Instead of annexation, reciprocity brought Confederation in its train, and gave this country the great blessing of national unity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion? The Protestants of Ontario outnumber the Roman Catholics six to one. Protestantism is in no more danger from a Liberal Roman Catholic premier than it was from a Conservative Roman Catholic premier, Sir John Thompson. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has no more Roman Catholics in his cabinet than Sir John Macdonald had, or Sir John Thompson or Sir John Abbott, or Sir Charles Tupper, or last but not least, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, once the Grand Master of the Orange order. Sir James Whitney has two Roman Catholics in his cabinet, and they have shown themselves equitable and capable administrators.

The British Born? We are all British born if we are born within the Empire, and we are all equally proud of it. Those who were born in the Mother Country and have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions need not be told what the Liberal Government has done to help the workingman and to open up the great Northwest prairie to the land-hungry homeseekers. In Canada, as in England, most of the workingman's blessings have been the gift of the Liberal Government. Neither need they be told what a Liberal Government has done for the old land across the sea in the matters of British preference, the South African contingents and the Canadian navy. The British born may be depended upon to rally to the side where they find their best friends.

Hoping to receive the same confidence from the electors of West Peterborough as I have received in the past, I am,

Yours Respectfully,

J. R. Stratton

Canadian and U.S. Church Workers Are Said to be Safe in the Compound

WELL GARRISONED

Peking, Sept. 14.—Latest advices received by the Chinese Foreign Board and the foreign legations indicate that Cheng-Tu, capital of Sze-Chuan Province, as earlier stated, that most, if not all the missionaries are inside the walls, and that the city is garrisoned by 1,800 troops, who have had several engagements with the besieging forces.

A despatch from the prefect of Yen-Chaun, which lies about 75 miles southeast of Cheng-Tu, dated Sept. 12, said that the troops were firing upon the rebels from the Cheng-Tu walls and that the besiegers had lost many men. The belief is held here that the garrison is capable of resisting the attacks of any number of organized rebels from the outside.

The Canadian Methodist Compound within the city has open spaces around its own walls. It is believed that the foreigners have taken refuge within this compound, which is considered the strongest and the most easily defended. Peking missionaries, who have been in former riots at Cheng-Tu, say that whatever Chinese troops were despatched to guard the mission would be stationed outside the compound and would not be permitted under any circumstances to get within the gates.

Whether the foreigners and the natives inside the walls are prepared to endure a siege is not known. The question of supplies is an all important one, and it is probable, in view of past experiences, that the missionaries have taken precautions against such a contingency. The missionaries, however, possess no weapons, unless they have been supplied by the viceroy. Every effort is being made to communicate with Cheng-Tu, but so far there has been no movement to relieve the city.

Foreigners here seem confident of the ability of the viceroy to suppress the rising. The southern section of Sze-Chuan continues loyal. Although the natives sympathize with the opponents of the railway construction. All gatherings in Peking in sympathy with the revolutionary movement in Sze-Chuan have been dispersed by the police.

A despatch from Kia-Ting-Fu to the south of Cheng-Tu, says that the foreign missionaries stationed there have left for the Yangtse. These included three men and their wives and a woman doctor. The foreign gunboats have been unable to proceed above Sui-Fu.

Hankow, Sept. 14.—The native press publishes a report that the vice-roy's yamen at Chang-Tu has been destroyed and that many rioters have been killed. It is reported also that the foreigners have gone to Chang-King under escort.

The situation is considered very grave. The vice-roy has about 2,000 troops at Cheng-Tu and 5,000 altogether in the province. Reinforcements cannot reach Cheng-Tu in less than a month.

London, Sept. 14.—A Shanghai despatch to a London news bureau says it is reported that nine entire provinces of Sze-Chuan is in revolt. The rebels are expected to declare their independence.

Poisoned by Ice Cream?

London, Sept. 14.—As a result, it is believed, of eating ice cream at the Western Fair on Tuesday, Mrs. F. Dagleish of Chatham, is dead at the Victoria Hospital.

About nine o'clock in the evening, Mrs. Dagleish was seized with convulsions. She was at once rushed to the City Hospital, where she died from ptomaine poisoning about five hours later.

A sister of the dead woman declares that the deceased ate no canned food for supper. Coroner Ferguson has ordered an inquest.

M. and M. Buy Gold Mine.

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 14.—The first big sale of the Shining Tree district was put through on Tuesday, when Mackenzie and Mann of Toronto, bought the Gosselin property for $300,000 cash.

This was the original gold strike in the Shining Tree district.

Within the next few days another big deal will be put through, when the Jellerson property will be taken up either by the Dome or another Cobalt company. The deal is pending the refusal or otherwise by the Dome.

Dead Thrown From Car Windows.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 14.—A despatch to The Novoe Vremya from Constantinople describing the horrors of the cholera epidemic in Macedonia, says that soldiers are crowded in locked cars when ill and left without water or medical aid. On the Mitrovitza Uskup Railroad living and dead victims of the cholera have been thrown from car windows by their comrades.

Millionaire's Wife Elopes.

New York, Sept. 14.—Frederick L. Suydam, jr., the young millionaire of Blue Point, L.I., whose young wife is reported to have run away with Fred. Noble, son of a plumber, says that his wife was very impulsive and temperamental.

He does not intend to make any effort to find her.

Glasses Make all the World Seem Brighter

There is a sense of insecurity to those whose sight is dim. Some persons run the chances of injuring their eyes through the want of glasses. Many tell us it is a brighter better world since they were supplied with suitable glasses. We help persons daily to brightness and comfort.

Extremists in Control.

London, Sept. 14.—The Railway Commission yesterday heard the testimony of several non-union workers who said that if the unions were recognized all of the non-union men would be compelled to join unions or lose their liberty. They complained of the manner in which union officials treated non-unionists.

They admitted they believed that if unionism were carried on properly it would be a grand thing, but said that the unions had been captured by Socialists, who used the unions to advance their own views. Unionism had been completely changed in the past few years, they said.

The extremists had got hold, and the men were bound down and had lost their manhood and everything else. It was the policy of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants to keep up the spirit of unrest, because unionism flourished thereby.

Big Barge Wrecked.

Cornwall, Sept. 14.—The Montreal Transportation Co.'s big barge Winnipeg, Captain Nelson Mallette of Cornwall in command, while in tow of the tug Thompson, struck on a rock in the Rapid du Plat, and punctured her side Tuesday night, while on her way to Montreal with 1,500 tons of soft coal for the Montreal Steel Works. The Winnipeg loaded her cargo at Ashtabula, Ohio. The tugs Thompson and Seymour made an effort to pull the barge into shallow water, but before they succeeded she sank in 35 feet of water. The accident happened about a quarter of a mile west of the head of the Folsom's Point Canal. The captain and crew escaped with all their belongings. Captain Mallette has been navigating the St. Lawrence for 40 seasons, and this is the first time he has been in a wreck.

Woman's Brave Deed.

Toronto, Sept. 14.—Mrs. A. Lowe, a widow, living at 90 Markham street, jumped into the lake at Sunnyside yesterday, and saved the life of a little girl, who tumbled into the water while playing on the sea wall there. Several men passively watched her heroic act.

Mrs. Lowe happened to be walking along the shore at the time. She and the child were pulled from the water by onlookers. The name of the child is not known, but the statement that the mother offered a check for $500 to the rescuer is authority for the belief that the little one's parents are wealthy.

Thirty-Five Damage Actions.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—Thirty-five actions demanding damages aggregating over $30,000, have been entered against the city by residents of the newly-annexed Longue Point Ward who claim that they suffered damage to this extent through a fire which burned out twelve houses and tenements there, and which was only enabled to gain such headway by insufficient water supply and lack of protection against fire. They claim the city, upon annexation, should have installed adequate fire-fighting apparatus.

LOOKING FOR UNION.

General Synod Favors Steps Toward Church Unity.

London, Ont., Sept. 13.—In general synod assembled the Church of England of the Dominion of Canada last night passed a resolution to seek union with other churches. The resolution was adopted after a long debate, which commenced in the afternoon session, occupied the greater part of that session and most of the evening. Rev. Principal Renford of the Montreal Diocesan College gave the following resolution, which passed unanimously:

"The general synod places on record its earnest desire for Christian union, and as an end thereto recommends the clergy and laity to avail themselves of every opportunity of Christian co-operation, which does not involve a sacrifice of church principles. And that the clergy seek opportunity to confer with their brethren of other unions concerning the principle of church union."

During the afternoon a message was received from the House of Bishops recommending that the synod pass a resolution that the delegates to the 1913 synod at Vancouver be assessed $10 to help defray the contingent expenses. This carried, also that the delegates' allowances for meals while traveling be limited to $3 per day.

Man Hunt In Manitoba.

Snowflake, Man., Sept. 14.—Work on farms and in the neighboring towns has been suspended while the men continue to search for Henry B. Wilson of Hanna, N.D., who is alleged to have kept Miss Eleanor Gladys Brice, a school teacher, prisoner for 30 hours in the forest.

Wilson was last seen at Pembina Bridge Tuesday night and it is feared he has escaped over the international boundary line. The bloodhounds are working well and the posses are still in pursuit.

Premier Roblin of Manitoba, uncle of Miss Brice, arrived here yesterday in his automobile and has joined in the hunt. The condition of Miss Brice has improved.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

In the spring the human system is loaded with poisons which has accumulated as a result of artificial winte rlife. There has been too much breathing of poisoned indoor air, too little outdoor exercise, too much eating of heavy, indigestible food, especially too much meat and too little fruit.

The liver and kidneys struggle to overcome this condition, but the task is too great for them and they get sluggish and torpid, fail in their work and often become diseased themselves.

They must have help, such as is Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no great mystery of how these pills purify the blood and take away the acuse of tired, spring feelings, backaches, headaches, bodily pains or derangements of the digestive system.

If the blood is to be purified the liver and kidneys must do it. And they will if you awaken their action by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

MADE WELL AND STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto.—I gladly give you my testimonial in favor of your wonderful medicines. Last October I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensations in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas.

After receiving your directions, I followed them closely and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels, and am stronger in every way.

I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby was born, and I recommend it highly to all pregnant women.—Mrs. E. WAMBET, 98 Logan Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Another Woman Cured

Maple Creek, Sask.—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I am now in perfect health. I was troubled with pains every month. I know other women who suffer as I did and I will gladly recommend your medicine to them. You may publish this if you think it will help others.—Mrs. F. E. Cook, Maple Creek, Sask.

If you belong to that countless army of women who suffer from some form of female ills, don't hesitate to try Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

WHITNEY AT SEAFORTH.

Sir James Is Drawing Card at J. J. Merner's Meeting.

Seaforth, Sept. 14.—Sir James Whitney was given an enthusiastic reception last night in his appearance in South Huron in the interest of the Liberal-Conservative candidate, J. J. Merner. Over 2,000 people of both political parties crowded the skating and curling rink from the town and surrounding country.

The Premier's speech was intensely imperial and vigorously condemnatory of the Fielding-Paterson-Taft agreement. F. Holmstead of Seaforth was the chairman.

Before Sir James Whitney spoke he was presented with an address by Mayor McCallum and with a bouquet of flowers by Miss Olive Rankin. Sir James, who spoke for more than one hour, was accorded an attentive hearing. He said the designs of the United States were more favorable to Canada, where they expected to reap the benefit and not the Canadians, and quoted President Taft to substantiate his arguments. He dealt with the prices of horses, cattle, sheep and swine, and quoted figures to show that the prices in Canada were higher than in the United States. He did not think that the farmers of this country would be hoodwinked into voting for something that would be a benefit to the farmers of the United States and against their own interest. He dealt with the hay and barley, and claimed that the best market would be to use it on the farm where it was grown. He dealt with the railways of this country, showing where Canada had spent $170,000,000 in building railways east and west, and that these roads would be practically useless east of Winnipeg if our trade was connected north and south. He closed his speech with an appeal to all loyal Canadians and lover of British government to vote against reciprocity on Sept. 21.

Borden In Dartmouth.

Halifax, Sept. 14.—Borden and Crosby addressed a meeting last night in Dartmouth, across the harbor from Halifax. The leader received a warm reception, an overflow meeting being necessary to handle the crowd. The addresses were along the usual lines on the reciprocity pact. Sir Hibbert Tupper addressed a large meeting in Middleton, Annapolis County, last night. Mr. Borden addresses two meetings in Fielding's riding to-day.

Bourassa Sues For Libel.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—Henri Bourassa yesterday entered an action for $10,000 damages against L. A. Rivet, Liberal candidate in Hochelaga, for alleged defamatory libel. The libel suit is the result of certain statements said to have been made by Mr. Rivet in the course of a campaign speech, Sept. 6, to the effect that Mr. Bourassa was being subsidized to the extent of $200,000 by the Conservatives and Orangemen of Ontario, this sum being supposedly devoted to the interests of Le Devoir, the official organ of French-Canadian nationalism.

Schoolboys on Strike.

London, Sept. 14.—Young England appears to be in a state of unrest following the example set in the recent strikes by the laboring classes.

There have been strikes of schoolboys at London, Liverpool, Manchester, Hull, Sheffield, Grimsby, Llanelly, Bradford, Ashton-Under-Lyne, and even in Scotland, at Leith.

The boys drew up manifestoes, held demonstrations, and engaged in picketing, just like their elders. They object to the use of the cane by schoolmasters, and also want an extra half-holiday on Wednesday afternoon.

At Islington on Tuesday the boys smashed the school windows with stones, and in Hull there was promiscuous stone-throwing, with much damage to windows in the neighborhood.

In most places, the strikes have collapsed and canings have been in order.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 13.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was poor, and only a few odd loads of low grades were sold. In sympathy with the strength in Winnipeg a stronger feeling prevails in the market for oats, and prices have a higher tendency. The local demand is fairly good, and there is considerable enquiry from European sources for supplies. Flour is firm, with a fair amount of business passing for local and export account. Demand for all lines of millfeed is good at firm prices. Rolled oats strong at the advance. Cheese fairly active and butter quiet. Provisions in good demand.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 13.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the offerings this morning were 1200 cattle, 800 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 300 calves. A weaker feeling developed in the market for cattle, and prices declined ½c per hundred, which was due to the larger receipts, especially of the lower grades, which had a depressing influence on the market for choice stock, altho the supply of such was not in excess of the requirements. At the lower range of prices the demand was fairly good from both butchers and packers, and a good clearance was made.
Choice steers sold at 5¾c; good at 5½c; fairly good at 5c to 5¼c; fair at 4¾c to 4¾c, and common at 4c to 4¼c per pound. Cows and bulls were 4c to 4½c per pound lower, the former selling at 3½c to 4c, and the latter at 2½c to 3c per pound.
There was no further change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs on account of the fact that the offerings were much smaller than they have been of late, for which the demand was good, and a fairly active trade was done. Lambs sold at 5½c to 6½c, and sheep at 3½c to 3¾c per pound. The demand for calves was good, at prices ranging from $3 to $10 each, as to size and quality.
The run of hogs was much larger than expected, and in consequence the tone of the market was easier, with sales at $7 to $7.25 per 100 pounds, as to quality, weighed off cars.
At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the supply of live stock for sale consisted of 375 cattle, 675 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 200 calves. A fair trade was done in all lines, and the prices realized were much the same as those quoted above, with the exception of hogs, of which selected lots sold at $7.25 to $7.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 175 head; market fairly active and strong; prime steers, $7.30 to $7.60; butcher grades, $6.50 to $7.

EXCURSION SUCCESSFUL

Bridgenorth Paragraphs of Local Interest

Special to The Examiner:

BRIDGENORTH, SEPT. 12.—The park is looking lonesome, as nearly all of the cottagers have returned home, with the exception of a few who have no children to go to school.

Mrs. (Rev.) Ireland has returned home after a visit among friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy have gone on a visit to relatives and friends in Toronto and other places for a rest after a very busy summer.

Mr. John and son, Redvers and Freida, have returned after a visit to Galt and other places.

Mr. George Bell and son, Samuel, made a trip to Toronto Fair on business.

Miss Martin has returned again, and commenced her duties in the school, having spent most of her vacation in the Macdonald Institute at Guelph.

Mrs. R. Heard has returned home from the Hospital and is nearly recovered from her sickness.

It is rumoured that Martin Quinn has purchased Mr. Thos. McCall's residence, in the village.

Mr. Dan Whetung ran his excursion to Jackson's Point and Georgina Island from Bridgenorth and proved a success in every way.

The "Stoney Lake" was chartered for the three days' trip, under the management of Captain Scollard and no doubt but the Captain understood his business. The boat left Bridgenorth Wharf at 6 o'clock on Wednesday morning and was at Jackson's Point before dark that night and the boat left Jackson's Point on Friday morning at 5.20 a.m. and was at Bridgenorth at 7. The return trip was a record breaker, as the whole trip would have been run in about 12 1-2 hours had it not been that there was a large boom of logs in the Locks at Lovesgrove, causing a delay of over an hour. Mr. Whetung may feel proud of the trip that he gave and if he ever undertakes another excursion it will be well patronized. The 203 passengers on board enjoyed themselves and were pleased with their three days' trip and a sail over Lake Simcoe, and through all of the locks and bridges on the Canal and the liftlock at Kirkfield.

INDIAN RIVER

Special to The Examiner:

INDIAN RIVER, SEPT. 13.—The potato crop in this section is of a very small average.

Farmers are busy cutting corn, which is a very good crop.

The recent rains will be of much benefit to the late root crop.

Mr. Hugh Fife, who had the misfortune of getting his barns burned by lightning, last June, had the barn raising of his new barn on Monday, the 10th inst.

Mr. Fife has an up-to-date barn 112 feet by 48 feet, with basement 9 feet high.

Mr. Harry Fife of Norwood had the carpenter work, while Mr. Paterson of Norwood, did the mason work, all of which is a credit to the mechanics.

In the evening, after the barn-raising was complete, Mr. Fife, in a brief speech, thanked his neighbours for their willing assistance, which they gave him.

Three cheers were given for Mr. Fife and also for reciprocity, that our Government may be neighbourly with its near neighbours of the United States.

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

THE TERRORS OF THE TINY TADS

They think no harm can come to them in this secluded nook.

2—But see the bad Grasshopperagiass who looks down from the hill,
And chuckles softly to himself as though he meant them ill.

3—He tells his friend, the Manktuxe, who charges on the boys,
And tries to chop them with his head, and makes an awful noise.

4—Over the precipice they go! Into the lake they splash!
"'Tis better to be drowned," they cry, "than chopped up into hash!"

5—They find a Sunday Herald, and they fold it thrice or more,
And make a nice canoe-paper, in which they sail to shore.

6—And now we see them trudging home, quite wet and cold and sad,
"We might get Canoemonia," declares a Tiny Tad.

BUTTER MAKING

From Farm and Dairy.

The work in the butter making competition at the Canadian National Exhibition this year was all well done, and the contest was very keen. The competitors received the cream the evening before and ripened it. I examined its condition and temperature and noted every detail of the work, beginning to finish. The quickest time was one hour, and the longest 1 1-2 hours—average 1 hour, ten minutes.

Large crowds watched the work each session. In the amateur and professional classes each contestant made butter four times and the score on the work and butter was averaged. In the free for all, the contestants made butter once.

Amateur class—Miss G. E. Jayne, Cobourg, 94.65; Miss E. Patten, Newton Brook, 92.15; Miss M. Bryden, Galt, 91.65; Miss O. B. Gregory, Poplar Hill, 90.70; Miss M. Scott, Agincourt, 87.9.

Professional class—Miss L. E. Jayne, Cobourg, 92.75; Miss M. Johnston, Norwood, 92.25; Miss N. Carrick, Bloorville, 91.97; Miss K. M. Wolfe, Guelph, 90.45; Miss M. A. Jayne, Cobourg, 92.20; Mrs. Simpson, Attwood, 89.80.

STRATTON'S SUCCESSFUL CLOSING MEETING OF HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL COUNTY CAMPAIGN

Big and Enthusiastic Meeting at Lakehurst, Harvey, Hears and Applauds Telling Addresses--County Will Roll Up Big Vote for Stratton

Mr. Stratton addressed the electors of Harvey, in Lakehurst Town hall, last night. When Mr. Archibald Wilson, the chairman, called the meeting to order, the seating capacity of the hall was already taxed. Nearly all the voters in Harvey attended and there were many ladies present. It was a great contrast to the meeting held by Mr. Stratton's opponent in the same hall Monday night.

Mr. George A. Gillespie spoke briefly on the benefit to the cheese industry that the reciprocal market would afford. He concluded with these words, "Reciprocity is not politics—it's business. You can vote for party all the rest of your lives, but this time vote for yourself. Give reciprocity and Mr. Stratton a majority of a thousand and over."

Mr. Stratton said that reciprocity was the most interesting tariff issue since Confederation. It was a question that stirred all minds and caused people to do an unusual amount of economic thinking. It was this general apprehension of the subject that had aroused such an illuminating discussion. He believed that the debate into which the whole country was plunged would be a liberal education in tari fmatters.

The Magician's Wand.

"You remember the condition of the country in 1896," said Mr. Stratton. "The National Policy certainly had not made you rich. Business was stagnant. Your horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, butter and cheese could not be sold. That state of affairs was reflected in Peterborough where men in factories got a dollar a day for five days a week, and girls from forty to sixty cents a day. There was a steady exodus of our young men to the United States. They went reluctantly, but they had to get out to make a living. It looked as if presently Canada would be left with no people at all."

"But the Liberals and Laurier came into power in June, 1896," continued Mr. Stratton, "and things began to improve. They introduced a moderate revenue tariff, about twelve per cent. less on an average than the old one, built and assisted railways, encouraged immigration, checked trusts, helped labour, gave the farmer the British market, and one way and another imparted such a stimulus to trade that the factories have never been able to keep up with it since. Trade, which had increased only $17,000,000 in fifteen years of Conservative rule, increased $520,000,000 during the same number of years under Liberal rule.

How Markets Are Made.

"The immigration figures," said Mr. Stratton, "are among the cheerful proofs of the success of the Liberal policies. In 1883, some 133,000 people came into Canada. In 1896 the number had dwindled to 16,000,the lowest figure since 1868. In 1911 Canada will welcome 400,000 new citizens to her shores. These results have been largely due to the vigorous immigration policy of the government which is filling the Northwest with farmers and is creating an expanding home market for our manufacturers."

"Think for a moment," said Mr. Stratton, "what four hundred thousand people a year means to our manufacturers. Four hundred thousand hats, four hundred thousand suits of clothes, four hundred thousand pairs of shoes, four hundred thousand of everything, and another four hundred thousand as fast as the first four hundred thousand wears out. Think what an annual increase of over four hundred thousand immigrants, not to mention our own natural increase, means to the manufacturers' home market. To come down to cases, think what it means to the Canadian General Electric Company, the William Hamilton Company, the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co., the four Peterborough Canoe Companies, the Colonial Weaving Company, the Rapid Tool Company, the Lundy Shovel and Tool Company, the Lubricator Company, the Carpet Company, the Ackerman Harness Company, the Quaker Oats Company. Think what it means to all of them in the shape of more orders and the wheels whirling faster than ever.

The Working Man For Reciprocity.

"The workingman has been pretty well educated on the subject," said Mr. Stratton. "He understands what the reciprocity agreement means to him in the shape of cheaper living, more money in the bank, plenty of work and higher wages. He understands that when the two food taxes of the two countries, amounting between them to $6,000,000 a year, are removed, that his food is going to be just that much cheaper, plus the benefit he derives from the lower prices of American products seeking the Canadian markets at seasons when there is no production here."

"In fact," Mr. Stratton remarked, "the workingman has so thoroughly apprehended it, that the organized common sense of labour, by which I mean the Executive committee of the Trades and Labour Congress, now meeting at Calgary, has recommended that the Congress support the reciprocity agreement."

Just a Proposal To Dicker.

Mr. Stratton went on to apologise for quoting trade statistics and immigration figures.

"I do not do it individually," said Mr. Stratton with a smile. "I attribute our prosperity, under Providence, to the growth of the country, a good tariff, and an enterprising Liberal administration. I am only quoting figures to prove that you have nothing to fear from a Government whose fiscal policies have so far made good. The same wisdom that conceived those policies now asks you to make an experiment in reciprocity, in natural products, with the United States."

"And just here," said Mr. Stratton, "let me say that I don't see why speakers on the platform call it a treaty or a pact. It's no such thing. It has not the formal and binding nature of such solemn words as treaty and pact. It is simply a business arrangement, or agreement—a proposal if you like to call it that—by which the two countries say, "Let's try it for a while and see how it works out." Canada can cancel it with a stroke of the pen any time she likes."

"Well," said Mr. Stratton, "looking over the good business record of the Liberal government, I say, let us give this new proposition of theirs a chance. The opportunity offers to give it a trial. Very well,—let us give it a trial and if it doesn't succeed we will repeal it. I am interested in the growth and prosperity of Peterborough — a little more so, perhaps, than my opponent—and I do not feel that I am taking chances."

The Distracting Cries.

Mr. Stratton said he had no sympathy with the cry of annexation which was merely a subterfuge to distract attention from the main question. No one believed, not even the persons who were making most use of the cry, that reciprocity would have any such result. It was on a par with the attempts to mislead the British born with the clamour about loyalty to the Mother Country.

"The Government that gave a tariff preference to Great Britain," said Mr. Stratton, "sent Canadian soldiers to shed their blood and some of them to give up their lives on the veldt of South Africa, and established a Canadian navy to help England in her great task of guarding the water paths of commerce, cannot be accused of disloyalty."

After explaining the provisions of the agreement, as they would work out under local conditions in Harvey Township, Mr. Stratton went on to say that he regretted that J. H. Burnham mwas so busy with slanderous insinuations that he had no time for the real issues of the campaign, but he thought that this perhaps might be due to the fact that his opponent knew more about slandering and insinuating than he did about reciprocity.

"Policy" of His Opponent.

Mr. Stratton said that he noticed that Mr. Burnham's newspaper mouthpiece was saying that a "vote for Burnham' would be "the most common-sense and patriotic vote given for twenty years." Would it be common sense to vote for a man to do your business, who was utterly without business experience or training, who beyond studying enough to qualify him for the law, which he had never seriously practised, had lived a comparatively idle and purposeless life. Would it be "common sense" for people who want things for Peterborough to vote for a man who would have no influence, with a Liberal government, which would be returned, and little influence, even with a Conservative government. Would it be "common sense" to vote for a man who had little in the way of energy or business capacity, or steadiness of purpose, or policy or fixed convictions upon political or even religious questions. It was not so much Mr. Burnham's fault as his misfortune, that he was lacking in business grasp and the qualities of energy and initiative and aggressiveness, that the people expected in a representative—a man to do your business—to serve your interests. A candidate should appeal to the "common sense" of the electors, on some definite policy, some practical policy. Mr. Burnham's sole appeal, as expressed in the campaign he was conducting, was of a double character—appeal to racial and religious prejudice and abuse of his opponent. Mr. Stratton said he was prepared to take and give hard knocks, given in fair political fight but he had little skill in parrying blows below the belt—a secretly conducted dark lantern campaign, that doesn't show itself in the light; an appeal to racial and religious prejudice gratuitously impertinent in that it referred to no issue in this election contest. The other part of Mr. Burnham's double platform was personal abuse of himself. He was not complaining, but simply stating a fact that he had never in twenty-five years political campaigning, been the object of such bitter and persistent and withal, pointless personal abuse—entirely unconnected with any issue that should find a place in this campaign. If Mr. Burnham had, or should seek to show that he (Mr Stratton) had been an unfaithful, and was an incapable, representative there would be some point to his campaign of personal attack, but when it was all based on slander and upon matters not connected with this election, it showed the weakness of his cause and his inability to take that serious view of the responsibility of a representative that made it anything but "common sense" in any elector, who had the slighest stake in West Peterborough to waste his vote upon him.

It was said to be "patriotic" to vote for Mr. Burnham. This was subject to a little necessary change. It should be "a vote for Mr. Burnham is a vote for Bourassa," the Quebec French Canadian fire-brand, who daily insults the British flag, and who affiliates himself with Mr. Burnham, the candidate of Mr. Borden, who is working with the anti-British Bourassa to compass the overthrow of Laurier. This self-ordained champion of Protestantism in Peterborough—this modern Titus Oates, who dreams of "popish plots" that strike at the root of British liberty and British connection, is in alliance through his support of his leader, with the arch-traitor Bourassa. It was beautiful "patriotism" to vote for a man who is seeking election that he might vote in parliament with the Bourassa brood, by whose help Mr. Borden hopes to defeat Laurier and gain office.

Mr. Burnham's Man Beattie Nesbitt.

Mr. Stratton surmised that many of the pen pricks—or rather pin pricks—he got in the Review were from the teeming brain of Mr. Burnham. The voice was Jacob's, but the hand was the hand of Esau. These little lying paragraphs, which initiated falsehood without the courage to say so, were probably relics of Mr. Burnham's ancient connection with journalism. One paragraph asked him who carried away the Farmer's Bank certificate from the office of Finance Minister Fielding at Ottawa. They knew as well as he did, that he wasn't near Ottawa in 1896, and that he had nothing to do with the certificate or the obtaining of the charter. But that paragraph was evidently intended to leave the idea that he had. "I state again," said Mr. Stratton, "that I had nothing to do with the Farmer's Bank. A company of which I am president, made a loan—seeing that lending was its daily business—to the promoters of the Farmers Bank, on the security of good honest farmer's notes, notes that were paid by the farmers, and our connection with the transaction ceased right there. I did not know that the Tory scoundrels to whom the money was lent, were going to misapply the funds and gut the bank. I'm no mind reader or prophet.

"I couldn't tell," continued Mr. Stratton, "that Beattie Nesbitt was going to coax half a million of the bank's money into a hole in the ground up in Cobalt. I didn't know that Provincial Treasurer Matheson was going to put $25,000 of the province of Ontario's money into the bank so that Beattie Nesbitt could get another slice of $25,000 and Billy Maclean one of $10,000. I didn't know that they were going to tip it off to Beattie Nesbitt to get out of the country, so that they wouldn't be able to arrest him for looting the bank. I didn't know they were going to offer a $200 reward for a man that got away with two millions — about seventy cents a pound, on the hoof, for a man like Beattie Nesbitt. I didn't know any of these things, but some of Mr. Burnham's political friends and supporters may have."

The Rumour Factory.

"The straits my opponents are put to raising dust in this campaign," said Mr. Stratton, "would be ludicrous if their attempts were not so reckless. In their eagerness to beat me, they do not hesitate to set afloat the most vicious and injurious rumours. But they are mighty careful that these rumours never reach the responsible persons, who can give them an authoritative denial. They whisper it in the ears of credulous and uninformed persons who know nothing about the matter and trust to their gossiping instinct to spread it further."

"For example," said Mr. Stratton, "there was the rumour that the Canadian General Electric would close down inside of two years if the reciprocity agreement carried. Words cannot express my contempt for the men who thus tried to undermine the credit o fthe largest industry in Peterborough and throw panic into fifteen hundred wage earners. I knew it wasn't true and I sent a reporter from the Examiner to ask Manager Patterson the straight question. When Mr. Patterson had got over his first surprise, he said: "I never heard such a rumour." And he never did, because the rumour-mongers are not in the habit of taking their lies to the person that can deny them."

A Lie With Two Heads.

"That was Rumour No. 1, nailed," said Mr. Stratton. Then there was Rumour No. 2—that if reciprocity carried the Quaker Oats was going to quit. Inquiry was made of Mr. Robert Stuart, the general manager in Charlevoix, Michigan, and the answer came by letter and telegram in good flat terms that the Quaker Oats never had any such intention. But this lie was hard to kill, because it had two heads. Knocked on one head, the other head bobbed up—that if reciprocity carried the Quaker Oats would abandon its idea of building another factory in Winnipeg. Again, inquiry was made, and again the answer came back from General Manager Stuart—this time to the effect that the Quaker Oats had not abandoned the idea of building, but was simply waiting until reciprocity passed to decide which would be the most suitable location for another Quaker Oats factory in Canada."

"And so its goes," said Mr. Stratton. "They have to swallow one day what they said the day before. I don't know how many more canards and roorbacks and rumours they are going to manufacture between now and election day, but I promise you I'm going to scotch them wherever they show their nasty faces."

"But consistency," remarked Mr. Stratton, "or for that matter common decency," doesn't bother the Burnham campaigners. Such arguments as they have are fearfully and wonderfully made. They seem to be constructed on the supposition that the man in Peterborough doesn't hear what is going on in Toronto. For example, Mr. Claude Macdonell, one of Mr. Burnham's party associates, who is running in South Toronto, tells that city that the No Temere has nothing to do with the election—which is the truth. But Mr. Burnham and his supporters say that it is everything. Apparently their motto is, "Any old thing will do." It is a direct insult to intelligent people who read the newspapers, to imagine they can be caught with such chaff."

Mr. Stratton concluded his remarks by asking the electors to vote for their own interests and reciprocity. "You can leave well enough alone," he said, "by leaving me member for West Peterborough."

The meeting closed with cheers for the King, the candidate and the ladies.

NOMINATIONS PRESENTED NO CHANGE

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 14.— The nomination day throughout Canada brought few surprises. Most of the official gatherings for resignation of candidates for commons going off just as arranged in party conventions. In some places meetings commenced at noon and others later in the day. With fe wexceptions they were orderly and free from demonstrations. In Quebec the Nationalist supporters raised a fuss in some ridings.

1500 ENGAGED IN MAN HUNT

Special to The Examiner.

SNOWFLAKE, MAN., SEPT. 14.—Fifteen hundred men are engaged this morning in the man hunt after William Henry Wilson, the outrager of Gladys Price, school teacher. Late last night Wilson sneaked up to the Weston hotel, here, apparently for food, and engaged in a duel with William Adams, the proprietor, who soon dropped, shot through the body, and may die. Every stranger on both sides of the line is viewed with suspicion and the people are in terror.

WICKEDNESS AND WEAKNESS OF THE DISLOYALTY CRY

I look upon it as a direct insult to the people of Canada to state to them that their loyalty and allegiance to our loved and honoured motherland, the mother of nations, which is surrounded by such splendid memories of great deeds achieved, and which with all its failings still stands as an example to the world of uprightness and integrity, and an earnest desire for the betterment of all people, should be shaken or impaired by a little extra business here, or some financial dealings there.

If some people feel their loyalty so shallow that it is to be moved by such considerations let us give them our sincere pity, moderated with a tinge of contempt, but let not the large, strong loyal spirit of our Canadian community be in the slightest degree affected thereby.

Let the people of Canada follow the strong, sterling commonsense with which God has blessed them and pursue such paths and follow such financial openings as are presented to them, and thereby build up a solid, strong and contented people, able in any emergency to stand by the mother and seek to return to her somewhat of the large debt that, as true children, we owe, and must ever be ready to pay to her.—Hon. S. H. Blake.

MR. ROBERT STUART IS "HEARTILY IN FAVOUR OF THE PROPOSAL"

He Thinks Reciprocity Agreement is "Good Business" and in the Interests of the Quaker Oats Industry and Good For the Whole Country.

Mr. Robert Stuart, head of the Quaker Oats Company, arrived in Peterborough on Wednesday evening.

This morning a representative of the Examiner had an interview with Mr. Stuart in his office at the mills here.

When asked the question as to what he thought of the proposed agreement between Canada and the United States Mr. Stuart said: "If adopted by the people of Canada, and with the removal of a few inequalities which both countries will consent to, I believe that it will be the means of creating a great future for Canada.

"Great Britain and the United States are both looking for investments that will be safe and profitable, and with a wider market for the output of the new developments increased investments of capital in lands, mines, etc., will produce, a new era of business activity and prosperity will come to Canada; and this will help to continue the prosperous conditions that now prevail in this country."

"Mr. Stuart, it is asserted that your mills are importing barley from the United States to the detriment of the Canadian barley trade. Have you anything to say to that?"

"Yes; our mills import barley only when we can't obtain it in Canada—our mills must be kept running. We would rather buy it in Canada, but not being able to do so, have had to pay 15 cents a bushel more in the United States. We only buy this low grade barley to mix with other grains to grind for stock feed for export to London or Hamburg, Germany. Not a bushel of the barley we import enters into competition with Canadian barley. It is brought in in bond, ground and shipped abroad—this is rather an advantage to Canada; it keeps our mills running and gives employment to a good many workmen. It is the Canadian barley for malting and brewing purposes that the United States requires. We couldn't look at that barley—with the price it brings—for grinding to make feed."

"How about the flouring mills part of your business here?"

"There is nothing in the agreement that injures our business in Canada but much that helps it. Our flour mills are now running to their full capacity and will continue to do so after the agreement is adopted, as it seems likely to be.

"I am heartily in support of the reciprocity proposal. I consider it good business, and anything I can do to promote the adoption of the reciprocity agreement I shall consider as done in the interest of our great and growing business in Peterborough.

"I believe it is Canada's best policy to promote the prosperity of her industries, and I would not be in favour of anything that would injure any of the industries of Canada, and I don't think the agreement will do that.

"I sincerely hope the agreement will be carried in the interests of everybody. It is a good business proposal of a good business government, and I hope that Peterborough will send a good business representative to look after its interests."

PETERBOROUGH BOY SCOUTS TO ATTEND EXHIBITION

The scouts of Peterborough will parade to the Exhibition grounds on Friday the 15th. They will meet at the armouries at sharp 1.45 p.m. The 3rd troops will put on the first aid display just as they did at Toronto Exhibition. Every boy of the 3rd troop will meet for practice on Thursday at the armouries at sharp 4.30 p.m. It is not necessary to be told what to bring for the first aid, signalling and parade fire fighting. Every boy is expected to be on hand. Those not marching down with the troops cannot gain free admission to the grounds unless they report on Thursday night at the armouries to Scout Master Miller.

plendid Programme of Vaudeville, Band Concert and Fireworks Arranged For This Evening—To-day Was a Busy One.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

TO-NIGHT'S PROGRAMME.
Grounds Illuminated.
Band Concert.
Vaudeville Performances.
Grand Display of Fireworks.

Peterborough's big Exhibition will be thrown open to-night. The outlook is decidedly rosy and a record attendance is expected throughout.

Never have the grounds on Preparation Day presented such a busy scene of bustle as was seen this morning when an Examiner reporter dropped into Exhibition Park. There was hustling everywhere, many tents had already been erected and many more were being pitched. The Midway—incidentally the largest the Fair has ever had—was springing up and in the main building the merchants and manufacturers were arranging their displays. Every moment or two a farmer's team swung through the main gates, laden with exhibits and generally with a couple of fine horses towing behind. This was kept up in a steady procession this morning and the way the exhibits poured in was sufficient to ensure a record showing in all lines of farm produce. It will be the grandest exhibition ever, from all points of view, according to some of the oldest and most experienced members of the Board of Directors and there seems reason to believe that their enthusiasm is not overdone.

The big grandstand is being completed to-day and it is expected that the roof will be ready by to-morrow afternoon. As far as the seating accommodation goes the stand is ready now and will be available for the big crowd who will attend to-night's opening performance. The vaudeville stars, who are to give a specially performance before the grandstand to-night, to-morrow afternoon and to-night, and Saturday afternoon, have arrived and were on the grounds this morning with their outfit complete, and they are all ready for to-night's big programme.

The fireworks display, which will be a feature of to-night's programme, is already placed in position, and every detail is complete.

To-morrow, of course, is the first big day with horse judging, vaudeville and band concert, Midway complete and all the exhibits in their place, while special features for the afternoon will be ex-Mayor Yelland's dog race and an exhibition of first aid, signalling, etc., by the Peterborough Boy Scouts, the same display as was made at the Toronto Exhibition.

A pleasing feature that will be appreciated by the ladies is the erection of a large tent tastily furnished for use as a Woman's Rest with lavatory attachment. This will be in charge of a capable matron and the tent will be open for the use of the ladies continuously throughout the Exhibition. It is situated just east of the main building.

There is a solid wall of tents from the Lock Street entrance almost to the grand stand, with Midway features, refreshment booths, special exhibits, etc. The welfare of the fisherman is being well looked after. All Saints' Church has a big dining tent, while Park Street Baptist Church and Knox Church have well equipped lunch tents.

For the benefit of Exhibition visitors the following guide may prove of interest:

Main entrance, at corner of Lock and Lansdowne street.

Vehicle entrance, middle gate on Lansdowne street.

Poultry exhibit, inside main entrance.

Horse exhibit, along south east corner of grounds.

Horse exhibit, south side of the grounds.

Special exhibits, main building.

Ontario Government Demonstration Tent, opposite Main Building.

Knox Church refreshment and lunch tent, opposite Main Building.

Miniature Railway, near West Entrance.

To-morrow's programme is as follows:

8 a.m., grounds and buildings open to the public.

10 a.m., poultry will be placed in the poultry tent. All poultry must be on the grounds and positively arranged in coops in time for judging promptly at 10 o'clock.

Agricultural Demonstration Train—Information on drainage, weeds, orchard work, live stock, cereals, etc. Bulletins for distribution to farmers. Everything free.

Bee Demonstration.—A government

PETERBOROUGH THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 14 1911

STRATTON'S SUCCESSFUL CLOSING MEETING OF HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL COUNTY CAMPAIGN

Big and Enthusiastic Meeting at Lakehurst, Harvey, Hears and Applauds Telling Addresses---County Will Roll Up Big Vote for Stratton

Mr. Stratton addressed the electors of Harvey, in Lakehurst Town hall, last night. When Mr. Archibald Wilson, the chairman, called the meeting to order, the seating capacity of the hall was already taxed. Nearly all the voters in Harvey attended and there were many ladies present. It was a great contrast to the meeting held by Mr. Stratton's opponent in the same hall Monday night.

Mr. George A. Gillespie spoke briefly on the benefit to the cheese industry that the reciprocal market would afford. He concluded with these words, "Reciprocity is not politics—it's business. You can vote for party all the rest of your lives, but this time vote for yourself. Give reciprocity and Mr. Stratton a majority of a thousand and over."

Mr. Stratton said that reciprocity was the most interesting tariff issue since Confederation. It was a question that stirred all minds and caused people to do an unusual amount of economic thinking. It was this general apprehension of the subject that had aroused such an illuminating discussion. He believed that the debate into which the whole country was plunged would be a liberal education in tari fmatters.

The Magician's Wand.

"You remember the condition of the country in 1896," said Mr. Stratton. "The National Policy certainly had not made you rich. Business was stagnant. Your horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, butter and cheese could not be sold. That state of affairs was reflected in Peterborough where men in factories got a dollar a day for five days a week, and girls from forty to sixty cents a day. There was a steady exodus of our young men to the United States. They went reluctantly, but they had to get out to make a living. It looked as if presently Canada would be left with no people at all."

"But the Liberals and Laurier came into power in June, 1896," continued Mr. Stratton, "and things began to improve. They introduced a moderate revenue tariff, about twelve per cent. less on an average than the old one, built and assisted railways, encouraged immigration, checked trusts, helped labour, gave the farmer the British market, and one way and another imparted such a stimulus to trade that the factories have never been able to keep up with it since. Trade, which had increased only $17,000,000 in fifteen years of Conservative rule, increased $630,000,000 during the same number of years under Liberal rule.

How Markets Are Made.

"The immigration figures," said Mr. Stratton, "are among the cheerful proofs of the success of the Liberal policies. In 1883, some 133,000 people came into Canada. In 1896 the number had dwindled to 16,000,the lowest figure since 1868. In 1911 Canada will welcome 400,000 new citizens to her shores. These results have been largely due to the vigorous immigration policy of the government which is filling the Northwest with farmers and is creating an expanding home market for our manufacturers."

"Think for a moment," said Mr Stratton, "what four hundred thousand people a year means to our manufacturers. Four hundred thousand hats, four hundred thousand suits of clothes, four hundred thousand pairs of shoes, four hundred thousand of everything, and another four hundred thousand as last as the first four hundred thousand wears out. Think what an annual increase of over four hundred thousand immigrants, not to mention our own natural increase, means to the manufacturers' home market. To come down to cases, think what it means to the Canadian General Electric Company, the William Hamilton Company, the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co., the four Peterborough Canoe Companies, the Colonial Weaving Company, the Rapid Tool Company, the Lundy Shovel and Tool Company, the Lubricator Company, the Carpet Company, the Ackerman Harness Company, the Quaker Oats Company. Think what it means to all of them in the shape of more orders and the wheels whirling faster than ever.

The Working Man For Reciprocity.

"The workingman has been pretty well educated on the subject," said Mr. Stratton. "He understands what the reciprocity agreement means to him in the shape of cheaper living, more money in the bank, plenty of work and higher wages. He understands that when the two food taxes of the two countries, amounting between them to $6,000,000 a year, are removed, that his food is going to be just that much cheaper, plus the benefit he derives from the lower prices of American products seeking the Canadian markets at seasons when there is no production here."

"In fact," Mr. Stratton remarked, "the workingman has so thoroughly apprehended it, that the organized common sense of labour, by which I mean the Executive committee of the Trades and Labour Congress, now meeting at Calgary, has recommended that the Congress support the reciprocity agreement."

Just a Proposal To Dicker.

Mr. Stratton went on to apologize for quoting trade statistics and immigration figures.

"I do not do it individually," said Mr. Stratton with a smile. "I attribute our prosperity, under Providence, to the growth of the country, a good tariff, and an enterprising Liberal administration. I am only quoting figures to prove that you have nothing to fear from a Government whose fiscal policies have so far made good. The same wisdom that conceived those policies now asks you to make an experiment in reciprocity, in natural products, with the United States."

"And just here," said Mr. Stratton, "let me say that I don't see why speakers on the platform call it a treaty or a pact. It's no such thing. It has not the formal and binding nature of such solemn words as treaty and pact. It is simply a business arrangement, or agreement—a proposal if you like to call it that—by which the two countries say, "Let's try it for a while and see how it works out." Canada can cancel it with a stroke of the pen any time she likes."

"Well," said Mr. Stratton, "looking over the good business record of the Liberal government, I say, let us give this new proposition of theirs a chance. The opportunity offers to give it a trial. Very well, let us give it a trial and if it doesn't succeeed we will repeal it. I am interested in the growth and prosperity of Peterborough — a little more so, perhaps, than my opponent—and I do not feel that I am taking chances."

The Distracting Cries.

Mr. Stratton said he had no sympathy with the cry of annexation which was merely a subterfuge to distract attention from the main question. No one believed, not even the persons who were making most use of the cry, that reciprocity would have any such result. It was on a par with the attempts to mislead the British born with the clamour about loyalty to the Mother Country.

"The Government that gave a tariff preference to Great Britain," said Mr. Stratton, "sent Canadian soldiers to shed their blood and some of them to give up their lives on the veldt of South Africa, and established a Canadian navy to help England in her great task of guarding the water paths of commerce, cannot be accused of disloyalty."

After explaining the provisions of the agreement, as they would work out under local conditions in Harvey Township, Mr. Stratton went on to say that he regretted that J. H. Burnham was so busy with slanderous insinuations that he had no time for the real issues of the campaign, but he thought that this perhaps might be due to the fact that his opponent knew more about slandering and insinuating than he did about reciprocity.

"Policy" of His Opponent.

Mr. Stratton said that he noticed that Mr. Burnham's newspaper mouthpiece was saying that a "vote for Burnham" would be "the most common-sense and patriotic vote given for twenty years." Would it be common sense to vote for a man to do your business, who was utterly without business experience or training, who beyond studying enough to qualify him for the law, which he had never seriously practised, had lived a comparatively idle and purposeless life. Would it be "common sense" for people who want things for Peterborough to vote for a man who would have no influence, with a Liberal government, which would be returned, and little influence, even with a Conservative government. Would it be "common sense" to vote for a man who had little in the way of energy or business capacity, or steadiness of purpose, or policy or fixed convictions upon political or even religious questions. It was not so much Mr. Burnham's fault as his misfortune, that he was lacking in business grasp and the qualities of energy and initiative and aggressiveness, that the people expected in a representative—a man to do your business—to serve your interests. A candidate should appeal to the "common sense" of the electors, on some definite policy, some practical policy. Mr. Burnham's sole appeal, as expressed in the campaign he was conducting, was of a double character—appeal to racial and religious prejudice and abuse of his opponent. Mr. Stratton said he was prepared to take and give hard knocks, given in fair political fight but he had little skill in parrying blows below the belt—a secretly conducted dark lantern campaign, that doesn't show itself in the light; an appeal to racial and religious prejudice gratuitously impertinent in that it referred to no issue in this election contest. The other part of Mr. Burnham's double platform was personal abuse of himself. It was beautiful "patriotism" to vote for a man who is seeking election that he might vote in parliament with the Bourassa brood, by whose help Mr. Borden hopes to defeat Laurier and gain office.

Mr. Burnham's Man Beattie Nesbitt.

Mr. Stratton surmised that many of the pen pricks—or rather pin pricks—he got in the Review were from the teeming brain of Mr. Burnham. The voice was Jacob's, but the hand was the hand of Esau. In their eagerness to beat me, they do not hesitate to set afloat the most vicious and injurious rumours. But they are mighty careful that these rumours never reach the responsible persons, who can give them an authoritative denial. They whisper it in the ears of credulous and uninformed persons who know nothing about the matter and trust to their gossiping instinct to spread it further."

"For example," said Mr. Stratton, "there was the rumour that the Canadian General Electric would close down inside of two years if the reciprocity agreement carried. Words cannot express my contempt for the men who thus tried to undermine the credit o fthe largest industry in Peterborough and throw panic into fifteen hundred wage earners. I knew it wasn't true and I sent a reporter from the Examiner to ask Manager Patterson the straight question. When Mr. Patterson had got over his first surprise, he said: "I never heard such a rumour." And he never did, because the rumour-mongers are not in the habit of taking their lies to the person that can deny them."

A Lie With Two Heads.

"That was Rumour No. 1, nailed," said Mr. Stratton. Then there was Rumour No. 2—that if reciprocity carried the Quaker Oats was going to quit. Inquiry was made of Mr. Robert Stuart, the general manager in Charlevoix, Michigan, and the answer came by letter and telegram in good flat terms that the Quaker Oats never had any such intention. But this he was hard to kill, because it had two heads. Knocked on one head, the other head bobbed up—that if reciprocity carried the Quaker Oats would abandon its idea of building another factory in Winnipeg. Again, inquiry was made, and again the answer came back from General Manager Stuart—this time to the effect that the Quaker Oats had not abandoned the idea of building, but was simply waiting until reciprocity passed to decide which would be the most suitable location for another Quaker Oats factory in Canada."

"And so its goes," said Mr. Stratton. "They have to swallow one day what they said the day before. I don't know how many more canards and roorbacks and rumours they are going to manufacture between now and election day, but I promise you I'm going to scotch them wherever they show their nasty faces."

"But consistency," remarked Mr. Stratton, "or for that matter common decency," doesn't bother the Burnham campaigners. Such arguments as they have are fearfully and wonderfully made. They seem to be constructed on the supposition that the man in Peterborough doesn't hear what is going on in Toronto. For example, Mr. Claude Macdonell, one of Mr. Burnham's party associates, who is running in South Toronto, tells that city that the No Teacers has nothing to do with the election—which is the truth. But Mr. Burnham and his supporters say that it is everything. Apparently their motto is, "Any old thing will do." It is a direct insult to intelligent people who read the newspapers, to imagine they can be caught with such chaff."

Mr. Stratton concluded his remarks by asking the electors to vote for their own interests and reciprocity. "You can leave well enough alone," he said, "by leaving me member for West Peterborough."

The meeting closed with cheers for the King, the candidate and the ladies.

NOMINATIONS PRESENTED NO CHANGE

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 14.— The nomination day throughout Canada brought few surprises. Most of the official gatherings for resigstration of candidates for commons going off just as arranged in party conventions. In some places meetings commenced at noon and others later in the day. With fe wexceptions they were orderly and free from demonstrations. In Quebec the Nationalist supporters raised a fuss in some ridings.

1500 ENGAGED IN MAN HUNT

Special to The Examiner.

SNOWFLAKE, MAN., SEPT. 14.—Fifteen hundred men are engaged this morning in the man hunt after William Henry Wilson, the outrager of Gladys Price, school teacher. Late last night Wilson sneaked up to the Weston hotel, here; apparently for food, and engaged in a duel with William Adams, the proprietor, who soon dropped, shot through the body, and may die. Every stranger on both sides of the line is viewed with suspicion and the people are in terror.

The Peterborough Scouts will take part in the Exhibition on Friday afternoon. The Third Troop will put on a display of signalling, first aid, and parade fire lighting, just as was done at the Toronto Exhibition.

THE BIG PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION WILL OPEN TO-NIGHT

Splendid Programme of Vaudeville, Band Concert and Fireworks Arranged For This Evening—To-day Was a Busy One.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT

TO-NIGHT'S PROGRAMME.
Grounds Illuminated.
Band Concert.
Vaudeville Performances.
Grand Display of Fireworks.

Peterborough's big Exhibition will be thrown open to-night. The outlook is decidedly rosy and a record attendance is expected throughout.

Never have the grounds on Preparation Day presented such a busy scene of bustle as was seen this morning when an Examiner reporter dropped into Exhibition Park. There was activity everywhere, many tents had already been erected and many more were being pitched. The Midway—incidentally the biggest the Fair has ever had—was springing up and in the main building the merchants and manufacturers were arranging their displays. Every moment or two a farmer's team swung through the main gates, laden with exhibits and generally with a couple of fine horses bowing behind. This was kept up in a steady procession this morning and the way the exhibits poured in was sufficient to ensure a splendid showing in all lines of farm produce. It will be the grandest exhibition ever, from all points of view, according to some of the oldest and most experienced members of the Board of Directors and these seem reason to believe that their enthusiasm is not overdone.

The big grandstand is being completed to-day and it is expected that the roof will be ready by to-morrow afternoon. As far as the seating accommodation goes the stand is ready now and will be available for the big crowd who will attend to-night's opening performance. The wonderful stars, who are to give a spectacular performance before the grandstand to-night, to-morrow afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon, have arrived and were on the grounds this morning with their outfit complete, and they are all ready for to-night's big programme.

The fireworks display, which will be a feature of to-night's programme, is already placed in position, and every detail is complete.

To-morrow, of course, is the first big day with horse racing, vaudeville and band concerts, Midway complete and all the exhibits in their place, while special features for the afternoon will be ex-Mayor Yelland's dog race and an exhibition of first aid, signalling, etc., by the Peterborough Boy Scouts, the same display as was made at the Toronto Exhibition.

A pleasing feature that will be appreciated by the ladies is the provision of a large tent tastily furnished for use as a Woman's Rest with lavatory attachments. This will be in charge of a capable matron and the tent will be open for the use of the ladies continuously throughout the Exhibition. It is situated just east of the main building.

There is a solid wall of tents from the Lock Street entrance almost to the grand stand, with Midway features, refreshment booths, special exhibits, etc. The welfare of the inner man is being well looked after. All Saints' Church has a big dining tent, while Park Street Baptist Church and Knox Church have well equipped lunch tents.

For the benefit of Exhibition visitors the following guide may prove of interest:

Main entrance, at corner of Lock and Lansdowne street.

Vehicle entrance, middle gate on Lansdowne street.

Poultry exhibit, inside main entrance.

Swine exhibit, along south east corner of grounds.

Horse exhibit, south side of the grounds.

Special exhibits, main building.

Ontario Government Demonstration Tent, opposite Main Building.

Knox Church refreshment and lunch tent, opposite Main building.

Miniature Railway, near Main entrance.

To-morrow's programme is as follows:

8 a.m., grounds and buildings open to the public.

10 a.m., poultry will be placed in the poultry tent. All poultry must be on the grounds and properly arranged in coops in time for judging promptly at 10 o'clock.

Agricultural Department in Tent—Information on drainage, weeds, orchard work, live stock, cereals, etc. Bulletins for distribution to farmers. Everything free.

Boy Demonstration.—A good programme

WICKEDNESS AND WEAKNESS OF THE DISLOYALTY CRY

I look upon it as a direct insult to the people of Canada to state to them that their loyalty and allegiance to our loved and honoured motherland, the mother of nations, which is surrounded by such splendid memories of great deeds achieved, and which with all its failings still stands as an example to the world of uprightness and integrity, and an earnest desire for the betterment of all people, should be shaken or impaired by a little extra business here, or some financial dealings there.

If some people feel their loyalty so shallow that it is to be moved by such considerations let us give them our sincere pity, moderated with a tinge of contempt, but let not the large, strong loyal spirit of our Canadian community be in the slightest degree affected thereby.

Let the people of Canada follow the strong, sterling commonsense with which God has blessed them and pursue such paths and follow such financial openings as are presented to them, and thereby build up a solid, strong and contented people, able in any emergency to stand by the mother and seek to return to her somewhat of the large debt that, as true children, we owe, and must ever be ready to pay to her.—Hon. E. H. Blake.

MR. ROBERT STUART IS "HEARTILY IN FAVOUR OF THE PROPOSAL"

He Thinks Reciprocity Agreement is "Good Business" and in the Interests of the Quaker Oats Industry and Good For the Whole Country.

Mr. Robert Stuart, head of the Quaker Oats Company, arrived in Peterborough on Wednesday evening.

This morning a representative of the Examiner had an interview with Mr. Stuart in his office at the mills here.

When asked the question as to what he thought of the proposed agreement between Canada and the United States Mr. Stuart said: "If adopted by the people of Canada, and with the removal of a few inequalities which both countries will consent to, I believe that it will be the means of creating a great future for Canada.

"Great Britain and the United States are both looking for investments that will be safe and profitable, and with a wider market for the output of the new developments increased investments of capital in lands, mines, etc., will produce, a new era of business activity and prosperity will come to Canada; and this will help to continue the prosperous conditions that now prevail in this country."

"Mr. Stuart, it is asserted that your mills are importing barley from the United States to the detriment of the Canadian barley trade. Have you anything to say to that?"

"Yes; our mills import barley only when we can't obtain it in Canada—our mills must be kept running. We would rather buy it in Canada, but not being able to do so, have had to pay 15 cents a bushel more in the United States. We only buy this low grade barley to mix with other grains to grind for stock feed for export to London or Hamburg, Germany. Not a bushel of the barley we import enters into competition with Canadian barley. It is brought in in bond, ground and shipped abroad—this is rather an advantage to Canada; it keeps our mills running and gives employment to a good many workmen. It is the Canadian barley for malting and brewing purposes that the United States requires. We couldn't look at that barley—with the price it brings—for grinding to make feed."

"How about the flouring mills part of your business here?"

"There is nothing in the agreement that injures our business in Canada but much that helps it. Our flour mills are now running to their full capacity and will continue to do so after the agreement is adopted, as it seems likely to be.

"I am heartily in support of the reciprocity proposal. I consider it good business, and anything I can do to promote the adoption of the reciprocity agreement I shall consider as done in the interest of our great and growing business in Peterborough.

"I believe it is Canada's best policy to promote the prosperity of her industries, and I would not be in favour of anything that would injure any of the industries of Canada, and I don't think the agreement will do that.

"I sincerely hope the agreement will be carried in the interests of everybody. It is a good business proposal of a good business government, and I hope that Peterborough will send a good business representative to look after its interests."

PETERBOROUGH BOY SCOUTS TO ATTEND EXHIBITION

The scouts of Peterborough will parade to the Exhibition grounds on Friday the 15th. They will meet at the armouries at sharp 1.45 p.m. The 3rd troops will put on the first aid display just as they did at Toronto Exhibition. Every boy of the 3rd troop will meet for practice on Thursday at the armouries at sharp 4.30 p.m. It is not necessary to be told what to bring for the first aid, signalling and parade fire fighting. Every boy is expected to be on hand. Those not marching down with the troops cannot gain free admission to the grounds unless they report on Thursday night at the armouries to Scout Master Miller.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 14, 1911.

ANYTHING TO BEAT LAURIER.

Country, Empire, Canada; all are forgotten by the Opposition in the struggle of the Opposition to get power and place—to defeat reciprocity and Laurier. Every sort of help is welcomed by Mr. Borden, whether it is the ill-gotten gold of the United States Trusts or the tainted, disloyal, anti-British help of Bourassa, whose policy is opposition to everything British; and also a French Republic on the banks of the St. Lawrence; whose flag is the French tri-colour, with the British flag "shot full of bullet holes so that we can breathe free air through them."

At first, for very shame, Mr. Borden and his followers refused to publicly recognise this unholy alliance: but as the hunger for office grew keener, all disguise was thrown off. Mr. Bourassa, the British-hater, and the Laurier-hater, appeared on the platform of the Conservative candidate for Pontiac, and mingled his abuse of the British with advocacy of Mr. Borden and his platform. Any further doubt of the fact that the anti-British traitor, Bourassa, is working as a welcome ally with the ultra-British Borden—the ultramontane Catholic with Mr. Borden, Defender of the Faith (in Ontario)—any possible doubt is removed by the fact of a declaration made at Halifax by Sir Hibbert Tupper. This gentleman has been hustled out of his seclusion in British Columbia, and brought to Nova Scotia to—what?—help Bourassa in the noble work of Empire smashing and Borden-saving. Speaking at Halifax on Tuesday night last, Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper said:

> "In the past I have condemned Mr. Bourassa and his policy, but, in face of the danger presented in this pact, I welcome Mr. Bourassa, Mr. Monk, or anyone else who will help to defeat the agreement.

Ye ultra loyalists! Ye counterfeit Imperialists! Ye bogus Britishers here in Peterborough and Ontario, how do you like that?

A simple trade agreement that provides for free exchange of barley and butter; a simple business proposal, a simple promoter of mutually profitable trade, which has no more influence in the direction of annexation or disturbance of British connection, except in imagination of political opportunists, than the postal service between Canada and the United States declared to be worse than treason.

For the alleged reason of defeating this simple business arrangement but with the ulterior object of gaining power, Mr. Borden and his associates are willing to cooperate, and are actually cooperating, with the Empire-wrecking "Nationalist" movement, whose avowed object is the disruption of Canada, the withdrawal of Quebec from the Confederation, and the triumph of fierce antagonism to everything British and Imperial. Bourassa, the insulter of the British flag — the implacable foe of Imperialism, is preferable, in the eyes of Mr. Borden and his partisans, to the reciprocity agreement.

If that is not partyism gone mad, if that is not treason, to Canada, and and solidarity of British connection, what else is it?

A FOREGONE CONOLUSION.

The Laurier Government will be sustained. Reciprocity in natural products will carry the country. Even the opponents of the Liberal party and the Liberal policies concede this, although they do a great amount of whistling to keep their courage up.

When Parliament was dissolved the Laurier Government had a majority of forty-five in the House of Commons. Competent calculators predict that its majority in the next House of Commons will be as large, if not larger. The chances of war are altogether in its favour.

Reciprocity is not politics, but a business proposal. It has the farmers who constitute seventy per cent. of the population of Canada, on its side, because it means for them a wider market. It appeals to the workingman because it means for him cheaper living and more work at steadier wages. It has the reasonable manufacturer on its side, because a populous and prosperous country means for him a better home market and expanding business.

Sensible people on both sides of politics are going to vote for reciprocity, irrespective of party affiliations. Those who do not want to vote for the Government are going to vote for the issue. Nearly every Liberal newspaper is publishing an honour roll of Conservatives who will cast Liberal votes because they believe reciprocity is in their interests.

Outside of argument altogether the weight of numbers is largely on the side of the Liberal Government and its latest trade policy. One of the features of reciprocity in natural products is that it binds Canada to nobbing that might be to her disadvantage. It is not a treaty or a pact—for such things may tie a country up to a losing bargain for a term of years—but an agreement, or arrangement, or, if you like to call it that, a business proposal, in which one country says to the other: "We believe this will be to our mutual benefit. Let us give it a trial." This is Canada's opportunity to give it a trial. The agreement takes shape as a simple amendment to the Tariff Act, which can be amended at any time. If Canada does not like her bargain she can cancel it with a stroke of the pen. This aspect of the reciprocity agreement appeals to many cautious voters. They can cast their ballots with a clear conscience that Canada has everything to gain and nothing to lose.

Prejudice and misleading cries aside, each province may be expected to vote for its pocket. Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island will vote for their fish and coal. New Brunswick will vote for its potatoes and hay.

Quebec will vote for its hay and cattle and mixed farming products. The intrusion of Mr. Henri Bourassa and the Nationalists in Quebec is of minor importance. Quebec shows no disposition to divide its hero-worship between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Henri Bourassa. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the dominating figure in the situation and will continue to be as long as he remains on the political scene.

Ontario will vote for cheaper living for the mechanic, the factory hand and the average consumer, for a more flourishing home market for the manufacturer and for a choice market for the farmer, the market gardener and the fruitgrower. The gloomiest prophets say that Ontario, at the worst, will break as it did before, and at its best, will give Laurier a dozen more seats. It is conceded that any gains in Ontario will be Liberal.

The prairie provinces—Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan, will vote for their wheat. Saskatchewan is is unanimously in favour of reciprocity; in Alberta, only two of the Conservative candidates had the hardihood to declare against it; in Manitoba opinion leans to the agreement to such an extent that Premier Roblin, the Conservative Premier of that Province, said only the other day that he would not consider any Conservative who voted for reciprocity a traitor to his party. This utterance is on all fours with F. G. Haultain, leader of the Opposition in Saskatchewan—Mr. Haultain is one of Peterborough's native sons—who hastened to declare himself on the side of the great majority. British Columbia is expected to break, Liberals four, Conservatives, three; which is two better than the Government did before.

To recapitulate. Gains in the Maritime Provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, the solid Quebec, as formerly, and Ontario probably better than in 1908. The conclusion is inevitable.

The Laurier Government will be sustained.

MR. McILMOYLE SAYS WEST FAVOURS AGREEMENT

Splendid Harvest About Completed—No Doubt of the Return of the Liberals

Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle of Edmonton, formerly of Peterborough, has just returned to Peterborough on a visit. Mr. McIlmoyle, who was a resident of the Township of Smith, left for the West in April, and has taken up land and is interested in real estate in the City of Edmonton.

"What is the feeling, Mr. McIlmoyle," asked an Examiner reporter, "with regard to reciprocity in the West."

"There is no question of doubt," said Mr. McIlmoyle, "that the West will be carried by those candidates who are favouring reciprocity. Everybody is talking reciprocity, and nine out of ten are favouring it. Some of the Conservative candidates are promising to vote for reciprocity, if elected."

Mr. McIlmoyle was asked if he had seen Mr. Patrick Burns' statement in the press of to-day. He replied that he had, and added that the views expressed by Mr. Burns, "the great Cattle King of the West" were the opinions generally of the people of the West, the universal feeling being that reciprocity in natural products will be beneficial to all.

Mr. McIlmoyle stated that so far as stock raising and grain were concerned the farmers are paying for some relief of some kind at the present time, as between elevator and railroad charge the crop is eaten up.

Mr. McIlmoyle said that the West is a great country. There was never such a crop produced in Canada as the West will harvest this year. Nearly all the crop has been reaped and the farmer is only waiting now to have the threshing done and reciprocity carried.

Mr. McIlmoyle, who has just arrived in Peterborough, says that the weather could not have been more favourable than it was when he left home.

Mr. McIlmoyle intends returning to the West in the course of a month.

OPPOSITION SUPPORT FOR RECIPROCITY

Montreal, Sept. 12—Seven Opposition candidates running in the districts of Montreal have come out in favour of reciprocity. They are: Mondou in Yamaska, Barrette in Berinier, Gilbert in Arthabaska, Dortie in Soulanges, Marcil in Bagot, Guilbault in Joliette, and Monette in La Prairie. Were it not for the anti-naval policy of Mr. Bourassa and the silent suport given him by Conservatives there would be no opposition to Sir Wilfrid Laurier in this Province.

An Appeal To The Public To Patronize The Fair

To the Public—

The Directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition have done their duty, to the best of their ability, in their endeavour to make the Exhibition a success.

It now remains for the citizens of Peterborough to do their share, by giving it a liberal patronage. No matter how hard and how successfully the directors work, the Exhibition cannot be made a success without the hearty cooperation of the public.

Business men and the citizens generally cannot but see how beneficial a thing it is to the city to have the city filled with visitors and are urged to do their share in thronging the exhibition grounds.

On behalf of the Directors,

R. H. LEARY,
President Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

TRULY, I don't know whether to dislike them or laugh at them or be sorry for them the most.

Who?

Why the people with such an impervious armour of self interest that anything interesting to themselves seldom penetrates to their minds. Of course you've met these persons with whom all conversational roads lead promptly, not to Rome, but to home.

Which have you done, then?

Most likely you have taken a fourth alternative (that is quite correct, my grammatical critics. I just looked it up) and have simply avoided them.

I met an unusually virulent member of this species the other day. She is a person whom I know but slightly so I opened up several good leads for general conversation. Each time she promptly diverted the channel of conversation towards herself and her family and attempted to impress me with their position and importance.

Now, perhaps you are thinking of Bishop Selwyn's definition of a bore as "a person who will persist in talking about himself when you want to talk about yourself."

If you are going to quote that against me I insist I have a right to plead not guilty. Truly all I desired was to find some general ground on which we could meet and share and share alike in the conversation, and that she would not let me do.

So, as soon as I well could, I fled.

Just as we all do.

That's what I mean by being sorry for these people.

By their conversational selfishness they do not only deprive themselves of the vast pleasure that comes from taking an intelligent interest in others lives but they drive all who can escape away from them.

One of the primal instincts of the human mind is love of fair play. And just as the boy who does not play fair is ostracized by the "gang" so the man or woman who won't play fair conversationally is avoided and disliked by the grown up "gang."

No more learned and instructive conversationalist than Macauley ever lived and yet he was carefully avoided by many men one would have expected to delight in him.

Why?

Well, let Charles Sumner explain. In writing to a friend of an interview with Macaulay he says that the latter is "truly opressive; if you speak he does not respon to what you say but while your last words are yet on your lips takes up again his wondrous tale."

I will admit that Bishop Selwyn's definition is true—in a certain way. We do dislike a man who persists in talking of himself all the time because we do want to be talking of ourselves. That we should wish to is a part of human nature. But since we are in the habit of controlling that desire and listening to others some of the time we think we have a right to expect a like self restraint and forbearance from others and are justly offended with those from whom we do not receive it.

Macauley thought he could talk all the time because he knew so much that he must always be interesting. But no one is clever enough, no one knows enough, no one has a sufficiently interesting life to entitle him to monopolize the conversation.

And he who thinks he is entitled to do so will doubtless, like Cowpers' cat,

The folly of his expectation."

Unless, perchance, this hint may help him to learn before he enters that unpleasant school.

Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. Make Satisfactory Explanation

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In reply to the attack in the Examiner of September 12th, we feel that it is both due to the public and to ourselves, to give a brief explanation of the facts relating to the insinuations that we sought to influence workingmen in our employ in political matters. In the first place we have not now, and never had any quarrel with Mr. Stratton. We have never taken an active interest in politics in any campaign, finding that our business occupied fully all of our time, and, furthermore, on account of the fact that we do not believe in business men mixing in politics unless the issue is of vital importance to their own interests. Speaking of the present campaign, as we have already stated, while we are not in favour of reciprocity personally, it does not materially affect our line of business any further than that we feel that it will result in an increase in the cost of living to our own employees. Notwithstanding the fact that we feel this way, we have never in any manner intimated this to our employees, nor have any of them consulted us as to our opinion.

We have no apology to make for the fact that we are Conservatives. We feel that we owe no apology for the posting up on the outer wall of our office at the main entrance of our building the notice that we, as a firm, are opposed to reciprocity, or any measure injuring British connection, or the industrial or farming interests of Canada. We would say further, concerning this notice, that it was sent us last week with a letter stating that if we considered it advisable we could be supplied in any quantity necessary to paste throughout our work-rooms; but as we have never yet tried to influence our employees in matters of this kind, we merely put this one up. We have not brought it to the attention of any employee. Two commercial travellers commented on the matter, but until the issue of the Examiner, last evening, the matter had not been referred to us by any employee or local citizen. We have not found it necessary to forbid our employees discussing politics during business hours. We presume our factory is the same as all others, but we would say that we have, as a class, as fine a body of men working for us as there is in Peterborough, and the feeling, as far as we know, has always been most friendly between employer and employee.

The statement in the Examiner is so far from the facts that we felt it advisable to put the following question to all voters in our employ, and we are glad to be able to say that every voter present, to-day in our factory has readily and cheerfully subscribed by signature to this statement. We may say with the exception of two, all voters were present to-day, and one of these is on his vacation and the other absent, on business.

We have honestly and fairly tried to put all the facts of this controversy in this statement.

Yours truly,
B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co.

"We think that the statement is due our employers, the B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co., to say that no member of the Company, and no one on its behalf has ever spoken to us with regard to our votes in this campaign; and that we have not been approached on behalf of the Company in any manner, shape or form on political matters."—Signed by 56 Employees.

The Examiner cheerfully gives place to the above explanation of the Ackerman Company, and has only to say that so far as the first article that appeared in the Examiner, was concerned, it was prepared and printed in good faith, with no desire to reflect on the Company, but rather to give prominence to the energy and enterprise that have led to so much success.

With regard to the second article, an excerpt from comments made in an address, Mr. Stratton feels that perhaps he went further than he would have done had he at the time been in possession of the circumstances explained in the above letter. He naturally drew the inference from the fact of the notice in question being posted similar to that drawn in respect of similar notices posted by other manufacturers in the country, and he is glad to learn that the Company did not originate the notice, but that it was sent to them in pursuance of a generally adopted plan by some one possessing some sort of authority to take such an action. Neither Mr. Stratton, nor the Examiner, has had, or has, anything but the most friendly feeling for B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co., but like a good citizen, he rejoices in the success of his esteemed fellow-citizens. Now, that a misunderstanding has been removed, there is no bar to the friendly relations that have been threatened with interruption, only by a misunderstanding in the heat of a political campaign, now cleared up to the satisfaction of Mr. Stratton and the Examiner, and it is hoped, to the mutual satisfaction of all concerned.

Run-Off Near Ingersoll.

Woodstock, Sept. 14.—Two Pullman cars attached to the Chicago-Montreal express, east bound, due here at 5.35 p.m. yesterday, jumped the track two miles west of Ingersoll while running at a high rate of speed.

Both cars were swung across the tracks, and a complete blockade of the line was on for several hours. A number of passengers were in their berths, and some were thrown out into the aisles, but beyond a severe shaking up and a few bruises, no one appears to have been hurt.

Four Dead in Wreck.

Cleveland, Sept. 14.—Four are reported dead and several injured in the wreck of a work train on the New York Belt Line, which occurred in the eastern part of the city last night.

One body was taken from the wreckage of the engine and another is said to be under it. Eleven injured have been taken to one hospital and seven more are in the debris. All of the injured are foreigners.

BEAUTIFUL DOUBLE WEDDING CELEBRATED AT FRASERVILLE

FRASERVILLE, SEPT. 12.— There was a quiet but very pretty double wedding celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bairie Seabrook, when their daughters, Emma and Mildred, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. James Johnston of the Bell Tel. Co., Peterborough, formerly of Toronto, and Mr. Charles Levis. Burns, of Oxford, Maine, principal of the Wingham Business College, formerly of Peterborough Business College, respectively.

The bridal party entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march, which was played by Mrs. (Rev.) Allen, where the ceremony was performed underneath a beautiful arch of evergreens by Rev. W. C. Allen, of Millbrook.

Emma, who was given away by her father, was attired in a beautiful white silk dress overlaid with net, and carried a bouquet of white asters. Mildred, who was given away by her mother, was beautifully and becomingly attired in a white flowered silk gown and carried a bouquet of white asters also. Both brides wore veils caught up with lily-of-the-valley. Mrs. Johnston, was attended by her sister, Miss Flossie Seabrook, who wore a dainty pink silk dress and carried pink asters, while Mr. W. H. Jessops, of Toronto, attended Mr. Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns were attended by Miss Olive Seabrook, sister of the bride, who wore a very pretty white embroidered dress and carried pink asters and Mr. B. Page, of Toronto. Mr. Johnston's gift to the bride was a handsome brooch, set with emeralds and pearls and to the bridesmaid a gold barrette set with brilliants.

Mrs. Johnston's travelling suit was of old rose broadcloth with picture hat to match, and Mrs. Burns', was of navy blue serge, with blue velvet toque to match.

After the ceremony a dainty supper was served, after which Mr. Allen proposed a toast list to the health of the brides.

This is the first double wedding to be held in this locality for many years and was exceedingly pretty in all details.

Men, Women And Children In Danger Of Their Lives

Three local men were arraigned in the Police Court this morning on a charge of leaving their horses untied on the streets of the City. They paid $2.00 each for the neglect.

Another man was charged with the same offence but he was unable to be present as the result of injuries received in a runaway. The Chief wishes it distinctly understood that it is the intention of the Police Department to enforce this by-law, and the sooner those concerned adhere to it, the better it will be for themselves and other citizens as well. There is no excuse for a man not knowing the law in this respect now, as it has appeared in the daily papers several times. It is not for the mere satisfaction of seeing the law enforced, although this would justify action, but it is to insure the safety of the public—of our citizens—who walk about the street, constantly in danger of being seriously injured, or perhaps, killed by the horse of some careless teamster who would rather run the risk of his horse getting away, than take the trouble to tie it.

This article will serve as a final notice from the police authorities, and after its appearance, no man violating the by-law in question need look for any leniency on the part of Police Magistrate Dumble.

The well-known local man who appeared in the police court a few days ago on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and breaking the mirror in the bar of a local hotel, was allowed to go, and as he drew his out of the court room h ped blessings upon the Magistra and the Chief for the leniency exercised towards him.

A LADY LECTURER

Feeds Nerves and Brains Scientifically

A lady lecturer writes from Philadelphia concerning the use of right food and how she is enabled to withstand the strain and wear and tear of her arduous occupation. She says:

"Through improper food, imperfectly digested, my health was completely wrecked, and I attribute my recovery entirely to the regular use of Grape-Nuts food. It has, I assure you, proved an inestimable boon to me.

"Almost immediately after beginning the use of Grape-Nuts I found a gratifying change in my condition. The terrible weakness that formerly prostrated me after a few hours of work, was perceptibly lessened and is now only a memory—it never returns.

"Ten days after beginning on Grape-Nuts I experienced a wonderful increase in mental vigour and physical energy, and continued use has entirely freed me from the miserable insomnia and nervousness from which I used to suffer so much.

"I find Grape-Nuts very palatable and would not be without the crisp, delicious food for even a day on any consideration. Indeed, I always carry it with me on my lecture tours."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

"OBSTACLES IN PATH"

Clever Cartoon by Brother of Rev. Father Casey

Hands Tied to Prevent Scratching

Five Doctors Failed to Relieve, but Zam-Buk Worked a Cure

Mrs. Chas. Levere of Prescott, North Channel, Ont., tells how Zam-Buk cured her baby. She says: "My baby's head and face was one complete mass of sores. The itching and irritation were fearful, and the little one's plight was so serious that at one time we feared her ears would be eaten off by the disease.

"We had to keep her hands tied for days to prevent her rubbing and scratching the sores. Doctor after doctor treated her in vain, until we had had five doctors. They all agreed it was a frightful case of eczema, but none of them did any permanent good.

"As a last resource we were advised to try Zam-Buk. The first box did so much good that we felt sure we were at last working in the right direction. We persevered with the treatment until we had used thirteen boxes, and at the end of that time I am glad to say Zam-Buk had effected a complete cure."

For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles, abscesses, chronic sores, blood poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Refuse imitations.

ACCIDENT AVERTED

A youthful cyclist, while wheeling down George street, narrowly escaped serious injury by colliding with a delivery waggon this afternoon. He was wheeling down street in a leisurely manner, and while about to cross Charlotte street a rig coming from the opposite direction obstructed his path. A collision was unavoidable. The boy was thrown from the wheel in a rather abrupt manner, but beyond a few bruises escaped injury. He was able to proceed on his way.

ANOTHER VOICE FROM THE WEST

Mr. Henry Haskell, of Calgary, Predicts an Overwhelming Victory For Laurier

Mr. Henry Haskell, a prominent business man and commission merchant of Calgary, is on a visit to Peterborough. He says there is no doubt that Saskatchewan and Alberta will go almost solid for Laurier and reciprocity.

"In Saskatchewan," said Mr. Haskell, "we don't look on it as an election at all. Its all one way. Every voter and every candidate is for reciprocity."

"In Calgary the Conservatives have put up R. R. Bennett, one of the brightest and brainiest men in the west and very popular besides. But in spite of his brains and his popularity, he is not going to win against Sheriff Van Wart, who has the advantage of being in favour of reciprocity. John Herron, a Conservative, may win in Macleod, but he has pledged himself to vote for reciprocity in Parliament, if he is elected."

The Examiner reporter mentioned the name of Mr. Patrick Burns, the millionaire cattle king of the west, who has come out for reciprocity.

"There's a man that has got some sense,' said Mr. Haskell. "You can rely on what he says. When he says it, you know that he believes it."

"Its worthing noting, too,' said Mr. Haskell, "that the Calgary Board of Trade is in favour of reciprocity and has declared itself so in a formal resolution.'

Narrow Escape

Mr. Jacob Dawson, of Byersville, had a narrow escape from death this morning. He was cycling up Bethune street, passing a train which was proceeding south. As he drew near King street the last coach passed, and a team of horses and vehicle, which had been waiting for the train to pass dashed by. The awkwardness of his situation was accelerated b y the fact that a horse and buggy was proceeding east on King street.

With great presence of mind he pedalled hard, endeavouring to clear both vehicles, but that nearest him (the cart attached to the team) struck his hind wheel and threw him. He arose, however, and beyond a bad shaking up, was not hurt.

FUNERAL TO-MORROW

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Kylie of Kinmount who passed away yesterday afternoon, will take place at 3 o'clock to-morrow from the residence of her brother, Mr. Patrick Cahill, of 390 Parnell street, to the Sacred Heart church and from thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

Mrs. Kylie was born in Cavan County, Ireland, and came to Canada when eighteen years of age, taking up her abode with her brother Patrick, who was at that time living in Peterborough. She was married in 1884 and four years afterwards went to reside in Kinmount.

She is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Lune of Saskatoon, Miss Katie of Montreal, Misses Susan, Margaret and Emma at home. Three brothers also mourn her demise in the persons of Andrew Cahill of Washington, David of New York and Patrick of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Oboy, Glasgow, Mrs. Rull of New York.

The deceased had been ailing for some years and the end, therefore, was not wholly unexpected.

Wheel Came Off

A North Monaghan farmer, whose name is not to hand, had a rather exciting experience on Park street, near the C. G. E., this morning, about 11 o'clock. He was driving north on the street, when one of the rear wheels came off, and he was dumped out of his buggy. The horse was somewhat frightened and made a slight attempt to bolt, but being naturally a quiet one, the man managed ot hold it. Willing hands soon gathered around, and put everything right again. The nut on a rear wheel had by some mischance, worked loose allowing the wheel to slide off. However, no damage was done and the farmer proceeded, none the worse for his experience, other than a little agitated feeling.

POST CARD COLUMN

LATTER DAY SAINTS OF PETERBOROUGH NOT MORMONS.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Permit me space in your valuable paper to correct an erroneous idea prevalent in the minds of some that the work which we represent and have been preaching in Central Park is what is known as "Mormonism." Let me say that we have no affiliation with that doctrine whatever. The Latter Day Saints Church was organized in 1830, on April 6th, upon a monogamy system. Its doctrine has ever been "Thou shall have but one wife, and concubines thou shall have none." It has stood for obedience to laws of the land and God. Has made the Scriptures as a guide and rule to govern its members. But, like in the days of Christ, it had within its pales some men who were selfish and anxious to lead. So, at the death of its founder, in 1844, Brigham Young assumed the right to lead, and led ten thousand off to Mexico, which afterwards became Utah. But the majority of the Church members did not follow Brigham Young, but remained true to the original Church, founded in 1830, which Church is now presided over by Joseph Smith's son, Joseph, with headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa. This is the church which we represent, and the Gospel proclaim, as in the days of Christ. The branch which Brigham Young commenced has been declared several times by the Courts of the land, as apostates. They were the ones who introduced polygamy publicly into their branch eight years after the death of Joseph Smith. We couldn't help that sect breaking off from us any more than the English could help the Methodist breaking from them; or Jesus Christ could help Nicolas breaking off from the Church he organized, and introducing polygamy. Don't listen to the many stories told. Come and hear for yourself. Don't judge a matter before you hear it. It is a shame and folly, declared the wise man. It was these misleading stories that caused the crucifixion of Christ. Prove all things and hold fast to that which is good. I am holding meetings Thursday and Friday evenings of this week and Sunday at 7 p.m., in the Knights of Pythias Hall, on Simcoe street. We take this opportunity of inviting you out to hear us.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space, I subscribe myself,

Yours for truth,
J. T. Thompson.

Mammoth Sale Of Fountain Pens To-day

Regular $2.50 to $10 Value for $1.25 at Warne's Drug Store

The biggest fountain pen sale ever placed before the people of Peterborough started to-day at Warne's Drug Store, 351 George street.

Mr. Rochester has made arrangements for showing some 159 different styles of the celebrated Worth & Co. pens, valued at from $2.50 to $10, and about 20,000 of these pens will go on sale at the popular price of $1.25 each. In this magnificent assortment there are pearl-handled, sterling silver mounted, gold mounted, business men's pens and many other attractive designs.

The average person generally takes it for granted that unless he pays $5, $6, or more for a fountain pen he is not making a good investment. This theory is given a rude jolt at this mammoth sale, during which a guarantee for one year accompanies each and every sale. Furthermore, purchasers are told that if they are not satisfied they can have their money returned any time during the sale or the pen may be exchanged for any other more suitable design.

The window of the Warne's store has been given over entirely to the display of these pens, and as there will undoubtedly be a rush, the sale will last for only a few days.

The sale already this morning has been a large one and the Peterborough public is asked to call at once.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at Hotel Orientai on Sept. 15 and 16.

The Y. W. C. A. Season Opens

The very spirit of good will and welcome radiated from every room, and from every face of the one hundred members and friends of the Y. W. C. A., who met for the first social gathering after vacation.

The large, beautiful rooms were attractively decorated with rich autumn foliage and flowers, the big grate fire in the reception corridor adding to the warmth of the welcome tendered Miss Shuttleworth, the new Associate Secretary, who comes to her new field with both training and experience.

Piano solo—Miss Leslie Horner.
Vocal solo—Miss Ruth Dawson.
Reading—Miss Jean Jackson.
Vocal solo—Miss Ida Sanderson.
Recitation—Miss Kathleen Martin.
Miss Helen Davies, accompanist.

The real business, however, of the evening commenced with the close of the Musical and Literary programme when Miss McCalla presented the new class schedule for the year, which appealed to all, classes having been arranged for in Dress-making, Shirt Waist, Cooking, Home Nursing, and Home Hygiene, with a weekly evening with the English Novelists and a full schedule of Gymnasium classes; also weekly club meetings and social hours.

After the comprehensive and attractive programme for the year had been clearly presented, war was declared. This war is nothing more or less than a keen membership campaign for five hundred new members. Four teams have been organized—the Red, Yellow, White and Pink. The campaign will be pushed vigorously and enthusiastically for seventeen days, the contest to close at 9 o'clock on the evening of Sept. 30th.

There is no age limit, any one from ten to eighty years of age, may become a member by the payment of $1.00; juniors, 50c.

Give your name and get into the game.

OBITUARY

ELIABETH ANN DAWSON.

There died this morning shortly after midnight, an old and well-known resident of Peterborough, in the person of Elizabeth Ann McCague, wife of Mr. William Dawson of Downer's Corners.

The deceased was born in Emily Township eighty-two years ago. Married on August 24th, 1853, she some years later removed to Downer's Corners, where she has now resided upwards of thirty-five years. Some ten years ago Mrs. Dawson was taken with a stroke, but this she survived. About nine weeks ago, however, she was again taken ill and, owing to her advanced age, succumbed. In creed she was a Methodist. She had ten children, seven of which survive her, namely three sons, William Albert, and Joseph Hilliard of Moose Jaw, Thomas George of Chicago, and four daughters, Mrs. Freeman Thompson of South Monaghan, Mrs. John Henthorne, Mrs. William S. Robinson, and Mrs. Harry Gibbs, all of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place at 2.30 Saturday from the residence, Concession St., near Downers Corners of the Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house at 2 o'clock.

THE POTATO CROP

From Farm and Dairy.

Early potatoes are almost a total failure, due to the extreme hot weather in June and July. Prospects for late potatoes are fair to good, and with recent rains and continued favorable weather late potatoes should be a good crop.

Early potatoes were a fair crop in some sections of Eastern Ontario, where the rainfall was plentiful, but in most places early potatoes are small and few in the hill. Mr. G. W. Collins, writing from the Thunder Bay district of New Ontario, reports a fair crop of early potatoes, but complains that there was too much rain for best results.

Prospects for the late crop a month ago were not of the best, but recent rains all over the province have helped matters. Tops are still green, and there will be a good fall growth. Blight has been very bad in some sections this season, but it is not very generally distributed. Farm and Dairy correspondents in Haldimand, Grey and Victoria counties make mention of its depredations. Mr. T. G. Raynor, of the Seed Division, Ottawa, in conversation with one of our editors last week, mentioned that blight was much worse than usual in some sections, and that spraying even did not seem to be an effectual remedy.

GOOD PRICES LIKELY TO PREVAIL

Prices of early potatoes have been high in all sections. Old potatoes have maintained a uniformly high price for several months past, and unless the season from now on is very favorable indeed and the crop excessive, which is not likely, prospects are favorable for good prices for this season's crop. The following are some reports on the potato crop from Farm and Dairy's special correspondents in all parts of Ontario:

"Early potatoes are almost a failure. The vines of the late potatoes are quite green, and as we now have favorable weather, the crop will be fair, but not up to last year."—W. B. Montgomery, Leeds Co.

ATTACKED BY BLIGHT

"Prospects for the potato crop are poor. Early potatoes were affected with blight. The late crop will be fair if rain comes soon."—Walter Geddes, Lanark Co.

"Early potatoes are very poor. The late crop will be poor also unless we get rain."—G. A. Smith, Frontenac

"The early potatoes are small and average. The late crop appears to be few in a hill, and the late ones will be poor also."—A. M. Fraser, Lennox Co.

"Early potatoes were a short crop, due to drought, blight and bugs. Prospects for the late crop are good."—John H. Fite, Haldimand Co.

DOMINION TRADES CONGRESS STRONG FOR RECIPROCITY

The executive does not hesitate to say that it believes that the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United Sates is in the interests of the Canadian people. If other proof of this were wanting, the fact that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association is against, would be sufficient to prove it must be of some value to the workers. This organization has never tired of proclaiming its love for "free" labour, because that helps its pocket. Reciprocity has long been recognized in the International Trade union movement and we see no danger to anything but the pockets of a few interested capitalists in permitting the people of the two countries to swap knives if they see fit to do so, without the intervention of a horde of Customs officials. The trade union movement is better and stronger because of the freedom it enjoys in the exhange of benefits.

Candidates Are Named in All of the Ridings But One

WILL CONTEST EVERY SEAT

Toronto, Sept. 15.—Nominations were held all over Canada yesterday at noon amid scenes of enthusiasm on both sides and thus was ushered in the last week of one of the hottest campaigns in recent years. The remarkable thing is that in all the ridings in Canada only one seat is granted by acclamation, that of W. M. German, the Liberal anti-reciprocity candidate in Welland. Every Government seat in Quebec is being contested either by a Nationalist or a Conservative.

The candidates now lined up for the polls are as follows:

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

The arguments have all been made and comparative prices have been quoted at length. You have doubtless read, heard and digested. It only remains to recall the outstanding features of the question before the country—reciprocity in natural products with the United States.

Reciprocity will injure or disturb no industry or factory or workman, in Peterborough or elsewhere, but on the contrary will materially promote the interests of all.

The protection which the Fielding tariff has always accorded our manufacturing industries, will be continued unabated. Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding have time and again given assurance of this. The mutual effect of freer trade in natural products and protection for our manufacturers cannot fail of being beneficial by giving the workingman cheaper living and the manufacturer a more prosperous home market.

Reciprocity will benefit the farmer by giving him an unlimited market in the United States for those products which he cannot ship to England, or which he cannot sell at home to advantage.

Reciprocity will reduce the cost of living from twenty-five to thirty per cent. It will benefit the consumer in about sixty of the chief elements of his diet.

American eggs, all American fruits, fresh and dried, and all vegetables, will come in free of duty at the seasons when there is no production here.

Fish of all kinds, oysters and shell fish will come in free.

The existing duties will be materially reduced on fresh meats, bacon and hams, dried, smoked and salted meats, canned meat, canned fish, sardines and the like, canned vegetables, flour, oatmeal, pearled barley, macaroni, biscuits, etc.

These reductions will materially reduce the prices of these articles to the consumer.

How, you may ask, can reciprocity raise the price to the farmer and lessen it to the consumer?

The answer is simple enough. Reciprocity takes down two tariff walls which stand between the natural products of Canada and the United States and their natural disposal.

The American tariff is the wall against the producer, against the Canadian farmer, which prevents him seeking an outlet for his surplus in that direction and leaves him at the mercy of the Canadian food combines.

The Canadian tariff is the wall against the Canadian consumer, which prevents him from getting the benefit of cheap American products at the times and places when these do ne compete with Canadian products.

At present the Canadian farmer receives less for his products than the American farmer and the Canadian consumer pays more for his food than the American consumer.

Reciprocity in natural products removes these two artificial barriers and allows the food products of a continent to find the most convenient channels.

The relief to producer and consumer should be almost immediate. Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

What are the side issues that have been dragged into this campaign—the loyalty of the Liberal party, annexation, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion and the British Born.

They are almost too absurd to mention, but I will answer them briefly.

Loyalty of the Liberal party? The answer to that is British preference, South African contingents, the Canadian navy. Actions speak louder than words. The very men who are plastering the majority of the electors of Canada with the imputation of disloyalty, have a working alliance in Quebec with the firebrand Bourassa, who hates England and preaches destruction to British ascendancy and Canada.

Annexation? The answer to that is that Lord Elgin, Governor-General of Canada, in 1854, a Conservative and an ardent Imperialist, was the chief instrument in obtaining the reciprocity treaty with the United States, which lasted from 1854 to 1866. His avowed purpose in securing reciprocity, was to cure the annexation sentiment, then prevalent among Canadian business men on account of the hard times.

Lord Elgin believed, with Lloyd-George, that reciprocity in natural products between Canada and the United States, was crystallized common sense, and with the London Times, that a happy and contented member of the British Empire, is better than an unhappy and discontented one. Lord Elgin's cure worked. Instead of annexation, reciprocity brought Confederation in its train, and gave this country the great blessing of national unity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion? The Protestants of Ontario outnumber the Roman Catholics six to one. Protestantism is in no more danger from a Liberal Roman Catholic premier than it was from a Conservative Roman Catholic premier, Sir John Thompson. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has no more Roman Catholics in his cabinet than Sir John Macdonald had, or Sir John Thompson or Sir John Abbott, or Sir Charles Tupper, or last but not least, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, once the Grand Master of the Orange order. Sir James Whitney has two Roman Catholics in his cabinet, and they have shown themselves equitable and capable administrators.

The British Born? We are all British born if we are born within the Empire, and we are all equally proud of it. Those who were born in the Mother Country and have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions need not be told what the Liberal Government has done to help the workingman and to open up the great Northwest prairie to the land-hungry homeseekers. In Canada, as in England, most of the workingmen's blessings have been the gift of the Liberal Government. Neither need they be told what a Liberal Government has done for the old land across the sea in the matters of British preference, the South African contingents and the Canadian navy. The British born may be depended upon to rally to the side where they find their best friends.

Hoping to receive the same confidence from the electors of West Peterborough as I have received in the past, I am,

Yours Respectfully.

STATUE TO COOK.

Australians Will Erect Memorial to Discoverer of Continent.

Really great Englishmen have usually to wait a long time after they're dead before a worthy national memorial is erected to commemorate their exploits in the most fitting location, the heart of the metropolis.

Shakespeare still lacks a statue in London, though the memorial theatre that is to be raised in his honor will remedy that omission. And great English navigators have been as much overlooked as great dramatists and authors.

Although Captain Cook gave Australia and New Zealand to Britain, and the story of his voyages has delighted generations of youngsters, London only has a portrait medallion of him on the walls of the Colonial Office, and a tablet on a house in the Mile End road to record that the great explorer and his wife lived there.

Three years ago Sir J. H. Carruthers, ex-Prime Minister of New South Wales, started an agitation for the erection of a worthy monument to Cooks memory. In due course the matter was brought to the notice of the British Empire League, and a committee was formed with the object of collecting subscriptions for this purpose, King George, then Prince of Wales, closely associating himself with the effort. Only those who have had such a project in hand know how difficult it is in England to raise funds for a memorial of this nature.

Now a site has been chosen, and Sir Thomas Brock, the sculptor of the Victoria Memorial, has been commissioned to make the statue. When finished, it will be erected on the Mall, close to the new Admiralty Arch, on the left hand, looking toward Buckingham Palace.

But Cook was not without honor in his own day. Benjamin Franklin, it may be remembered, ordered the American privateers to "show him every respect, and permit him to pass unattacked on account of the benefits he has conferred on mankind." A statue to Cook is a necessary act of national recognition, although, as an English naval historian has said, "his truest and best memorial is the map of the Pacific."

Cromwell's Skull.

The Bessborough earldom was created in 1739, and the present holder of the title is the eighth of his line; is sixty years of age, and succeeded his father in 1905.

His lordship served in the navy, retiring as a lieutenant in 1874. Five years later he was called to the Bar, and was secretary to the Speaker of the House of Commons from 1884 to 1895, and also secretary to the Caledonian Canal Commissioners from 1896 to 1899.

Lord Bessborough has told a story of a showman at a village fair. He was exhibiting some curiosities, and among them was a skull which he declared to be the skull of Oliver Cromwell.

A gentleman standing by said it could not be so, for Cromwell had a very large head, and this was a small skull.

Thereupon the crowd began to laugh at the showman, but without being in the least disturbed, he said: "Oh, I know that, but you see this is his skull when he was a boy!"

Lady Bessborough was Miss Blanche Guest, and is sister to Lord Wimborne. She is given to charitable enterprise, and is serious-minded. The inception and advancement of Irish home handicraft is the main object of her life, and the Garry Hill Cottage Industry presents proof of much successful endeavor. As Lady Duncannon she started a shop near Bond street for the sale of these products, and her name, "Viscountess Duncannon," appeared in large gilt letters over the doorway.

Yorkshire's Strong Man.

George Hirst is one of the greatest of modern all-round cricketers. Recently he took nine Worcester wickets for forty-one runs and followed up this bowling feat by scoring a century. Not a bad performance for a man in his fortieth year, who has been playing first-class cricket for nearly twenty years. Hirst is one of the most popular figures in the cricketing world, and everyone was delighted when, in 1904, he had a record benefit which brought him in $17,500, part of which he invested in a toffee factory, which is doing a big business. An amusing incident occurred at Bramall Lane some time ago. A strong wind was blowing the bails off when Hirst was batting. "Stick them on with your toffee, Garge!" yelled one spectator. And genial George smiled all over his face.

Spring Humors

Discharge is Checked---Sores Are Cleaned Out and Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Aside from the suffering caused by pimples, sores and skin eruptions, there is the annoyance and embarrassment to which they give rise, particularly when on the hands or face.

It is quite proper to try to get the blood right by use of internal treatment, but this is a tedious method of overcoming the skin troubles, which can so readily be gotten rid of by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The three pricipal ingredients of this great, soothing, healing ointment are the most potent known to the medical profession as a means of cleaning out sores and ulcers, destroying morbid growth, lessening the discharge, preventing blood-poisoning and stimulating the healing process.

Dr. Chase's Ointment stops itching almost as soon as applied and often heals almost like magic.

The time required for cure depends on the nature of the ailment, but, unlike internal treatment, the benefits are apparent to the eye, and you can note from day to day the improvement made.

The wonderful success of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the cure of eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and old sores and wounds is sufficient proof that it is bound to be satisfactory in the treatment of less severe diseases of the skin. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. SIRES AND SUNS.

Sven Hedin, the Swedish explorer, has been made a member of the French Academy of Sciences.

Sir Edward Elgar, the famous composer, is an ardent naturalist and at one time made a hobby of making and flying kites.

Maitre Labori, who has just been elected leader of the Paris bar, took a commanding part in the second Dreyfus trial at Rennes. He is a pleader of great force and possesses a style that is dignified and irresistible.

Rev. Augustus Orlebar, M. A., vicar of Willington, Bedfordshire, England, the original of Tom Brown in the fight so graphically described in "Tom Brown's School Days," recently celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday.

T. P. O'Connor says that Lord Curzon always reminds him of Rostand's Chantecler. The old rhyme attests that the present ex-proconsul impressed his school and university mates the same way. "I am George Nathaniel Curzon," it ran. "I am a very superior person."

Dr. Abraham Jacobi of New York, who recently celebrated his eighty-first birthday, has been elected president of the American Medical association. He was born in Westphalia, Germany, in 1830, and at the age of twenty-one received his degree as doctor of medicine.

Town Topics.

They've started a new subway over in Noo Yawk, with the taxpayers doing most of the digging.—Washington Post.

It is up to Kansas City to explain why one out of every three marriages in that town during the last year was a failure.—Chicago Tribune.

A half spoonful of Boston ice cream has been found to contain 55,000,000 bacteria, which may account for some of the peculiarities of Boston people.—Cleveland Leader.

The Royal Box.

George V. was crowned without the assistance of the poet laureate, as no official coronation ode was written.

The Duchess of Albany is said to be the best whist player among the members of the English royal family. So far as cards are concerned, whist is the favorite royal recreation.

Tales of Cities.

Boston eats more spaghetti than any other American city.

After London, Glasgow has the biggest population of any city in the United Kingdom.

Montreal is to have a ten story hotel, which will be the first building to be erected in that city wholly of marble.

Atlantic City was incorporated in 1854, the year when the first passenger train was run from the Delaware river to the Atlantic ocean. At that time the village consisted of half a dozen families.

ENGLISH PATRIOTIC POETRY.

The nearest that Englishmen care go to lyrical expression about national affairs is such a sonnet as Wordsworth's "Milton, thou shouldst be living at this hour," or the dedicatory poem appended to Tennyson's "Idylls," which contains a memorable passage about the retention of the Colonies—

So loyal is too costly! friends—your love
Is but a burthen; loose the bond, and go.
Is this the tone of Empire? here the faith
That made us rulers? this, indeed, her voice
And meaning, whom the roar of Hougomont
Left mightiest of all peoples under heaven?
What shock has fool'd her since, that she should speak
So feebly? wealthier—wealthier—hour by hour!
The voice of Britain, or a sinking land,
Some third-rate isle half-lost among her seas?

or again, such a majestic simile as that in Matthew Arnold's "Heine's Grave."

Yes, we arraign her, but she
The weary Titan! with deaf
Ears, and labor-dimmed eyes,
Regarding neither to right
Nor left, goes passively by,
Staggering on to her goal;
Bearing on shoulders immense
Atlantean, the load
Well-nigh not to be borne
Of the too vast orb of her fate.

Among modern poems which strike this high reflective note are two school odes, one by Mr. Bridges about Eton, printed in his "Shorter Poems," and one by Mr. Newbolt called "Clifton Chapel."—Canon Beeching, in Provincial Letters."

Big Derby Sweepstake.

This year the great Calcutta Turf Club sweepstake on the Derby was worth £66,666, no less than £16,666 more than the previous best attained last year. On that occasion Captain H. T. Raban, of the Indian army, drew Lemberg, drawing ticket No. 99,211, for which he paid 14 shillings. Within half an hour of his being advised by cable that he had drawn the favorite he had negotiated with a London syndicate, who purchased a half share in the lucky ticket for £7,500. Captain Raban won £33,000 in all.

Nearly a quarter of a million tickets are bought annually in this, the greatest sweepstake in the world. The tickets, which cost 14s. each, are keenly competed for. Sometimes syndicates buy up thousands, and pool the result. Of the total amount subscribed the chance of the winner takes 40 per cent., the second 20 per cent., and the third 10 per cent. The other starters divide 10 per cent. between them, while a further 10 per cent. goes to the drawers of non-starters left in the race at the time the sweep closes. A final 10 per cent. goes to defray expenses. Needless to say, romance has abounded in the history of the sweep, which originated as a small private affair at the Calcutta Turf Club.

One year the six-year-old daughter of a native signalman won £30,000. Though the tickets are sent to the other ends of the earth, India has been curiously favored. A Madras bank clerk drew Signorinetta, while Orby fell to a merchant officer on an Indian liner, and £30,000 a few years previously to an Indian engine-driver. Strange indeed! Alone of Londoners, a valet at a West-End club drew Minoru, and sold half his ticket for £6,000.

King's Wagon Journey.

King Lewanika, the paramount chief of Barotseland, who is the donor of a Sitatunga deer to the King's South African collection of animals in London, was present at the last coronation and the inconveniences which he underwent in passing through South African territories on that occasion left a very bad impression upon his mind.

No fewer than five weeks were occupied in making the journey by ox-wagon to the Zambesi River, and the much-traveled king, who during his stay in London had been accommodated with every comfort at a well-known hotel in the West End, was then 300 miles from his capital and home.

His Majesty was accompanied by Col. Colin Harding, the commandant of the Barotseland Police, who has had the unique experience of having been attacked at one and the same time by nine lions, some of which he killed. When Lord Selborne visited the King at Livingstone his lordship was presented with a tame hippopotamus, and subsequently a big-game drive was arranged in his honor. During his visit to London King Lewanika did most of the sights of the metropolis.

Citizens "Dunted."

The ancient ceremony of riding the bounds at Newbiggin, Northumberland, England, was followed by the "dunting" of two new freeholders at the historical "dunting" stone on the moor. For the first time in living memory one of the recruits was a lady. They were seized by stalwart men and carried face uppermost to the stone, and "dunted" — gently struck against the stone—three times. The ordeal is peculiar, and not dignified. Subsequently the recruits, according to custom, scattered their bounty among an interested and cheering crowd of onlookers.

Almost Went Over the Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 9.—Frank Baker of Philadelphia lost his hat over the falls yesterday and almost followed his headpiece over the cataract. When the hat blew into the river above the falls, Baker waded in after it. He lost his footing in the swift current, but was hauled ashore before caught in the grip of the water.

Birds' Nest Soup.

The birds' nests used for soups are little gelatinous things made up principally from the saliva of tiny birds of China.

Hoboken.

Hoboken comes from the Indian word hobocan, meaning "tobacco pipe."

There's great satisfaction in making beds and bedding of such fine quality as to win compliments like this:

TORRENTS OF LAVA

BURNING FRUIT GROVES

Catania City, Sept. 15.—The 20,000 citizens of Castiglione and Francavilla turned their backs on their homes yesterday, fleeing before the advancing flood of lava from Mt. Etna. Both towns are threatened with destruction.

The discharge from the crater and new fissures increases in volume. The main stream, pouring down the northeastern side of the volcano, has made its way sluggishly about and over the foot hills toward the base, crossed the railway and invaded the valley of the Alcantara.

To-day the front, fifty feet high and a third of a mile wide, broke over a long declivity, and gathering velocity, forced the peasant dwellers into its path to make a hurried retreat. It spread throughout and burned the orange and lemon groves, and engulfing many springs in the neighborhood, cut off the water supply of several villages.

When the stream was within three miles of Castiglione and Francavilla the people collected their portable property and with their farm animals and household pets, made for the higher places.

Taft on Tour.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 15.—President Taft leaves this evening for a speaking tour, during which he will cover 13,000 miles. The "swing" beginning in Boston will take him to twenty-four states and wind up in Washington on November 1. In eighteen of the states the President has addresses scheduled either at banquets or in halls and in the others he will address crowds from the rear platform of his car.

While Mr. Taft plans to avoid the more contentious political questions, and treat of reciprocity, the arbitration treaties, marriage and divorce, conservation, financial reform, the Panama Canal, reform in judicial procedure, it is likely that the exigencies of the situation will force him to devote considerable time to the tariff question.

Sold Horses, But Kept Woman.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—Not content with having stolen a team of horses from a man named Mitchell at White River, Vermont, Frank Dickey, so say the police, eloped with the man's wife and came to Montreal with her after disposing of the horses in the United States before his departure.

He was living in the city with her when word was sent from White River, saying that he was believed to have come here and asking that he be arrested and held for extradition. He was located by Detective Cowen on Wednesday and having waived extradition, leaves under escort for Vermont some time to-day.

Chicago Labor Peace Pact.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—An agreement reached Wednesday night between rival factions in the plumbing and steamfitting will bring to an end a strike called against each other, which has prevailed nearly a year, has cost the building industries of this city millions of dollars, has entailed the murder of at least three men, the kidnapping or assassination of a fourth and the beating and maiming of more than 100 others.

The A. F. of L. convention, to be held at Atlanta, Ga., will straighten things out.

Farewell to Grey.

Ottawa, Sept. 15.—The Canadian Club of Ottawa will tender Earl Grey a farewell banquet on Sept. 27 in the Parliamentary restaurant.

It is expected that the function will be attended by a majority of the men prominent in the public life of the Dominion.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—The railways reported 62 carloads, consisting of 651 cattle, 2360 hogs, 1231 sheep and lambs and 129 calves.

Butchers.

Geo. Rowntree bought for the Harris Abattoir Co.: 340 cattle, $5.40 to $6.50 for steers and heifers; cows at $3 to $5; bulls, $3.10 to $5; canners, $1.40 to $2.50; 2 loads of heavy cattle of very choice quality at $6.80.

Stockers and Feeders.

Steers, 800 to 900 lbs., sold at $4.50 to $4.75; stockers, 550 to 750 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.60.

Milkers and Springers.

Trade in milkers and springers was slow at $45 to $63 each.

Veal Calves.

The calf market was steady at $4 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Lambs were still lower at $5 to $5.50 per cwt.; sheep, ewes, $3.50 to $4, for light, and $2.50 to $3.25 for rams and heavy ewes.

Hogs.

Selects fed and watered, $7.40 and $7.10 f.o.b. cars.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Beeves—Receipts 1,378. Nothing doing. Feeling steady.

Calves—Receipts 357. Market firm. Veals, $7 to $10.25; grassers, $3.50 to $5; Indiana calves, $5 to $7.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 5,800 head. Sheep steady. Lambs dull and weak. Sheep, $3.50 to $4; lambs, $6.50 to $6.85.

Hogs—Receipts 516 head. Market weak to lower. State and Pennsylvania hogs, $7.50 to $7.75.

He Has An Alibi.

St. Catharines, Sept. 15.—Last Thursday night Walter Leyden's barn in Louth Township was burned, and John Stanton, a well-known resident here, was arrested, because several witnesses swore they saw him in the neighborhood. Mrs. Leyden is his sister. Stanton, being unable to get $4,000 bail, was kept in jail.

Yesterday he had his preliminary trial. He declared he was in Toronto Thursday night, and a well-known citizen says he came home on the boat with him Friday evening.

Monday night another barn was set on fire in Louth Township, near Mr. Leyden's farm. Stanton is a quiet man, over 60 years of age.

HELP FOR CHENTU

ARE AT CHUNG KING

Peking, Sept. 15.—Unpublished edicts order a large force of Wu-Chang troops to leave immediately by the quickest route for Sze-Chuan and Tuan-Fang, director-general of the Hankow-Sze-Chuan Railway, who is expected at I-Chang to-day, to hasten the movement of the troop train. The arrested ringleaders of the rebellion include the president and vice-president of the Sze-Chuan Provincial Assembly. The latter was arrested at Hankow, whither it is believed he had journeyed with the intention of fomenting an agitation in Hupeh Province.

The relief force from Wu-Chang will take four weeks at the best to reach Chengtu and the full gravity of the situation in the capital of Sze-Chuan Province is now realized.

Canadians Safe.

Chung-King, Sept. 15.—The revolution is fast gaining ground. It is believed that no food has entered Chengtu for many days, and probably already the besieged are on short rations. Heavy firing is reported from that quarter between the loyal garrison and the rebels, among whom there are probably many soldiers.

Among the missionaries who have strayed here in safety are the Canadians stationed at Lu Chow, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. P. Jeliffe, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ferguson and E. R. Brecken. Lu Chow is about 150 miles to the southeast of Chengtu.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Thieves entered F. C. McNally's drug store at Chippawa and obtained $80 from the till. They gain entrance by breaking a rear window.

In a few days there will arrive at the R.C.H.A. bararcks at Kingston several thirteen-pound hydraulic buffer rapid firing guns to replace the old 12-pounders now in use.

The financial affairs of Reginald H. Ward, who at one time in the role of a "copper king" figured prominently in London, were yesterday placed in the hands of an official receiver in bankruptcy.

James J. Ward, the cross-continent flyer who left New York for San Francisco on Wednesday, reached Calliooon, N.Y., a few miles from Susquehanna, Pa., at 4.35 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The certificate of Captain Sears of the steamer Iroquois, which was wrecked off Victoria, B.C., with the loss of twenty lives, has been cancelled. The mate and engineer's certificates are suspended.

Frank Paine, an aviator from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was fatally injured at 5.30 yesterday in making a flight from the Orleans County fair grounds at Albion, N.Y. Five thousand persons witnessed the accident.

Rushing Away From the U. S.

New York, Sept. 15.—Steamship men, and those who study industrial conditions, are watching with interest the outgoing tide of steerage passengers. Already the number for the year exceeds by 75,000 the number for 1910. During the next three months the tide will be swelled by the great army of laborers who return each year to their homes in Southern Europe to await again the coming of warm weather.

No good reason has yet been assigned for the present extensive movement in the steerage.

Not since 1908 have so many aliens departed from the port in the same time. In that year conditions were unusual, for it was a period of unrest in the financial world.

Steamship men believe that the movement must forecast a reduction of labor by some of the great employers.

Don't Want Girls to Leave.

Basse-Terre, Guadeloupe, Sept. 15.—The emigration of natives to be employed as servants in Canada has aroused popular indignation. Yesterday the commissary of police prevented the embarkment of six girls, who were under age. The steamer Korona Wednesday night refused to take on board seventeen other servants engaged for Canadian points.

A Youthful Burglar.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—Emile Harpin, the 19-year-old lad, who was arrested by Detectives Mercier and Fafard, charged with breaking into twenty residences, pleaded guilty to all the charges, and stated that he had no accomplices. Detective Mercier deposed that when he arrested the lad, he had 200 keys in his pocket, and when he searched his room he found $2,000 worth of jewelry. He will be sentenced by Judge Choquet on Monday.

Desperado at Bay.

Snowflake, Ont., Sept. 15.—At bay in the forests along the international border, William Henry Wilson, the kidnapper of Glads Price, shot one of his pursuers, William Adams, proprietor of the Western Hotel at Snowflake, and after firing repeatedly with an automatic gun, again escaped the posse Wednesday night.

Ottawa Citizen's Objection.

Ottawa, Sept. 15.—The Citizen yesterday editorially object to having the private affairs of the Wm. Davies Co., of Toronto, brought into a political campaign.

Mothers of to-day are taking the right stand in regard to "sweets" for children. They use discrimination. They know that "sweets" like are foods in the best sense of the word.

There is nutriment—solid, substantial flesh-and-strength-forming substance—in Cowan's Maple Buds, just as there is in milk and brown bread. When the children beg for "sweets," buy them yourself—get Cowan's Maple Buds—then you can be sure that what they eat for pleasure is actually helping to build up and strengthen their little bodies.

Cowan's Maple Buds are among the good things that are good for us all. 103

GOOD FOR MANUFACTURER

A. J. H. Eckardt Says Reciprocity Will Increase the Purchasing Power of the Community

A. J. H. Eckardt, a Toronto manufacturer, speaking in Centre York, said he had no fear as a manufacturer of the "thin end of the wedge." Access to the open markets of the United States meant increased profits for the farmer and producer, and greater prosperity for every class. The manufacturers must benefit through the additional buying power of the community. Reciprocity in natural products meant a new era of prosperity for Canada. He spoke not as a British-born but as a Canadian of seven generations of Canadians, and born within twelve miles of the place where he spoke. If the proposed measure was so bad, what were they moving Heaven and earth to block it and defeat it? Why not allow it to pass and in twelve months, when the Liberal Government appealed to the country, the ill effects of the measure would be manifes, and they would be defeated? Mr. Borden knew this could not be the result, but that a two years' trial would demonstrate to every class of the community the value of reciprocity. He was afraid to let the people try it.

F. B. CARVELL
Liberal Candidate in Carleton, N.B.

MANUFACTURER'S ADVICE

Unwise, Says Mr. Waterous, to Continue Bitter Opposition to Reciprocity

Mr. Charles Waterous, ex-Mayor of Brantford, and head of the Waterous Engine Works Co., speaking of the reciprocity agreement, gives the following advice to his fellow manufacturers:

"The agreement as arranged is so overwhelmingly agricultural in its clauses that it should grant a considerable measure of relief from the complaint we have so long heard from the farmers as to their belief in the unfair exaction of the tariff on their industry, and touches so lightly the business man and manufacturer that for the business man and manufacturer to continue a bitter opposition to its enactment is, I am convinced, a mistake. If this measure is defeated I believe the agitation will not cease until a very much wider measure, and one much more fraught with danger to Canada's interests than the present one, will be proposed. With this present agreement adopted, the businessman and the manufacturer can urge the strong argument that the adoption of this measure should be accepted by the farmer as going far enogh, and can oppose any extension with much more force than they can if this present agreement be not accepted. A considerable measure of protection to the manufacturing industries of this country is, I believe, absolutely essential. Both of the great parties have recognized this, and I believe will continue to do so."

HON. A. C. RUTHERFORD

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANT

Hiss succeeded hiss. Boo succeeded boo. The audience showered their hostile verdict at the stage in the form of such useful commodities as carrots, eggs, and onions.

They called for the author. But he did not appear. He stood shaking in the wings, watching the whizzing vegetables with tearful eyes.

"Listen to them now!" he said, as a loud roar arose, intermingled with shrill whistling and cat-calls. He turned to the manager, threw up his hands despairingly, and exclaimed: "You give them tragedy, and they want comedy. You give them comedy, and they want tragedy. It's hard to find out what they do want."

"On the contrary, it's painfully easy," replied the manager. "They want their money back!"

GAIN IN BUYING

Purchases on Which Farmers Will Save Money

With reciprocity in operation Canadian farmers will be especially benefitted in their buying, as well as in their selling. The duty on many articles, which farmers import from the United States, will be reduced.

The tax on wagons will be cut from 35 per cent. to 22½ per cent.

On plows, from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent.

On tooth and disc harrows, from 20 per cent to 15 per cent.

On binders, from 17½ per cent. to 15 per cent.

On drills and planters, from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent.

On mowers, from 17½ per cent. to 15 per cent.

On horse rakes, from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent.

On cultivators, from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent.

On threshing machines, from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent.

On windstackers, baggers, etc., from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent.

On hay loaders, 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

On potato diggers, 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

Fodder and feed cutters, 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

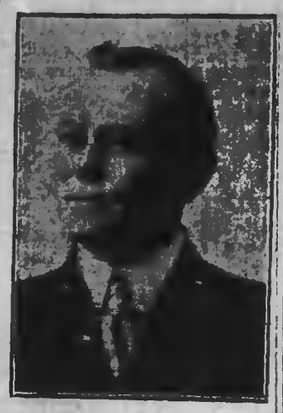
Grain crushers, 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

Fanning mills, 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

Hay tedders, 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

Field rollers, 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

Bells and gongs, 30 per cent. to 27½ per cent.



A. W. RUTAN
Liberal Candidate in Prince Albert, Sask.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

What the Agreement Will Do for the Home

Let us just see what the Reciprocity agreement will do for the housewife.

It will place poultry on the free list, thereby reducing the duty by 20 per cent.

It will reduce the price of fresh vegetables by 30 per cent. by the placing of them on the free list.

It will abolish the duties which we now have to pay of 40 cents a barrel on apples, of 50 cents a bushel upon pears, of $1 a 100 pounds on peaches, of 2 cents a pound on grapes, and of 35 per cent. on all other edible fruits.

There are seasons of the year when it is impossible to get eggs in Canada. Will it not be a benefit at such times to have the duty of 3 cents a dozen taken off?

Fish of all kinds are to be put on the free list such as oysters, upon which we now pay a duty of 10 cents a gallon, and fresh lobsters which are now dutiable at 25 per cent.

Bacon and hams are reduced from 3c. per lb. to 1¼c. Canned meats and poultry from 27½ per cent. to 20 per cent. Lard from 3c. to 1¼c. Canned vegetables from 1½c. to 1¼c. Cereal foods from 25 per cent. to 17½ per cent.

Surely these reductions must be of benefit to the consumer and must give the housewife more money to spend.

Now is the Time

"The one thing to which I give my fullest accord," said Dr. J. A. Macdonald, "is this: that if we in Canada would make this Dominion a power for good in the life and history of the Empire, it is in doing this very thing we have now the opportunity to do."

JAPANESE COMMANDMENTS

A Salutary and Natural Code of the Orientals

There can be no doubt that the majority of these Japanese rules are nearer scientific exactitude than the rules of Moses or the ordinary practice of modern English life. Here are the Japanese commandments:

(1) Spend as much time as possible in the open air.
(2) Never eat more than once a day.
(3) Take a very hot bath daily.
(4) Wear rough warm clothes.
(5) Early to bed and early to rise.
(6) Sleep at least six hours each night and at most seven and a half in a dark room with open windows.
(7) Rest on the seventh day, and during that day do not read or write.
(8) Avoid every expression of anger; never exercise the brain too much or too long.
(9) Marry early; widows and widowers should re-marry as soon as possible.
(10) Drink coffee and tea in the strictest moderation; do not smoke at all; and never touch alcohol in any form.
(11) Avoid hot rooms, and, indeed, all rooms heated artificially.
(12) In order to strengthen such organs as may be weakened by age or ease, nourish yourself on the corresponding organs of animals.

APRIL FOOLS

Two students from an American college were strolling by the side of a stream, when one of them caught the gleam of a small metal box lying partly concealed under a jagged stone close to the bank. Their curiosity being aroused as to its contents, they decided to investigate.

The stream was two or three feet deep, the stone proved to be heavier than its appearance indicated, and the box was partly buried in gravel, so that considerable puffing, splashing and damage to clothing took place before the prize was landed. Opening it after considerable trouble, they found within a flat piece of wood, at which they gazed in solemn silence.

"If my reckoning is correct," remarked one of them at last, "this is the thirty-second of March."

"This is undoubtedly the day after the last day of March, Billy," responded the other, gravely.

The wood within the metal box was thus inscribed: "Have the kindness to replace me, without needless delay in the nice, shiny metal box, and then carefully wedge us back under the big rock, so that we can catch the eye of the next April fool that comes along."

The destruction of the house fly is a public duty. Almost every American State Board of Health is carrying on a crusade against him.

His filthy origin and habits, and the fact that his body is generally laden with disease-producing germs, makes him one of the greatest enemies of the human race.

If the housekeepers of Canada will use persistently, this peril would be tremendously reduced.

WILSON'S FLY PADS

WHEN WOMEN RULE

At That Time Order and Iron Discipline Will Prevail

A Parisian paper sets forth what we may expect when the world in the near future comes under the maternal rule of women. The matriarchal system, which we are told by the enthusiastic female or male writer is bound to prevail in human society soon, will be largely modelled upon the constitution of a beehive. Government will be in the hands of "women," who will have become, to all intents and purposes, neuters. Women will make and apply the laws, will hold all public offices and leading professions, and every now and then all the men, over and above a strict needful minimum, will be painlessly put out of the world. The author looks forward enthusiastically to the reign of a gynecocracy. "Order and iron discipline will prevail, for woman is naturally a good manager." The superfluous man may howl for mercy, but the relenting conference will destroy them by "the new extraordinary methods which will have been then invented." The prophet rejoices to think that when gynecocracy reigns "the savage and imbecile anarchy in which masculine government helplessly wallows will be promptly exterpated."

LONG HONEYMOON WALK

From Madrid to Saragossa, 210 Miles, in Ten Days

A row, made by an engaged couple at a time when, owing to unfortunate circumstances, their wedding day seemed likely to be indefinitely postponed, has led to a curious honeymoon. The lovers concerned, a well-known Spanish barrister and a young lady belonging to the best society, depressed by despair, agreed that if ever fortune favored them and their happiness culminated in marriage, they would walk together from Madrid to the shrine of the patron saint of Saragossa. Quite recently, having surmounted a succession of tribulations, they were united at the altar, and as a honeymoon, the newly-wedded couple set off on foot from Madrid to Saragossa, covering the distance of over 210 miles in ten days. The return journey, however, was made in the saloon of an express train.

RECORD BY BEES

Remarkable Harvest of Honey by One Hive in Devon

What is believed to be a world's record has been created by a hive of bees on the farm of Mr. J. Selley, at Cadeleigh, Devon. No less than 117 pounds of honey have been taken from the hive, and had there been twenty other hives there they would all have done as well, says the expert who removed the honey. The whole of the honey was gathered from white clover, and is of the best quality.

Vigorous at 83

It is most gratifying to receive such letters as one here reproduced from Mr. L. F. Andrews, who is eighty-three years of age and still a hale, hearty man, full of vigor and in possession of all his faculties.

"Allow me to say that I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for some time as a tonic stimulant, and relief to the exhaustion and debility consequent of my age (83) and find it palatable, satisfactory in therapeutic effect and free from the injurious by-products found in most, if not all other whiskies. I must say it is gratifying to obtain a preparation reliable and conforming to the declaration of its purity attached to each bottle."—L. F. Andrews, 834 W. 5th St Des Moines, Ia.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Many men and women who have passed the fourscore mark tell the same story as Mr. Andrews about what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done toward renewing their youth and keeping them vigorous, hale and hearty and in possession of all their faculties. As a leading doctor says, the secret of the whole thing is that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, if taken as prescribed, assists in driving out all disease germs, invigorates the brain, enriches the blood, quickens the circulation, brings restful sleep and prevents decay and old age.

All liquor dealers, or direct, $1.25 a large bottle. Medical booklet and doctor's advice sent free on request.

AVIATOR'S TEST

Handed in an Exact Report on the Location of Batteries

Two military aviators, Captain Bellenger and Lieutenant Chevreau, have been subjected to a peculiar test at Chalons. They were told to reconnoitre the position of eleven batteries of artillery between Chalons and Vitry le Francois. Their fellow-officers tried to convince them that the batteries were all concentrated at a certain point, and kept the aviators at the barracks for several hours while six of the batteries were hurried away to a place five miles from the camp, and the other five were set up in another direction. The two aviators were told to find where the batteries had been concentrated, but they were not caught by the trap. They soon found the first five batteries, but, not discovering the others in the neighborhood, they circled round, and in ten minutes detected the position of the six others, which, it was supposed, had been well concealed. They were complimented on their success when they handed in an exact report, with a sketch of the respective positions.

NEAR PREMATURE BURIAL

Remarkable Case of a Nun Who Was in a Comatose Condition

Particulars of an extraordinary case which almost amounts to premature burial, comes from Palermo. The officials at the local cemetery were informed that a nun, named Serafina Loverde, aged 90, had died during the night at the Giudina Convent, and undertakers were immediately sent to make the funeral arrangements. A doctor left at the same time for the convent to verify the death and prepare the usual formal certificate. The surprise of the nuns knew no bounds, however, when the doctor, after a close examination, declared that the lady was merely in a comatose state, probably as the result of a cataleptic seizure, and ordered the "corpse" to be instantly removed from the Chapelle Ardente. Of course, all the preparations for the funeral were speedily cancelled, and with suitable medical treatment the nun was soon restored to her normal condition.

FOUND A HUMAN HAND

Much excitement has been occasioned in Venice over the recent discovery of a human hand during dredging operations in the Giudecca Canal. Experts declared that the hand, which was found hermetically sealed in a wooden box, belongned to a female child 8 or 10 years old. The police, convinced that they had to do with a foul crime, were busy trying to trace the murderous mutilator, when the renowned Oriental painter, Signor Mainella, who has resided many years in the Venetian lagoons, narrated how a wealthy Egyptian family, wishing to give him a souvenir of his sojourn in their native land, presented him with what they described as the mumified hand of an Egyptian princess who had lived 6,000 years ago. Signor Mainella preserved the relic religiously for a decade or more, when, observing that he hand showed signs of decomposition, he instructed his valet to nail it securely in a box and throw it into the canal, where it has recently turned up again.

MANUEL'S HOPES

The Ex-King is Said to Expect to Return to Portugal

The recent seizure of a large quantity of guns and ammunition by the Republican forces on the Portuguese frontier is sufficient proof of the fact that somebody is financing on a large scale a proposed royalist uprising. "King" Manuel, who is still living in England, is in daily conference with important looking Portuguese and men of finance. From a German source comes the following alleged extract from a letter written by King Manuel to a well-known financier, for the authenticity of which the newspaper vouches: "It would be really childish precisely at the present moment to abandon hope that all will soon change for the good. You see the success of my brave friends, which increases in number from day to day. Moreover, all Portugal, as I am continually assured, is tired of the rule of the revolutionaries. Formerly I was always called even in the Royalist papers, the 'ex-King.' Now all of them, even the Socialists, call me 'King Manuel.' Those who still adhere to the regime of the Republicans simply do so because it is the regime. The present Government has practically no really honest and self-sacrificing friends among the people. No nation is in its whole nature so adapted for monarchical rule as mine. This is not to be undervalued."

LABOR IN GERMANY

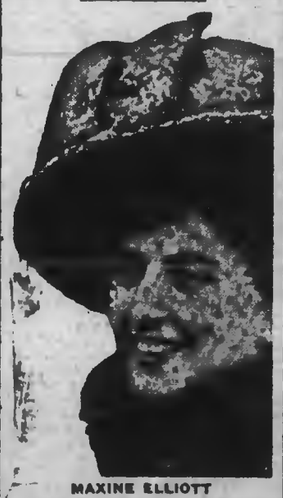
The Authorities See Signs of a General Uprising

The German authorities are fearing a general labor uprising all over the country, which would be very difficult to deal with. Signs of unrest are not lacking anywhere in the great industrial centres where wages have not kept step with the rapid advance in the prices of the necessities of life. In the metal trades throughout Prussia, Saxony, Bavaria, and Wurtemberg, many thousands of men are either on strike or locked out, and there is also serious unrest among the employes of the Berlin street car system, which threatens to culminate in a complete cessation of work unless their demands are satisfied.

MARRIAGES OF ROYALTY

In Some Cases It is Necessary to Give Cupid Assistance

Recently Princess Louise, the Kaiser's only daughter, was reported to be as good as engaged to the heir to the throne of Mecklenburg-Strelitz. The story was started by a Munich artist who was employed by the Grand Duke to make plans for new decorations for the palace at Strelitz; but the official press promptly denied it. That match would not be a very suitable one, for Prince Adolf Friederich is ten years the Princess's senior. It would not be impossible for the Princess to marry someone who never can succeed to a throne, only one Hohenzollern Princess has ever done so—Prince Anton Radziwill married a Hohenzollern, although he had no throne. The family rule of the Hohenzollerns runs: "No daughter of a Hohenzollern shall contract an alliance which shall appear likely to discredit the house or do injury to the kingdom." This simply bars misalliances such as Princess Amalie, the sister of Frederick the Great, who desired to contract with Baron Trenck. Of Emperor William's own marriage, Bismarck said: "Thank goodness, we shall not have to assist Cupid this time!"



MAXINE ELLIOTT

That mild malady, the mania of "retirement," that inevitably attacks those in professional life some three to a dozen times during their careers, has found a fresh victim in Maxine Elliott, whose stage triumphs are familiar to the theatre patrons of two continents. The famous actress announced that all rumors of her return to the footlights were groundless and that "as time passes my disinclination to a theatrical career increases. I shall probably never return to the stage." This statement was in answer to persistent rumors set afoot by the actress's London admirers that she would soon close with some of the attractive offers made to her.

WON BY A WOMAN

First Prize for Designing a Block of Buildings

The first prize in the competition for designing a big block of buildings at Christiania has been won by Miss Lilla Hansen, who has been made a member of the Architects' Society. Costing 20 large and small dwellings, the building is of four stories. Miss Hansen is said to be the first woman who has acted as architect for a building of such dimensions. A feature of the dwellings is the labor-saving contrivances they contain.

FALLING OFF

From Farm and Dairy.

Excessively hot weather and dry pastures have resulted in a serious falling off in the milk flow throughout Ontario, and the make of cheese is much less than at this time last year. Only a few favored sections in Eastern Ontario report a make as good as last year, and in many cases the decrease amounts to as much as 50 per cent. In the early part of the season the make was well up to last year, cows had been wintered well and pastures were good. Drought in June and July started the decline, and there is little chance of any further improvement this year.

LESS MILK FROM MORE COWS

The falling off in the milk flow was, of course, the largest factor in decreasing the make of cheese. One factory in Oxford county is receiving less milk than last year, and there are 75 more cows being milked by the patrons. There are, however, other factors that have contributed to the decreased make, the control of which the dairyman has entirely within his own hands. The first of these is the poor condition of the milk delivered. True, the weather has been hot, but even then there are those who, by taking proper precautions, always deliver good milk. What one can do all can do. Another factor is the lower test of the milk for butter fat. Until milk is paid for by fat content dairymen have no inducement to breed for cows that produce high testing milk, and, as a result, the quality of the milk delivered at factories has been steadily declining.

A HIGHER PRICE

Dairymen will be partly compensated for the smallness of the milk flow by the higher prices they are receiving for their cheese, as compared with last year. The price runs a little over 13 cts a pound, while last year at this time it was 10½ to 11 cts. A shortage in the home production of cheese in England accounts very largely for the favorable prices on this side. The reports of some of our correspondents follow:

MORE CHEESE

"We have made more cheese than last year, and the quality of milk has been the same."—T. J. Miller, Grenville Co.

"Our make of cheese is less than half of what it was at this time last year."—T. W. Phillips, Northumberland Co.

"Our make to date is larger than last year, but prospects are for a smaller make the rest of the season. The quality is poor and the average [illegible] of cheese will be higher."—[illegible]horne, Peterboro Co.

ABOUT THE SAME

"The quality of the milk has not been as good as last year; the make is about the same."—C. Jenkins, Oxford Co.

"The make of cheese is considerably lower than last year, and we have 75 more cows."—J. H. Herron, Oxford Co.

The quality of milk received during June and July was not nearly so rich, nor kept in as good condition as last year. Our make is about the same.—A. W. Darroch, Oxford Co., Ont.

"We are two cheese below last year at this date, but have 30 or 40 cows less."—J. Brown, Norfolk Co.

"In the early part of the season we made more cheese than last year, but at the present time are making about the same amount. The quality of milk is all that could be desired."—Albert G. Wight, Lambton Co.

30 TONS LESS

"We will have 30 tons of cheese less than last year. Our make at present is one-third off, and the quality of the milk is poor."—G. B. Brodie, Middlesex Co.

"The make of cheese is one-fourth less than last year."—W. S. Stocks, Perth Co.

The make of cheese at present is one-third less than last year, and indications point to a poor fall make.—Clarence Donnelly, Middlesex Co.

"We have made 30 cheese less than last year. The quality of milk could be improved."—T. J. McKinney, Bruce Co.

WINTER WHEAT.

From Farm and Dairy.

Winter wheat has been seeded after corn with good success by Mr. E. Terrill, of Northumberland Co., Ont. Mr. Terrill's method is to plant an early maturing variety of ensilage corn, getting it in early, and when the crop is off in the fall, seeding to wheat. Last season was the first year that Mr. Terrill has followed this plan, and in this, his first season, it has given good success.

Speaking of this method of seeding wheat recently to an editor of Farm and Dairy, Mr. Terrill said: "I planted my corn as early in the spring as possible, using an early maturing variety. The corn was given good cultivation throughout the summer, and was all cleared off and in the silo by the last of September. The wheat was then seeded with a disc drill, without any additional cultivation being given. We seeded three pecks of seed to the acre one way, and then crossed at right angles, seeding three pecks more. This double seeding was necessary, as our corn crop last year was in the young orchard, and we could not have seeded between the trees going only one way. In an open field a double seeding would not be necessary.

SEEDS WITH DISC DRILL

"The disc drill is to be preferred to the hoe drill for seeding wheat in this manner, in that it gives the land more work and the discs roll over weeds, pumpkin vines, etc., which would be carried along in front of a hoe drill."

This wheat, when seen by an editor of Farm and Dairy last May, had wintered nicely and was making a good start. The crop was small and the wheat did not look thick on the ground, but on examination it was found that there were sufficient plants to make a good stand. Writing to Farm and Dairy concerning this experiment under date of August 17th, Mr. Terrill stated: "We have this wheat harvested, but it is not yet threshed. The stand at harvest was equal to that sown in the usual way, of which latter I had 14 acres.

"None of the fall wheat in this district is an average crop, so the field of grain will not be an indication of the value of this method of seeding wheat, except in so far as it compares favorably with the yield of wheat as sown in the usual manner. We have this year nine acres of silo corn, and so pleased are we with the result of our first experiment with wheat on corn land that we intend seeding this nine acres to fall wheat."

DOMINION TRADES CONGRESS STRONG FOR RECIPROCITY

The executive does not hesitate to say that it believes that the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United Sates is in the interests of the Canadian people. If other proof of this were wanting, the fact that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association is against, would be sufficient to prove it must be of some value to the workers. This organization has never tired of proclaiming its love for "free" labour, because that helps its pocket. Reciprocity has long been recognized in the International Trade union movement and we see no danger to anything but the pockets of a few interested capitalists in permitting the people of the two countries to swap knives if they see fit to do so, without the intervention of a horde of Customs officials. The trade union movement is better and stronger because of the freedom it enjoys in the exhange of benefits.

ABOUT SHOES

From Farm and Dairy.

When buying shoes insist on being fitted. Get a shoe that is long and narrow and in most cases it will be more comfortable than a short, wide shoe, and will look much better.

Choose good leather and a firm sole. Then see that when the shoe is laced it fits tightly around the instep, supporting the arch of the foot.

Moderately high heels are not injurious and give one much better poise than a low, flat heel.

Patent leather shoes have the advantage of not needing polishing, but can be much benefited by being rubbed over with vaseline occasionally. One does not need to carry shoe polish when travelling if they have a little jar of vaseline and a bit of soft rag, as the vaseline improves any kind of leather, even handbags and suit cases. It is economy to buy good shoes and keep them in good condition. Keep the heels levelled up. Wear stockings that are plenty long and when buying them allow for shrinking. Short stockings and short shoes cause irritating bunions and corns and make one's life miserable. If you have corns and bunions and your feet trouble you bathe your feet often and give them a good, vigorous rubbing upwards. Put a bit of soft cotton wool between the toes and over the bunion after rubbing with vaseline. A bit of soft cotton under the corner of an ingrowing nail relieves it.

If your feet do not improve with this treatment, make up your mind that you have the gout and give up high living. Cut out the rich desserts and cut down the sugars and starches. Drink plenty of water and lemon juice and take a dose of good old-fashioned Epsom Salts or Castor Oil.—T. N.

A FEW HINTS

From Farm and Dairy.

Soft water, for use in laundry work, saves soap, clothing, time, energy and money.

Buying soap by the box is more economical than buying it by the quarter's worth.

Removing the soap from the box, and piling it in such a way that it will dry, causes it to wash away less rapidly, and therefore to last longer, than if not dried.

Having a firm, substantial washbench, of a height suited to the worker, so constructed as to hold the tubs securely in position, saves time and energy.

A good stationary wringer, or one which is so made as to be clamped securely to the tub, is a necessity. When through using the wringer, loosen the screws to relieve the pressure on the rubber rollers; wash clean, wipe dry and put it away where it will keep clean until needed. Occasionally cleaning the wringer with kerosene, and then washing with soapsuds, rinsing and drying, tends to keep it in good condition.

The ironing-table should be of a height suited to the ironer; not low enough to cause the worker to stand in a stooped position, nor so high as to necessitate the lifting of the shoulders while ironing.

The ironing-pad and sheet should be perfectly smooth, and securely fastened to the table, if rapid, efficient work is to be done.

Irons should be of medium weight, smooth and clean. When through using the irons, remove them from the stove and set them on end in a dry place to cool. When they are cool, see that they are clean before putting them away. Irons that are left on the stove day after day are liable to be rough, dirty and unfit for use.

A slip for the ironing holder, made of some coarse white material, is convenient and desirable, because it can be so easily laundered.

Rub the iron, each time it is taken from the stove, on a piece of clean paper or cloth, before using, to prevent the possibility of soiling or scorching the article to be ironed.

A clothes-pin bag, which can be tied about the waist when hanging out or taking in the wash, saves many steps and keeps the clothes-pins clean.

A rope clothes-line should be taken down when not in use, where it will be protected from dust and be handy when wanted.—Mary L. Bull.

WHAT HE THOUGHT

A man of a sporting type was travelling by rail when he had as fellow travellers for some distance a couple of farmers recently out. The sporting man presently began talking about dogs, a subject that did not interest the agriculturists very deeply.

"I have a dog with a wonderfully keen scent," he said; "and just permit me to tell you that one day after I left home he broke his chain, and, although I had been away for hours, he tracked me and found me merely by scent. What do you think of that?"

"I think," replied the burlier of the twain, with a yawn, "ye ocht tae tak' a bath!"

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 15 1911

LARGE CROWD IN ATTENDANCE AT PETERBOROUGH'S BIG EXHIBITION

In Spite of the Bad Weather This Morning, Attendance This Afternoon is Good and Directors Are Optimistic.

MANY ATTRACTIONS

Although the weather was very dark and threatening and altogether unpromising, everything was hurry and bustle at the Exhibition grounds this morning. The exhibits are the largest and best in the history of the event; the showing in all line being remarkably good, especially is this true of the poultry display, the splendid showing of last year being far eclipsed.

Fortunately this afternoon the weather man relented. Patches of blue sky made their appearance, and the sun came out and lent its brilliancy to the scene, with the result that the attendance prospects at once grew brighter. Many visitors are in town in spite of the unfavourable morning and the manner in which the crowd flocked down to the grounds, from shortly after 12 o'clock, brought a smile to the faces of the Directors.

At 2 o'clock a steady stream was pouring through the gates and there is every reason to believe that there will be a record attendance throughout.

The Exhibition opened with a night performance last night that was well attended, although the public has grown so accustomed to the Exhibition opening on the afternoon of the second day that the innovation was not as successful as it will be on future occasions.

There are certainly plenty of attractions for the amusement of the crowd. The Midway is the biggest ever seen at the local Exhibition with scores of features all along the tented street. There is a snake and alligator show, with banners that cause your hair to stand on end, a miniature railway, merry-go-round, ten-pin games, swinging the hammer for cigars, cane racks, the now well known "hoop-la" game, and a score of other similar amusements, to say nothing of refreshment booths where you can buy anything from a Coney Island "red-hot" to an ice cream cone. A number of these were on the ground last night and more were installed this morning.

The Grand Stand Performance.

Last night's crowd found the programme in front of the grandstand a thoroughly enjoyable one. The management is to be congratulated upon the securing of such an excellent troupe of vaudeville attractions which provided a varied and meritorious programme. There is a really clever trio of acrobats who do all kinds of amazing 'stunts.' There is a comical mule, whose pranks, coupled with those of his clown trainer bring forth hearty laughter. There are a couple of hand balancers whose feats are performed with a skill and dexterity that earn them round after round of applause. There is a wonderful trained pony who tells his age, does sums in arithmetic and picks out colours for the audience. There are trained dogs which do everything but talk, and a trained bear which goes even farther than that, by singing and playing a banjo. There is a sensational team of acrobatic brothers who turn back somersaults off chairs and tables and do many other astounding evolutions of a similar nature. The programme is a series of hits from start to finish.

Last night's entertainment was brought to a close with a splendid display of fireworks, under the direction of the Hand Company, of Hamilton. The exhibit included mines, which exploded and filled the air with a myriad of lavish coloured stars, giant rockets which acted in the same way and to the same purpose, golden butterflies which illuminated the sky with a host of whizzing meteors, big set pieces, and many other spectacular effects. There will be a bigger and better display of fireworks to-night, winding up the big performance which is scheduled for this evening.

To-morrow's programme is as follows:

8 a.m.—Grounds and buildings open to the public for general inspection of all live stock, poultry, special exhibits and inside exhibits.

1 p.m.—The judging of the Harness Horses in Classes 1, 2 and 3; also Nos. 1 and 2 in Class 7, Special class for farmers, and the Bank of Commerce Special in the small ring.

2 p.m.—The first heat of the 2.22 Class (Trot or Pace) race; purse, $150.

2.30 p.m.—The first heat of the Free-for-all; purse $200.

Between the heats of the races the judging of harness horse classes will continue throughout the afternoon. The classes to be judged will be 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 of Class 5, and No. 2 of Class 6, and 3 of class 7, and the special prize for the best pony turnout.

Handsome rosettes will be given instead of prize tickets in all the horse classes.

3 p.m. — An Association Football match for the R. R. Hall Championship C hallenge Cup, which represents

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD

ABOUT THE TIME THAT SIR JOHN UTTERED THESE FAMOUS WORDS:

"A BRITISH SUBJECT I WAS BORN; A BRITISH SUBJECT I WILL DIE"

HE ALSO MADE THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT:

"IT IS THE FACT THAT EVERY MEASURE OF RECIPROCAL TRADE WE HAVE GOT FROM OUR NEIGHBORS HAS BEEN GOT BY THE CONSERVATIVES."

AND A FEW DAYS LATER HE SAID:

"WE HAVE OFFERED TO THE UNITED STATES TO NEGOTIATE LIKE TWO SENSIBLE NATIONS, DESIROUS OF GETTING MUTUAL TRADE."

Opinion Of Rev. Dr. Clifford Friend Of The Workingmen

Rev. Dr. John Clifford, at a great welcome home gathering in England, spoke with regard to his visit to America and his impressions of Canada and Canadian affairs. After speaking of the greatness of the country the report says:—

> "As I said in America, I am a free trader in principle, and anything that tends to bring about free trade in natural products I am in favour of. I think Laurier will win. There may be a loss of seats in the eastern part of Canada, but the West is solidly for him."

All who heard Rev. Dr. Clifford in Peterborough, could note that he was an ardent friend of the workingman and the masses. It was very natural that he should favour the Reciprocity Agreement. It is just as natural for him to favour removal of trade restrictions as it is for monopolistic and combine or trust interests to oppose it, as they are all doing. The fight for Reciprocity is a fight between the people who make the money and the people who gobble it.

CANADIAN MISSIONARIES BOXED UP IN CHENTU GOVERNMENT TO ACT

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 15.—This morning's cables indicating that the majority of Canadian missionaries in China are boxed up in Chentu, which city itself is under siege of a strong force of rebels and the centre of a province seething with revolution, has aroused renewed anxiety here and has resulted in a request to the Methodist mission headquarters here on behalf of relatives of Canadians in Chentu, for immediate representations to the Chinese government through Ottawa and London regarding the safety of a hundred and fifty Canadians of whose welfare nothing definite has been heard for ten days. It is pointed out that at the time of the Boxer uprising three or four nations were stirred up to the rescue of missionaries in Pekin, but in the present case, practically all the foreigners in Chentu are Canadians and it is Canadian Government's business to make a move. The request will probably be made at Ottawa to-day.

PEKIN, CHINA, SEPT. 15.—An Imperial edict issued to-day admits that the situation in the neighbourhood of Chentu, where the Canadian missionaries are besieged, is very dangerous, and General Tsen Chun Suan, regarded as the heartless oppressor of rebellions, has been ordered there immediately with reinforcements of troops. The British gunboat Widgeon is leaving Sui Fu for Kiating, presumably for the protection of the British Canadian subjects.

Work On New Peterborough Dock To Begin At Once

Work will be commenced on the new dockat Spalding's Bay in a few days, as intimated by Mr. Stratton in his speech in July last at Buckhorn. The plans are about completed. This work will give employment to a large number of working men during the fall and winter. The quantity of gravel and the tessmire that will be required in connection therewith will be of much benefit to the community.

$39.00 FINE FOR FOUR YOUNG MEN

The four young men, who were arraigned before Magistrate Edmison at Norwood yesterday, charged with creating a disturbance and damaging property up the lakes, pleaded guilty and the complainant agreed that if they paid the damage he would withdraw the charge. They were then taxed for the damage and costs of the court, which amounted in all to $39, which they paid.

The two other young fellows who created the disturbance in the village of Norwood, pleaded guilty before the authorities there and were fined $2.00 each. The case of McQuaig vs. Tedford comes up in the county court at 11 a.m. to-morrow.

BURGLARY OF BANK

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., SEPT. 15.—In the early hours this morning the local branch of the Bank of Montreal was broken into by burglars, using nitro glycerine. Authentic information is lacking, but it is reported that $250,000 in gold and currency was taken. The trail of the gang was traced to the mountains and then lost.

MESSAGE FROM KING

WASHINGTON, D.C., SEPT. 15. — Among President Taft's messages of congratulations upon his fifty-fourth birthday to-day, was one from King George, expressing pleasure at the friendly relations between the two countries.

MAY PROVE FATAL

KIEV, RUSSIA, SEPT. 15.—'Tis unofficially whispered this afternoon that the injuries to Premier Stolypin are sure to prove fatal.

The Reciprocity Agreement will only continue in force during Canada's pleasure. There is a specific provision that Canada "shall be ABSOLUTELY FREE to make any change of tariff policy, or of any other matter covered by the present arrangement that may be deemed expedient." The agreement does not open the Canadian market to the twelve "favoured nations" with which Britain has treaties. In accordance with a resolution passed at the Imperial Conference in June, Britain will abrogate these, in so far as they concern Canada.

BIG SALE OF PENS

Some Great Snaps to Be Had at Warne's Drug Store

Every man wants a fountain pen. It adds tone to his appearance to have a handsome fountain pen stuck in his waistcoat pocket, just as if he had to have it always handy to sign checks. Then the ladies like them, too. Nothing is nicer than a handsome pearl-handled or silver, or gold mounted fountain pen to complete the furnishing of a secretaire.

Every one will have a chance to relieve such a want this week. For two or three days at Warne Co's. drug store, George street, windows and show cases will be filled with fountain pens, valued at from $2.50 to $10 each, which will be sacrificed at $1.25 each, a price never before equaled for the quality of pens being offered. The best known makers are represented in the 18,000 pens this well-known George street drug store is stocked with. There are 150 styles and thousands of different grades and styles of nibs. No matter what kind of a pen is wanted it can be procured there.

This sale offers an undoubted snap to everyone in the city and in the surrounding districts, for it is safe to say that every person who sinks $1.25 in one of the Worth pens will get a good return for the money. Out-of-town buyers can have their wants attended to by mail—if they send the price and the description of the kind of pen they want.

As this sale will last only a few days extra clerks have been engaged to look after the mammoth rush of business that is sure to follow the advertisement of these bargains, which appear on another page of this issue.

Refused to Discuss Question Although Every Opportunity Was Given Him, and Left the Hall.

HELD MEETING OUTSIDE

At the nominations proceedings in Norwood yesterday F. B. Kerr was nominated by the Liberals and J. A. Sexsmith by the Conservatives.

All manner of were present to hear the question of Reciprocity debated. Mr. Kerr, unsupported, appeared for himself, while Mr. Sexsmith was accompanied by Dr. Gwalchmor Evans, of Toronto. After considerable discussion as to the order of procedure Mr. Kerr made this offer to Mr. Sexsmith that he (Mr. Kerr) would speak first and give Mr. Sexsmith the opportunity to reply to him, or if Mr. Sexsmith preferred that he (Mr. Sexsmith) could open the meeting and Mr. Kerr close the debate. Mr. Sexsmith refused to debate on these conditions, and realizing that the arguments in favour of reciprocity could not stand for a moment against the fierce, they held an outside and humiliating attitude. In consequence two meetings were held, one addressed by Mr. Kerr, which largely outnumbered Mr. Sexsmith's meeting, which was addressed in the open air by Mr. Sexsmith and Dr. Evans. Mr. Kerr's address, which lasted over two hours, was brilliant and effective, and elicited continued cheers, he explained the Reciprocity Treaty, and denounced in scathing terms the humiliating position occupied by Dr. Evans, hereafter as a brilliant man from Toronto, and by Mr. John A. Sexsmith, M.P., who fled rather than meet one man in fair discussion on the Reciprocity agreement.

Much comment has been created by Mr. Sexsmith's humiliating attitude and many who intended to oppose Reciprocity are now convinced that Mr. Sexsmith, as a farmer, realizes in his heart that Reciprocity is a good thing, and that in refusing to debate he had not the courage to show his arguments to be digested and considered in a joint debate.

Mr. Kerr's election is now advanced and Reciprocity is gaining ground rapidly and the magnificent support that is rallying for Reciprocity ensures a victory for Mr. Kerr on the evening of Sept. 21st.

In the evening Mr. Kerr held a most successful meeting at Lang, the hall being crowded with people who listened with deep interest to the addresses of Mr. K[illegible] and Mr. Cowan, Editor of Farm and Dairy. Borden and Bourassa are proving a poor combination in East Peterborough. The people seem bent on having a united and prosperous Canada, and are refusing to ally themselves with Bourassa.

THE WORKINGMAN'S JOB

Reciprocity will make the wheels of every factory in Canada whirl faster.

Give the tiller of the soil a wider market, and more people will till the soil, and be the more prosperous for it.

Give the farmer, who already constitutes 70 per cent. of our population more money to buy goods with and you increase the business of the factories.

More orders for the factories means more work for more workingmen, at full time and over, to catch up with the trade.

The Liberal Government, which has stood by labour and the Unions, and has made Canada a white man's country, now seeks to give the workingman cheaper food, so that he can put more money in the bank.

Cheaper living and better wages for the workingman mean a better education for his family and better prospects in life for his children.

Mr. Stratton Foresees Success In Both County And Country

Talks of the Campaign and is Full of Confidence of Personal Success and of the Certain Return of the Government

Mr. Stratton was interviewed this morning in regard to the progress of the campaign, and spoke very confidently of his success.

"You have finished the country meetings of your campaign?"

"Yes, and in all the meetings I have held in twenty-five years of campaigning I never had meetings so largely attended, or so much interest taken in the issues of the contest. There is not one farmer that I have met that is taking any stock or interest in the side issues my opponent is introducing into this campaign."

"What do you think of the outlook?"

"There can be only one result. Few seem to take Mr. Burnham's candidature seriously. His meetings have, I am told, not been satisfactory. He has not discussed the reciprocity matter seriously, only so far as to make it a peg to hang his fads on. As far as I can see, and I have had a little experience in gauging opinion, estimating probabilities, I find that the farmers are anxious for the benefits of relief from the combinsters that seek their own advantage at their expense."

"How about the city—how do you find things here?"

"All right; those who have supported me in the past are with me this time, with an occasional exception, and these few exceptions are more than counterbalanced by the much larger number that are supporting me for the first time."

"It is noticed that the Review is keeping up its campaign of slander."

"Yes; just what you could notice; but nobody is paying any great attention to it. I regard the Review as the best canvasser I've got. I have owed a great deal to its help in past contests, and this time I owe it more. Everything is trumped up that can be, but I have represented the riding for so long that the electors know that everything I have stated as a representative has been justified. For instance, the Review tries to belittle the statement I made through the Examiner that the William Hamilton Company is working overtime. My statement is easily proved; a visit to the shops at night will prove it. Nobody has said his unusual activity was due to reciprocity, but by the Liberal way of dealing with the tariff in relation to raw materials—it is only natural and, indeed, inevitable that this company and all other industries should succeed and flourish. The workingmen as a class are only laughing in their sleeves at the Review's far-fetched scare stories. The workingmen of Peterborough know that I am not advocating less protection—the Government will not lessen the protection—for manufacturers. What they would naturally want to know is, when did Hampden Burnham ever give or help a man to a day's work?"

"What about the Lock Works?"

"O, the Lock Works is all right. The works have a larger volume of orders than ever before, and are turning out a better class of work than ever before. They are forced to work till ten o'clock at night to fill orders. I might if I liked, compare stagnant condition of the Lock Works under the conditions of 1896 with the enlarged and flourishing business of to-day.

"But the Review says, 'They don't want Stratton at Ottawa,' what about that?"

"All I need to say to that pop-gun shot is that when I wanted to retire from politics, from the representation of West Peterborough, that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Wm. Paterson and Hon. George Graham came to me personally and urged me to run again—they all considered that it would be unfair on my part to retire at the last moment, after their having granted to Peterborough city and county all they had asked through me, that could be granted in the public interests."

"This one thing is certain, the Laurier Government will be returned, and there is no danger of Peterborough making the mistake of sending Mr. Burnham to Ottawa in my place. Peterborough city and county knows that if he doesn't strike a little more fire at Ottawa than he does in Peterborough it will be a cold day for Peterborough and its best interests."

"I have found throughout the campaign that my opponents do not discuss reciprocity on its merits. Mr. Burnham by the way he talks, does not understand it himself. I doubt if he has read it, but if he has he misconstrues it greatly.

"In a word, the Laurier Government will be sustained, and that too by the help of a supporter from West Peterborough."

OTTAWA, SEPT. 15.—Canada's total mineral production for the past year was one hundred and five million dollars, this being an increase of fourteen per cent over the last year. PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 15 1911

LARGE CROWD IN ATTENDANCE AT PETERBOROUGH'S BIG EXHIBITION

In Spite of the Bad Weather This Morning, Attendance This Afternoon is Good and Directors Are Optimistic.

MANY ATTRACTIONS

Although the weather was very dark and threatening and altogether ungromising, everything was hurry and bustle at the Exhibition grounds this morning. The exhibits are the largest and best in the history of the event; the showing in all line being remarkably good, especially is this true of the poultry display, the splendid showing of last year being far eclipsed.

Fortunately the afternoon the weather seem ed to relented. Patches of blue sky made their appearance, and the sun came out and lent its brilliancy to the scene, with the result that the attendance prospects at once grew brighter. Many visiters are in town in spite of the unfavourable morning and the manner in which the crowd flocked down to the grounds, from shortly after 12 o'clock, brought a smile to the faces of the Directors.

At 2 o'clock a steady stream was pouring through the gates and there is every reason to believe that there will be a record attendance throughout.

The Exhibition opened with a night performance last night that was well attended, although the public has grown so accustomed to the Exhibition opening on the afternoon of the second day that the innovation was not as successful as it will be on future occasions.

There are certainly plenty of attractions for the amusement of the crowd. The Midway is the biggest ever seen at the local Exhibition with scores of features all along the tented street. There is a snake and alligator show, with banners that cause your hair to stand on end, a miniature railway, merry-go-round, ten-pin games; swinging the hammer for cigars, cane racks, the now well known "hoop-la" game, and a score of other similar amusements, to say nothing of refreshment booths where you can buy anything from a Coney Island "red-hot" to an ice cream cone. A number of these were on the ground last night and more were installed this morning.

The Grand Stand Performance.

Last night's crowd found the programme in front of the grandstand a thoorughly enjoyable one. The management is to be congratulated upon the securing of such an excellent troupe of vaudeville attractions which provided a varied and meritorious programme. There is a really clever trio of acrobats who do all kinds of amazing 'stunts.' There is a comical mule, whose pranks, coupled with those of his clown trainer bring forth hearty laughter. There are a couple of hand balancers whose feats are performed with a skill and dexterity that earn them round after round of applause. There is a wonderful trained pony who tells his age, does sums in arithmetic and picks out colours for the audience. There are traned dogs which do everything but talk, and a trained bear which goes even farther than that, by singing and playing a banjo. There is a sensational team of acrobatic brothers who turn back somersaults off chairs and tables and do many other astounding evolutions of a similar nature. The programme is a series of hits from start to finish.

Last night's entertainment was brought to a close with a splendid display of fireworks, under the direction of the Hand Company, of Hamilton. The exhibit included mines, which exploded and filled the air with a myriad of lavish coloured stars, giant rockets which acted in the same way and to the same purpose, golden butterflies which illuminated the sky with a host of whizzing meteors, big set pieces, and many other spectacular effects. There will be a bigger and better display of fireworks to-night, winding up the big performance which is scheduled for this evening.

To-morrow's programme is as follows:

8 a.m—Grounds and buildings open to the public for general inspection of all live stock, poultry, special exhibits and inside exhibits.

1 p.m.—The judging of the Harness Horses in Classes 1, 2 and 3; also Nos. 1 and 2 in Class 7, Special class for farmers, and the Bank of Commerce Special in the small ring.

2 p.m.—The first heat of the 2.22 Class (Trot or Pace) race; purse, $150.

2.30 p.m.—The first heat of the Free-for-all; purse $200.

Between the heats of the races the judging of harness horse classes will continue throughout the afternoon. The classes to be judged will be 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 of Class 5, and No. 2 of Class 6, and 3 of class 7, and the special prize for the best pony turnout.

Handsome rosettes will be given instead of prize tickets in all the horse classes.

3 p.m.—An Association Football match for the R. R. Hall Championship C hallengeCup, which represents

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD

ABOUT THE TIME THAT SIR JOHN UTTERED THESE FAMOUS WORDS:

"A BRITISH SUBJECT I WAS BORN; A BRITISH SUBJECT I WILL DIE"

HE ALSO MADE THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT:

"IT IS THE FACT THAT EVERY MEASURE OF RECIPROCAL TRADE WE HAVE GOT FROM OUR NEIGHBORS HAS BEEN GOT BY THE CONSERVATIVES."

AND A FEW DAYS LATER HE SAID:

"WE HAVE OFFERED TO THE UNITED STATES TO NEGOTIATE LIKE TWO SENSIBLE NATIONS, DESIROUS OF GETTING MUTUAL TRADE."

Opinion Of Rev. Dr. Clifford Friend Of The Workingmen

Rev. Dr. John Clifford, at a great welcome home gathering in England, spoke with regard to his visit to America and his impressions of Canada and Canadian affairs. After speaking of the greatness of the country the report says:—

Here the Doctor, with a quick change brought the subject to Reciprocity:

"As I said in America, I am a free trader in principle, and anything that tends to bring about free trade in natural products I am in favour of. I think Laurier will win. There may be a loss of seats in the eastern part of Canada, but the West is solidly for him."

All who heard Rev. Dr. Clifford in Peterborough, could note that he was an ardent friend of the workingman and the masses. It was very natural that he should favour the Reciprocity Agreement. It is just as natural for him to favour removal of trade restrictions as it is for monopolistic and combine or trust interests to oppose it, as they are all doing. The fight for Reciprocity is a fight between the people who make the money and the people who gobble it.

CANADIAN MISSIONARIES BOXED UP IN CHENTU GOVERNMENT TO ACT

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 15.—This morning's cables indeating that the majority of Canadian missionaries in China are boxed up in Chentu, which city itself is under siege of a strong force of rebels and the centre of a province seething with revolution, has aroused renewed anxiety here and has resulted in a request to the Methodist mission headquarters here on behalf of relatives of Canadians in Chentu, for immediate representations to the Chinese government through Ottawa and London regarding the safety of a hundred and fifty Canadians of whose welfare nothing definite has been heard for ten days. It is pointed out that at the time of the Boxer uprising three or four nations were stirred up to the rescue of missionaries in Pekin, but in the present case, practically all the foreigners in Chentu are Canadians and it is Canadian Government's business to make a move. The request will probably be made at Ottawa to-day.

PEKIN, CHINA, SEPT. 15.—An Imperial edict issued to-day admits that the situation in the neighbourhood of Chentu, where the Canadian missionaries are beseiged, is very dangerous, and General Tsen Chun Suan, regarded as the heartless oppressor of rebellons, has been ordered there immediately with reinforcements of troops. The British gunboat Widgeon is leaving Sui Fu for Kiating, presumably for the protection of the British Canadian subjects.

Work On New Peterborough Dock To Begin At Once

Work will be commenced on the new dockat Spalding's Bay in a few days, as intimated by Mr. Stratton in his speech in July last at Buckhorn. The plans are about completed. This work will give employment to a large number of working men during the fall and winter. The quantity of gravel and the teaming that will be required in connection therewith will be of much benefit to the community.

$39.00 FINE FOR FOUR YOUNG MEN

The four young men, who were arraigned before Magistrate Edmison at Norwood yesterday, charged with creating a disturbance and damaging property up the lakes, pleaded guilty and the complainant agreed that if they paid the damage he would withdraw the charge. They were then taxed for the damage and costs of the court, which amounted in all to $39, which they paid.

The two other young fellows who created the disturbance in the village of Norwood, pleaded guilty before the authorities there and were fined $2.00 each. The case of McQuaig vs. Tedford comes up in the county court at 11 a.m. to-morrow.

Refused to Discuss Question Although Every Opportunity Was Given Him, and Left the Hall.

HELD MEETING OUTSIDE

At the nomination proceedings in Norwood yesterday F. D. Kerr was nominated by the Liberals and J. A. Sexsmith by the Conservatives.

All interested manner were present to hear the question of Reciprocity debated. Mr. Kerr, unaccompanied, appeared for himself, while Mr. Sexsmith, was accompanied by Dr. Gwalior Evans, of Toronto. HANDS OFF THE TARIFF.

Reciprocity will not interfere with the manufacturers' protection.

Reciprocity in natural products is a matter by itself. Its object is to cheapen the cost of living to the workingman and to increase the purchasing power of the farmer.

The reciprocity schedules affect no manufacturing industries, except to a very slight extent—farm implements and automobiles. Farm implements are the tools of the farmer's trade and the idea in making them cheaper by a reduction in duty is part and parcel of the plan to decrease the cost of living by lessening the cost of production. Automobiles are a luxury and the average consumer is not interested in them to any great degree. A reduction of 5 per cent duty has been made, still leaving them 30 per cent. protection.

The direct result of reciprocity on all other manufacturing industries is highly beneficial. If the farmer has greater purchasing power, the manufacturer will sell him more goods. If the home market is made larger by filling up the Northwest, the manufacturers' business will expand. If the workingman gets his living cheaper he will be more contented and happy and there will be less liability of strikes and lockouts. And if the manufacturer does more business the workingman is assured of steadier employment at rising wages.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the members of this Government have jointly and serially given assurance that the manufacturers' protection will not be touched, as has also Mr. Stratton. In this they do no more than echo the popular will. No one wants to hurt the manufacturers. On the contrary there is a general desire, irrespective of politics, to see them prosper.

We have five great sources of natural wealth—the farm, the forest, the fisheries, the mines, and our manufacturing industries. We keep our national house on the income derived from them. We want to develop, as well as conserve, all our income producing interests, manufacturing, farming, mining, fishing, and lumbering. We require them all—none can be spared. Everybody recognizes that manufacturing institutions of a varied character are necessary to build up a great nation.

Not only will the manufacturer's protection be continued unabated under the Liberal Government, but it will be actually safer in Liberal, than in Conservative hands. Much as the Conservatives may protest that party has not consistently adhered to Sir John Macdonald's National Policy. They have wobbled sadly on their doctrine of high protection. They found there was such a thing as protecting manufacturers almost to death, and they made a change. The result of their riper wisdom was the tariff of 1894, which was quite different from the tariff of 1878. It comes within measurable distance of the Fielding Revenue Tariff, which, as the Peterborough Review acknowledged, maintained many of the old schedules. Among the good things the Fielding tariff did for the manufacturer was to place on the free list certain articles of prime necessity to them, and to reduce the duties on iron and steel and many other of his staple raw materials.

The Liberals, having grasped the principle of a moderate, just, and sufficient tariff, have never strayed a step from it since they came into power in 1896. Of all Canadian tariffs the Fielding tariff has been the most stable.

The only thing they have done to it has been to tighten it up in places where it did not work out in practice, as it promised in theory. Those weak spots were very few indeed, and no sooner were they discovered and complained of than the Government made haste to remedy them. As late as March, 1907, when the tariff was undergoing minor revisions, a delegation of Peterborough manufacturers visited Ottawa with suggestions. They were cordially received and every change in the tariff they asked for they got.

The Liberal Government has always been tender of the interests of the manufacturer. It has not only protected him with a tariff, but it has strengthened the tariff with special laws wherever the foreign manufacturer found a loophole. At a recent session of Parliament a striking departure in fiscal legislation was made. This was the adoption of the "anti-dumping law." The law was passed and special officers were appointed to enforce it, among others a Canadian Inspector in the United States to see that United States manufacturers going into Canada were not under-invoiced. Under this law Canadian manufacturers are effectively protected against the slaughtering of manufactured goods in Canada, in unfair competition with our own products.

The good sense of the people, the interests of the country, the approved policy of the Government in the past, and its solemn pledges for the future, all go to establish the fact with which this article started out, namely:

The manufacturer's position will not be interfered with.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said in Parliament, apropos of the reciprocity agreement: "We have not hurt the manufacturer and we will not hurt him," and Sir Wilfrid Laurier keeps his word. He said, speaking in Toronto: "Place the Liberal Government in power and you will not have to consult statistics to prove your prosperity—you will feel it in your pockets." That assurance has been literally and fruitfully fulfilled the past fifteen years.

It Is The Same Man But Different

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I should like to be informed whether or not the J. H. Burnham; the Conservative candidate for West Peterborough, who is flourishing his extreme loyalty in the face of the electors, is the same J. H. Burnham who, at the time of the Boer war, took the anti-British stand and talked and wrote in sympathy with the Boers and against British Imperial interests?

Yours, etc.,
UNION JACK.

Yes and no. Physically, it is the same Mr. Burnham, but in the matter of opinions and fads, it is not the same man. Who that has known Mr. Burnham long, ever knew him to be any one thing for any length of time. They know that he went into law and soon got tired of that; he went to doing nothing; then he went into finance and soon left that for law again, and, as a side line, for politics. A few years ago he was on the most friendly terms and had the most suppliant attitude towards the Church he is now berating and reviling. He is quite different now. He was, as "Union Jack" suggests, an anti-British as Bourassa, the Nationalist Briton-hater in the matter of the Boer war. Now he is the champion par-excellence of British institutions; without him one would think the empire would totter and fall. Yet he has not deserted Bourassa; he is working with him hand and glove to achieve the same end—to beat Laurier. He is riding the same horse in different directions at the same time. It is the same Mr. Burnham playing the same old game. The same man that worked with Bourassa in hounding the British for resorting to force to preserve the integrity of the empire in South Africa; the same man that is now working with the same traitorous French Canadian Bourassa, to defeat the Premier of Canada, to elect a Conservative premier, to try to displace the premier who has done more than any of his predecessors to bring Canada and the Mother country closer together, to bring Canada to the front rank among the countries of the world and to cement the bonds of Empire. This is the same Mr. Burnham, as much as can be a man, who justifies to the letter, the satire of Dryden—"Was everything by starts and nothing long."

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 26,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 5th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained by writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

HOW TARIFF REDUCTION HELPS MANUFACTURING

And Anything That Helps Manufacturing Helps the Workingmen

Out of $376,000,000 worth of goods imported into Canada for consumption last year $148,500,000 came in duty free. Of the goods imported free of taxation more than 60 per cent. came from the United States.

A very large proportion of the free goods imported from the United States were intended for the use of Canadian manufacturers. Those manufacturers who are out against reciprocity consider it a grossly disloyal thing for Canadian farmers to think of shipping a little more barley or dairy products to the United States. The same manufacturers think it a proper thing for them to go to the United States for anything they want in the way of raw material—and to bring it in duty free.

FAIR PLAY IS BONNIE PLAY

Conservative Horse Dealer Wants United States Market

Horse Dealer Well Known in Peterborough Says Reciprocity Will Mean a Lot to Canadian Farmers—Conservative Commission Merchant Will Vote for Reciprocity.

MONTREAL, QUE., September 13.—Mr. Joseph Jacobs, a well known dealer in horses, who often comes to Peterborough, and is well known here, and who has always been known as a staunch Conservative, has come out strongly in favour of Reciprocity. In explaining his stand to-day, Mr. Jacobs said: "Yes, I have always been a Conservative, but I mean to vote the other way this time. There used to be two and three hundred horses shipped to he United States every week. Now, I can't remember when just a single carload has gone across the line. These old days were previous to the McKinley bill, but now the duties are practically prohibitive—thirty dollars on every horse whether he is worth more than thirty or not, and thirty per cent. on animals valued at more than $150. The Canadian horses are exceedingly popular in the New England market because they are hardy and better suited to their purposes than the horses from the Western States. The Canadian breeder produces the best horses in the world, but they are locked out of their best market. The American market will mean a lot to the Canadian farmer, many of whom used to make horse breeding a profitable side line before the McKinley duties came into force."

"Yes," said Mr. J. C. Rose, "I'm another. For the first time I will vote Liberal this election, but I would not do it were it not for reciprocity."

Mr. Rose is president of the well-known firm of commission merchants, Rose and Laflamme. "Anything and everything to beat Laurier," seems to be the Conservative cry," he continued. "That is their policy in my opinion in this election. I think that in bringing in the annexation bogy and crying anti-Imperialism they show that they have no real economic arguments against the act. The sentimental arguments being untrue, can never carry the election."

OPENING OF THE BIG INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

the Championship of the County of Peterborough.

EXHIBIT NOTICES

J. J. TURNER & SONS.

The firm of J. J. Turner & Sons is possibly the best known firm in their particular line in this broad Dominion of ours. Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., from a comparatively small business in Port Hope, where he was engaged in furnishing supplies to the visiting ships and schooners, has, with the assistance of his sons, all experts in their several lines of business, built up a factory and business that defies competition. At the Fair this, as in former years, J. J. Turner & Sons have given an exhibit of goods that attracted wide attention. Conveniently situated, Messrs. Turner have a large tent, with glass windows inserted in the sides thereof, that contains a full line of everything that appeals to the tourist, camper, or local resident. To begin to enumerate the full line of goods manufactured by this enterprising firm would take more space than now at our immediate control. It is possibly sufficient to say that Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, Peterborough's sail, tent, and awning makers, have the largest stock of canoes, canvas boats, tents, blankets, and other articles appealing to either the steamer owner, camper, or other citizen to be found in this our great Dominion.

LOUIS MENDEL, ARTIST PHOTOGRAPHER.

The Art display in the Exhibition building this year is of a high character and demonstrates that Peterborough, a manufacturing city, has, like the smoky City of Pittsburg, a large circle of artistic citizens. The crowds that yesterday congregated in the art room, were at once attracted to, and greatly impressed, by the magnificent display of art photography shown by Mr. Louis Mendel. Peterborough's leading photographer. Our reporter, by luck, happened to overhear some comments that were made on Mr. Mendel's exhibit by three of Peterborough's best known lovers of art. Judging by their conversation, Mr. Mendel has once more demonstrated that his artistic photography is unique and in a class of its own. It is well known among those conversant with the fundamental principles of art, that many photographers, whose names are known all aver the wide world, possibly, unconscientiously, copy the artistic tricks, or methods, of the old masters of painting, and embody such methods in the subjects and back grounds of their photographs. However, in Mr. Mendel's art there is a marked individuality, a one-man method of combining exactness of expression and features, with an artistic background. It is worthy of note that the pictures shown in Mr. Mendel's exhibit of this year are not made for, or chosen specially from, his studio for exhibition purposes, but simply taken at random from stock; in fact, some of these shown are already sold. One picture that attracted great attention was a sketch of a young lady. In this the life-like photograph of the subject is supplemented by hand work of high artistic merit. In addition to the prizes awarded to Mr. Mendel by the Fair authorities this year, it is of interest to our citizens and a cause for them to be proud of Peterborough's art to learn that this local artist has, within the past few years, been awarded gold medals for his work in England, Canada and the United States. As there is certain to be a rush for Mr. Mendel's photographs for Christmas and New Year's trade, those desiring artistic photography for such purposes, should call at the Studio at once, as Mr. Mendel has orders already for Christmas photography. Those who do not arrange for sittings at an early date are almost sure to be disappointed.

PETERBOROUGH HARDWARE CO.

Among the most attractive exhibits is that of the Peterborough Hardware Co., the largest dealers in Canada, in hardware, outside Toronto and Montreal. The exhibit of the Peterborough Hardware Co. is shown in the big tent, partly occupied by Mr. G. A. Gillespie. The Peterborough Hardware Co. is too well known among the residents of this county to require a detailed description. It is sufficient to say that this firm, with its immense new wholesale trade building, near the C. P. R. depot, can supply anything in hardware, iron structural work, tools, household hardware, and, in fact, anything in the composition of which iron and steel enters. One interesting feature of the Company's exhibit is the shovels made right here in Peterborough. One sees a flat piece of steel sheet. Then two steel straps are riveted above this steel sheet. Next, these straps are welded to the steel sheet. In short, every part of the process of making a new method shovel is displayed. Those wanting tools, hardware of any kind, iron in the rod or block, or in short, anything appertaining or belonging to the use of iron, or anything required along such lines, in the home, can be supplied at the Peterborough Hardware Co., in multiplicity of design and make, far beyond the chance of successful competition. At the Exhibition display, the Company shows a splendid assortment of washing machines and also the well-known Universal Bread Maker, which drew the attention of hundreds of our good local housewives. This simple little machine, which can be operated by a child ten years old, clearly demonstrates that the old-time way of kneading the dough by back-racking methods, is now obsolete. The Peterborough Hardware Co. is the Mecca of all those in need of anything in the house-furnishing line. Safety razors are to be procured from this Company in any style or price.

POLL-HEREFORD CATTLE.

As one entered the main gate of the grounds, the first lot of cattle seen are those exhibited by Mr. R. E. Thurston of Bobcaygeon, whose farm is situated in Verulam township, Victoria. Mr. Thurston's display, which attracted great attention, comprised a fine herd of Hereford cattle, all of which, excepting one cow, are of the, by nature, dehorned type. Among the cattle shown are one aged bull, one aged cow, two 2 year old heifers, 1 yearling heifer, 2 heifer calves, and 1 bull calf. Breeders of high grade stock should communicate with Mr. Thurston at the above address.

G. A. GILLESPIE.

One of the best known men in this county and city is Mr. G. A. Gillespie, one of the leading experts on cheese in Ontario. Mr. Gillespie, formerly senior partner in the grocery firm of White & Gillespie, some months ago, opened a new store of his own at 140 Simcoe street. This cheese expert, whose name is well known among the buyers of Canadian cheese in the great ports of England and the United States, has a splendid exhibit at this year's Peterborough Fall Fair. His large tent, 40 by 20 feet, in size, attracted thousands of visitors. Within the canvas enclosure which on the outside bore the sign, "G. A. GILLESPIE'S EXHIBIT," were to be seen all the machinery and details, connected with butter and cheese making. Mr. Gillespie had a staff of well trained and absolutely competent employees engaged who had their work cut out displaying the unqualified merits of the separators sold by Mr. Gillespie. This local expert, after years of experience and as a result of intelligence far above the average, has come to the conclusion that the separators handled by him are the best on the market. This is a matter worthy of attention by the farmers of this and adjoining counties. When a qualified man, a man of wide experience in dairy products, selects a certain line of separators or other butter and cheese making apparatus, possible purchasers can depend upon getting best value from Mr. Gillespie. It might be added, as a postscript, that Mr. G. A. Gillespie, of 140 Simcoe street, has the largest and most intelligently selected assortment of all kinds of groceries, dairy and cheese makers' supplies, in the Midland district.

THE MODEL FOUNDRY AND PUMP WORKS.

Mr. Ruth of the firm of Ruth & London, was on the grounds, looking after the interests of the new Model Foundry and Pump Works. Although only in good going order for a few months, the amount of business done has been very encouraging to the new firm. All kinds of machinery repairing is done promptly and at reasonable prices. The machine shop is equipped with first-class machines for all general work. A full line of Pulleys, Shafting Journal Boxes, etc., kept in stock.

The new moulding shop is just being opened up, and the firm is prepared to do all kinds of job casting in a first class manner. Pumps are a leading line of the new firm, and any description of pump can be supplied.

Pump repairs are always attended to carefully. Particular attention is also paid to plough points and plough repairs are executed in a careful manner. The office and works are situated at 57 Hunter street, near the bridge and opposite the Quaker Oats.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

TO plan your life instead of letting everything just happen; to row your existence with your eye firmly fixed on some definite goal, instead of just drifting it, is wise.

But to keep your plans to yourself until you are nearly ready to execute them; not to do too much talking about that definite goal is, to say the least,—expedient.

A young girl in our neighbourhood bought an automobile recently.

Most of her friends were vastly surprised.

Why ?Because Elaine had never mentioned her intention of owning a machine?

Quite to the contrary.

Because she had mentioned it so often and talked about it for so long a time that we had quite gotten over expecting her to really do it.

There are people who can't conceive a plan without being fired with an uncontrollable desire to communicate it to the public.

The houses they are going to build, the trips they are going to take, the courses of study they are going to pursue, the wonderful things they are going to buy, form the chief topics of their conversation.

And at first we listen to them with confidence and interest.

And then—well everybody knows the classic little boy who cried "wolf, wolf" when there was no wolf, and what happened when the wolf really came.

Someday when by some strange chance, our friend of the much press-agented plans does build the house or go abroad, or buy the horse or take a course in botany, we can scarcely believe that the thing has actually been done.

I love books and people without too much prelude.

Don't you.

The kind of books that start you right in with something happening or being said—a swift bit of action or an illuminating conversation; the kind of people who surprise you by referring casually to something they have done instead of grandiloquently discoursing on what they are going to do.

A would-be author told me that the chief criticism a real craftsman made upon his work was that there was always too much introduction.

How many of us are making the same mistake in writing our lives!

Let your characters speak their own prologue and write their own introductions and you will find yourself with a much more attentive audience than words will ever bring you.

"MAN IS ONLY A CREATURE AMONG CREATURES" SAYS THE REV. F. H. HARTLEY

Stirring and Inspiring Address Delivered at St. John's Last Evening---The Church Was Beautifully Decorated for the Occasion.

St. John's Church was the scene of a very pretty and impressive harvest festival service last night. The interior of the church was beautifully decorated with agricultural products and flowers of all kinds. Among the principal decorations was a beautiful cross, composed of four hundred white asters, which was hung on the left side of the alter. The entrance to the church was rendered conspicuous by a beautiful arch of flowers and greenery, the body of the church was also prettily festooned. A pleasing feature of the service was the presence of Rev. F. H. Hartley, M.A., of Toronto .The reverend gentleman, in his opening remarks, referred to the fact that it was twelve years since he had had the pleasure of occupying the pulpit of St. John's church. During that time many radical changes had taken place, both in the church and congregation. The speaker took for his text the 5th Chapter, 20th verse of St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians: "Giving thanks always for all things, unto God, and the Father, in the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ.

Rev. Mr. Hartley's remarks were of a very concise nature, and he succeeded during his twenty-minute discourse in imparting a considerable amount of logical truth concerning man's ungratefulness towards the Divine Creator, in consideration of his unbounded goodness towards men.

The object of this service, said the speaker, is to awaken our thoughts to the responsibility which we owe to God for the bountiful harvest which he has favoured us with. From all accounts the Ontario harvest has been exceptionally good, while the North West has been blessed with what is known as a banner harvest. The service played an important part inasmuch as it stood as a witness to the true vital religion.

Man is simply a creature amongst other creatures. What does he know of what is before him when he enters this life ? We are the overflow of the love of God. Every man born into this world has a destiny. That is why Jesus Christ became incarnate, why He died, why He rose again and ascended into Heaven. One of the many lessons that the harvest festival reminds us of is that of the responsibility which we owe towards God.

The service was fully choral, and the large choir, as usual, gave a good account of each Psalm, hymn, or anthem. The festival, coming so early in the season, left quite a short time for practice, but last night's excellent singing was distinctly above the average, even for St. John's choir. Hall's Thanksgiving Anthem presents many opportunities for varied choral effects, which were all taken advantage of. It's far-famed solo "He Maketh Peace," was beautifully sung by Miss Helen Dawies, who was given a hearty welcome by clergy and choir, and at the conclusion of the service heartily thanked for her splendid solo.

The decorations showed great taste and skill. All the ladies who took such pains with them thoroughly deserved the many kind things said of them. The Chancel was decorated by the Chancel Guild, with the President, Mrs. Rush, in charge; the Nave by Mrs. Rubidge and a large band of workers; the pulpit, by Miss Hugel; the Font, by Mrs. Fessenden and the children's cross, by Mrs. R. J. Dewey. The services will be continued on Sunday next.

The collections at both services were given to the Widows' and Orphans' fund.

WILL MATRICULATE ON INSTALMENT PLAN

By virtue of a new regulation approved by the Minister of Education young men who are engaged in business have an opportunity now to secure their entrance to the University while still engaged in their everyday work.

Heretofore, the matriculant has been obliged to take eleven subjects at the same time, and pass in eight, and this has precluded the student whose time for study was limited from entering.

The new regulation provides that a candidate who is actually engaged in a mercantile, industrial or other occupation may present himself for one or more subjects at any July or September examination. At any such examination he will receive credit for a subject, or subjects, on obtaining 40 per cent. in each paper, and an aggregate of 60 per cent. of the total marks assigned to each subject or subjects.

Under these conditions matriculation must be completed within four years.

In order to secure credit for the subjects written the candidate immediately on receipt of his departmental statement of marks, must return the see to the Deputy Minister of Education, accompanied by a certificate fro his employer.

Already a few young men of ambition have applied to the Y. M. A., asking hat a class in matriculation be carried on this season, and the Association is very anxious to do so. The cost carrying on such a class is very high and the General Secretary Mr. H. M. Gilchrist, is at present investigating to learn whether or not it will be possible to attempt this very important work this fall and winter.

In view of the present financial condition of the Associatiln, unless some other source of revenue is discovred, the class would have to be self-supporting, in which ease it would be necessary to have, at the very least, 20 members in the class.

Such a class would extend over two years, and probably all of the students would be able to take their matriculation at the end of the second year. This, of course, would require close application to study. It would mean ten hours a week of class work and much home study.

The subjects studied in the first year would be English Literature, English Composition, Science, Junior French, Junior Latin and Junior Algebra. The student would be expected to write off the first three of these subjects next July.

A Friendly Suggestion

often puts the wanderer on the right path.

KNOWS HOW.

Doctor Had Been Over the Road.

When a doctor, who has been the victim of the tea or coffee habit, cures himself by leaving off tea and coffee and taking Postum he knows something about what he is advising in that line.

A good old doctor in Ohio, who had at one time been the victim of the tea and coffee habit, advised a woman to leave off tea and coffee and take on Postum.

She suffered from indigestion and a weak and irregular heart and general nervous condition. She thought that it would be difficult to stop the tea and coffee abruptly.

She says:

"I had considerable hesitancy about making the change. The doctor, however, gave explicit directions tht Postum must be boiled long enough to bring out the flavour and food vlue. His suggestions were carried out and the delicious beverage fascinated me.

"I observed, a short time after starting Postum, a decided change in my nervous system. I could sleep soundly, and my brain was more active. My complexion became clear and rosy, whereas, it had been muddy and spotted before; in fact, all of the abnormal symptoms disappeared and I am now feeling perfectly well.

"Another friend was troubled in much the same manner as I, and she has recovered from her heart and stomach trouble by leaving off tea and coffee and using Postum.

"I know of several others who have had much the same experience. It is only necessary that Postum be well boiled and it wins its own way."

Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Thousands of former coffee drinkers are now healthier and happier because some friend suggested in place of coffee.

Headache, nervousness and other annoying ills, due to coffee drinking, quickly disappear when Postum becomes the regular table beverage instead of coffee.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The opening session of the School Boys' Class for the season will be held to-morrow (Saturday) September 16th, at 9.30 a. m. Now that the weather is getting a little chilly the boys will be looking up their "Gym" togs, and chasing the basketball around the gym. will be their favourite sport, to say nothing about the swimming tank and springboard, where all kinds of stunts are done off the board into the water. However, it will be enough to say that the fun starts to-morrow, so be in good time and get your name on the class roll, and then get into the fun.

The Intermediate Leaders Corps held their first annual meeting last evening, when the following officers were elected for the season:

President—Wm. Hastie.
Vice-President—C. Nicholls.

Chairmen of committees were elected as follows:

Social—W. Flowers.
Religious—B. Hamilton.
Basketball—E. J. Hanwell.
Hockey—M. A. Fitzgerald.
Bowling—R. L. Little.

The opening session of the Intermediate Class will be held on Thursday, Sept. 21st, at 8.00 p.m.

POLICE COURT

Three local men were arraigned in the police court this morning on a charge of being drunk. The first was fined $2.00. The second, who tore up the benches of the cells and raised a row generally was fined $2.00 and costs, $5.75. The third man was a blacklister, who was put on the list on the 1st of September, 1911. He pleaded guilty but would not tell who supplied him with the liquor, so he was remanded for a week in order that this may be brought to light.

A YEAR INDOORS

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me, so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

Carpet Not Claimed Yet

No claimant has yet turned up for the carpet given as a prize in the draw at the Labour Day sports. The winning ticket is number 1944, and the person holding this ticket may secure the carpet by producing the coupon. The carpet by the way, was not presented by the Turnbull Company, but was the joint gift of the employees and the management of the Brinton Carpet Company.

Ducks Are Plentiful

The duck shooting season came in this morning in full swing. The weather could not have been more suitable if a special order had been sent in to the weather man. Dawn was ushered in to the accompaniment of the bang of guns as though an army of soldiers were scattered along the banks of the old Otonabee, in ambush, firing on the advancing enemy. At Rice Lake, it is reported that there are far more sportsmen than last year, and the ducks are flying around in swarms like bees. They are reported plentiful in all districts this year, and so far it s a record year for this sport. A number of sportsmen went down to the lake from here this morning.

Statistics Showing The Comparative Value Of Some Western Cities—No Boom Prices

Comparison of the relative value of real estate in Moose Jaw and in other cities affords an interesting study. All along it has been recognized that in this city values were much lower than elsewhere, and while some people consider this a point not at all favourable, the investor at least finds a feeling of added security in the thought. Values in this city are at their very lowest, there is in property here, taking values elsewhere as a criterion, a large margin for a rise without the contemplation of a possibility of over-valuation. No boom prices rule here.

The possibility of a rise in value shortly is freely discussed and firmly believed in. With the freer circulation of money consequent upon the reaping of the harvest, the present rather quiet state of the real estate market is believed to be likely to give place to greater activity. From such a crop as has been grow this year the proceeds will be enormous and many a man will be seeking something which offers a safe investment with the surety of a good return. This may be found in Moose Jaw.

Compiled statistics showing the relative values in western cities of 25 foot lots one and three-quarter miles out of the city, actual travelling distance, that is 1 3-4 miles from an approximate centre are illuminating. Of course, in the larger centres the comparison is hardly fair at present, but even in the cities of the same size as Moose Jaw, real estate values are found to be from 400 to 1200 per cent. higher than here. The comparisons are made as follows:

Saskatoon, Mount Royal, $450.
Regina, $1250.
Calgary, $1150, Mount Royal.
Edmonton, $1000, Glenora.
Vancouver, $3,000.
Winnipeg, $4,375.

These prices are all for lots equidistant in each city from the centre, and in the case of the smaller cities represent the prices ruling in at present out-lying sub-divisions, on the direct line of growth. But these prices are graded upon the values of central property, and it is to be assumed may be considered a general indication of the comparative values of all prices in the cities affected.

Pony Narrowly Escapes Horrible Death At G.T.R.

An accident, which must have inevitably resulted in the crushing to death of a beautiful little pony had it not been for the presence of mind and quick action of some bystanders occurred last night about 8.45, at the G.T.R. station. The pony is the little gray one, formerly owned by Mr. J. Longo, but its present owner's name is not to hand at present. However, he drove to the G.T.R. station to meet some friends and tied the pony to some box cars which were standing on the freight shed siding, not realizing at the time that the cars might possibly move before he went away. Contrary to his expectations, however, a freight engine coupled to the cars and began to back the cars up. The pony, which was tied by the line, was facing the opposite way to that in which the train was moving and was dragged off its feet clean around beside the buggy to which it was tied, and was just in the act of being dragged under the wheels when the brakeman noticed it and signalled the engineer to stop, which was done, only in the nick of time. A crowd of men gathered around and cut it loose from the cart and buggy, when it was finally lifted to its feet. It was a miraculous escape, but nevertheless it did escape, and without even a scratch. It was a pitiful sight to see the little creature dragged by the head, through the mud, and it was perhaps the sight that urged the willing rescuers to work quickly.

P. F. D. UNIFORMS FOUND A—No. 1

The Fire, Water and Light committee met at the fire station last evening to inspect the new uniforms of the firemen. The following were present: Aldermen Metheral, Graham, Kerneghan, Morgan and Mayor Morrow. The uniforms, which were made by Mr. Ball, were found to be complete in every particular and the committee pronounced them perfectly satisfactory, and a motion was passed and carried to the effect that Mr. Ball be paid for his services.

The inspection of the suits lasted only a few minutes and the committee adjourned to the chief's office, where some minor business was transacted.

Mr. R. Leary had sent a request to the effect that the fire apparatus give an exhibition in front of the grand stand to-night. This was granted.

Ald. Kerneghan reported a hole on Antrim street, which is endangering traffic. It will be repaired.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MARKS BROS.

Considering the attraction of the Exhibition last evening, there was a goodly attendance at the Opera House where the Ernie Mark Co. played the well known and popular drama, entitled, "The Girl and the Gambler." This is a play in which humour and pathos are well mingled. The scene is laid in Nevada. Caleb Swan and Asa Bice, miners, lived together as bachelors, when one day the camp is astonished at Bice who, going to the city of Carson, returns with a wife. There is trouble in the camp when it is discovered that Nettie Bice was formerly a notorious swindler, and her brother, Tom Romain, appearing on the scene with the fixed intention of pilfering, adds to the disturbance.

However, with the assistance of Tennessee, Caleb Swan changes the bag of money which was to have been kept in a cupboard for a bundle of worthless coin, and Romain, finding his opportunity, steals this and makes off. Thus is he hoodwinked. His absence is instrumental in removing some of the unpleasantness prevailing at the camp and Mrs. Bice henceforth promises to be a true and devoted wife.

Mr. Ernie Marks as Gee Whittaker Hay, was as usual the cause of much mirth, and Miss Kittee Marks was charming as Tennessee; in fact she was the life of the play. Mr. H. Webb Chamberlain, who possesses all the qualities of a good actor, was good as Caleb Swan, while Miss Lida Gardner as Mrs. Hay added merriment to the piece. All the other members of the cast deserve to be commended on their performance.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville; "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

The Least Fuel, The Most Satisfaction.

When You Burn the Coal See That You Get the Value

It requires no argument to prove that the range you can use every part of, at the same time, is the range that will give you the full return for the fuel you burn. On the

HAPPY THOUGHT

Range you can use the oven and the top of the stove at the same time. While ironing you can have a batch of biscuits in the oven, and when baking you can prepare dinner without cooling the oven. This is the only way to keep down fuel bills and the only true range economy. The Patent Damper regulates the heat so that it can be used on any part of the range or on all the range.

Everywhere the Happy Thought, by its many labour-saving devices, is lightening the work of the housekeepers. Its efficiency is the result of the care taken to construct it and it amply justifies anything said in its favour by those who have used it.

More than a quarter of a million "Happy Thoughts" are in daily use in Canada.

NOT SALTS, OIL OR PILLS BUT CASCARETS

No Odds How Sick Your Stomach; How Hard Your Head Aches or How Bilious — Cascarets Make You Feel Great

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foulgases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good — do good—never gripe or sicken.

LAWN SOCIAL ON T. A. S. GROUNDS

A lawn social, will be held under the auspices of the T.A.S. Society on the T.A.S. grounds and in the hall at Ennismore on Tuesday afternoon and evening, Sept. 19th. The time will be spent in playing games and amusements of an appropriate character.

Several speakers will be present and good music will be provided for the occasion, so that there will not be a dull moment. A splendid programme has been arranged and a sumptuous supper will be served. A large crowd is expected and is being provided for. Come and enjoy the most pleasant time of the season.

FOR SKIN DISEASES

A Treatment That Costs Nothing Unless it Provides Satisfactory Relief

We have a grayish-white ointment with a pleasant odour that is clean to use, which we believe is the best known remedy for the relief of skin diseases. It is especially efficacious for overcoming eczema in all its various forms, ringworm, acne, pimples blotches, insect bites, tetter, certain forms of ulcers, sores and wounds. It is strongly antiseptic, cleansing soothing and healing. It stops all itching and burning caused by skin eruptions.

We are so positive this ointment is unequalled that we offer it with the distinct understanding that if after having given it a reasonable trial, you are not satisfied with the results, you have only got to tell us and we will without quibbling, return every cent paid us for it. We exact no promises or obligations whatever.

We want you to try Rexall Eczema Ointment. The first application gives a refreshing sense of relief, and because of its germ destroying power it eradicates the germ or parasite which causes eczema and many other eruptions. It quickly allays the inflammation, gives protection to the inflamed surfaces, and helps restore healthy tissue. It is particularly active in relieving skin ailments peculiar to children. You certainly cannot lose anything by trying it. We would not dare make this offer except we are positive Rexall Eczema Ointment will satisfactorily benefit you. Two sizes 50c. and $1.00. Remember, you can only obtain it at our stores,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

THE EMPEROR'S ACTION AVERTED A PANIC

KIEV, RUSSIA, SEPT. 15.— Later reports indicate that it was the Emperor Nicholas' prompt action that prevented a panic at the Municipal theatre last night when Premier Stolypin was shot by a young lawyer while witnessing a gala performance, following a day of festivities in this city yesterday. When the noise of the shots resounded through the theatre, there were preparations for a mad rush, but Nicholas rose in the Imperial box and in a loud voice commanded that the national anthem be played. The music subdued the fears and the audience recovered its composure. Surgeons say this morning that Stolypin may recover. This is the fourth attempt on his life.

OBITUARY

MICHAEL WALTER SULLIVAN.

On Thursday evening, at 9 o'clock, here passed away one of Ennismore's finest young men, in the person of Michael Walter Sullivan, son of Mr. Michael Sullivan, aged twenty-five years. Some two years ago Mr. Sullivan slipped off a straw stack and fell a distance of 20 feet, receiving internal injuries. He apparently fully recovered from the effects of the accident but during the last six months he had been complaining and passed away suddenly last night, in the arms of his mother.

The deceased had many warm friends in Ennismore and Peterborough, who will learn with regret of his sudden death.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Lot 9, Con. 6, Ennismore, on Sunday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, to St. Martin's church, where service will be held, the interment taking place in St. Martin's cemetery.

MR. WM. LOGAN.

Mr. Wm. Logan, a well known and highly respected citizen, passed away at St. Joseph's hospital this morning after a short illness. The late Mr. Logan was a son of the late, Wm. Logan, and has been a resident of Peterborough all his life. He was very popular and his large number of friends will learn of his sad and sudden demise with heartfelt sympathy.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, 221 Brock street, tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery at three o'clock.

NOT DUPLICATED

"Baby Mine" at the Grand, Wednesday, Sept. 20th

There will be plenty of honest laughter at the Grand Opera House when the production of "Baby Mine," under the direction of William A. Brady, L'td., will be seen here for the first time. "Baby Mine" is considered the funniest play ever written, and is putting a girdle of laughter around the world. It is now in its second year at the Vaudeville Theatre, London, and also plays for one solid year at Daly's Theatre, New York, and will shortly be produced in Paris, Berlin, Vienna, St. Petersburg and Australia.

Young Mrs. Alfred Hardy and his equally young wife have a tiff, because she innocently joins a mutual friend named Jimmy Jinks at a restaurant lunch for two. Jimmy's name is kept out of the affair, but Alfred determines to teach his wife a lesson by leaving her. To bring him back, Jimmy, Mrs. Jinks, and the abandoned little wife, put their heads together and hit upon a scheme to bring back the wandering husband. Then come no end of complications and amusing situations before the tangle is finally unravelled.

Ladies of Culture and Refinement Use Salvia Hair Tonic. It makes the Hair Beautiful

At last a remedy has been discovered that will positively destroy this pest.

That Dandruff is caused by germs is accepted by every sensible person. Dandruff is the root of all hair evils!

SALVIA will kill the dandruff germs and remove Dandruff in ten days, or money back.

McDermid and Jury guarantees it. It will grow hair, stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair thick and abundant. It prevents hair from turning gray, and adds life and lustre.

SALVIA is a hair dressing that has become the favourite with women of taste and culture, who know the social value of beautiful hair. A large, generous bottle costs only 50c. at leading druggists everywhere, and in Peterborough by McDermid and Jury. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

RUGBY

There will be a practice of all those interested in rugby at Riverside park to-morrow afternoon and it is hoped that there will be a big crowd in attendance. Stung Again.

"Here, drink this!" said the great detective, and after his trembling visitor had drunk that he ceased trembling and began to shake.

"Every night," he gasped, "at exactly 11:64, I hear the voice, 'Beware!' it says to me, 'Beware!'"

"Be where?" asked the great detective, "or beware?"

"Beware," replied the shaking man.

"That's important," commented the great detective.

"It can't be human," continued the shaking man, "because every door and window is locked and not a soul is in the room except my own."

"Strike at the voice with a club to-night," said the great detective, after a moment's reflection, "and telegraph me the result."

At 11:72 that night the great detective received the following telegram: "Have killed the mosquito."—Philadelphia Times.

Modern Nature Law.

To write of the wonders of nature
Is now the acceptable dodge,
To trace the Nemnoot's nomenclature
And learn where the Lorisee lodge,
To set forth the habits of rabbits,
To sum up the porcupine's spines,
To mention the uses of mooses and geese
And tell how the ocelot dines,

To teach us to know the gorilla
And how to tell llamas from lambs,
About what to chin the chinchilla
And how best to entertain clams,
To post us on pigeons and widgeons
And tell how to make beavers heave
Or how to investigate an eagle or beagle
His highest and best to achieve,

To state all the traits of the wombat,
To show why the koulan and vole
Are always engaged in a combat—
These stories I swallow down whole.
But still with two questions I wrangle,
And help will not come at my call—
Why an angleworm hasn't an angle
And a mongoose is no goose at all.
—Harper's Weekly.

A Hair Raising Accident.

"What was the commotion at the theater the other night when the crowd gathered in the lobby?"

"A lady coming out had a head-on collision with an obtruding gas jet, and her elaborate coiffure was a perfect wreck."

"What was the cause of it?"

"I think a misplaced switch."—Baltimore American.

Spider and Fly.

"Please keep out of my parlor,"
Said the spider to the fly.
"You're loaded with bacteria
That's bound to terrify
The insect sanitarian
Of every breed and brand.
How any one could eat you now
I cannot understand."
—Scranton Tribune-Republican.

Good Qualifications.

"Mrs. Teaser would make a great baseball catcher."

"What makes you think so?"

"Why, the other night she caught her husband stealing home and put him out."—Exchange.

Mrs. Knagger—"I remember the time when you were just crazy to marry me."

Mr. Knagger—"So do it, but I didn't realize it at the time."

Pastoral Ode.

Maud Muller on a summer's day
Raked the meadows sweet with hay.
The judge proposed. "Ah, no," said she
"This old rake's good enough for me!"
—Harper's Weekly.

Popular Publicity.

"That tall waiter seems to be very much in demand."

"Yes; he never opens a bottle of champagne without attracting the attention of everybody in the room."—Pittsburg Post.

Up and Down.

This life shows movements up and down,
especially the down:
We have to get up in the morn to make our way downtown.

They Acquire Them.

"It is said that impetuous people have black eyes."

"Yes, and if they don't have them they are apt to get them."—New York Mail.

The Uninvestigated.

Oh, happy many times are those
In mediocrity's position,
With wealth enough to know some ease
And not enough to cause suspicion.

Victim of Drink Needs Orrine

Drink cunningly destroys the will power, and while the drunkard wants to do what you tell him, he wants a thousand times more the drink that he craves. Medical treatment is necessary. Orrine destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink will not be missed and restores the patient to health.

This remedy is thoroughly scientific and is so uniformly successful that it is sold with a guarantee to refund your money if after a trial it has not benefitted. Booklet free on request. The Orrine Company, Orrine Building, Washington, D.C. Sold in this city by Wm. Madill.

LAKEFIELD FAIR, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 19TH AND 20TH

The 57th Annual Exhibition of the Lakefield Agricultural Society will be held in the fine new grounds of the Society in Lakefield, on the above dates. The building and grounds have been put in excellent shape, and there is every promise of a good Exhibition. The speeding in the ring promises to be extra good. A purse of $100.00 for the Free-for-all, and $70 in the 2.35 trot will be worth seeing. The prize list entry form, etc., may be had by applying to W. Sherin, Secretary, Lakefield.

How Clouds Get Their Fringes.

Prof. Tyndall used to explain to popular audiences, with the aid of a brilliant experiment, that the blue color of the sky is owing to floating particles of invisible dust that break up and scatter the short waves, which are the blue waves, of light. This occurs principally at a great elevation, where the atmospheric dust is extremely fine, while in the lower regions of the air, where the dust is coarser, the scattering affects all the rays, or colors, alike. The brilliant fringes of clouds, seen nearly in the direction of the sun, are largely due to dust, which especially accumulates in the neighborhood of clouds and refracts the sunlight around their edges.

Queen Consort's Flag.

For the first time in the history of England the flag of a Queen Consort was flown over Buckingham Palace recently. The new flag is a beautiful creation, the colors being woven and painted with marvellous dexterity. One side of it does not differ from the Royal Standard; the other, composed of eight square portions, consists of the Royal Standard with new quarterings, illustrating Queen Mary's descent from the Houses of Cambridge and Teck.

"John, the janitor's son whipped Jimmy today."

"Well, that's no great calamity. Suppose Jimmy had whipped the janitor's son!"—Pittsburg Post.

First o'er battleships we fret;
Then we make a gun
Big and strong enough to get
The warship on the run;
Then some armoring brand new,
Better to defend;
Then a greater gun we view,
And so on without end.
—Washington Star.

Miss Parvenu—I was almost sorry, ma, that you spoke so rudely to that poor little Mrs. Willis.

Mamma—Well, my dear, pray where is the satisfaction of being in the best society if you cannot snub those who are out of it?—Philadelphia Times.

Money Maxims.

Make all you can; save all you can; give all you can.—Wesley.

A wise man should have money in his head, not in his heart.—Swift.

Put not your trust in money, but put your money in trust.—Holmes.

The use of money is all the advantage there is in having it.—Franklin.

Money is a handmaiden if you know how to use it—a mistress if you do not know how.—Horace.

State Lines.

Maryland is a garden of paradise surrounded by a body of water and Washington.—Baltimore American.

Rhode Island casts a smaller vote proportionately to its population than is polled in any other northern state.—Providence Journal.

Connecticut has become an authority upon such matters, so its decision that a balloon is not an airship stands.—New Haven Journal-Courier.

Aviation.

The Connecticut legislature has passed a law requiring aviators and airships to take out licenses.

A British automobile concern has built a truck and trailer especially for the transportation of aeroplanes.

Plans for a new form of holiday—touring by aeroplane—are being formed both in England and in France.

Sporting Notes.

Only two light harness horses, Jay-Eye-See and Anaconda, have both paced and trotted miles under 2:10.

Captain George Moriarty of the Detroit Tigers doesn't drink, smoke or swear and insists on his ball players going to church on Sunday.

There will be two Heinie Zimmermans with the Chicago Nationals next season. The new Heinie hails from the Atlanta club of the Southern league and plays center field. He stole 105 bases last season.

Sir William Whyte.

In 1909 Mr. Whyte reached the age limit of service on the C.P.R., but by a special dispensation this was extended two years. So in a short time either his retirement or another extension of time will be due.

It is impossible to think of William Whyte as a man who is too old for active service, despite the fact that he is 67 years of age, and has been a tremendous worker all his life. He was born in Scotland of humble parents, in September, 1843—the year in which Sir Donald Mann's father came to Canada. He worked on a Scottish railroad for a while, came to Canada, and got a job as a brakeman. In 1886 he had become general superintendent of the western division of the C.P.R. Later he was made vice-president and given complete control of the Western part of the system, comprising over 6,000 miles of railroad. That's a record for both the man and the country which provided him his opportunity to be proud of. Now he is Sir William Whyte, with higher honors yet possibly ahead of him.

Wave to the Coast.

Figures at hand at the Winnipeg immigration hall for the fiscal year just completed reach a total of 311,084, or over 100,000 greater than the immediate previous fiscal year. The best previous year was 1907-1908, when 262,469 immigrants entered Canada. Of last year's aggregate 123,013 came from the United Kingdom, 86,212 being English. Americans numbered 121,451 and Europeans 61,620. The prairie provinces absorbed the bulk of immigrants, but 54,689 went to British Columbia, and this of the very best class. Indeed, possibly the most significant feature of these statistics is the big wave to the Pacific province.

A Unique Distinction.

Lady Laurier is the only Canadian woman who has ever addressed a British Legislature. Once at a reception given in Ottawa she was discovered standing at the foot of the throne, and there arose a demand for a speech, only half meant at first, but later insisted on.

Story of a Nail Keg.

A hundred years ago Jeremiah Atwater was a leading New Haven merchant, buying his supplies in Boston and receiving them by vessel. Among other goods received were several casks of nails, one of which on opening it under a layer of nails at each end was found to be filled with silver dollars. Mr. Atwater, who was a conscientious man, immediately wrote to the Boston merchant that there must be some mistake in the invoice of nails, as one of the casks contained other articles besides nails. He was promptly informed that the nails were bought for nails, sold for nails and nails they must be. Forthwith Mr. Atwater had a basin made of the silver and presented it to the Center church, where it has been used in the baptismal service from that time to the present.

Art and Nature.

Art is the revelation of man, and not merely that, but likewise the revelation of nature speaking through man Art pre-exists in nature, and nature is reproduced in art. As vapors from the ocean floating landward and dissolved in rain are carried back in rivers to the ocean, so thoughts and the semblances of things that fall upon the soul of man in showers flow out again in living streams of art and lose themselves in the great ocean, which is nature. Art and nature are not then, discordant, but ever harmoniously working in each other.—Longfellow's "Hyperion."

The Onyx.

The Burmese believe that the onyx contains in it an evil spirit which wakes at sunset and causes terror to the wearer, disturbing sleep with terrible dreams.

Pocket Knives.

The subdivision in labor in pocket-knife making is very rigid. A forger knows no other department than his own. His hand is trained to do no work but that. A grinder works over the wheel only.

An Old Roman Custom.

To keep wolves from their beasts old Roman farmers used to catch a wolf, break its legs, sprinkle its blood around the farm and bury the carcass in the middle of it.

Good Poultry.

There is no blue or green tinge about the veins of good poultry. This is a mark of decay the careful buyer should not fail to observe.

Lorraine Embroidery.

Lorraine is celebrated for the hand embroidery made by its peasant women. The women of Lixheim, which is the center of this industry, are regarded as the most skillful. Their average earnings are about 32 cents per day.

Changed Conditions.

The New Stationmaster—I'm glad to find you such a willing worker. I was warned that I would find you the most ill-tempered and lazy man on the station.

Porter (anxious to ingratiate himself)—An' so I was till you comed, sir.

Determined to Get Next.

"One of these days you'll see business is going to the dogs," said the cheerless person.

"I don't believe it," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "But if that time comes you find me running one of the biggest kennels on earth."

Putting on Style.

"Well, I never!"

"What's the matter, my dear?"

"Why, cook says that those people who live in that insignificant little house opposite came over here while we were away and were photographed sitting on our verandah!"—Pearson's.

Summer Days.

The days go loitering on the way
Through sunshine and through storm.
They could not hurry much, they say.
The weather was too warm.
—Washington Star.

Needed More.

Bronx—Professor Aleck has issued a very interesting bulletin on how to keep bees.

Lenox—Well, I think he'd do a lot more good if he told us how to get rid of hives.—Judge's Library.

A WEAK HEART

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery, remember the blood-forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by its use flood the system with rich, red, vitalizing blood. This is Nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

Important To Ladies

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at Hotel Oriental on Sept. 15 and 16.

One Hundred Years Old.

Ambroise Guay, the oldest citizen in Quebec City, recently celebrated the 100th anniversary of his birth, and the event was a memorable one. Over 300 relatives and friends assembled at his residence to do him honor, and after a mass at St. Jean Baptiste Church, there was a banquet. Mr. Guay is still in good health and spirits, but he was spirited away by his friends while the celebration was at its height, in order that he should not be too much fatigued by the event.

RALLYING THE BRITISH BORN AT SO MUCH PER RALLY

Some Light on Mr. Arthur Hawkes' Superfluous Political Activities---Also on the Question Who Pays the Shot.

Mr. Arthur Hawkes, of Toronto, according to the posters, will hold a "British Rally" in the Grand Opera House, Peterboro, on the evening of September 19, "under the auspices of the Canada-British Association." Further on the poster says: "It is proposed to form a branch of the Association in Peterboro."

This naturally gives rise to two questions. What is the Canada-British Association, which has no branch in Peterboro, but under whose auspices Mr. Hawkes is going to deliver an inflammatory lecture? Who is Arthur Hawkes?

A TELL TALE LETTER

That the character of the organization is purely political is shown by the following reproduction of a circular letter bearing the signature of Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines in the Ontario Government. The letter, which was sent to a Conservative editor, and intended for the use of the faithful only, is sent out from the Conservative headquarters in Toronto, and announces that Mr. Hawkes has been employed to write articles for the party and to speak at one meeting per day during the campaign. Here is the letter:

THE DOMINION
LIBERAL-CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION FOR ONTARIO

410 Crown Life Buildings,
Toronto.
J. S. Carstairs, Secretary.

August 16th, 1911.

The Editor,

Dear Sir,

I am glad to tell you that we are fortunate enough to have the aid of the pen of Mr Arthur Hawkes in the Election Campaign, and I know you will be glad to use the signed articles by him that will come to you.

Mr. Hawkes has written ten National Specials under most attractive titles; and, under his nom de plume of John V. Borne, twenty-six pithy articles of about 350 words each, under the general heading "Points about the Deal." Mr. Hawkes will address at least one meeting a day for the rest of the campaign, and has also promised to write a series of news stories, entitled "Through Ontario with the British-born," which will be placed freely at your disposal.

I thought that you would like to know we shall be very glad to see this ammunition as widely used as possible.

Yours faithfully,
F. COCHRANE.

WHAT THE LETTER SHOWS

Outside Mr. Cochrane's endorsation of Mr. Hawkes' political efforts, the Conservative Cabinet Minister's letter almost looks like an excerpt from Arthur Hawkes' prospectus pushing his own wares. Mr. Hawkes has always been in the writing business, and has lately taken up the speaking business as a profitable side line. The "twenty-six pithy articles" of 350 words each amount to about 30,000 words; the "ten national specials" will average 3000 words each—as a magazine expert Mr. Hawkes knows you can't hold the interest longer—another 30,000 words; and the "news stories, entitled "Through Ontario with the British-born," perhaps ten of them, will run to about 30,000 words more.

A THRIFTY IDEA

In round numbers, Mr. Hawkes brings 100,000 words to the service of the campaign against reciprocity. And very serviceable words they are—to Mr. Hawkes. The Canadian Press Syndicate of Montreal is handling the "ten national specials" and the "twenty-six pithy articles" and "the news stories," entitled "Through Ontario with the British-born." They also figure in the boiler plate supplement the Montreal Star is sending out free to country Conservative newspapers with this dure, signed by Brenton L. McNab, the managing editor. "They will think you are doing this at your own cost, and will admire your enterprise." And is it too much to infer that Mr. Hawkes, the man who is so thrifty of an idea, takes the 100,000 words that make up the "ten national specials" and "the twenty-six pithy articles" and the "news stories," entitled "Through Ontario with the British-born" and works them over into the one Conservative campaign speech a day which he hands out, as per printed poster, under the title, "The Place of the British-born in the Coming General Elections"?

Nobody can blame Mr. Arthur Hawkes for getting as much as he can out of one thought. He is a married man—with a family to support. He writes what he is paid for. He has a flash line of goods to sell and he takes them to the people who want to buy. But as far as the imaginary Canada-British Association is concerned, all we can see in it is the Association of Mr. Arthur Hawkes with a money-making idea which he brought to market.

MR. HAWKES' CAREER

Who is Mr. Arthur Hawkes? He is a decent citizen, about forty years of age, who is in the business of writing things for money. He lives in Toronto now, but for many years he lived in the Canadian North-West. As a lad he worked on a North-West farm, but drifted into the newspaper business, where his special talent lay. After a while he came to Toronto and wrote editorials for the Toronto World, which thoroughly suited Billy Maclean. From there he went to the Monetary Times and wrote editorials which suited the Monetary Times. It was a long step from Billy Maclean to the Monetary Times.

From the Monetary Times he went to the Canadian Northern Railway, where Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann found that they had use for a publicity man who could adapt his views so readily. For the Canadian Northern, as for Billy Maclean and the Monetary Times, Mr. Hawkes did excellent service, for he is a clear and convincing writer. He wrote advertisements, got up special articles for the newspapers and magazines, which certainly were not intended to hurt Mackenzie or Mann, prepared interviews to hand out to the reporters whenever Sir William came back with another bagful of money from England, and developed a habit of attending banquets and making witty after-dinner speeches to boost the railway. About six months ago Mr. Hawkes left the Canadian Northern to go into the newspaper business on his own account. He is now editor and publisher of the British News of Canada, printed in Toronto. The British News of Canada is entertaining immigration literature normally, and anti-reciprocity literature at convenience.

BRITISH-BORN PART OF MR. HAWKES

Mr. Hawkes was born in England, but he came to Canada when he was fifteen years old. He was in Canada before he was old enough to vote. He cast his first vote and all the other votes he has had since in Canada. He has been twenty-five years in Canada, and you couldn't tell he was born in England, not even from his accent. The climate has nearly rubbed that out of him.

It is so long since Mr. Hawkes left England that as soon as the Canadian Northern established an Atlantic steamship line—which was a year ago—he took a trip over to see if he could remember what the country was like. He found that it had grown out of his recollection. When he came back he was as good a Canadian as ever. He only Britishborns at election times.

THE RIGHT PLACE

Mr. Hawkes heads his poster "Canada for the Canadians," and further down promises an address on "The Place of the British-born in the Coming General Elections." Mr. Hawkes does not stand between love and duty as one might suppose. He is not altogether playing both ends for the middle. He has simply got a wrong idea about the place of the British-born.

The place of the British-born in a Canadian general election is to be good Canadians and good subjects of King George. Reciprocity in natural products may be explained as Canada for all the Canadians, and not Canada for a few Canadian food monopolists. The place for good British born subjects of King George in a Canadian general election is just the opposite side from Bourassa, the Quebec firebrand, who hates England and strives to destroy British ascendancy in Canada.

The place for the British born in the coming Canadian general election is on the side of their real friends. Their real friends in Canada, as in England, are the Liberal party, for most of the British born who come out here to better their condition belong to the working classes. The Liberal Government gave them what blessings they had in the Old Country, and it is the Liberal Government who gives them their blessings in Canada. It is the Liberal Government, whether in Canada or in England, that strives to benefit the common people. The British born should know that it is the Liberal Government that has stood by the unions, helped labor, kept Canada a white man's country, and thrown open the North-West to the homeseekers. Also it was the Liberal Government that gave England the British preference, the South African contingents and the Canadian navy.

THE BUTTERED SIDE.

The right place for the British born who appreciates cheaper living, more work and better wages is on the side that his bread is buttered on. Such sons of England as are fathers of families will agree with that.

The right place for the British born is alongside Premier Asquith, who says that reciprocity will be good for business and good for the Empire; alongside Lloyd-George, that friend of labor, who says reciprocity is crystallized common-sense; alongside British Ambassador Bryce, who helped to make the reciprocity agreement.

FLY-BY-NIGHT APPEALS

The straight truth is that Mr Arthur Hawkes, the paid advocate of anti-reciprocity, is doing a vicious and unpatriotic thing when he seeks to create division between the British who were born in England and the British who were born in Canada. All are British who are born within the British Empire, and all are equally proud of it. And when we are in Canada we can best be British by being good Canadians, just as if we were in Australia, we could best be British by being good Australians, for that is the plan by which the greatest aggregation of free nations the world ever saw is held together.

What do these fly-by-night appeals, paid for at so much per appeal, amount to? To come down to cases what is Mr. Arthur Hawkes prepared to do for the British born except talk nonsense? Will he give them jobs or put his hand in his pocket to help them? Mr. Hawkes is just Britishborning for a little while for his own bank account. He is here to-day and gone to-morrow, but J. R. Stratton is on the spot and on the job all the time.

To come to the pith of the matter, under what auspices does Mr. Arthur Hawkes visit Peterboro? Mr. Burnham's supporters are busy disclaiming responsibility for his appearance. It is up to the British born to inquire whether Mr. Hawkes pays railway fare, hotel bills and one hundred dollars for the Opera House out of pure philanthropy.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

If a child is brought up in the constant exercise of courtesy toward brothers and sisters and playmates, as well as toward parents and uncles and aunts, it will have little left to learn as it grows older.

Character makes the man; character plus culture makes the gentleman and the true gentleman is the real nobleman of this world. Culture is the rose on the breast of character. Wear it that you may make life not only useful and honourable, but high sweet and helpful, noble and divine.

The house and home require a head the same as any other business. No study is of greater importance to a girl; after marriage she often wishes she knew ore of cooking and less of Latin. Money and love combined does not form a safeguard where there is domestic incapacity. A woman who is capable of filling her home in every sense of the word is worthy of more true applause than if she possessed many accomplishments.

Children lost! lost! lost! Hearken to the startled cry. Children lost! lost! Oh en, your cities are full of them; and they are your children, your own tender little ones; mothers, the babies that lay in smiling innocence upon your bosoms; the dear, brave boys that looked up to you in perfect confidence and warm impulse love. Your homes are lonely without them, your hearts are hungry for their love. Oh, you miss them now; the darlings of other years; you want the little hands in your own once ore; you want the warm kiss upon your aching brow. But life hurries on, and lost! lost! ever rings through the darkened aisles of time. One by one the drunkard's graves yawn wide and somebody's darling is gone. The midnight revel and the gabling den covers its ghastly dead, and the homes are in sackcloth and sorrow sits a familiar guest by many a hearthstone. Brave, beloved boys, noble men, fair browed maidens and mature womenhood. Oh, how they fall and perish; and the land is full of "Rachels, weeping for their children who will not be comforted because they are not."

Girls that have not the smallest vestige of taste for music, appreciable by the strongest microscope of optimism of charity, are often compelled to sit for hours practising, punishing the piano and the neighbours, subjecting themselves to a mental irritation that is ruffling and destructive of clear thinking. Then, when the day of reckoning comes, and an account of stock is taken, the parent, not finding the dividends proportioned to the investment, mercilessly calls the poor girl's attention to the hundreds of dollars spent in her musical education and accuses her of ingratitude in not being equal to her opportunity. It was really that was not equal. A small fraction of the amount spent in this penal servitude to music, if expended in art, language, or some power or taste in the direction of the girl's individuality, might have made her happy for years, and have broadened her entire mental and moral development.

There is an opportunity for every young man to become an honoured citizen, and so many, oh so many precious boys, are allowing themselves to be carried along, apparently caring but little about their future. We do admire a manly boy, one who tries to become a man, and we always feel like helping him along. The boy who steps out from among evil associates, gives tobacco the go-by, has the true grit and deserves to be helped. It takes considerable to turn one's back upon those whom he has been associating with and we admire the pluck of one who does so.

In the home life never forget that the children have social rights, and the chief among these is the right to laugh when they are happy, to cry when they are unhappy and to make a noise.

The sphere of the woman is to preside over the home as its light and inspiration. No charms so captivating, no grace so irresistable, no spirits so exuberant, no wit so cheery, no conversation so fascinating, no culture so varied, but can find in the home a fit place for their varied charms.

Every good act is charity. An exhortation of your fellowmen to virtuous deeds is equal to alms-giving; your putting a wanderer on the right track is charity; your removing stones and thorns and other obstructions from the road is charity. A man's true wealth hereafter is the good he does in this world to his fellowmen. When he dies people will say, "What property has he left behind him." But if angels who examine him in the grave will ask, "What good deeds hast thou sent before thee?"

• • •

Children in a family should be treated as a gardener cares for his flowers. He realizes that they require different lights, soils, moistures, shade and attention. The treatment that would make a rose win a gold medal at a horticultural show might kill an orchid. He studies the plants, their habits, needs, peculiarities and individuality. He seeks to discover how each grows naturally. He does not force his process on Nature; but seeks humbly to follow her guidance and revelation. He realizes that Nature not only deals but leads. Parents do not always learn this lesson; they do not always realize that in showing us how children grow most naturally Nature is revealing to us the best method of training them.

HAWKING IN SKYE.

In the north-west corner of the Isle of Skye, between Lochs Dunvegan and Pooltiel, there is a promontory some seven miles long y three broad. On either side the moors slope up from the shores of the sea lochs until they meet in a ridge of hills about 900 ft. high. This ridge runs north and south along the whole length of the promontory and ends in Dunvegan Head, from which one can look down sheer into the Little Minch, a thousand feet below. So abrupt is the ending of the land that we are positively staggered by the suddenness of it, and by the awe-inspiring view.

For a mile (says a writer in the "Field") we have been toiling up a long grass slope from the moor below, now shooting at a snipe which rises out of a bog formed by a hillside spring, and now turning back for a moment to enjoy a breathing space and to admire the view behind us. We can see the towering peaks of the Cooling far to the southward, while Waternish Point extends out boldly to the east. We think, perhaps, that a better view might be obtained from the top of the next ridge above us. Slowly we toil to the top, and then what little breath remains is taken away. Instead of the long grassy plateau which we expect to see in front, there is space! At our very feet is the edge of a mighty almost overhanging, precipice. After we have feasted our eyes for some minutes on this wonderful sight, we turn and resume our march, for we have three trained hawks to fly. Gae is somewhat scarce, but snipe are fairly numerous, and the grouse lie well to dogs all the season. We have been shooting all the morning, and have bagged fifteen brace of grouse, from points, and a hare or two.

Having a good goshawk with us, we decide to try for a blue hare along the top of the hill. Though we must wait for the peregrine if we wish to see the poetry of the sport, yet a flight with a goshawk has much to recommend it. Up jumps an old, brown hare, and we slip the hawk, though it is quite possible that he may prove too heavy for her. Everyone is off at top speed in a moment; over burns, up slopes, down steep tracks, through bogs, with only one object, to keep the hawk in view.

WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

A Dangerous Discovery

Made at the Rockefeller Institute For Scientific Discovery and at Once Suppressed

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Two physicians devoted to the experimental branch of their profession sat in the Rockefeller institute, from which emanate most of the new ideas we receive, discussing a problem in transfusion. They were Dr. Pendleton, who has begun the work of replacing knee and elbow joints that have become useless with those of other persons, and Dr. Sisson, the prince of bacteriologists.

"It is time," said Dr. Pendleton, "that we made some great step in transfusion. I don't mean in the process, but in the results attained. Away back in 1668 in London the blood of a dog was let into another dog, the blood of the latter being let out on the opposite side. What have we done since? Nothing more than transfuse blood for the purpose of temporarily maintaining life. Now, if one animal had been a bulldog, another a spaniel, and it had been noted and recorded that the recipient dog's disposition had been turned from fierceness to gentleness a great point would have been gained."

"That's a good idea of yours, doctor," replied Dr. Sisson. "I wonder that it has never been advanced before. Yet we must remember it is only recently that we have in this institution the means for developing such original ideas."

"Then let us begin the development of this one."

"What do you propose?"

"Not in this case to operate with guinea pigs. We can do better with human beings. Suppose we take a soldier of an especially bloodthirsty nature and give him the blood of a mild, soft spoken curate."

"A good suggestion. But I think I have a better one. By transfusing the blood between the sexes I think we shall get more pronounced results."

"Eureka!" exclaimed Dr. Pendleton enthusiastically, and, reaching out his hand, he grasped that of his coworker.

The two investigators found a man who was willing to submit to the transfusion process, he having been long afflicted with impoverishment of blood. An attempt to give him blood from but one woman was not attempted. A small quantity from each of a number was put into his veins and without injury to either the subject or those who gave up a portion of their vital fluid.

George Wattles was the man who was operated upon. The operators simply told him that his blood had been replaced by that of other human beings. He saw for himself that they were women, but it did not occur to him that this might have any especial effect upon him. He was in love with a very charming girl, but her parents would not permit her to marry him on account of his poor health. Indeed, one of the reasons for his submitting to the transfusion was that he might recover his health and marry.

He was discharged from the institute, but not to remain away continuously. Every alternate day he must return and be under the observation of the doctors.

The first person Mr. Wattles went to see after his discharge was Miss Charlotte Sanger. He had advised her of the day and hour of his coming, and she was waiting for him impatiently. What was her surprise to see him come into the room with that skip by which actors on the stage attempt to personate young men, but which instead reminds us of boydemish girls.

"Oh, Lottie, dear," he exclaimed, putting out both hands and kissing her on each cheek, then looking at her with his head cocked sidewise on his shoulders, "you can't imagine how nice I feel. I'm just too well for anything."

Miss Sanger frowned. What had come over her lover?

"The doctors," continued her fiance, "were awfully lovely to me—one of them was ever so handsome—and did not hurt me even a little teeny weeny bit."

Miss Sanger looked at Mr. Wattles in astonishment.

"Why, Lottie, dear," he exclaimed, with a pout, "how cold you are! Don't you love me any more?"

"I haven't changed, George."

"Then what does it mean? You don't pet me a bit."

He tossed his head, and she saw a tear sparkle in his eye.

"Sit down, George, and tell me about the operation."

She led him to a sofa; he drew her arm around his waist and, snuggling up to her, began:

"Dr. Pendleton—he's the handsome one—made all the preparations; then Dr. Sisson—I didn't like him, he's so cross—brought in a girl"—

"A girl?"

"Yes. She was about eighteen years old, strong and healthy."

"And the blood of this girl now flows in your veins?"

"Some of it. They opened a vein in me and a vein in the girl, and as the blood came into me I felt so funny. Do you know, I wished Dr. Pendleton, the handsome one, would kiss me?"

"Oh, you did!"

"Yes. But the next day they gave me some blood from an older woman. I didn't feel so nice when her blood was running into me. Somehow I felt as if things were going wrong all the while, and do you know what I wanted to do?"

"No. What?"

"I wanted to spank the baby."

Miss Sanger said nothing for some time. When she did she asked:

"Do you mean, George, that the doctors infused into you only the blood of women?"

"That's all. There was no man's blood."

Miss Sanger sat rigid. The expression on her face was not pleasant to look upon.

"I think you're real mean to me," said Mr. Wattles. "After being away from you so long and going through so much I expected you'd be nice to me. Instead I think you're horrid. So there!"

He arose and flounced out of the room. In the hall he waited for her to call him back. But she didn't, and he reluctantly went away.

He did not return to her that day, and the next he returned to the institute for observation. When he went again to see his ladylove, hoping to make up what he considered a trifling misunderstanding, he found that she had left the city.

"Well, I declare!" he exclaimed, quite startled.

But somehow he didn't miss her. On the days he did not report at the institute he went to the shops, looked over the pretty things displayed there and was always found where there were special inducements offered. He petted all the children he passed and asked their mothers if they were nursed or brought up on the bottle and if the latter what food was used. The news of the day failed to interest him, and whenever he was found reading the newspapers it was noticed that he was studying the advertisements.

One day the two doctors who had operated on him were discussing the results of their experiment.

"Well, doctor," said Pendleton, "what do you think?"

"Until yesterday," replied Sisson, "my only conclusions were that the transfusion of blood of the female into the male conduces to effeminacy. But something occurred yesterday afternoon which leads me to think that woman's blood transfused into a man may produce feminine perceptive faculties in man."

"What is the incident that has led you to this scientific conclusion?"

"Well, yesterday afternoon while passing down the street I heard the sound of drums, followed by the inspiring strains of music. Waiting to learn the cause, presently I saw a procession coming, attended by the usual crowd. As it drew nearer I observed that the participants were women. At their head, holding aloft a banner with the words 'Votes For Women' on it, marched our subject, Mr. Wattles."

The doctor paused, while his colaborer in the field of science sat in deep thought. Finally he said:

"And your inference is?"

"That the transfusion of woman's blood into man has for its resultant"—

"Surely no deteriorating effect, doctor!"

"Not at all. On the contrary, it gives the man an insight into those yearnings women have for their rights."

The two men sat silently thinking for some time, when Dr. Pendleton said:

"Doctor, I propose that the records of this experiment be burned."

"Why so?" asked Sisson.

"If published they will be a terrible blow to the male sex."

"In what respect, doctor? Explain yourself."

"I will do so by asking you a question. Suppose Mrs. Sisson should hear that the infusion of woman's blood in you would give you a clearer perception of her rights?"

"Great heavens, doctor, she would make a Wattles of me at once!"

"And Mrs. Pendleton would do the same by me."

"So would every married woman by her husband."

"And every girl by her lover."

"This is a dangerous scientific truth we have developed."

"Dangerous? The human male stands on a volcano!"

"Wattles reports tomorrow. What had we better do with him?"

"Kill him."

"No, no. Such an act would give the antivivisectionists a handle that would be ruinous to scientific investigation."

"I have it," said Dr. Pendleton. "We will transfuse sufficient woman's blood into him to kill every manly instinct. Then he will not be an example of what you have deduced."

"You have hit the nail on the head, doctor."

"My oldest son, five years old, got very bad with cholera infantum; two days after my next son took it, and the third day my little girl also took it. I doctored with all kinds of things, but they kept on getting worse and the doctors could do them no good. I then started the Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and after two or three days could see a difference, so kept on with the treatment, but they were so bad it took about two weeks to complete the cure. Different people have asked me how I saved my children's lives that time, and I always say it was Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I am now never without it in the house."

QUEER WILLS.

Last Testaments That Have Set the Judges Thinking.

"It is shocking to reflect upon the litigation which has been occasioned by laymen making their own wills."

It is not often that the man in the street has a laugh at the expense of the lawyers; but when Lord St. Leonards, the famous lawyer, who was a great authority on wills and property, died in 1875, the ordinary layman was walking about with a broad grin for some considerable time. For not only had Lord St. Leonards called the layman to account for making his own will, but he had often declared that his will would present to the world a "testamentary masterpiece." And yet when he died there was probably more litigation over his will than over any other, for the simple reason that it could not be found, although certain codicils were discovered. It was only when the intentions of the testator had been proved by these codicils and the recollection of his daughter, who had acted as his secretary, that Lord St. Leonards' property was finally disposed of.

But Lord St. Leonards was only one of several distinguished lawyers who failed to draw up their wills correctly. It was only the other day that it was shown that Judge Bacon, who left a fortune of over $500,000, made a will on a sheet of blue court foolscap containing several alterations and interlineations which were not signed or witnessed, he consequence being that before probate was granted careful legal investigation had to be made.

Two years ago there was considerable difficulty in proving a will of Mr. Henry George Allen, K.C. The will was written throughout in his own handwriting, very difficult to read, portions having to be "fair copied" for registration, while three of the codicils were necessary for the correction of errors and elucidation of doubtful points in the will itself. Then there was the case of Lord St. Helier, better known, perhaps, as Sir Francis Jeune, whose will contained so many confusing codicils that it occupied the court for some considerable time. It was discovered, for instance, among other things, that his lordship had left a legacy to a clerk who had been dead ten years.

The most confusing legal will, however, was that of the late Lord Grimthorpe, who, long before he succeeded to the title, earned distinction at the Bar as Mr. Edmund Beckett Denison, Q.C. Lord Grimthorpe's will contained no fewer than fourteen contradictory codicils, which the Probate Court were obliged to investigate very carefully before it could be proved. As a matter of fact, it was only by mutual agreement of the parties concerned that the litigation was kept within reasonable limits and a satisfactory settlement arrived at as to the disposal of Lord Grimthorpe's estate, which was valued at no less than two millions sterling.

Perhaps the most remarkable lawyer's will on record, however, was that of Sir John Maynard, King's Serjeant in the reign of Charles II., who deliberately framed his will so that it should raise legal questions which had puzzled him all his life-time, and which he had never been able to answer. The result was that so many disputes arose among his heirs that eventually a special Act of Parliament was passed disposing of his property.

Rather Difficult.

In a village within an hour's journey of Glasgow, much frequented by summer visitors, the sole barber of the place is noted for his leisurely ways, and to put oneself into his hands means a considerable sacrifice of time. Amongst the regular visitors were a father and son, who were inseparable companions. The elder had been in the hands of the knight of the razor for some considerable time, the youngster meanwhile cooling his heels outside. He kept popping his head in the door to see how matters progressed, but at last, becoming exasperated, and just as dad's face was in full lather and the barber leisurely stropping his steel, the door again opened, and a plaintive voice wailed:

"Oh, faither, can ye no' leave yer face wi' him, an' ca' back for't the morn?"

Notable British Aviators.

Among the representative aviators of Great Britain are C. Compton Paterson, one of the few men who have built and flown their own biplanes, and C. H. Pixton, who secured his pilot's certificate at Brooklands in February of this year and is noted for his pluck, "which borders on daredevilry." Mr. Pixton tells a good story concerning one of his flights. He engaged six burly men to hold down the tail of his machine while he set the engine going warming them beforehand that it "would pull like fury." Thinking it would rise like a balloon at the first sound of the exhaust they all threw themselves bodily on the tail and completely smashed the rudder-post to their great amusement.

Aliens In Medieval Times.

Medieval England had a rough and ready way of insuring the good behavior of aliens. According to the Saxon law of frankpledge, which remained in force until 1370, no "hosteler" might entertain a foreigner longer than a day and a night unless he undertook to answer for his guest's behavior. No foreigners were allowed to keep hotels in London. Some became naturalized in order to qualify for this privilege. Even these were not suffered to compete on equal terms with the natives, being required to keep their houses "in the heart of the city" and rigidly excluded from the more profitable regions near the Thames.

Carlyle's Retort.

The English practice of giving allowances from the civil list to necessitous authors is an old one. The grant is usually given in aid of literary labors that are of available nature, but that are not remunerative, such as research work, and it is rarely made except in strictly meritorious cases. It is related of Carlyle that he once pleaded with a prime minister of his day in favor of some necessitous author. The statesman demurred on the ground that Parliament might dispute the award in that particular case. "Sir," said Carlyle, "when you die and are asked to account for your failure to give this relief it is you who will be damned and not parliament."

A WHITE AUSTRALIA.

Sentiment Strongly Opposed to the Influx of Asiatics.

Australia does not intend to have a "colored problem" to combat with, if it can help it. The problem is not the negro, but a possible influx of "allegedly peaceful and loyal colored fellow subjects" of the British Empire from India. Australia is determined not to allow such an influx.

Writing on this subject James Edmond, editor of The Sydney Bulletin, says: "The white Australia idea is not a political theory. It is a gospel. It counts for more than religion; far more than the flag, because the flag waves over all kinds of races; for more than the Empire, for the Empire is mostly black or brown or yellow; is largely heathen; largely polygamous; partly cannibal. Some of it is married to its deceased wife's sister, which may not be objectionable, but a huge proportion of it still believes at its heart in the burning alive of its deceased brother's widow and that is wholly reprehensible. In fact, the white Australia doctrine is based on the necessity for choosing between national existence and national suicide. Australia is so far from Europe and North America, and is so close to Asia, that if it opened its gates it could easily get a hundred colored immigrants for one white — not the Kaffir variety of colored immigrant, but a kind which is capable of competing in all kinds of skilled craftsmanship. Supposing this influx set in, the country's present working class would disappear for exactly the same reason which has prevented any white working class appearing in India, Burmah, or Ceylon. Probably it would be found, as in the Indian dominions, that a white ruling caste of about half a million folk would fill all requirements. That would mean the vanishment of nearly nine-tenths of the present white population. And with this new arrangement of things a wonderful dream would pass like the smoke of yesterday's cigar.

For the Australian has a dream. His country is almost the same size as Europe or Canada. He pictures it as another and a better Europe, with 150,000,000 or 200,000,000 inhabitants. It is to be a Europe without the various flags, and the various languages, and the various races, and the traditions of civil and religious feud—without the tangle of ill-built medieval cities—with no semi-Tartar in the east, or unspeakable Turk in the southeast, or half-breed Greek, or Sicilian with the blood of Africa in his veins, or Portuguese mulatto, or semi-Moorish Spaniard. Also it is to be another Canada without its inhospitable climate and its mixed population, another United States without its negro problem; another South America without its diverse political interests and its wildly mongrel peoples. The dream is more than possible if Australia keeps itself white, but, unless appearances are wondrously deceitful, it is possible of no other great country on earth. Australia is the only continent which the Anglo-Saxon possesses—the only continent which any one nation possesses—also the only continent on record which has ever had one race, one language and one government. The distinction is rare enough to be worth preserving.

In Mr. Edmond's judgment the time will almost certainly come when the white Australia policy must go, or "it must be explained once and for all to the colored man, who makes up the great mass of the Empire, that he is an inferior being (he is already treated as one) and will never be anything else."

THE GREAT SEAL.

Precious Symbol of Office Has Had Many Adventures.

No other emblem of Governmental authority, perhaps, ever had such a series of queer adventures as those pertaining to the Great Seal of England.

In the first place, says Harper's Weekly, when Richard I. set out for the Holy Land he took the seal with him. His vice-chancellor, Malchien, is said to have worn it suspended by a chain around his neck. Off Cyprus the vice-chancellor fell overboard and was drowned, and the great seal was lost.

The first seal of Charles I. was thrown into the River Severn, in order that it might not fall into the hands of Cromwell's soldiers. When James II. fled from England he carried the great seal with him. He threw it into the Thames, evidently thinking that, without it, William III. could not carry on the government. A fisherman's net caught it, and it was restored to the authorities, and was used by William until a new seal was made.

In 1784 thieves broke into the house of Lord Chancellor Thurlow and stole the great seal. It was never recovered.

The county seat of Lord Chancellor Eldon took fire at night. At the first alarm the chancellor hurried from his sleeping chamber with the great seal, and buried it in his garden. In the morning he tried in vain to locate the place where he had buried the seal. By the advice of Lady Eldon every servant in the household was provided either with a spade, a trowel or a poker, and ordered to "probe" the garden. At last the chancellor was relieved by the cry of "found."

The great seal of England is often called "the seals," because it is made in two parts, the obverse and the reverse. In other days when a new seal was used the old one was broken into pieces, the destruction forming quite a ceremonious act. The pieces were a perquisite of the chancellor. In modern days the ceremony of breaking the old seal has consisted in the sovereign's giving it a gentle blow with a hammer. It is then supposed to be broken, and has lost all its virtue as a symbol of the royal authority. The lord chancellor preserves the "broken" seal, and hands it down as an heirloom to his descendants.

African Birds.

According to an article in The London Times, the relatives of the late Boyd Alexander are about to present, in accordance with the wishes of the deceased, his large collection of African birds to the British Museum. The specimens are about 4,000 in number and include several species (whether the types is not stated) discovered by the late explorer, among the most interesting of these being Willcock's honeyguide (indicator willcocksi) and the long-tailed tree-warbler (urolais marise), the latter representing a generic type of its own. The first portion of the collection was made in the Cape Verdes, a second portion during the Kumasi relief expedition, a third when Mr. Alexander led a column to Gambaga, a fourth in the course of the Alexander-Gosling expedition from the Nile to the Niger, and the last in the islands of the Gulf of Guinea.

"Linkie" the Hughligan.

Lord Hugh Cecil, who figured so unpopularly in the recent Parliamentary "scene," is called "Linkie" in the family circle. He is the youngest and most distinguished son of the late Marquess of Salisbury. He is a brilliant debater, although when he first commences to speak he seems to suffer from extreme nervousness. In view of his share in the recent scene, it is amusing to note that years ago he brought a proposition before the House that members who did not obey the Chair should be punished with imprisonment for an indefinite period. The House angrily debated the question for two hours, and then voted as follows: For, 0; against, 426—probably a Parliamentary record in majorities.

He Took Precedence.

The decision of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to raise in the Imperial Conference the question of the status of foreign consuls-general in Canada has recalled a good story recounted by Earl Grey. The earl was walking through Ottawa a short time since, when he met a foreign consul-general, to whom he observed: "You're quite a stranger. How is it we haven't been you recently at Government House?" To which the other, with some hesitation, rejoined that it was difficult for a foreign consul-general to go to receptions, where so many insignificant persons took precedence of him. "You come and lunch with me next Thursday at Government House," said Earl Grey, "and I'll undertake that no one shall have precedence of you."

The consul-general was delighted, and accepted on the spot. On the Thursday he lunched at Rideau Hall with the Governor-General, and had the honor of being the only guest. He was rather uncertain, however, whether Lord Grey had not played off a little joke on him.

A Royal Angler.

One of the most expert women anglers in Great Britain is Lady Dalhousie. Despite her family cares she finds time for indulgence in fishing. In that she is encouraged by Lord Dalhousie. Lord and Lady Dalhousie have gone to Brechin Castle, Forfarshire, to pass several months. Several reaches in the North Esk have been rented and the pair are having fine sport. Their attendants on fishing expeditions say Lady Dalhousie often displays even greater skill than her husband in handling reel and rod.

Dinner Time.

Englishmen in Queen Elizabeth's time dined at 11 a.m., and Shakespeare rang up the curtain at the Globe theatre at 1 p.m., the performance ending between 3 and 4 o'clock. By the time of Charles II. dinner had advanced to 1 o'clock, and the play began at 3 p.m., as Pepys records. A century later Horace Walpole complained of dinner being as late as 4 o'clock and evening not beginning until 6 o'clock. Up to the middle of the last century theatres opened at 6.30, dinner being proportionately earlier.

REAL SECRET OF FLIGHT.

Aeroplanes May Have to Be Fitted With Movable Wings.

Two German physicists, doing some experimenting for the Smithsonian institution, tell us that we are as yet off the line of the real secret of flight, says the Century Path. Fixed wings are a provisional makeshift and must, one would say, inevitably involve the death of every aviator who trusts himself to them for a sufficient number of flights. He must some time come to a place in the air where an upward and downward current are passing each other. If, as is sometimes certain, he has one wing in one of these and the other in the other his death is assured.

There must be a positive lifting power in the wings if safety is to be secured in this kind of flight. The wings must beat like those of an insect or a bird—the former, Drs. von Lendenfeld and Ritter say. And, we should say, there must be an automatically acting arrangement by which either wing can when necessary deliver a more powerful stroke or more rapid strokes than the other.

They studied the blowfly in particular, finding its wings to be a double membrane between whose layers is a supporting system of hollow tubes radiating from the joint and connected with cross pieces. The movement is directly downward and toward the end of the stroke a little forward. The upcome, which is slower, is a little backward, making the front half of the lower loop of a figure 8 and then the hinder half of the upper loop. In this the wing becomes a little vertical so as to oppose its back to an air current on which the insect is flying.

BROKEN RAILS.

Many Causes For These Promoters of Railroad Wrecks.

Among all the causes of railroad accidents in the United States none is mentioned with greater frequency than the broken rail.

Many causes are assigned, and, doubtless, many are contributory. An excess of phosphorus not easily eliminated by the Bessemer process by which nearly all American rails are made has been most commonly blamed, but some of the best mechanical engineers now regard this cause as unimportant. Improper shape and a lack of pressure in rolling modern heavy rails proportionate to that which was available for the lighter rails of the past are more important faults. An excess of carbon is another.

Faults of shape usually consist in undue thinness of the web or shank of the rail and thinness of the base. The disproportion between these parts and the head of the rail tends to a lack of uniformity in texture after cooling.

Most important of all causes of broken rails is the strain imposed by the great weight and high speed of modern trains. Mechanical engineers believe that with the present style of rail the limit of safety is reached at an axle load of 45,000 pounds, yet many trains considerably exceed that figure.

Two or three years ago steps were taken by various associations to have adopted specifications for a standard rail heavier in the web and the base than those in use; and these specifications were approved by leading engineers.—Harper's Weekly.

English in Austria's Army.

A letter from Budapest in a Vienna paper says that "another language has been added to the many already in use in the Austrian army. This one, however, is one which the man in search of linguistic data would not look for—English." He writes further that the rank and file of the Sixty-sixth regiment of infantry, stationed at Karschau, have voted in favor of English as the language to be employed in the regimental schools. The reason for this is found in the fact that the regiment is made up of recruits from the Karschau district. From there men and women in great numbers went to America. Many of them and their descendants returned to the old home bringing the English language with them. Consequently the children employ English as much as they do their native tongue.

A Savings Bank Library.

The following scheme is about to be set on foot in Brussels for the diffusion of enlightening literature. A central library consisting at the outset of 10,000 choice volumes is to be created there, and any inhabitant of any part of Belgium owning a savings bank book will be entitled to borrow from it and receive by post any book for a period of a fortnight on checking a penny off his savings bank book at the postoffice, his money at the bank serving as a guarantee for payment for books not returned. As there are about 1,500 postoffices in Belgium, this will amount to the creation of a circulating library with 1,500 branches whose risks will be more than covered by the deposits in the savings banks. —London Standard.

Noble German Actors.

Who shall say that the stage still suffers under a social disadvantage when we learn that fifty German noblemen are now appearing as actors and that six members of reigning families have taken their wives from behind the footlights? Among the aristocratic players are Baron Emil von Kleydorff, Baron von Wagenheim Count von Lerchenthal and a son of Prince Salm-Wittgenstein. It is not necessity but histrionic ambition that governs these people. Presumably they can act, and at least some of them can act well and are popular favorites.—Argonaut.

Still Unanswered.

We are advised to live and learn.
But why, alas, oh, why
Do people seldom learn to live
Till just before they die?

LEADERS IN STRIKE.

English Labor Chieftains Are a High-Class Group.

On Messrs. Gosling, Spicer & Tillett falls the chief burden of the fight, says The London Telegraph, and, with the exception of the latter, they are men who do not resemble in the least the loud-voiced, beetle-browed agitator and mad leader of this type pictured in the public mind.

Tillett is a picturesque figure. Short and stardy, broad-shouldered and deep-chested, with a pale, clean-shaven face, cast in a Napoleonic mould, and a broad forehead, overhung with long black hair. He is the most powerful and fiery speaker in the movement, and no one knows better than he how to sway an audience of workingmen.

The sight of his huge gray felt hat creates wild enthusiasm.

Harry Gosling is quite a different type. Tall and broad-shouldered, with wavy, iron-gray hair and moustache, and fresh complexion, a pleasant, well-modulated voice, he is the diplomatist of the movement and the chief organiser. He attends every conference, and has the complete confidence of the employers, and represents the workmen on the Port of London Authority.

James Spicer is another fine organizer. A good speaker, but not of the militant type, he has come all the multitude of details that require more or less immediate decision, and he has probably more worry and harrassing than any of his colleagues. These are the men who control the strikers and every one of them is anxious that the dispute should be carried on without violence. Their efforts to maintain order and discipline in their varied army have not met with complete success, but this is not the fault of the leaders, whose every speech is an exhortation for peace and discipline.

Seaweed.

The day may not be far distant when suits made from seaweed will be as common as that from wool or cotton.

Seaweed is really a most useful commodity. It forms a cheap barometer and holiday memento for the children; it provides the farmer with a somewhat odoriferous manure; certain varieties of the weed have been turned to account in the manufacture of photographic materials and now it promises to supply us with summer garments.

The weed used for this purpose comes from Australia and is more a fibre than a seaweed proper. It is dredged up from the bottom of the sea.

During the past few months several mills in Yorkshire have been experimenting, in the hope that cloth could be made from it. At first it was thought too coarse for the manufacture of suitings, but the results are said to have been very satisfactory and beyond all expectation.

It is light brown in color, as soft as wool and will readily take wool dyes.

Out of the North.

A story has just come down from the Northland of harrowing experiences which sometimes test the courage and resource of pioneer settlers.

It is respectfully submitted for the consideration of members of the medical profession. Had they been within telephone call it could never have happened. Can a layman be his own doctor? Some say not. But here is a tale of a man who is alleged to have performed one of the most delicate operations known to surgery without ever having gone to college, and carried it through.

Fort Hope is a Hudson Bay post back in the bush far from the shriek of transcontinental engines. In the solitude of this Nepigon country recently the wife of a pioneer fell a victime to the excruciating torture of appendicitis. As his wife lay in the throes of agony, the husband became desperate. The nearest surgeon was 200 miles away.

Now what did he do in his plight but decide to operate upon his wife himself. And operate he did, gathering some Indians to assist him about the patient's rough cot in the forest. Then, with ten redmen and the invalid one, he set forth with all speed to Nepigon. Over the woodland trails for 200 miles the amateur surgeon and his dusky nurses carried the sufferer. She is now in the hospital, where she is convalescing rapidly.—Courier.

Winnipeg's Great Rowing Triumph.

Winnipeg can show them all something at the rowing game. Her crews have just returned from the Northwestern International Rowing Association regatta held in Duluth, Minn. Eight wins out of a possible eleven was the two days' work of the Manitoba men. In the Senior Doubles, Senior Fours, Junior Eights, Pair Oars, Senior Singles, Junior Fours, Junior Doubles, Senior Eights, it was all Winnipeg. Immense crowds lining the course in every kind of craft from canoes to big freighters cheered the Canadian victors. Winnipeg sporting editors say that the Winnipeg eight is the swiftest in America.

First Kirk In B. C.

As a purely business proposition, the First Presbyterian Church, Victoria, B.C., of which Rev. Dr. Campbell is pastor, was sold recently, the consideration being $80,000. This was the first Presbyterian Church built in British Columbia and celebrated its jubilee on the last Sabbath of June, at which time the pastor was assisted by Prof. Stalker, D.D., of Aberdeen, Scotland, and Principal McKay, B.D., of Westminster Hall.

"The Thunderer."

It was the mud-flinging of an earlier mode of travel than the motor-bus that gave The London Times its nickname of "The Thunderer." Two ladies in Kew had been splashed by an unmannerly horseman passing them too closely, and The Times came out with a strong leader, alleging the offender to have been the Duke of Cumberland. In due course it was found that the horseman was not the duke, and in a further article, by way of apology, The Times used the words "We thundered out," an expression that so tickled the public that the name of "Thunderer" was bestowed on the paper forthwith.—London Chronicle.

If you have ever felt that you would like to make money,

If you have ever felt the need of money,

If you have thought that if you could only find an investment in which you could make money without any risk,

If when you have seen your friend or acquaintance ride by in his auto and have envied him not having one yourself,

If at times when you have met old friends who had no better start in life than yourself, but who are now much better off than you are, you have wished that you were doing as well,

If you have money in the bank that is only bringing you 3 per cent., and you consider an investment that you will, without doubt, make three times the amount you invest within twelve months, and an investment in which the worst that can happen to you is that you will get a guarantee against loss and 6 per cent. interest (twice what your bank gives),

If you have a little money lying idle, not enough, we'll say, to buy central city property, yet you would like to buy improved property that would show you a quick profit on your money,

If you have a certain amount of money each month which you would like to put into something from which all risk was eliminated, and in which you had absolute protection when sick or out of employment,

THEN, FRIEND, READ THE FOLLOWING CAREFULLY; YOU WILL FIND IT WELL WORTH YOUR WHILE. THE PROPOSITION IS NEW, BUT SO WAS A FLYING MACHINE A SHORT TIME AGO. THE OFFER WE ARE MAKING IS UNUSUAL, BUT SO WAS THE USE OF WIRELESS MESSAGES NOT LONG AGO. BUT FRIEND, YOU KNOW RIGHT WELL THAT IT IS USUALLY THE UNUSUAL, THE UNHEARD-OF, THE UNBEILEVABLE, THAT THE MOST MONEY IS MADE OUT OF THESE DAYS.

If you have ever given a thought to real estate, if you have ever bought a single piece of property, if you know anything about real estate at all, you know what an exceptional offer the one I am now making you is, and if you have never invested, then here is the chance of a life time. I have without doubt the finest money-making, the best laid out and the most beautifully situated piece of property in Western Canada; it is

RICHMOND PARK, MOOSE JAW.—Richmond Park fronts on Main Street, which is to Moose Jaw what Portage Avenue is to Winnipeg, and lies in the direct line of growth; and property on this street will increase in value to the same extent in proportion as the property has that borders on Portage Avenue. The property is 2½ miles from the C.P.R. Depot, 2¼ miles from the centre of the city, 2 miles from the site of the C.N.R. Depot, and a mile and a half from the site of the G.T.P. Depot. Every street is graded and sidewalks are to be laid down at once. Richmond Park is on a hill overlooking the city and will be the finest residential district in Moose Jaw. The proposed street car extension will run by the property next year.

WHAT IS HAPPENING IN MOOSE JAW.—Six new railroads are coming into Moose Jaw; two of them will be in within the next thirty days. The population has been increasing at the rate of 42 per cent. per year; the census for 1906 showed a population of only 6,000. The estimated population for 1911 is over 20,000. The new post office being built by the Dominion Government is the largest in the West, outside of Winnipeg, costing $300,000. The building permits for June were nearly $700,000—Moose Jaw being sixth on the list in all Canada. Moose Jaw is the principal divisional point for the C. P. R., and is the only town west of Winnipeg having direct connections with Minneapolis and St. Paul.

PRICES AND SIZES OF LOTS.—The prices are $90 and $100 for lots 25x125; $200, $225 and $250 for lots of 50 feet by 125. Each lot runs to a lane, is perfectly high and dry and fit for building. Payments are one-tenth cash and one-tenth each month. Fifteen per cent discount for cash; 10 per cent discount on any amount you pay over and above your first instalment.

SPECIAL AND EXTRAORDINARY TERMS.—Torrens title, no interest, taxes paid to 1913, no payments to make if ever you are sick or out of work, even though this may be for six months; then when you have been working 30 days, start your usual payments again by making one payment. Think what this means when the winter comes on! Your money refunded plus 6 per cent, if you so wish. This guarantees you against any possible loss. A clear title at once given to your widow or next of kin should you die before you have completed your payments, even though you have only made one payment on your purchase. Now, sum these facts up. You cannot lose, you are risking nothing, and yet you will without any doubt make a huge profit, for this is one of the choicest pieces of property in the whole city. These lots will sell for from $750 to $1,000 within a very few months. Three lots given free to the first person erecting a $2,000 house, and two lots to the second builder.

It may be that you, perhaps, will doubt some of the facts I have stated. Our offer is so good, so unusual, so seemingly impossible that I want to impress upon you, and stand ready to prove to your entire satisfaction by the most authentic and reliable information, the truth of all my statements. If you have any doubts, or if you imagine that conditions are not as I have set forth, or if you think you can pick a flaw in the proposition I am offering, won't you let me know what these doubts are; just what objections you have, just what points you don't believe, just what statements you imagine are not exactly true, just what points you want further information on? I cannot read your mind, but I can read your letters, and if you will tell us what you have in your mind that makes you hesitate about taking hold of such an extraordinary money-making opportunity as this, I know beyond a doubt I can satisfy you on every point, and remove every obstacle in a few moments, for I am absolutely sure that every dollar you invest will return you four or five within a very short while.

Fill out the literature coupon and send to us at once. Prompt action is advisable, as the lots are being purchased very quickly. Do it now.

WAR CLOUDS.

Times When European Hostilities Seemed Inevitable.

The unexpected appearance of German warships at Agadir is one of those disquieting incidents which may well produce a feeling of unrest, and awaken Europe to a present and acute sense of war's dangers. For a few days after the Russian ships' dastardly attack upon our fishing fleet in the North Sea war appeared inevitable, but fortunately sober reflection supervened, and a pacific solution of the difficulty was arrived at.

Not the first time this that unexpected hostilities had been on the eve of breaking out with Russia. In 1838 the aggressive policy of that country directed against Afghanistan brought about a collision between the two parties, to the discomfiture of the Afghans, who left some 600 of their number on the field. The victors then annexed Penjdeh, a fort which, as far back as 1840, had been assured by Lord Auckland to Afghanistan. This treacherous act fired the warlike spirit of our countrymen.

"This House," said Mr. Gladstone, speaking in the Commons, "will not be surprised if I say, speaking with measured words in circumstances of great gravity, that to us, upon the statements I have recited, this attack bears the appearance of an unprovoked aggression." A fortnight later the Premier, when demanding a war loan of $50,000,000, added, "We know that the attack was a Russian attack; we know that the Afghans suffered in life, in spirit, and in repute; we know that a blow was struck at the credit and authority of a sovereign, our protected ally, who had committed no offence. We cannot close this book and say—'We will look into it no more'."

Without a division the money was voted amidst loud cheering. War preparations were pushed rapidly forward, and men hourly expected an appeal to arms, when, a fortnight later, on May 14th, Mr. Gladstone announced that the Russian Government had agreed to arbitration. Several hitches occurred, but matters slowly drifted towards peace, the Russian garrison was withdrawn from Penjdeh, and towards the end of the year the question of the Afghan boundary delimitation was settled.

Many of us may remember the excitement at the commencement of 1878, due to Russia's designs against Constantinople.

We don't want to fight, but, by Jingo, if we do,
We've got the ships, we've got the men, we've got the money too,

shouted the bellicose populace, while the Government, pushing forward warlike preparations, called out the reserves and order Indian troops to Malta. In the face of this determined attitude Russia gave way, and the Turkish capital remained in Moslem hands.

It is now some years since France and ourselves were on the brink of war. For two days, from a Saturday to Monday, the tension was acute, and Lord Salisbury stated that only a miracle could prevent hostilities. That miracle happened, and the Fashoda crisis passed, leaving in its wake a feeling of irritation and ill-will against Great Britain which has fortunately now disappeared, to give place to neighborly sympathy and cordiality. Over Siam, too, in 1895, our dispute with France threatened at one time serious consequences, which, however, were luckily averted—London Tit-Bits.

A Declining Royal Wine Bill.

One of the greatest sources of economy affected in the royal household, says an English writer conversant with the facts, is in the matter of wine bills, for temperance is so generally the rule nowadays that, compared with what used to be the case even a few years ago, very little alcohol is consumed when their Majesties entertain. In fact, it is said that a dinner party their Majesties gave not long ago, at which twelve guests were present, not a single bottle of champagne was opened. The same marked change, states the writer, may be noted at most of the great dinners of the season, and also at large country house parties during the shooting season. Since the days of the Regent there have been great changes.

Canine Devotion to Duty.

A dog's devotion to duty is the subject of an article in Our Dumb Animals, in which the writer says "it ought to put to shame every human reader who ever betrayed a trust or shirked a duty." Left one night—so goes the story—on Wagontire mountain, with 3,086 sheep, by the death of John Sagoday, her master, one female shepherd dog two weeks later delivered to Manuel Saunders, owner of the sheep, 3,085 of the animals, having lost only one during two weeks of privation. The dog's achievement was carried out despite the fact that she was the mother of puppies only a few days old when her master died.

A King's Private Directory.

Great is the part which the humble card index system plays in the social life of King George of England. People presented to him are invariably astonished and flattered to find that he knows all about them, their family and their achievements. He puts some kindly question that shows intimate knowledge. The explanation lies in the card index. Nobody has access to the King without an appointment or an invitation, so that he has always time to consult the private directory and to know precisely what the person he is going to meet has done.

Herbert Spencer's Oddities.

Herbert Spencer hated clocks which strike, especially out of door clocks. When staying in lodgings in Berkshire village he sent a request to the owner of the principal house there that the stable clock, which struck the hours, might be stopped. He was not a good companion to go out for a drive with, as, if he did not feel well, he would ascertain how fast his pulse was beating and if it was not satisfactory would instantly give the order to return home.

No Wedding Day Bargain.

The Husband (during the quarrel)—You're always making bargains. Was there ever a time when you didn't?

The Wife—Yes, sir; on my wedding day.—Variety Life.

ENTOMBED IN A GLACIER.

A Reminder of the Fearful Alpine Tragedy of 1870.

A broken alpenstock bearing the carved name "Dr. J. Bean, Baltimore," has, the London Chronicle says, just been found by a Chamonix guide in the ice of the Glacier des Bossons, which "flows" down direct from the summit of Mont Blanc to the valley of Chamonix. The find recalls the most terrible accident in Alpine history, when eleven climbers perished on the summit of the Great White mountain in violent snowstorms which lasted a week. In September, 1870, the Rev. G. McCormicdale of Glasgow and two Americans, Dr. J. Bean of Baltimore and Mr. Randall, both elderly men with little experience of the Alps, set out from Chamonix with eight guides and safely reached the summit in doubtful weather. Hardly had the descent commenced when the snowstorm started, and not one of the eleven climbers was seen again alive. A strong force of guides some days later found the bodies of five victims, including the clergyman and Dr. Bean, but the other six were never found, having most probably fallen into crevasses. It is now thought, owing to the discovery of the broken alpenstock, that the bodies of the six climbers, who have been buried in their tomb of ice for the last forty-one years, have reached the end of the glacier, which travels at the rate of about 500 feet a year, and are not far from the surface of the ice at the lip of the Chamonix valley. — St. James' Gazette.

A Standard of Colors.

The call for international standards of all kinds is becoming every day more insistent with the progressive unification of the industries of the world. The latest demand of this kind is for an international standard of colors. Chemists, manufacturers of dye stuffs and pigments and many others would benefit by such a standard. It is suggested that when once the desired color scheme has been decided upon the best method of perpetuating the standards and rendering them available for comparison everywhere would be by means of colored glasses with which a tintometer could be constructed. A tentative instrument of this kind, based on an arbitrary color scheme, has been made.

Warning About Washing Greens.

When preparing greens especially of the wild variety, nothing should be taken for granted since invisible worms are very difficult to dislodge. After washing them almost leaf by leaf and through several waters, if you will let them stand an hour or more in strong salt water, you may be surprised to find that more worms, expelled by the salt, have dropped to the bottom of the pan, when, but for this precaution, their presence would have remained undiscovered. — Good Housekeeping Magazine.

His Portrait.

A laughable incident happened at the Sheffield (Western Australia) Albert Hall on a recent Saturday night. While Miss Gertrude Bingham was singing, a man in the gallery was talking loud enough to be heard, and did not heed the remonstrances of those near him.

The next turn was Prof. Fenton Cross, a clever sketch-artist and shadowgraphist.

The man in the gallery continued his talk.

"I don't know your name," said Mr. Fenton Cross, "but I will draw your portrait," and in ten seconds he sketched an unmistakable profile of a donkey.

The audience cheered the joke heartily, and the noisy member of the audience was silent for the rest of the evening.

The Flight of Seeds.

It is popularly believed that winged seeds from trees travel to great distances on the wind, but the investigations of a British scientist who has spent much time at Singapore indicate that winged seeds have a far narrower range of flight than have "powder" seeds and plumed seeds. The greatest distance traveled by the winged seeds of a forest tree observed by this authority was 100 yards. Under the most favorable circumstances, he calculates, it would take this plant just 100 years to spread 300 yards and 1,800,000 years to spread from the Malay Peninsula to the Philippines if a land connection existed.

Diding For Bibles.

A very curious custom is observed at St. Ives, in Cornwall, England. Dr. Robert Wild, who died in August, 1678, bequeathed £260, the interest of which was to be expended annually in six Bibles, not exceeding the price of 7s. 6d. each, which should be "cast for by dice" on the communion table every year by six boys and six girls of the town. For nearly 250 years this singular custom has been observed, but the practice of throwing the dice on the communion table has long been discontinued, and the raffling takes place on a table erected at the chancel steps.

Sir Roger de Coverley.

Ralph Thoresby, writing in 1717 of the family of Calverley of Calverley, Yorkshire, says: "Roger was a person of renowned hospitality, since at this time the obsolete tune of 'Roger a Calverley' is referred to him. He was a knight and lived in the time of Richard I." This passage carries the date of the origin of the tune back to about 1190. The London Spectator in a description of Sir Roger, now called "Sir Coverley," says, "His great-grandfather was the inventor of the famous country dance which is called after him."

Mounted on Missile.

In the window of a well-known taxidermist in Edinburgh is to be seen the figure of a starling perched on a golf ball and inclosed in a neat glass case. The poor bird is mounted on the sphere that caused its death. The accident happened on the golf course at Elie. The bird was struck while in flight and instantly killed.

PEPYS, THE DIARIST.

Pronouncing the Name of the Garrulous Old Gossip.

Lovers of Pepys often dispute over the correct pronunciation of his name. The form Peeps is the one that has chief authority on its side, and it is according to analogy in other like spellings, such as Wemyss, pronounced Weems. Peeps still holds good at Cambridge and dates from its bearer's own time. It is also retained by the representatives of Samuel's sister, the Pepys Cockerell family, who are heirs to his fame and some of his property. The late Rev. J. W. Ebsworth, an indefatigable collector and editor of ballads, adopts this pronunciation in his pleasing stanzas on "A Gossip at Deptford."

For instance:

The state has no servant of all whom she keeps
Like my squab little friend, who so limber does skirk,
The pattern of quill driving clerks, dam Pepys.

A disturbing element in the discussion is that the branch of the family represented by the Earl of Cottenham pronounce the name Peppis.

No bearer of the name has ever been known as Peps, though Ashby Sterry, a respected member of the Pepys club, follows this common but erroneous pronunciation in this excellent epigram, published in the London Graphic November, 1891:

There are people, I'm told—some say there are heaps—
Who speak of the talkative Samuel as Peeps,
And some, so precise and pedantic their step is,
Who call the delightful old diarist Pepys,
But these I think right, and I follow their steps,
Never mention the garrulous gossip as Peps!

Woes of Translators.

The way of translators is hard, especially where African native languages are concerned. Favorite English hymns, translated for the benefit of the natives, sometimes contain renderings not altogether faultless. "Go labor on, spend and be spent," was given as "Go blunder on," etc. The most extravagant instance, however, was the hymn, "Lord, Dismiss Us With Thy Blessing," which the natives were exhorted to join fervently in singing. Months later the missionaries discovered that what they really had been singing was, "Lord, kick us out, softly, softly."—Glasgow Herald.

No Swearing.

"Jim isn't drinking now."
"Honest? Did he swear off?"
"No; he really quit this time."—Toledo Blade.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

SUCCEEDS IN LONDON.

E. Mackay Edgar Is a Former Resident of Montreal.

Mr. E. Mackay Edgar, now of London, England, owner of the fast British-built boat "Maple Leaf II." which is about to make the attempt to wrest the championship for speed from the United States, is a Canadian, and up to less than ten years ago was a resident of Montreal, says Chesterfield in The Family Herald and Weekly Star.

Mr. Edgar is a son of the late Frank Edgar, a high and much beloved official of the Grand Trunk during the Hickson regime, and a very prominent member of the Masonic Order. Mr. Mackay Edgar's mother was Miss Mackay, a member of a wealthy Montreal family of which the Hon. Senator Mackay is the present head.

After leaving school, Mr. Edgar served for some years in the counting house of the former great Montreal wholesale houhe of Mackay Brothers, and when that business was closed in 1893, he, as confidential secretary of Senator Mackay, was intimately associated with the colossal yet delicate operation of winding the affairs of the company up. This work extended over many years and gave Mr. Edgar much useful business experience. At this period, although fully coming up to his uncle's exacting standard as a hard-working business man, Mr. Edgar attained a prominent position as one of the Commercial Capital's amateur entertainers. At school he had distinguished himself as an elocutionist, and a few years after he had been in business he had come to be recognized as one of the most talented amateur comedians in Canada. He assumed the leading comedy parts in various fashionable club productions, and so great was his success that he was offered a position on the professional stage, but he did not entertain it for a minute as he had gone into acting merely as a pastime.

It is characteristic of Mr. Edgar that he takes his recreations very seriously, entering in a whole-souled manner into the spirit of whatever sport he takes up. Thus he became, while resident in Montreal, an expert tennis player, a good cricketer, and one of the smartest yachtsmen in the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club. After the estate of Mackay Brothers had been wound up, he bought a seat on the Montreal Stock Exchange, and the snug fortune he had inherited soon began to expand. Some clever financing in connection with some big industrial mergers, netted him hundreds of thousands, and he so won the confidence of an influential group of British financiers that he found it would be advantageous for him to take up his headquarters in London, where, as a clever financier and a reliable authority on Canadian investments he has firmly established himself and made a great deal of money. Mr. Edgar in his prosperity lost none of that genial nature which made him so popular as a young man, and the fact that he has ventured nearly $50,000 in his present attempt to win the motor-boat championship shows that he still adheres to his old motto, "Work while you work, and play while you play."

Some of my readers will perhaps be interested in knowing that Mr. Edgar is a descendant of James Edgar who was for fifty years private secretary to Bonnie Prince Charlie's father, the Chevalier, known by the Jacobites as King James III. Nothing finer than the constancy and devotion of James Edgar to his unfortunate royal master is recorded in history.

As a Precaution.

An amusing story is told of the old journalist Frederic Guest Tomlin.

One day he found his office locked and the office boy missing.

When the boy appeared Tomlin reproved him for over-sleeping, a charge which the boy tearfully refuted.

"It's this way, sir," he said. "My uncle was hung at the Old Bailey this morning, and, although we were n't on speaking terms with him, I thought, as one of the family, I ought to be there."

"Quite right," said Tomlin; "never neglect your family duties; but when another of your relations is to be hanged, please to leave the office key under the mat."

The Origin of Ear-rings.

A correspondent writes to The Pall Mall Gazette of London to correct a statement that the ears were not pierced for ear-rings till the seventeenth century. The most ancient ear-rings in the museums, he says, were certainly worn in pierced ears. There is tradition that when Sarah, jealous of Hagar, vowed to dye her hands in the latter's blood. Abraham saved the situation by boring Hagar's ears and letting Sarah insert silver rings, so that her vow was fulfilled. The rings, however, lent such splendor to the girl's dusky cheeks that Sarah soon adopted them herself, and this was the origin of ear-rings.

Collection of Voices.

Somewhere you may find a collection of anything you may happen to be interested in, whether it be apple-seed, false teeth, or old china; but it has been only recently that one had an opportunity to "inspect" a collection of voices.

The British Museum has an extensive collection, to which it is constantly adding, of the voices of celebrated persons, it being the idea that phonographic records may be preserved for the benefit of future generations.

ROSES AND THORNS.

An Old Eastern Legend and Its Application to Human Life.

This world we're living in
Is mighty hard to beat.
You get a thorn with every rose,
But ain't the roses sweet?

There is an eastern legend that when the beneficent Creator prepared the earth for man, causing it to bring forth herbs and trees pleasant to the eye and good for food, each bearing its seed within itself for propagating its kind, the roses had no thorns and the lilies, violets and other blossoming plants were free from thistles, brambles and noxious weeds.

But the sons and daughters of men in their greedy eagerness to gather the flowers, each one selfishly striving to secure a larger share than his fellow, seemed likely to despoil the earth of its beauty and leave not even enough blossoms to perfect their seed and perpetuate their species. So the kindly All Father provided the roses with thorns for self protection and sent a host of defenders of the more tender blossoms by causing thistles and briers to spring up around them like wardens of a castle or the bodyguard of a queen. And this is the reason for the thorns and briers—nature's protection against human greed.

The legend has a wider application. The roses typify the pleasures of life and the thorns its pains. A life of ease and pleasure was not only useless, but satiating. It would demoralize him who indulged in it. Satiety despoils the rose of its beauty and the violet of its fragrance; hence kind nature makes true pleasure the reward of virtuous effort and punishes overindulgence with penalizing suffering, to the end that greed may be restrained and self control developed with its attendant virtues of temperance, kindliness, industry and thrift.—John A. Stoll in South Bend Times.

THE BLANKET FISH.

This Dreaded Sea Monster Wraps Its Body Around Its Prey.

The manta, or blanket fish, is common to the warm parts of the Pacific. Around the Mexican penal colony on Tres Marias islands, not very far from Manzanillo, it is one of the most efficient guards for the prisoners incarcerated there. Not a man has ever been known to escape from this dreaded prison by swimming. No sooner does a human body strike the water than a school of these monsters appear, flying like giant bats through the sea. They throw themselves on the hapless swimmer, crushing him to the bed of the sea, and there suck the flesh from his bones with their powerful mouths.

The manta grows to mammoth dimensions, though the one which I saw, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, was comparatively small, not weighing over two or three tons and not being more than fifteen feet across. The fish is nearly square in outline, the wings forming great right angles, which stretch out from the body, giving it a rectangular appearance. The fish swim by flapping these wings and are sometimes called "sea bats" on this account.

Mantas swim with incredible rapidity for what is apparently so ungainly a fish, and once they sight anything in the water, unless it be the speediest fish or shark, they overhaul it and simply close it, wrapping the entire blanket-like body around the unfortunate victim. Even with a sharp knife it is almost impossible to reach a vital point in the manta's body. For this reason they are the most dreaded by divers of all the dwellers in the sea, and the diver's life is not without its perils, take my word for that.

The Young Idea.

In a certain school a schoolboy of tender years is said to have produced the following essay on the camel: "The cannimal is a sheep of the desert. It is called a backteria because it has a hump on its back. The cannimal is very patient and will lie down and die without a groan, but when it is angry it gets its back up, which is called the hump. The shepherds of cannimals is called Arabs. When they live in towns they are called street Arabs. When the cannimal goes on a journey it drinks as much as it can to last for many days. Such animals are called aquiducks. Those that cannot carry enough are called inebriates."

SPYING OUT BRITAIN

STARTLING EPISODES FREQUENTLY OCCUR IN ENGLAND.

Recent Case at Portsmouth, When Two Men Landed and Were Scared Away By the Sentry, Is Only One of Many Incidents That Have Made Britons Uneasy — German Officers Surveying the Roads.

A few days ago Portsmouth was disturbed by a very unusual incident. Two men landed at midnight from a small rowing-boat near the Tipner Powder Magazine, an important depot used as a store for all the military explosives at Portsmouth, which is guarded night and day by armed sentries. The sentry challenged them twice, but as the men disregarded the challenge he fired. The intruders thereupon rushed back to the boat and vanished into the darkness.

While in certain quarters it is alleged that the importance of this incident has been exaggerated, and that it is probable that the men acted in ignorance rather than with any mischievous intentions, the general opinion seems to be that the incident provides another striking illustration of the daring of foreign spies.

As a matter of fact, spying is greatly on the increase, and Lord Haldane, realising this fact, has introduced a new bill, in which it is proposed to inflict heavier penalties on persons found in prohibited places, and those who make any sketch, note, model, or plan likely to be useful to an enemy.

In the existing act these offences are classed as misdemeanors, the penalty being imprisonment for one year, with or without hard labor, and a fine, or either. In the new bill these offences are classed as felony, and the penalty is not less than three years' nor more than seven years' penal servitude—a very drastic change. Persons attempting to commit an offence of this kind, or inciting others, are liable to similar penalties.

Another new provision relates to "harboring spies." This offence is classed as a misdemeanor and the person is liable to imprisonment for twelve months, with hard labor, and a fine. Power is also given to justices to grant search-warrants, or in cases of urgency a superintendent of police may himself give written authority for a search "in the interest of the State."

It is not an easy matter, however, to catch these spies. A few months ago a German officer was arrested for making sketches of the harbor defences of Portsmouth. But for every spy caught there are hundreds who are never discovered, or who, if they are, are quietly despatched out of the country to save international troubles.

The greatest danger, however, lies in British soldiers and sailors betraying their trust, and selling plans which it would be almost impossible for a foreigner to obtain. To the credit of both services, it should be said that such cases are very rare indeed. But it is nevertheless a fact that some time ago a plan of the defences of Malta, the great Mediterranean fortress, second only in value to Gibraltar, was sold by a renegade who had worn the uniform of the British army. And there was an outcry against the inadequacy of the sentence of twelve months passed at Manchester on this spy, who betrayed information which would enable a possible enemy to prepare a scheme for the reducing of Malta and the wresting of the island from the British crown. It was not the judge who was to blame, however, but the defects in the law which enabled a spy to escape.

What was more startling still was the fact revealed by the military correspondent of The London Times, that this spy, when arrested, was actually bargaining for plans for the selling of Gibraltar itself to a foreign power.

About the same time it was learnt that a detailed description of our submarine defences had disappeared from the room of a high official, which meant to say that the whole scheme of our island's submarine defences was reposing in the archives of a foreign power, and that the latter knew the site of every mine at Portsmouth and Plymouth, so that, at the call to battle, its warships could thread their way with ease through the passage left for the passing of British squadrons. Of course, the schemes of defence in such cases are being continually changed; but the mere fact that such plans could disappear provides a remarkable illustration of the success with which these international spies meet.

It is not long ago since Lord Methuen and Col. Haldane met, in Berkshire, a foreign spy who, not knowing who they were, asked for detailed information about the width of the roads. Plans for the invasion of England by synchronous raids are now in the possession of the War Office. One of them was tested a short time ago by a party of English officers, and it was found that the main features of the spot chosen for the raid were more favorable to the invader than the defender. Then, again, no little uneasiness was caused by the discovery that a party of foreign staff officers in mufti made an extended riding tour on the east coast in 1908. Of course, it is easy to exaggerate the importance of such incidents; but there is no doubt that there are hundreds of foreigners mixing among all classes in this country—the spy of foreign Governments, on the look-out for securing valuable naval and military information.

Many of these spies mix in the best society, are accomplished linguists, and reside here so long that they become in time naturalized British subjects. They pass as Englishmen, and perhaps secure an appointment in an academy for the training of young men for the army and navy. Their credentials take them into the highest official circles, and by their agreeable manners they become honored guests in society, matters being discussed in their presence in a manner which would be carefully guarded against did the fact become known that they were foreigners.

FOES TO SUCCESS.

Don't Be a Victim of Timidity, Shyness or Self Consciousness.

Timidity, shyness and self consciousness belong to the same family. We usually find all where we find any one, and they are all enemies of peace of mind, happiness and achievement. No one has ever done a great thing while his mind was centered upon himself. We must lose ourselves before we can find ourselves. Self analysis is valuable only to learn our strength; it is fatal if it makes us dwell upon our weaknesses.

Timid, shy people are morbidly self conscious. They think too much about themselves. Their thoughts are turned inward; they are always analyzing, dissecting themselves, wondering how they appear and what people think of them. If these people could only forget themselves and think of others they would be surprised to see what freedom, ease and grace they would gain, what success in life they would achieve.

Thousands of young people are held back from undertaking what they long to do and are kept from trying to make real their great life dreams because they are afraid to jostle with the world. They shrink from exposing their sore spots and sensitive points which smart from the lightest touch. Their supersensitiveness makes cowards of them.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

A Congregation of One.

In his younger days the Rev. Sir Cameron Lees, D. D., was a highland missionar in a scattered territory and passing rich on $40 a year. On one occasion on the Sabbath day the windows of heaven opened and there was a deluge on a small scale. The young minister of course was at his post, but only one member of the congregation had the courage to turn up, an old farmer. Cameron Lees suggested that in view of the terrible weather they should adjourn to his study and hold their devotions there.

"No, no," said the old highlander. "It is written, 'Where two or three are gathered together in my name there am I also.' You are one and I'm one, so there's the two, and we'll have the service as usual." And there was a service for a congregation of one.—London Globe.

Worrying Happiness.

The bishop of Manchester, speaking at a meeting at Church House, Westminster, said the secret of happiness was to have a sufficient multitude of worries.

The man who had only one worry, a blind that would not be pulled up straight by the servant of a coal scuttle the bottom of which was always coming out, found his way to the lunatic asylum, but the man who had no time to dwell upon his worries because he had to go from one to another and back again and round and round like a squirrel in a cage could be a perfectly happy man.—London Mail.

Elastic.

"An' one other thing I want you to remember when you build the house is to put one of the finest elastic steps on it that money can build."

"An elastic step, madam?"

"Yes; I readin' how Miss Elkins had a fine elastic step, an' I want one just like it or better."—Houston Post.

Becoming.

"Isn't my new dress becoming to me?" asked the delighted wife.

"Yes," replied the head of the establishment, "and I suppose the bill for it will soon be coming to me."

Life is a quarry out of which we are to mold and chisel and complete a character.

To Meet an Emergency.

"Madam, have you any old clothes to give away?"

"I have a suit belonging to my husband, but I fear it is too big for you."

"Oh, that will be all right. You just set me out a square meal and watch me eat enough so that I can fill it."—Washington Times.

A Protection.

"Any man looks stupid when he wears a monocle," said the critical girl.

"That's why so many of us fellows wear 'em," replied the candid youth. "If we happen to look stupid we blame the monocle."—Washington Star.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 16 1911

VOTE FOR J. R. STRATTON THE MAN THAT GETS THINGS DONE

A Foregone Conclusion

The Liberal Government will be sustained. Even the Opposition concedes this.

The Liberal Government had a majority of forty-five in the last Parliament. It will have a majority of fifty-five or more in the next House.

Outside politics altogether the provinces will vote for their own special interests.

Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island will vote for their coal and fish, New Brunswick for its hay and potatoes, Quebec and Ontario for their mixed products, the prairie West for its wheat, British Columbia for its fruit and fish and the consumer everywhere for cheaper living.

Weight of numbers will carry the day. The size of the victory is the only thing in dispute.

To People Who Eat

What does reciprocity in natural products mean to the average consumer? Simply free trade in food.

Canada and the United States both remove their food taxes amounting between them to six million dollars a year.

Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

Sixty of the chief elements of your diet will come in free or at greatly reduced duties.

Reciprocity takes taxes off what you eat. It leaves you free to buy what you like, when you like and where you like at the best prices.

You will have cheaper, better, more varied meals. You will save a quarter on every dollar.

The Tariff Untouched

Reciprocity benefits the manufacturer by giving his workingmen cheaper living and making them happier and more contented.

Reciprocity benefits the manufacturer by filling up the Northwest, increasing the purchasing power of the farmer, and enlarging the home market for manufactured goods.

A larger market for manufactured goods means more orders, more work, more workingmen and higher wages.

The manufacturer's protection is not touched. The Government has pledged it word that it will not be interfered with.

The Liberal Government has never strayed from the principle of moderate, just and adequate protection to the manufacturer since it came into power in June, 1896.

Protection is safe in Liberal hands. Of all the Canadian tariffs the Fielding tariff has been the most stable.

A Worker Wanted

Can West Peterborough afford to be represented at Ottawa by a man whose offensive campaign must make him particularly distasteful.

Public improvements in progress or in prospect for West Peterborough amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars—work for the contractor, the teamster, the mechanic, and the labouring man.

Should West Peterborough do anything that might cause these matters to lag or stop entirely?

What does West Peterborough want? A good worker, a good asker, a good getter—or a dreamer?

The British Born

Men who try to create divisions between the British born in Canada and the British, born in the Mother Country, are not good patriots.

The British born who have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions know what the Liberal Government has done for the working man and the homeseeker.

The Liberal party in England and Liberal party in Canada are the same in their efforts for the common people.

The Liberal Government in Canada gave England the British Preference, the South African Contingents and the Canadian Navy.

Premier Asquith says reciprocity is good for business and good for the Empire.

Lloyd George says it is crystallized common sense. British Ambassador Bryce helped to make the agreement.

Reciprocity is not Politics---it is just business. You can vote for your party all the rest of your life. THIS TIME VOTE FOR YOURSELF

RALLY SERVICE

A Sunday school rally service will be held on Sunday morning at Murray street Baptist church. A choir composed of children will lead the singing and members of the school will assist in the service.

Four of the officers will make awards to sixty scholars in recognition of regular attendance during the months of June, July and August.

The service, which will be held at 11 a.m., will occupy but one and a quarter hours and promises to be of the greatest interest.

This Year's Barley Sells for $1.03 At Machine, In Wisconsin

The Examiner has been shown a letter sent to Mr. W. J. Devlin from his nephew, Mr. James Fitzgerald, in which the writer states that he had threshed this year's barley crop of 500 bushels, and had sold it right at the threshing machine for $1.03 per bushel, receiving $515 for his crop of barley.

If the comparatively inferior barley of the United States brings a price like this, it is easy to see how immensely the Canadian farmer will benefit by the removal through the Reciprocity Agreements of 30 cents a bushel on Canadian barley. Canadian barley is the best malting barley in the world. It is in strong demand in the United States for malting purposes. In comparison most of the United States barley is only fit for feed and is only used by United States malsters because they can't get Canadian barley over the 30 cents a bushel tariff wall. One dollar and three cents is a pretty good price for barley at the machine. Barley in other parts of the United States is bringing about $1.14 per bushel, and that not for grain like Ontario gilt-edged barley.

With the duty of 30 cents a bushel removed Canadian barley would bring in the United States at least 25 cents more than that per bushel.

Vote for Stratton and the Reciprocity Agreement that opens a big and high-priced market for barley and other staple farm products.

SIR WILFRID GOES IN BY ACCLAMATION

Special to The Examiner.

QUEBEC, QUE., SEPT. 16.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier is virtually elected by acclamation in Quebec East. His opponent, Mr. Rene Lemos of the Labare Parole, the Nationalist paper, of Quebec, sent in his resignation this morning to the Returning Officer. He is angry against the Conservative Organizer, because he was not invited to the big Opposition meeting held last night in the Quebec Skating Rink. This constituency was never in danger.

RUSHING TROOPS TO CHENTU

Special to The Examiner

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The only news from China this morning is that the Government is hoping that troops will reach Chentu in time to prevent the rebels doing much damage. The situation of the Canadian missionaries is still unknown.

RECIPROCITY IS OFF WITH A GOOD LEAD.

Government Has Ten Sure Reciprocity Supporters in the House.

Reciprocity is off to a good start. As a result of the nominations yesterday, one Liberal, W. M. German, is elected by acclamation. He opposes reciprocity, but will vote for it in the House if the country carries it, as it is sure to do. On the other hand, there are ten constituencies in which there is no anti-reciprocity candidate nominated. In Quebec there are seven Nationalist candidates who have declared themselves in favour of reciprocity, and will vote for it if the country carries it, as it is sure to do. And in the West there are three Conservative candidates who have taken a similar stand, and will vote for reciprocity in the House if the government is sustained, as it is sure to be. So the score at present stands 10 to 0.

FAVOURED RECIPROCITY

NAPANEE, ONT., SEPT. 16.—An interesting outcome of the election campaign here, was the appearance before the Magistrate here, of R. J. Walters and Andrew McGregor, on a charge of assaulting Charles Anderson, but on the defense making a written apology, and Anderson withdrawing the charge, the Magistrate dismissed the case. It seems that the men had attended a Liberal meeting together and Anedreon, who is a Conservative, spoke in favour of reciprocity. Others, also Conservatives, got into an argument with him on the way home with the result that an assault charge was laid.

MORRIS BEATEN IN FIFTH ROUND

Special Wire to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., SEPT. 16.—The moral reformers are raising a big protest this morning over Morris-Flynn's fight last night, when Morris had his face litterally battered to pieces. He was defeated in the fifth round, but refused to give in until the tenth. The promoters lost heavily on the venture.

Luncheon For Miss Davies

On Thursday last, at the Golf Links a number of the friends of Miss Helen Davies assembled for the purpose of giving a luncheon in honour of her approaching marriage, which is to take place on Wednesday next.

At the conclusion of the luncheon some very bright and appropriate speeches were delivered, after which the assembly indulged in the game of gold, and a jolly time was spent.

Boston Cafe Appreciated

The new Boston Cafe, which opened on Thursday, is living up to its advance notices as a modern high-class restaurant and the patrons who have been thronging the new place have nothing but words of praise for the cuisine, the service and the appointments of the cafe. An appreciated feature is the special dinner service, in which a splendid repast is provided at moderate prices. Everything is clean and good, and the future of the enterprise seems to be assured. The Boston Cafe serves ice cream and sodas as well as other cool drinks and lead in this line, as well as in other respects.

TROLLEY WIRE DOWN

About two o'clock this afternoon the Street Railway trolley wire broke about McDonnel street, and the power had to be shut off. The cars were tied up all over the line for about half an hour.

Last night, when the cars were coming from the Exhibition Grounds one of the trailers jumped the track and tied traffic up at the south for a while. The car was pushed out of the way and was later put on the track and is in commission to-day.

Mr. Worth Tells How It Assisted in His Sale of Fountain Pens

The efficiency of the Examiner as an advertising medium was strikingly recognized this morning by Mr. H. S. Worth, of the Worth Company, whose sale of fountain pens at the Warne Drug Company's store this week has been a phenomenal success. A big inroad has been made on the thousands of pens representative of the world's best makers, and which usually sell for $2.50 to $10.00, but which are being slaughtered at the remarkable price of $1.95. The Examiner was chosen by the company as its only local advertising medium and the results have more than justified the confidence shown in this paper. Mr. Worth called at the Examiner this morning to say that he was delighted with the results that had followed his advertising in the Examiner. Incidentally he remarked that he was delighted with Peterborough, being so impressed with its possibilities that he had made a $4,000 investment here, the nature of which he did not care to divulge for the present.

The big sale of fountain pens comes to a close on Monday night at 10 o'clock at the Warne Drug Company. It is the opportunity of a lifetime and should not be thrown away.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

SATURDAY, SEPT. 16, 1911

INDUSTRIES SAFE IN LAURIER'S HANDS.

The Review is asserting that the prosperity of Peterborough's manufacturers is due to the "National Policy" which the Laurier Government has retained.

Suppose we admit that. Such an admission suggests a question or two.

Why have we now and why have we had, riotous prosperity for our manufacturers constant employment at high wages, under the "National Policy" as administered by a Liberal Government?

We had, under the "National Policy" administered by the Conservatives, stagnation, hard times, the whole country at a standstill, factories running on half time with workmen's wages to correspond.

If Liberal administration of the "National Policy" has brought prosperity, is bringing prosperity to employer and employees, and gives life and go to Peterborough, why not hold on to a good thing?

If Conservative administration of the "National Policy brought once, and might easily bring again, depression in trade, half-time for factories, half-pay at slow wages, to workingmen, wouldn't we be taking a tighty long risk by turning the "National Policy" over to the same—but infinitely less ably officered—party? Would any man in his senses replace a "good and faithful servant" with an "unprofitable servant?"

As a matter of fact the Liberals have not kept the "National Policy" as it was in 1878. The Conservatives found it necessary to improve it—to "lop off the mouldering branches." The Liberals further improved it by making the nominally protective tariff really protective—a help instead of a hindrance. They placed a long line of staple raw materials in use in manufacturing, on the free list. They gave manufacturers raw material at a price that permitted them to make living, and indeed, liberal profits, and pay better wages to their working men.

The Liberal Government has made the "National Policy" a "Rational" Policy—a policy that has brought prosperity to both anufacturer and working man.

And the Liberal policy is to keep the National Policy what it is, and that is—a factor in the greatest industrial prosperity Canada has ever seen.

The Review's insinuation that Reciprocity means free trade in everything with the United States, is a cruel deception; an inferential lie which no honest workman will believe. The Reciprocity agreement removes entirely—makes free not a single manufactured article.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has pledged in Parliament, his word as the Premier of Canada and head of the Liberal Government:

> "We have not hurt the manufacturer and we will not hurt him."

It's a fool of a cow that would kick over the pail when it is full.

VOTE FOR STRATTON AND LIVE BUSINESS REPRESENTATION.

THE MAN WHO GETS THINGS FOR PETERBOROUGH.

It is conceded that the Laurier Government will be sustained by a bigger majority than ever and just here the question arises: Can West Peterborough afford to be on the losing side?

Or what is even worse, can it afford to be misrepresented at Ottawa by a person whose offensive campaign has made him particularly distasteful to a Liberal Government such a washall certainly have for the next Parliamentary term, anyway.

Not to go into the details of Mr. Burnham's faction, let it be enough to say that he and his supporters have impugned the loyalty and the religion of their opponents—two of the most sacred feelings of human nature.

Would imputations like these be a good introduction to a Government that has given England the British preference and a Canadian navy—not to mention the South African contingents—and which has always striven to promote national unity and harmony? Would it pay to send such a man to Ottawa, who had wantonly and disrespectfully attacked the powers that be on their tenderest points of honour?

The public money of Canada is for public purposes and all the Canadian people have a right to share in its legitimate expenditure—its expenditure in providing the conveniences it is the duty of a Government to furnish. In great schemes of transportation—railways and canals—all governments are bound to take the initiative; yet they have to be urged by deputations. But, in regard to local needs of a similar character, governments have to be shown. In respect to these local needs the sitting member is the deputation, and with the multiplicity of demands pouring in upon a Government from over two hundred constituencies, it requires a member with a good deal of influence, backed by persistence and a strong fidelity to the interests of his constituents to convince a government.

In view of these conditions; in view of the future needs of West Peterborough; in view of the completion of important public works in Peterborough to be pushed to a finish; in view of the promotion of all the business and other interests of Peterborough, can the electors afford to replace a faithful and efficient, hard-working, influential and successful representative, for a man not only utterly devoid of business experince but one who has destroyed his influences in advance by a rancorous antagonism to the Government that is sure to be returned. Any Government, Liberal or Conservative, is bound to provide public money for necessary conveniences and improvements, and any Government will do it.

But there are two ways of doing it—a quick way and a slow way. Governments are but human, and though they strive to do fairly by all, they have a habit of turning their willing side to their friends. Would it be too much to say that they take the quick way of making public improvements for their friends and the slow way for their enemies? Would it be too much to argue that delay is shortened, procedure is expedited, and red tape is reduced to a minimum when the man at court is persons grata?

West Peterborough has been fortunate for many years in having at the sources of public blessing a representative who was a good asker and a good getter for his constituency.

When Mr. Stratton was in the Ontario Legislature the whole County of Peterborough felt the benefits of his active and persistent intercession. There are men in the townships who are voting for him yet for the good roads and bridges he got built, the concession lines he had opened up, the school funds he obtained, and many other public-spirited things he got done when he was in the Legislature.

When he moved to the larger field of Dominion politics he was just as diligent in good works. No member of parliament can show a larger list of public works accomplished for his constituency in a shorter time than Mr. Stratton. Is it too much to infer that West Peterborough got ample justice because Mr. Stratton was the suitor?

In the matter of wharves, bridges and dams, alone, Mr. Stratton has been instrumental in securing expenditures that run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. This money not only created highly desirable public improvements, but the greatest part of it went in wages to the workingman, or for supplies and materials and contributed directly to the business prosperity of the community.

The County has Mr. Stratton's solicitude to thank for wharves at Lakefield, Nogie's Creek, Juniper Island, Mount Julian, Chemong, Braden's Landing, Whitfield, Smithson's Landing, Campbelltown, Hall's Landing, Pengelly's Landing, and the Wolfe Street and Mark Street wharves in the City of Peterborough.

One of the most important improvements on the Canal system has been effected at Buckhorn, where a splendid new combination bridge and dam has been erected at a cost of $75,000, the county incidentally being relieved of a $3,000 contribution, which Mr. Stratton had remitted. This year an appropriation of $4,000 is to be expended on the construction of three new entrance piers to the lock.

An important work now in progress is the new dam at Burleigh Falls, which will cost $60,000. What, with raising the water and doing away with Laverock look this improvement will ultimately cost $200,000.

Other expenditures for dams, lock houses and waterway improvements have been made at Swamp Lake, Union Creek and Young's Point, and $15,000 will be spent on betterments at Bobcaygeon. The lift lock has been electric-lighted and additional sums have been appropriated for dredging the river between Peterborough and Lakefield.

Mr. Stratton impressed his views on the Post Office Department so well that West Peterborough was among the first parts of Canada to be provided with rural mail delivery. One hundred and eighty-seven miles of rural mail routes are now in operation, and there will be nine hundred and fifty miles when the system is completed. Rural mail delivery brings town and country closer together. One of the particular benefits to the farmer is that he can get his daily newspaper and keep in touch with current market prices.

In the City of Peterborough the post office improvements have been pressed to a conclusion. Other public works in progress, or in prospect, are the new wharf between Matthew's packing factory and Macdonald's mills, and the retaining wall between the C. P. R. and Hunter street, and the dredges for river work, which are being built in Peterborough. All these matters mean employment for teamsters, labouring men and mechanics, not to mention their permanent benefit to the city.

The water conservation dams, which have been established in the the north country, have doubled the amount of electric power available for Peterborough. One of Mr. Stratton's wishes is to sell cheap power for Peterborough, not only for manufacturers, but for street and domestic lighting. He has put in train the works that have made the power available. It only remains for the Board of Trade and the City Council to do their part in supplementing his efforts.

This catalogue is not as long as it could be made, but it is enough to show that J. R. Stratton is the man who gets things done. With substantial interests in West Peterborough, he is naturally interested in the welfare of the whole constituency. He has his stake here—perhaps a little more than his opponent—and he wants to see Peterborough placed in a position to go ahead and prosper.

The question is should West Peterborough do anything that would cause the public works, so highly desirable from every point of view, to lag or stop entirely?

This is a world of action. Canadians are men of action; Peterborough citizens are men of action. Is it not, therefore, Peterborough's interest—the interest of every merchant and business man—every owner of real estate, every manufacturer, every working man, and, in fact, of everybody, to be represented in Parliament by a man of action?

An Open Air Meeting For Reciprocity

Mr. Stratton and Mr. Kerr Address Electors on the Market Square

Mr. J. R. Stratton and Mr. F. D. Kerr addressed an open air meeting on the market square to-day. It was the first time in the history of Peterborough that a noon-hour open air political meeting was ever held, and the audience took kindly to the innovation.

The five hundred farmers and citizens who gathered round were deeply interested in the discussion of the agreement and the remarks of both speakers were frequently applauded.

Mr. Stratton explained that the reciprocity agreement was merely a proposal to exchange natural products on equal terms, not a binding treaty for a term of years, but a simple amendment to the tariff acts of both countries, which could be cancelled any time by a stroke of the pen. He dealt with the favoured-nation scare and showed at length how none of their products competed with those included in the reciprocity schedules.

The Russian Barley Bogey.

Answering a question about Russian barley, Mr. Stratton pointed out that it was not a danger, both on account of its distance and its inferior quality.

"The United States," said Mr. Stratton, "has always wanted our barley. When we exported it to the United States at a ten cent duty, we sold $60,000,000 worth. When the Dingley Bill put 30 cents a bushel duty on it, they killed our market. But ours is the best barley in the world, and when reciprocity goes through we will sell it in the United States, save the thirty cents duty and have a market that is protected by a ring fence against the rest of the world."

Mr. Stratton quoted General Manager Stuart's denial that the Quaker Oats had ever imported barley to compete with Canadian barley and also his published opinion that reciprocity would be a good thing for Canada, for Peterborough and for the Quaker Oats Company.

"There is the industry down by the river," said Mr. Stratton, "representing an investment of millions, buying more grain in a month than Peterborough County grows, giving employment and wages to hundreds of workmen. My efforts helped to get the industry here. It speaks for itself, and when it speaks, it is in favour of reciprocity."

A Western Witness.

Mr. Stratton showed how the farmers would be benefitted by the wider market for their grain, staples, their horses, cattle, sheep and dairy products, and how handy the increasing market of the United States would be for the increasing grain crop of the Northwest when the English market was no longer able to keep pace with our export supply.

"I see Dr. Willoughby, of Saskatoon, in the audience," said Mr. Stratton, "a son of Dr. Willoughby a Conservative, but a Liberal when it comes to reciprocity. He knows how your fathers and sons and brothers in the Northwest want it." And Dr. Willoughby smiled assent and shook hands with the candidate.

Reciprocity, Mr. Stratton stated, would increase the manufacturers' business by increasing the purchasing power of the farmer. The more money spent on manufactured goods, the more orders it meant for the factory, and steadier employment at better wages for the workingman. Another direct benefit to the consumer in towns and cities was the lifting of the food taxes which made cheaper living inevitable.

An Appeal to Common Sense.

Mr. Stratton said that he did not address them as Irish, Scotch or British born—for we were all British born, and equally proud of it and the Union Jack—but as common sense people discussing an agreement that was mutually advantageous to producer and consumer.

Adverting to the local aspect of the case and the number of public improvements now in progress, or in prospect in West Peterborough, Mr. Stratton thought West Peterborough could not very well afford to have a member in Opposition. "I think," he said, "you will leave well enough alone when you leave me as your representative. All I ask you to do on Sept. 21 is to put your mind on this business agreement—undistracted by partisan clamours—and then vote for your own interests."

Speaking of the loyalty cry, Mr. F. D. Kerr said he failed to see what loyalty there was in putting your hand in your pocket and paying duty to the United States. The reciprocity agreement, he considered as simple as the relation between a grocer and his customer. The customer quits if the grocer doesn't give good groceries, and the grocer quits when the customer takes his trade elsewhere. Both are at liberty to stop when either is not suited. Referring to the unholy alliance with Bourassa in Quebec, he said, "I protest against Bourassa becoming the dictator of this country."

Mr. Kerr concluded by asking East and West Peterborough to stand by the two Liberal candidates and reciprocity.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King and the candidates.

I. O. F. FLOURISHING

A very interesting meeting of Court Chemong No. 530, I. O. F., was held in the S. O. E. Hall on Thursday evening, being presided over by Bro. W. G. McKee, P. C. R.

There were eight applications for membership and five of these were duly initiated by Bro. F. Mullett, D. H. C. R.

The Excursion Committee were congratulated for providing such an enjoyable trip on the holiday, as all patrons were evidently highly pleased with the outing.

The social evenings, which were held, occasionally, last winter, were enjoyed so much that a number of the members are in favour of having them put on again this fall and winter, and the officers would be pleased to have a good attendance of the members at the next meeting on Thursday, the 28th, so that arrangements might be made for these socials.

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cameron, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Attendance At Exhibition Has Broken All Previous Records

Eighteen Thousand People on the Grounds Throughout the Day Yesterday—Magnificent Crowd at the Night Performance.

A GRAND EXHIBITION

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition directors made good on their prediction that they would break the attendance record if the weather man gave them half a chance. For a while yesterday it looked as if the half chance wasn't going to come along. It was raining and gloomy in the early part of the day and the directors almost lost heart for a while but fortunately the weather cleared at noon and a better afternoon could not have been available if the management had made it for themselves. It was bright, sunshiny and warm—an ideal day for the Exhibition. The result was a grand attendance in the afternoon, fully 10,000 people finding their way through the gates of Exhibition Park. This in view of the fact that the gloomy morning kept hundreds of farmers and hundreds more from the surrounding towns and villages away was an astounding attendance and is due to the fact that the citizens of Peterborough patronized the Exhibition nobly. Everybody with his wife was there, and as for children, there never was such a gathering of them in Peterborough. From 12 o'clock until nearly 4 p.m., the rush through the gates was kept up and the ticket staff had their hands full. Every southbound street car was loaded to the steps, although the Radial Railway Company had all their rolling stock except the sweeper in commission. It was a great crowd and a happy, jolly crowd, who succeeded in enjoying themselves thoroughly and had nothing but good words for the Exhibition and the management. The evening crowd smashed all records for a night performance here and the swarm on the grounds looked almost as large as in the afternoon, although in reality it was some thousand short of the daylight crowd. The mammoth attendance in the evening sent the total figures for the day up to record breaking proportions and it is estimated that altogether about 18000 people, equivalent to the total population of Peterborough, saw the big Exhibition through the day. No wonder President Leary and his energetic board of directors had their faces wreathed in smiles. The crowd was the biggest in the history of the Exhibition; the show itself was pronounced the best ever given here; the people were satisfied and the financial results were highly satisfactory.

It is agreed that better exhibits were never seen at the Peterborough Exhibition. One of the judges in horses remarked to the Examiner that there was a magnificent showing of horses. A similar remark was made about the poultry exhibit and so it was all along the line. The promptness with which the prize money is paid coupled with the fact that the judges are invariably proficient and satisfactory have built up for the local Exhibition a reputation that shows itself unmistakably in the excellence of the exhibits.

The displays by local merchants and agents in the main building and in the different tents were commented upon by every one as signs of enterprise. Upstairs in the main building the ladies found a display of fancy work, etc., that pleased them immensely and the room was always crowded.

A Big Midway.

The noisiest and liveliest section of the grounds was the Midway—this year far bigger than ever before. A large number of Exhibition visitors had more fun on the Midway than anywhere else between the four fences and they certainly had plenty of amusement there yesterday. There were all manner of devices for separating a man and his money and they were all pretty freely patronized. A snake show, a "Gay Paree" entertainment, a merry-go-round and a miniature railway were some of the features while there was every variety of ball game known, including the old favourite "hit-the-nigger-and-get-a-cigar stunt. One of the latter was nearly wrecked during the afternoon when the southpaw pitcher of the Peterborough Midland League team took a hand at hurling the sphere. The Ethiopian, who was supposed to do the dodging, got his signals crossed and received a speedy one from the portside twirler on the point of the jaw, going down for the count. He resumed business with a badly swollen face.

A Great Programme.

The afternoon crowd certainly got its money's worth, as the programme was a very large one—so long indeed that some of the events had to be chopped off and at that it was 6.30 before the decisive heat of the 2.18 race brought the proceedings to a close. There was something doing all the time and the big crowd seemed highly delighted with the entertainment.

The horse racing was a feature. With the capable and popular starter, Dr. Sinclair, of Cannington, handling the bell, the events were handled in first-class style, and the crowd saw some of the best racing provided here in years.

The 2.18 class, which required five heats to decide, was alone worth the price of admission. There were four entries, Harry Mack, owned by Mr. McMahon, Reaboro. Harry Direct, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough, Patterson, Eddie Jones, Peterborough, and Percy H., M. Storey, Peterborough. It was a grand race all through the chapter. Percy H. got away with the first heat and Harry Mack came along and grabbed off the second. Then Patterson, who had not been closer than third in the other two heats, delighted the crowd by going out and taking the third, fourth and fifth heats, and incidentally the race.

Harry Mack made the running for the greater part of the first heat, but at the three-quarter pole, Percy H. made a drive, and, coming into the stretch, swung outside the Reaboro horse, and shot beneath the wire first, amid great excitement.

Harry Mack led all the way through in the second heat, although it was a battle throughout the mile with Percy H. The third heat was the feature of the race. "Patterson," who was in second place when the three-quarter pole was reached, suddenly made a drive and swayed on the outside of the track. Harry Mack had something left, however, and his driver also went to the whip. The two came down the stretch like a team, but near the wire "Patterson" managed to get his head in front and they passed under the wire six inches apart, so close in fact that the people in the stand did not know the result until the judges had announced their decision. "Patterson" had little difficulty in annexing the next two heats of the race. Following is the summary:

1—Patterson, E. Jones, Peterborough 3 3 1 1 1
2—"Harry Mack," McMahon, Reaboro 2 1 2 2 2
3—"Percy H.," M. Storey, Peterborough 1 2 3 4 3
4—"Harry Direct" Dr. Johnston, Peterborough 4 4 4 3 4
Time—2.22¼, 2.23, 2.23½, 2.23½, 2.24.

The 2.00 class race was won in straight heats by Mr. O'Neill, Walter Simmons, but it provided some excitement. Manor King, the Orillia horse, furnished the chief contention and there were some features not on the programme.

In the first heat "Silver Heels" got mixed up with a dog with the result that the driver was spilled, but was unhurt. In the second heat the driver of Manor King was upset but he, too, had no serious results from his tumble. The summary follows:

1—"Walter Simmons," Mr. O'Neill, Lindsay 1 1 1
2—"Manor King," Mr. Hodgins, Orillia 2 4 2
3—"Hazel Brook," Mr. Elmhirst, Keene 3 2 3
4—"Silver Heels" Mr. Fanning, Lindsay 4 3 4

Mr. Stratton's Horses.

A feature was the showing of Mr. Stratton's string of champion harness in pairs, and in tandem. The beautiful animals, with their fine appointments, made an impressive picture as they passed the grandstand and the hearty applause they were greeted with showed how thoroughly the crowd enjoyed the opportunity of seeing the celebrated Strathormond horses and how much Mr. Stratton's public spirit, in making it possible to have this splendid parade, was appreciated. It was an educational as well as a picturesque display.

Vaudeville Performance.

The vaudeville performance in front of the grand stand during the afternoon, was thoroughly enjoyed, the children taking especial delight in the trick mule and in the trained ponies, dogs and bears. The acrobatic performance was snappy and clever—in fact the whole performance was meritorious. The 57th Regiment Band rendered a choice programme during the afternoon.

An interesting feature was the performance in front of the stand by the Peterborough Boy Scouts, under the direction of Scout Masters Sawers and Miller. The boys did the march past, saluted the colours and put on a splendid exhibition of first aid, the little fellows in the khaki suits and Stetson hats coming in for rounds of applause for their clever work.

The Night Performance.

There was a crowd on the grounds last night that delighted the directors. Before 7 o'clock the rush commenced and it kept up until nearly 9 o'clock, by far the biggest crowd that was ever present at an evening show in connection with the Fair. The grandstand filled quickly and there were thousands on the race track and inside the enclosure, while the performance was going on. The fire brigade gave an exhibition run past the grandstand with all their equipment out and the fire laddies were well received. The vaudeville performance again pleased the crowd and the fireworks, that wound up the evening, was an enjoyable feature.

EXHIBIT NOTICES

THE GAY PAREE.

One of the leading features of Peterborough's Fall Fair Midway was the W. J. Kenney's Gay Paree. In Mr. Kenney's tent a nuber of young ladies gave a series of dances that enthused the hundreds in attendance. The fire dance by Miss Marie La Belle, was a feature of the show. In addition to this great feature other dances were presented that fully repaid those in attendance the price of their admission. Another feature of this great show was the magnificent wire walking act by Mr. Hugh Workman.

J. T. C. LANG & CO.

Once more Messrs. J. T. C. Lang & Co., Peterborough's leading clothing store, has come to the front and by the exhibit at this year's Fall Fair proved that the "Daylight" Store still maintains the proud position it has always held. This old established and reliable firm has this year again, as in years gone by, had their private tent on the Exhibition grounds. In fact, the tent of Lang & Co. has become a permanent feature of Peterborough's Fall Fair. This commodious canvas emporium is conveniently situated on the Exhibition Grounds, immediately adjoining the tent of the Secretary and Management of the Fair. It is worthy of note that, on the opening day of the Fair as soon as Mr. Lang and his staff of employees at the grounds had arranged the display, scores of early visitors congregated to admire both the tasty arrangement of the Lang exhibit and to comment favourably on the excellence of the goods shown. On the counters of this temporary home of the great Lang & Co. Emporium were shown Sovereign Brand Clothing, Thornton & Douglas (special measure) and Fit Rite brands of gents. clothing. Young men, or old, should demand and purchase the best fitting, as well as the best wearing, brands of clothing. To ensure this combination of sartorial requirements a visit should be paid to J. T. C. Lang & Co., where everything in gents. furnishings or clothing, of latest mode is on sale. Thousands of visitors to the Fall Exhibition here could not turn their eyes in any direction without seeing the many and artistic signs of J. T. C. Lang & Co., whose enterprise is most commendable.

NEW EMPIRE RANGE.

At this season, most thrifty housewives have their minds naturally drawn to the subject of heat and the best and most economical methods of cooking. To judge by the thousands who, during the past day or two gathered round the magnificent display, in the Exhibition building, of the National Manufacturing Co. of Ottawa and Brockville, Ont., the people of Peterborough take a deep interest in which is the best and most economical stoves for use in the home The "New Empress" steel range, as shown by the above Company's representative at the Exhibition building seemed to fill all demands of the most exacting. The new Empress is handsome in appearance without having the intricate and trivial ornamentation of some other ranges, which superfluous gewgaws add to costs with no commensurate advantages. The New Empress is easily kept clean and as easily managed by the lady in charge. The price of this latest addition is within reach of the most modest pocket book, although the best material and workmanship is in evidence. For full particulars and prices, apply to the local agent, Mr. D. C. Lamont, 301 George St., Peterborough. Mr. Lamont also handles the "Capital" Separator. In these days of strenuous competition between makers of various separators, the public has to use great discretion in choosing the best. For full particulars regarding the "Capital" Separator, call on, or address, Mr. Lamonte at the above address.

EDWARDSBURG STARCH CO.

One of the most attractive exhibits at this year's Peterborough Fall Fair is that of the Edwardsburg Starch Co. Rows of brilliantly-decorated cans, containing the products of this Company caused thousands of our citizens to stop and investigate. The chief product of this Company on exhibition was syrup. This article, made from Indian Corn, which is pure and wholesome, is put up in 2, 5, 10 and 20 pound tins. It is not going too far to say that this exhibit was one of the leading features of the present Fall Fair in Peterborough. The staff engaged at the Exhibition building, was kept busy handing out miniature tins of the Edwardsburg Starch Company's famous Crown Brand Syrup. The man in charge of this successful exhibit, Mr. J. T. Paul, Toronto, ably assisted by Mr. A. Cameron, the local representative, were kept busy throughout the whole continuance of the Peterborough Fall Fair, answering the questions put by thousands of eager enquirers as to the stock and "modus operandi" employed in the make of this syrup. It would not transgress newspaper etiquette to say that the Edwardsburg Starch Co. had one of the most attractive exhibits shown this Fall at Peterborough, and great credit is due to those in charge at the building for the tastily arranged and well demonstrated display.

PROGRESSIVE PHOTOGRAPHY.

No more apt term could be applied to the yearly exhibit of the Roy Studio than "Progressive Photography." For years this firm have been the acknowledged leaders in all that is new and artistic in photography, and judging from the crowds that frequent the exhibit, it is one of the popular features of the Peterborough Fall Fair. It is not in one branch only that this firm specializes, but in all the manifold productions of the modern studio. The portraits in water colours are this year a noteworthy feature and are well worthy of the closest study. Hand coloured over a light photographic image, they combine all the beauties of a water colour with the absolute likeness of the photograph. Also worthy of special mention are numbers of excellent studies of men prominent in Canadian public life. The children are strongly represented and the advance guard of the Examiner's great Christmas picture is there shown. Many events of local interest during the past year are displayed, and many others could not be brought in on account of lack of space.

All in all, Messrs. Roy have added greatly to their reputation through this year's exhibit, and anyone who is in doubt as to the merits of their productions, could ask no more convincing argument.

Whilst this year's exhibit is very large, there is not a picture in it that has ever been shown at this Fair before. As has been customary in previous years, this studio once more received a majority of the awards, two out of three first prizes having been granted for excellence of finish and artistic workmanship. This continuous recognition of the merits of the Roy Studio work demonstrates conclusively that this local firm head the procession in artistic photography.

In previous years it has been absolutely impossible to accommodate all those desiring Roy's portraits for Christmas and New Year's use, when such would-be sitters, neglected to make sufficiently early appointments. Thus, those desiring pictures for Christmas should arrange for sittings at an early date and thus save disappointment.

Ed. Note.—For those who have not seen previous announcements we might add that the Examiner is publishing an enormous group photograph of every child taken at the Roy studio this year in the coming special Christmas number.

GOLDEN EAGLE ATTACKS ROE-DEER.

When two keepers were out in a Glenisla deer forest their attention was attracted by a startled herd of deer. Looking for the cause of the animal's alarm, they found it to proceed from a golden eagle attacking a pair of roedeer soe little distance off. The attack seemed to be concentrated upon one of the creatures. Flying over its intended victim, the eagle dealt a heavy blow on the head with it wing, in passing. Then settling a few yards distant for a few moments it recrossed the roe-deer, hitting it on the same way again. The same tactics were repeatedly continued, the only variation being that the huge bird occasionally tried to settle on the back of the roe. In this, however, it was unsuccessful, for the other roe came ot the assistance of its companion, and drove off the enemy. The blows of the powerful wing seemed to have a great effect upon the roe, which appeared to become dazed and stupefied. The eagle was able to drive the roedeer in any direction he pleased, and all the time the keepers watched him he was heading their course for the top of some high and precipitous rocks over the crest of the hill. Unfortunately the keepers were unable to watch the final denouement; but it appears highly probable that the bird would ultimately succeed in driving his victim over the rocks in question, and thereafter enjoy a savoury meal. Incidents of this kind are seldom witnessed, but the golden eagle has been known to "cliff" even the larger deer.

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 5th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained by writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

NATIONAL EXPERIMENTAL TANK

The recent opening of thenational experimental tank for ship models at Bushy Park, although it has not attracted much attention owing to absorbing interest in politics and labour problems, was an event of national importance. It will be remembered by those interested in such matters that in the early years of the present century—in 1901, to be precise—Mr. A. F. Yarrow mooted the matter at a meeting of the Institut ion of Naval Architects at Glasgow, and the idea was kept alive and fostered by the Earl of Glasgow, Sir W. White and others; but it was not until 1908, when the generosity of Mr. Yarrow placed the sum of £20,000 at the disposal of a committee for the construction of an experimental tank, that the proposal took practical shape, the only conditions being that suitable provision was made for conducting experimental and research work of a confidential character. He also stipulated that a sum of £2,000 per annum for ten years should be raised as a guarantee fund. In this tank which has been placed under an advisory committee, so as to be certain that it is devoted to right purpose and up-to-date work, much national work of prime importance to a maritime country like our own is now being performed. Models from 14 to 20 feet can be used, and an installation of electrical towing apparatus has been erected which will give the model a speed varying as necessary, from 1 foot per second to 25 feet per second.

NEW CLASS OF MOTOR CAR

There is now in operation on the Grand Trunk, between Bridgeburg and Port Colborne a new class of motor car which is proving highly successful It is exceptionally neat in design, and comfortable in interior arrangement. Two of these cars have already been turned out at the shops of the Company at Montreal. They are known as steam motor cars, and have a capacity including the smoking compartment of 58 people. The cars are 71 feet in length, the interior being finished in highly polished mahogany and upholstered in leather. Oil is used for fuel and the cars are heated by steam.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Last month the Railway Commission headed by Judge Mabee, Chairman, visited Prince Rupert, and made a trip over the hundred miles of the Grand Trunk Pacific east of Prince Rupert, which is now in operation. General Superintendent Mehan was the recipient of many compliments as to the physical conditions of the new roadbed. Judge Mabee said in an interview with a reporter of the "Evening Empire" in Prince Rupert: "I saw a splendid piece of roadbed. It is a fine road all the way from this point to Mile 102. A better piece of road cannot be found among many of the roads of older Ontario. On our return trip we ran over 35 miles an hour over some portions of the line and the going was remarkably steady for a new road. When the Government accepted the road, there was no order limiting the speed of trains to 12 miles an hour, but after having seen the road, we are going to make an order permitting the speed of trains to be increased to 35 miles an hour."

This is in line with the entire construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, which is being built as a permanent road from the start.

NEW TERRITORY

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows: "Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighbourhood of 12,000 feet, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, about 225 miles west of Edmonton.

By next year the steel will reach this territory and it is likely that a large number of people will take advantage of this new country to explore it before it becomes too popular.

SUBSTANTIOL PROGRESS

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper National Park, 1027 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 25 or 30 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert Branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Waka, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Hartz, a distance of 27 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

POPULARITY PRONOUNCED

The popularity of the Algonquin National Park, Ontario, has been pronounced this year, and it has been necessary to use at least 25 large tents as an auxiliary to the accommodation of the Highland Inn, at Algonquin National Park Station.

Most people return to their homes in the early part of September, but as this is one of the most delightful months in this territory, those who can make it convenient are advised to spend a week or two there. The hotel is also open all the winter and with the bracing air of this locality (1760 ft. above the sea) a most delightful sojourn can be spent even in the winter months.

A handsome illustrated booklet may be had on this territory upon application to Mr. A. E. Duff, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

G. T. P. SYSTEM

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st, and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 60,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

Will Make Hair Grow

Every upto-date woman should have radiant hair.

There are thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair, who do not try to improve it.

In England and Paris women take pride in having beautiful hair. Every Canadian woman can have lustrous and luxuriant hair by using SALVIA, the Great American Soap Hair Tonic. McDermaid and Jury sell a large bottle for 50 cents, and guarantee it to banish Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

KIT'S COLUMN

There is a young-old look on the faces of many Canadian women whom you meet at the exhibition going in and out of the buildings—a look that ought not to be on the face of any woman under sixty. It is a haggard, weary, worn look with a touch of hopelessness about the eyes, as though one was very tired of everything and quite ready to quit. It may come from work which has grown monotonous, from lonely living, from too little playtime and perhaps from carelessness about one's appearance. It is as though the women grew old immediately after marriage and lost interest in taking care of themselves. A little care about the hair and skin and the way one's clothing is put ondoes so much for a woman. The exclamation, "How young you are looking!" always is made to the woman who cares enough for herself and her friends to make herself interesting if she cannot be pretty. Yet what sights you will see: Clothes pitchforked on; skirts trailing and damp with slush of the street suggesting awful stockings and underwear; dry hair drawn back tightly from the worn face plainly revealing age or ill health in the thin places above the ear, and pinned in an ugly knot. Hats pitched on at an angle, untidy collars and dress plackets wide open or fastened with a safety pin—this was how seven out of every ten women looked on close and leisurely inspection. A seedy spectacle and no need for the seediness. Of course it takes an effort, but is it not worth while? Can anything be sadder than to meet in some place given to junketting and pleasure, these weary faces and untidy figures, and this is a land so full of hope and promise as Canada—where, as a travelling Englishman put it the other day, "you have no excuse for looking tired or unhappy." Alas! life is the same everywhere. The same griefs and pains and losses and weariness are to be found wherever men meet and live.

But one needn't be slatternly about one's appearance and leave ones placket open though one is "tired of it all" need one? And why not perk up and look across the shadow to where the sunlight lies upon the grass?

When you thoroughly absorb the forewood of "The Claw," you know exactly what to expect—that, more or less veiled—and altogether covered from the vision of the casual reader—the friends of the author are about to be introduced to you under various guises, mostly unpleasant. The author doth protest too loudly that no one—not theteeniest weeniest acquaintance of hers—shall be found pirouetting between the pages of her novel. Indeed it is the foreword that will set people to industriously looking for their photographs. And I have no doubt but they will find them.

The book is well named. It is full of claws, mostly cats' claws. The heroine who tells her own story is of course beautiful, and frankly talks of her beauty, and naturally all the other women are jealous of her. It takes a woman to dissect a woman. She does it best of all, always excepting the man who wrote Madame Bovary, and that other who created Cousine Bette. Very thoroughly does Deirde Saurin pick to the bone the other women lagered with her in the little Dutch outpost. You know them even to the stripes in the eyes of one of them. The whole tribe of cats is there with wide open tearing claws. They spit and snarl and scratch their way through the book. The hero is an impossible fellow, very wicked of course for what attracts women more than dare-devilness if it be combined with manly beauty and agile grace. There is a good deal of "dop" about as in all the Afrikander stories which appear to be popular this year, but it is a weak dop or rather much diluted bad Dutch brandy. An impossible story of impossible and unpleasant people. It savours of a hash in which we find a touch of "Ouida," a dash of "The Duchess," a pinch of Bertha M. Clay, and two grains of Kipling. You wonder why the author wrote it and why you wasted an hour reading it.

Upton Sinclair and his wife have come to the parting of the ways. Not long ago he wrote in jocund mood of how with his fasting rules he had cured his charming wife of a dyspepsia which had plagued he rhalf her lifetime. Her printed portrait showed us a sonsy, pretty woman with a coquettish hood crowding the curls about her face. She looked to be happy and contented. But the fasting was her undoing. As she grew lighter in weight and heart she began to see some flaws and pick more in Upton. He apparently does not come up to the standard she has, in her new sound health raised for a husband. He is 'too intellectual'—what she thinks she wants is a man to fit her every mood, but she is mistaken. What she is looking for is not a man but a chameleon. Needless to say her search will prove fruitless. She will be obliged either to take many husbands or abstain from any. Perhaps she feels herself destined to found a new religion the antithesis of Mormonism. Some sort of innings is due to women. Here we have a flourishing sect, a recognized orderly community whose religious tenets not only permit but desire its male members to equal unto themselves many women as wives. How would it be if we took a hand in and began stealing unto ourselves many husbands? This may be Mrs. Upton Sinclair's ultimate policy—a husband for each mood. As the French have it "Souvent femme varie," I fear we would have a busy time changng our men. Most of us will agree that a decent money making husband would fill the bill as well as foot it, but, if you notice, the poor money grubbing fellow is often sold over his own threshold for some long haired Bohemion ,who can string love-ryhymes as well as melodies. However, marriage is a lottery for woman as well as man and there are but few of us who draw prises. Mrs. Sinclair has been dubbed the latest type of the New Woman, that "eternal feminine" who is not permitted to grow old. Woman is no newer than Mother Eve, and no older. Mrs. Upton Sinclair with her phantasies and whimsies is as old as the hills, and as young. There has always been since this world crumbled off the edge of some other the Woman who Did—and wrecked herself doing it .But that does not go to prove that there are no sane, easy-going, practical women in the world. Mothers of men who keep the race sound and sweet and marshal it from one generation to the other towards higher and better things.

Fre quently what, owing largely to the wild and highly coloured illustrations which accompany them—appear to be extravagant and peculiar statements, prove later to have more than a few grains of truth in them. You come on these stories in the magazine portions of the Sunday papers and wonder where the writer got his information or whether he cut his tale out of whole cloth. Marvelous surgical operations are illustrated and explained; the secrets of courts are made public, and divorces or criminal cases are shadowed forth long before they appear as actual news in the columns of the morning paper. About a year ago a highly-coloured sheet printed an article about the Czarewitch in which he was portrayed as a cruel little boy whose temper was unchecked, whose infantile brutalities were actually fostered. The illustrations showed the little fellow whipping his attendants, ill-using animals and ordering his sisters from his presence. It was an absurd article evidently spiced to suit the palate of a certain section of the reading public. Now, long after, some news creeps out of Russia which in a way confirms these outrageous statements. The czar as is well known, is a mystic, one who seeks soothsayers and listens to the tales of the astrologer. His is a melancholy, brooding mediumistic nature to which all that is occult is of paramount interest. His soul is always trembling on the borders of spirit-land seeking to lift the edge of the mysterious curtain which one day or the other rings down on every one of us. Some seer has declared that the spirit of Peter the Great has entered the body of the little czarewitch and should be there welcomed and humoured. All who read history know of the brutal and passionate disposition of Russia's great ruler, he who formed a disciplined army and created a navy and sought to bring to Russia the civilization of other countries. He was energetic and powerful but he was also mean, cruel and of violent temper. The little prince has already exhibited many of these traits, and it is now an open secret that his wayward temper is never thwarted. His mother, a sad and gentle woman, long since gave up trying to control or guide him. He has little or no respect for her. For his sisters, the Grand Duchesses he exhibits more or less contempt. His father, the czar, is at once his god and his slave. Thus because some charlatan pretends to discover in this small and beautiful child, the reincarnation of a cruel and formidable ancestor; he will be allowed to grow into a despot, a monster of cruelty, who as surely will be one day destroyed as was Peter the Third, that other weak and unfortunate prince who was strangled by the hands of the lover of his wife—the great and terrible Catherine.

The little old man of a trunk has lost some of his cherished labels. They have been battered off him by truculent baggage men, by rubbings up against other people's luggage and by general holidaying on boat and train. No more does Pople's Hotel, Exeter, stare at me from its blue label reminding one of the pleasant nights spent in a delicious Dickensy bed-chamber all hung with rose-chintz and dimity and smelling of old lavender. The Royal Hotel Bristol, no longer strides rampant on the black back of the little box, while but tall ends remain of Euston, St. Pancras and Charing X. The new trunk in the garret which came from the shop a day ago will chuckle at the discomfiture of the dinged litle box so shorn of its vouchers of travel in far lands. I have heard "luggage" more than once jeering at one another, so to speak, but never biggest Saratoga of them all saw as much of the world as this one little old black and tan box. Where has he not been? With the grey elephant trunk down in Cuba at wartime where he was nearly commandeered by a nice soldier boy who wore the grey and red of the Confederate army, at Shepheard's Hotel in Cairo and Watson's in Bombay, in dear devoted Dublin, and in the rue Madeleine. In red hotels and blue hotels and little stations in the west of Ireland. Everywhere his owner has been the little trunk came along a faithful companion. While the big boxes grumbled to one another in the black holds of ships, the little box lay snug and tight under the state room berth. He traveled down the Appian Way, and sat himself in the inn parlour at Ballygar in the county of Galway; well does he remember Killarney and one Jerry O'Connor, who knocked a hole in him wid a kick of the ass, your honner, that had a lump on his foot bad luck to him. Other trunks—be labelled old campaigners which rule the roost in baggage rooms and railway vans, make room for him and greet him with creakings when he goes on his travels, for they respect a chap who's been twice around the world and once across, and now to have his certificates of travel torn from his back, under his very nose you might say, in a bit of a run to Muskoka and back!

"The pity of it, Iago," I can hear him creak up in the attic as he strains under his leather belly band—nothing left of his vast tours but a very tag ra gand-bobbit-tail of labels red, white and blue!

CITY COUNCIL HOLD A SPECIAL MEETING

An Amendment to Milk By-law Passed---Milk Vendors Were Canny About Favouring the Meeting With Their Presence---Citizen Puts in a Bill for $500 Damages.

A special meeting of the city fathers was held last night for the purpose of disposing of the milk by-law and a number of other important matters. That the milk by-law did not receive its final disposition was due to the indifference shown by the milk vendors themselves. They received due notification that the meeting would take place, but they made themselves conspicuous by their absence.

An amendment to the by-law was read to the effect that 3 be substituted in place of 3.4, this being the required standard of butter fat as stipulated in the by-law, also that the milk be bottled.

It was moved by Ald. Graham and seconded by Ald. Duncan that, owing to the absence of the milk vendors themselves, that the matter be shelved until next meeting.

A report from the Board of Health re septic tank was also shelved until a later date.

A report re paving of Chamberlain street and portion of Hunter street was referred to the Board of Works.

Mr. J .T. O'Connell put in a claim for $500 damages to property, alleged to have been caused by the grading of the road in connection with the construction of Smith street. It was referred to the Legal committee.

A letter was read from Mr. Elliott, who is moving his bowling alley and shooting gallery out of the city, and asking for a rebate in his license. The matter was referred to the Finance committee.

On motion of Ald. Metheral, Miss Armstrong was appointed acting city clerk until such time as Mr. S. R. Armstrong, who is at present incapacitated from work, is able to resume his duties.

It was moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Metheral, that the report of the Finance committee which is here appended, be accepted.—Carried.

Gentlemen,—Your Finance committee, beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That no action be taken on the request of the Peterborough Industrial for an increased grant.

ALD. BRADBURN,
Chairman.

In reply to Ald. Bradburn's query as to why the lights on George street had not been moved to the centre of the street, Ald. Metheral, as a member of the Fire, Water and Light committee, in the absence of the chairman of that committee ventured to say that the fittings that are necessary for the rearrangement of the lights were not to hand, but the work would be completed as soon as possible.

The by-law authorizing the payment of $500 to the 57th Regimental Band as per contract for band concerts given in Victoria Park during the past summer was formally passed.

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the Finance committee be authorized to grant the Bonner Worth Company the first instalment amounting to $6,000 as per agreement between the company and city, the former having complied with the conditions contained in the agreement.—Carried.

The special committee appointed in regard to Pigeon Creek bridge reported as follows:

A meeting was held with representatives of the Councils of Peterborough and Victoria counties at the bridge, and it was decided to interview the Dominion Government in regard to the rebuilding of the bridge. We recommend that the chairman of the Board of Works be authorised to name representatives of this Council to interview the Government along with members of the other Councils, and that their expenses be paid on his certificate.

This was received.

This concluded the business for the evening. Those present at the meeting were His Worship Mayor Morrow, Ald. Anderson, Ald. Graham, Ald. Edgar. Ald. Metheral, Ald. Bradburn, Ald. Buller and Ald. Duncan.

STOMACH DISTRESS IS ENDED FOREVER

No Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas or Indigestion in Five Minutes

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring, the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

A Magnificent Assemblage of the Season's Most Exclusive Modes

OUR SECOND FLOOR DEPARTMENTS are worthy of special mention. Here are found Millinery, Ready-to-Wears, and Women's Shoes. The Ready-to-Wear Department offers many advantages---its enlarged showrooms permit of larger stocks and a greater variety from which to make selection---its increased staff of competent salesladies insures prompt, efficient and courteous attention---the enlarged alteration room and added help will mean garments altered to one's perfect satisfaction in a reasonably short time. The Cressman Ready-to-Wear Department has a well-earned reputation for garments that are DIFFERENT ---garments that are EXCLUSIVE, and DECIDEDLY NOVEL.

HERE ALSO are situated the Millinery Parlours. Enlarged workrooms and an increased staff both in the workroom and showroom will permit of all orders being executed promptly. Miss Hughes is in charge of this department, and is showing a collection of the most charming hat creations it has ever been our pleasure to offer---hats that reveal a touch of originality and are rich in the rare, warm tones of the Autumn season.

TO ADD the final touch of completeness to this floor we have here the Women's Shoe Section. The celebrated makes of American Footwear---J. & K. and Pingree---are the prominent features of this department. All the latest styles in the very newest lasts are here shown.

WE WOULD STRONGLY EMPHASIZE the advantage of "Early Buying." Completeness of stocks together with many novelty attractions all tend to make early selection, particularly in "Garments," very desirable.

A SASKATOON CONSERVATIVE SAYS RECIPROCITY WINS THE WEST

Dr. Willoughby, of Saskatoon, son of Rev. Dr. Willoughby, a former resident of Peterborough, is in the city. He can see no other indication than that the reciprocity agreement will sweep the west. Dr. Willoughby has always been a Conservative and his opinions are not biassed in favour of the Liberal policy, but his judgment has to yield to facts.

NOTE THIS; THE LAURIER GOVERNMENT IS SURE TO BE SUSTAINED.

EGGS VERY SCARCE--BIG MARKET TO-DAY--BUTTER 28c

To-day witnessed another record crowd on the market. Eggs are going out of sight and chickens are becoming more plentiful every week. Every egg on the market was sold before 11 o'clock and sold at from 22c. to 25c. per doz. They opened the market at 22c., last Saturday's standard, but when the demand became so great they boosted them another cent. Eggs were as scarce almost as diamonds, and the prospects are not very bright for the purchaser. Eggs mean money now and it takes a lot of money to mean eggs.

There was not much change in the price of other produce, but the prices are all at a rather high figure. Potatoes especially, were away up to-day selling fast at $1.85. The following are to-day's quotations:

Outside Market.

Pears—30c. per basket.
Grapes—25c. basket.
Green tomatoes—80c. per bush.
Ripe tomatoes—$1.00 bush.
Cucumbers—60c. basket.
Corn on cob—10c. doz.
Onions—$1.25 per bag.
Potatoes—$1.70 to $1.85.
Lamb—14c. to 16c.
Apples—30c. peck.
Baled hay—80c. cwt.
Loose hay—$12 and $13 per ton.
Live hogs—$7.
Farmers hides—7 1-2.
Butchers' hides—8 1-2 and 9.

Inside Market.

Eggs—22c. and 23c.
Butter—28c.
Chickens—75c. pair.
Ducks—60c. each.
Geese—$1.25 each.

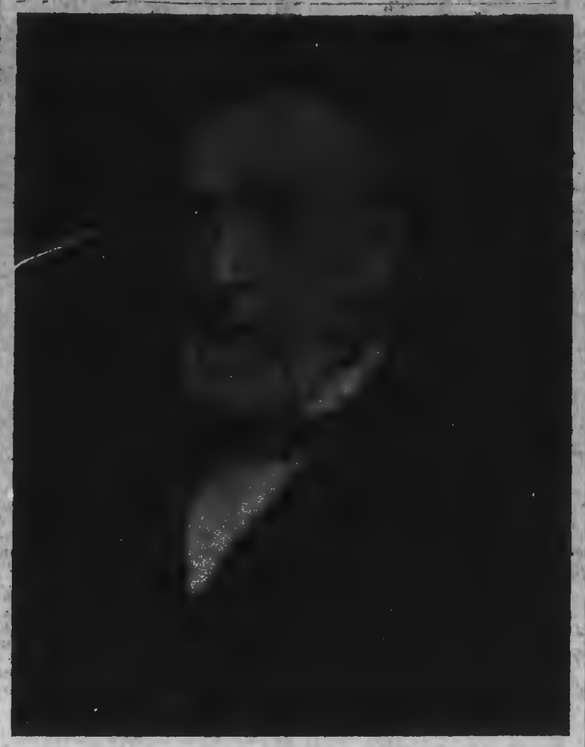
Witnesses all the way from Dummer were present and gave evidence.

Senator Cox Predicts Success For Mr. Stratton And Reciprocity

The Great Financier Tells of Mr. Stratton's Efforts on Behalf of Peterborough and its Industries



Hon. Senator Cox was in town to-day, and the Examiner took advantage of his presence to ascertain his views in regard to his feelings and opinion in relation to the present election campaign.

Hon. Senator Cox is the dean of the financial faculty of Canada, and as he keeps in close touch with all the conditions that affect the national situation, his opinion is worth something.

"Mr. Cox, what is your opinion of the result of the elections in the country?"

"I haven't the shadow of a doubt that the Government will be sustained, with, if not a larger, as large a majority, or a safe working majority."

"Do you base this opinion on any particular conditions?"

"Yes; upon my faith in the good sense of the people of Canada. I may perhaps be credited with knowing something of what I am talking about, and after a careful study of the reciprocity agreement I believe it will be to the advantage and benefit of every interest in Canada—farmer, manufacturer and workmen."

"How do you think it will affect Peterborough?"

"It cannot do anything else than be to its advantage. I believe it will benefit the farmer and add to his prosperity—the crops of the farm are a big factor in the financial world. I know we are all deeply interested at present in the western wheat crop. The crop conditions every year are the barometer of the year's business and business outlook. Good crops mean capital for all industrial enterprises. It helps manufacturing industries and the money available for general expenditure will create increased demands for manufactured products. I don't see where reciprocity can do anything but help the manufacturing industries of Peterborough. And I speak as a man with considerable investments at stake. The agreement does not affect the protective tariff of the manufacturer."

"What kind of man do you think should represent West Peterborough in Parliament?"

"There can be no two opinions in that matter. He ought to be a business man. As a representative of West Peterborough, Mr. Stratton is head and shoulders above any man I know in his desirability as a member. He has the business ability, the business insight, the business promptitude, business energy and loyalty to Peterborough, and Peterborough interests that fit him to make a representative that Peterborough cannot very well do without."

"Have you anything specially to mention in this regard?"

"Yes, in addition to my general knowledge that his energy and persistent use of his influence with the Government has brought great advantages, I have in mind one particular instance in which his services were largely responsible for the existence in Peterborough of one of its most important industries.

"I refer to the Quaker Oats Company. I had something to do with its location here and I am bound to say that if it had not been for the influence of Mr. Stratton in securing a 20 year exemption, which had never before been granted by the Legislature, the location of the works here would have been doubtful, if not impossible. I was intimately associated with the establishment of the works here and speak from actual knowledge.

"This great industry is directly due in a very large measure to the help of Mr. Stratton, by the use of his influence with the Government in securing assistance. This has by no means been confined to the inception of the works; but ever since they have been in operation, Mr. Stratton has been a good friend to the Quaker Oats Company, and it is no surprise to me that the head of the Company, Mr. Robert Stuart, is supporting Mr. Stratton. It seems to me to be fair play to praise the bridge that carries you safely over the stream."

"Anything else, Mr. Cox?"

"Yes; I said that Mr. Stratton was directly instrumental in securing the location of The Quaker Oats works here, but he has through this been indirectly responsible for the important power development in Peterborough, which would not have been done—at least, as fully and quickly as it has been done—except for the Quaker Oats.

"I know that Mr. Stratton has, as in this, been a good friend to every sort of enterprise and industry and interest in Peterborough, and that it will be to the best interests of the city and country if the people send him to Ottawa."

"But, you know, Mr. Cox, some people say that Mr. Stratton is not wanted at Ottawa."

"That is hardly worth considering—there is no truth in it at all. I have been at Ottawa every session since Mr. Stratton was elected, and I know—and know whereof I speak—that the Government appreciates and values him not only as a faithful supporter of its policy, but holds his business ability, his enterprise, his knowledge of affairs, in the very highest esteem. The only thing about Mr. Stratton that the Government doesn't exactly like—in a way—is his persistence—his hanging on. In seeking something for West Peterborough, he is a hard man to shake off.

"Looking at the situation in all ways I think Mr. Stratton would be the best representative for Peterborough to send to Parliament. The Laurier Government is sure to be sustained, and it would be wisdom to have a friend at Court, one not only friendly to West Peterborough, but friendly to the Government.

"Looking at the matter in all ways, I don' see how Peterborough can afford to do without Mr. Stratton's services in Parliamen—I think it would be making a great mistake if it did not elect him on September 21st.

"There are many public works to be constructed here. It goes without saying that all governments are human and while everything cannot be obtained that is sought it is only reasonable to suppose that a government accedes most willingly to the legitimate requests of its friends.

"In my opinion a defeat for Mr. Stratton would be a great setback for this fair city. I do not consider such a defeat possible. The loss of Mr. Stratton's services for Peterborough in Parliament would mean too great a depreciation of business and property in Peterborough to be entertained."

KEENE MAN KNOCKED DOWN BY HORSE ON HUNTER ST. IN HOSPITAL

An accident which might have assumed serious proportions occurred on Hunter street, when Mr. Thos McIntyre, of Keene, was knocked down and trampled upon by a horse. It appears that Mr. McIntyre was going out Hunter street, walking close to the outside of the sidewalk and an automobile came along just as he was beside the horse. The auto made a loud exhaust and scared the animal so that it jumped sideways and struck Mr. McIntyre, knocking him down under its feet, when it proceeded to trample the life out of him—an almost inevitable conclusion had it not been for the timely assistance of Mr. W. Mulligan who caught him and dragged him out on the street. Some men gathered around and helped to carry the injured man into the Dominion Express office and he was later taken to the Nicholls hospital, where Dr. Halliday attended to his injuries which, by the way, were very slight, his arm having been cut a little and a bruise on the side of his face.

DETECTIVE CHARGED

Secret Service Officer Attempted Life of Premier Stolypin

JEWS INVOLVED

St. Petersburg, Russia, Sept. 16.—There have been sensational developments in the inquiry at Kiev into the shooting of M. Stolypin. The inquiry has declared the crime to be of revolutionary origin and carried out by an agent of the protective political police especially stationed in the theatre to guard M. Stolypin.

It is declared that this first attempt at a revival of terrorism was planned by the executive committee of the Jewish Band of Social Revolutionists and Finnish revolutionists, who, according to police information, recently federated. The rapid progress of the inquiry was due to the eagerness of the municipality to clear itself of a charge of reckless distribution of admission cards to the theatre.

Admission card Number 406, entitling its holder to a seat in the eighteenth row of the theatre, was found on Bogroff. It was issued by the municipality upon a personal request, signed by Inspector of Political Police Kuliabko and by him handed over to the agent of Bogroff. The municipality had taken the precaution to photograph Kuliabko's receipt, and in the face of this overwhelming evidence produced at police headquarters, was subdued.

Bogroff was an orthodox Jew. He graduated from Kiev University in 1908. During his course there he joined the Social revolutionary group, which entrusted to him in 1907 several serious commissions. He was selected for the second attempt on M. Stolypin's life, but did not carry out his orders. Instead, he informed the police and betrayed a large number of his comrades, using the tactics of Eugene Asef, who in 1909 played the double role of leader of the revolutionary socialist and political spy to gain the confidence of the police chiefs.

May Result in Massacres.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 16.—The greatest anxiety is entertained here respecting the effect of the attempted assassination of Premier Stolypin upon the masses in South Russia, where the hostility to the Jews is most acute.

Reports are expected momentarily of anti-Jewish outbreaks, particularly in Bessarabia. In fact, unofficial reports to that effect have already reached the capital, but it has thus far been impossible to secure any confirmation.

It is unofficially whispered that the condition of Premier Stolypin is almost hopeless, that his injuries, while apparently small, are exceedingly dangerous.

This complicates the situation very much. The population in the south of Russia have for months been anticipating the Imperial visit, and have been worked up to such a degree of patriotic fervor that if anti-Jewish outbreaks occur at this time it is not easy to see how far they will go or how they can be controlled.

Sues For Libel.

Montreal, Sept. 16.—The second libel action of the election campaign was entered yesterday by Mr. J. H. Rainville, Opposition candidate in Chambly-Vercheres, who took suit against Mr. Aime Geoffrion, a merchant of St. Paul street, for $5,000, as a result of charges made by Mr. Geoffrion at a meeting in Longueuil Thursday afternoon. It is alleged by Mr. Rainville that Mr. Geoffrion accused him of having sold the contested provincial election case in Rouville in 1909, and that in doing so he had deceived his alleged client, Mr. George Ares.

Officials Want Off.

Montreal, Sept. 16.—A movement is on foot, at the City Hall to make Thursday, election day, a civic holiday. It is pointed out that many civic employes are returning officers, quite a number have to go out of town to vote, and as the polls are only open from 9 to 5, the City Hall must give each employe two hours' leave to vote according to law. This will interfere with the business at the City Hall, so the idea of promulgating a civic holiday is favored.

Baron Lochee Dead.

London, Sept. 16.—The Right Hon. Edmund Robertson, First Baron Lochee, of Gowrie, is dead. He was born in 1845. He was Liberal M.P. for Dundee from 1885 to 1908, Civil Lord of Admiralty 1892-95, and Secretary of the Admiralty 1905-08.

French Soldiers Go Home.

Paris, Sept. 16.—It was announced at the Minister of War yesterday that the soldiers whose terms of service are expiring would return to their homes as in ordinary years. This will do much to relieve the public concern.

DESPERADO AT BAY

Miss Gladys Price's Abductor is Identified—Posse Not Large Enough

VICTIM TELLS HER STORY

Mapitou, Man., Sept. 16.—Word was received late yesterday that Bill Wilson, the alleged assailant of Miss Gladys Price, who was held captive in the woods near here for thirty hours the first part of this week, has been sighted and positively identified at Bluff, twelve miles south of Snowflake in the Pembina Valley.

"We have got him surrounded, but we want more men so that we can overawe him with numbers," is the appeal brought here. A large posse was hurriedly organized and started for Bluff.

Wilson, it is said, was seen on the edge of the woods but escaped into the deep undergrowth before he could be captured. The posse hopes to capture the fugitive without bloodshed. Officers are being rushed to the scene to prevent possible lynching.

Miss Price yesterday identified a photograph of her assailant. It had been brought from the police records of Winnipeg, where the original, under the name of Wesley Osborne, was arrested some weeks ago as a vagrant.

Miss Price's Story.

Winnipeg, Sept. 16.—Miss Gladys Price, the young school teacher near Snowflake, tells of her kidnapping at the hands of the bandit on whose trail an armed posse of hundreds of men now are.

She was seated in the schoolroom, she said, when a man, said to be Henry Wilson, suddenly appeared in the doorway and pointed a rifle at her. The little teacher told him to shoot. A struggle followed, and Wilson hit the girl over the head with a bottle, and then carried her into the woods.

All night long she moved about to keep warm and watching for a chance to escape, but the menacing rifle prevented. By daylight the girl said Wilson's liquor and cigarettes gave out, and the effects of the liquor seemed to wear off. At 7 o'clock he finally consented to allow her to return home.

"Don't go and tell them," was his parting warning. "I'm sorry this happened."

Then telling her he intended cutting all the telephone wires in the district to prevent his capture, he left her.

Etna's Losses Enormous.

Catania, Sicily, Sept. 16.—Clouds of smoke from Mount Etna hides the sun, and makes the atmosphere in the vicinity intolerable.

The volcano continues to throw out lava, cinders and ashes from the craters and a hundred new fissures.

The river of lava flowing to the north has separated into four main streams, the largest of which is moving toward Alcantara, and is two miles from Francavilla. The railway station of Solicchiata is in immediate danger.

It is estimated that the present eruption has caused so far a property loss of $20,000,000.

Anti-Fight Campaign.

London, Sept. 16.—A communication made public by which the National Free Church Council, explaining that the council is "not attacking generally the art of self-defence," but only a specific contest, is taken as confirmation of the suggestion that the intervention against the Johnson-Wells battle is largely due to opposition to a fight between a colored man and a white man, which may lead to racial bitterness.

The council appeals to all ministers to start an anti-fight campaign in the churches to-morrow, and so arouse the conscience of the nation.

Conductor Injured.

Brockville, Sept. 16.—T. W. Higginson, a Grand Trunk conductor, was brought to his home here yesterday painfully bruised as the result of an accident sustained at Cotesu by being struck by a shunter. His clothing caught one of the axles of the tender and he was dragged a considerable distance before his predicament was noticed by the engineer. Higginson had a close shave from being dragged under the wheels.

Captured Bomb Thrower.

New York, Sept. 16.—An Italian, aged 19, was caught yesterday with a bomb in his possession and with a lighted match in his hand.

Detectives quickly extinguished the fuse and captured the youth after chasing him to the roof of an east side tenement house and exchanging several shots.

Just before he was arrested a bomb was exploded in a tenement in East 13th street.

Architects Elect Officers.

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—At the meeting of the Council of the Ontario Association of Architects yesterday the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, A. F. Wickson, Toronto (re-elected); first vice-president, Jules F. Wegman, Toronto; second vice-president, C. P. Meredith, Ottawa; treasurer, Grant Helliwell, Toronto; registrar, H. E. Moore, Toronto.

Dropped Dead.

Kingston, Sept. 16.—Miss Anna Roberts, a well-known resident of the Perth road, dropped dead of heart failure.

Jane Moore, aged 86, wife of John Moore, is dead. She was a resident of Storrington Township for eighty years.

Mrs. Thomas McInnis of Lavant died very suddenly as the result of heart failure.

Go Up September 20.

Liverpool, Sept. 16.—The steamship companies engaged in the Atlantic trade yesterday decided that the increase of ten per cent. in the freight rates agreed upon last week shall become effective Sept. 20.

LITTLE GIRL CLAWED.

Child at Syracuse Fair Gets Too Near Lion's Cage.

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 16.—Clawed and bitten by a huge lion in a sideshow at the State Fair yesterday afternoon, Laura Burns, 7 years old, of Morrisville, is hovering between life and death to-day at a Syracuse hospital.

Spectators were not supposed to get nearer than four or five feet from the lion cage. The little girl climbed the rope barrier. The lion reached out its paw and fastened its claws in the child's head. He drew the child toward the cage, while her screams rang through the tent. With his other paw he clawed at the child's face and tried to draw her through the bars.

The little girl's screams of terror attracted throngs to the tent. People crowded through the entrance and jammed against the cage. Attendants beat the lion with bars and prodded the infuriated animal until the child was released.

When the little girl had been finally freed it was found that the lion had torn out one of her eyes, torn off an ear and lacerated her face and the upper part of her body.

The great throng and the shouts of the crowd and attendants frightened the rest of the beasts confined in the tent. Keepers moved among them with loaded weapons, fearing that they might attempt to escape.

Wild Beasts Get Loose.

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—Five ferocious animals in a midway menagerie at the fair broke out of their cages yesterday morning, and for nearly an hour struck terror throughout the grounds. Fortunately, owing to a heavy rain, there were few visitors about.

The animals were a big East Indian leopard, an African hog, a Brazilian jaguar, a panther, and what is known as a by-hybrid.

Their escape was noticed when the leopard thrust his head into a tent occupied by one of the show women.

The only man injured was the chief trainer, Capt. Herbertine, who was scratched on the leg by the lion.

The animals all took to the water, but were finally caged after being lassoed and secured with ropes.

FIRE CHIEFS CONVENE.

Convention Decides That a Fire Marshal is Needed.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 16.—Provincial fire chiefs of Ontario, numbering 30, met in convention here yesterday. The first topic under discussion was a paper on "Aims and Objects of the Association," read by Vice-President France of the Bay Wagon Works, Woodstock. France dealt with the work to be undertaken along the lines of a fire marshal and provincial firemen's pension fund. The report also dealt with the standardization of municipal fire appliances and the establishment of a bureau of information and technical library in conjunction with the office of secretary. The report was adopted.

Municipal inspection and bylaws governing same was dealt with by Chief Bains of Owen Sound. The paper had reference to the inspection of fire chiefs for fire prevention purposes. The report was adopted.

Chief Finch of Guelph read an interesting paper on "The Advisability of Having a Fire Marshal for the Province of Ontario, His Duties and Qualifications." A strong committee was appointed to urge upon the Provincial Government the necessity of creating such an office. The question of pensions was referred to the committee mentioned above to report at the next meeting of the association. The feeling in regard to the appointment of a provincial fire marshal and the pension fund met the unanimous approval of the members of the association.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The situation in Chengtü is very critical.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier addressed a gathering of 7,000 supporters at Rimouski, Que.

H. Rafferty, a mechanic serving a sentence in the county prison at Fishkill, N.Y., for theft, is building a biplane.

An earthquake was felt in Chili yesterday. The walls of many buildings were cracked and several persons were injured.

A young man named Le Page had his skull fractured early yesterday afternoon in Ottawa, as the result of being kicked by his horse.

It is announced that the British Government contemplates the formation of a volunteer police force in each of the large centres of population.

On the similarity of finger-prints on a dusty pane of glass and other prints on cards furnished by the police, a New York grand jury indicted Chas. Cararra for burglary.

Dairymen of the Virginias and Maryland will ask Congress to repeal the law permitting the killing of cows in the first stages of tuberculosis, contending that the milk is not then affected.

When the "Ramona" founded off Spanish Island, Alaska, Sunday night, she carried down $180,000 of gold bullion from the Treadwell mine, consigned to San Francisco. The treasure will be recovered.

Canadian Strike Law.

London, Sept. 16.—Hon. Mr. Reeves, whose views of the present industrial troubles have been widely sought, does not consider the Canadian system of arbitration the right one for England because he says it deprives the trade unionist of his most valuable weapon, the power of striking at the shortest or without notice. It does not give the award legally binding on the employer, while it is of little use for the inquiry board between employer and labor, owing to the inability to give binding awards.

Considerable Progress Made.

Berlin, Sept. 16.—Considerable progress is believed to have been made last night toward a settlement of the controversy between France and Germany over Morocco.

The French ambassador last evening delivered to Foreign Minister Von Kiderlen-Waechter, France's reply to Germany's note and afterwards the two diplomats engaged in a conference lasting an hour and a half.

BIG BANK ROBBERY

New Westminster Burglars Get Away With $315,000 in Cash

LEFT NO TRACES

New Westminster, B.C., Sept. 16.—Three hundred and fifteen thousand dollars was stolen early yesterday from the branch of the Bank of Montreal in this city.

Five burglars entered the bank by the front door, broke through the metal coating of the vault, blew the safe by charges of nitro-glycerine and got clear away with their booty without being seen except by a Chinese caretaker.

They probably escaped down the Fraser River in a launch or else by automobile toward Vancouver.

There was in all $360,000 in the bank safes. Chief of Police Bradshaw believes the men would have taken it all if they could have carried it. As it was they took all they could carry away, leaving all the silver and notes of small denominations as well as damaged $500 and $10 bills lying around the floor and tables of the room of one of the clerks.

The first known of the robbery was when a Chinese caretaker appeared at the police station at 5.30 o'clock and gave the alarm. He had managed to work loose from the bonds with which he had been tied after the robbers had departed.

Chief of Police Bradshaw hurried to the scene and all of the available officers were pressed into service, but the only obtainable clue was that given by the Chinaman.

From the thoroughness of the job and the tools with which the work was done, the local officers believe the same gang which has been at work in Vancouver turned the work here.

Where's Sleuth Burns?

Montreal, Sept. 16.—At the Bank of Montreal yesterday Mr. H. Vincent Meredith stated that it was quite true that the vaults of the branch at New Westminster had been blown to pieces and a very large sum of money stolen.

Detectives of the two prominent services will be sent immediately to the west, and the bank will spend, if necessary, another quarter of a million in tracking the burglars and prosecuting them.

Suspected of Burglary.

Brockville, Sept. 16.—The Brockville police have in custody a young Indian named Joseph Bach of St. Regis, who is suspected of being implicated in the burglary of Levi Bailey's jewelry store at Cornwall this week. He was picked up as a drunk, but in his possession was found several articles of jewelry which the police afterwards learned he offered for sale around town. When questioned, Bach said he purchased a bracelet from a Brockville man and was made a present of the other articles. A description of the articles tallies with some of the goods missing from the factory town. The Cornwall authorities have been communicated with.

Falsified the Books.

Montreal, Sept. 16.—Adelard Duval was sentenced to three years in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary by Magistrate Lanctot yesterday. The accused had pleaded guilty to stealing $900 from the Laing Packing & Provision Co., but the evidence showed that the accused had stolen the sum of $1,900 in eighteen months, and after his arrest he returned to the officials of the company the sum of $1,200, but refused to make any statement regarding the balance.

The accused had been the manager of a store and by falsifying the books from day to day, he managed to steal the money.

Dynamite Bridge.

Bilbao, Spain, Sept. 16.—The situation here growing out of the general strike continues exceedingly grave. Street fighting between troops and the strikers continued throughout the day and the strikers blew up with dynamite the Amorabia Railroad bridge.

LABOR MEN RESUME.

Many Resolutions Are Accepted Without Discussion.

Calgary, Sept. 16.—After enjoying a day's recreation at Banff Thursday, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada resumed its deliberations in the Paget Hall yesterday morning. The first business was the taking up of resolutions which had not been passed on by the congress. Some time was taken up in discussing the Workmen's Compensation Act, as it applied in British Columbia, and in the tenor of the remarks made by the various speakers there seemed to be an opinion among the delegates that in order to have legislation passed in the interest of organized labor political action was necessary in that labor men should be returned to Parliament to enact such legislation.

The following resolutions were agreed to without discussion:

Stipendiary magistrates to try cases of miners accused of violence or intimidation.

Promotion of a better demand for union label goods.

Bringing of Chinese laundries within the Factory Act.

In the event of the passage of the eight-hour-day bill, employers be compelled to pay a living wage.

In favor of technical and industrial education, but not in favor of trade schools.

To prohibit sub-letting of Building contracts.

Lengthening of sections of railroads to the detriment of workmen and the traveling public.

Requesting the Government to appoint a royal commission, to discuss causes of many fatal accidents.

More sanitary methods of packing nails.

Canada's Last Chance.

Kingston, Sept. 16.—Sir Richard Cartwright was main speaker at the meeting held in the City Hall last night in the interest of John Macdonald Mowat, the Liberal candidate. Sir Richard dwelt almost entirely upon the reciprocity issue.

As regards the statement that Canada was at the parting of the ways, it was in a sense true, he said, because if the people of Canada refused the agreement it would be a long time before such an agreement would be again offered by any President of the States. The speaker declared that the offer of Taft was even better than that which had been asked for in 1899. Why should we refuse it? There was a chance to trade with half the continent, and we should look ahead.

This group picture was taken at one of Mr. Bourassa's meetings in the interests of one of Mr. Borden's candidates, at Buckingham on Monday. The motto, "ABas La Marine" (down with the navy), was the keynote of the meeting. In the picture, which was taken just before the meeting, the figures from left to right are: H. H. Lippe, secretary of the Conservative Association of Buckingham; D. Dugal, first vice-president of the Conservative Association; S. Cote, a member of the executive committee of the Conservative Association, and in front, at the right, is Mr. Bourassa.

Clad as flimsily as a twinkled toed dancer of the sunkissed Orient, Bill Crowley, the husky rugby player and dentense man of the Edmonton professional hockey seven, won further athletic distinction when he gave an emulation of Tom Longboat and Frank Gotch in a nervy chase of and capture of John Raymond Quinn, a thief who ransacked McKinnon's boarding and rooming house, 607 8th avenue, where Crowley is staying, at 2.30 Sunday morning. The light-fingered caller was prowling around Crowley's room in search of any annexable valuables within lifting distance when the athletic heavyweight disturbed by the noise, slipped off the lap of Morpheus and asked the intruder the meaning of his presence at such an unreasonable hour. By way of answer the thief beat a double quick retreat to the pavement with Crowley anxiously bringing up the rear.

After a furious chase Crowley made a flying tackle at the marauder and made him bite the dust in a pile of bricks at the scene of the building operations on Seventh avnue opposite the fire hall. Imediately before this, it might be incidentally mentioned, the thief hurled a brick at Crowley and hit hi square on the head. But Crowley's bumps on the gridiron have made him accustomed to such trifles as that and he had small difficulty in getting the better of his opponent.

Crowley again bringing his athletic instruction into good use clamped a hammerlock on his victim and proudly marched him back to the boarding house. In spite of his triump, however, it must not be imagined that the big athlete didn't feel the effects of his strenuous scuffle in the brick pile. His shins were barked, and there are several black testimonials of the struggle on other parts of his anatomy.

The household at McKinnon's were awakened by the confusion of the scramble when Crowley took after his man and upon investigation found that the place had been robbed. They telephoned for the police and when the captor and captive returned the latter was handed over to P. C. Cheyne who had responded to the summons. Quinn was locked up on the charge of housebreaking.

Quinn was one of a trio, the other two of which were Iona and Roy Marietta, who were arrested a short time ago on the charge of procuring. The Mariettas were taken into custody after Quinn's arrest and are charged with vagrancy. They and Quinn have rooms in the Costello block.

Elsewhere in the paper appears the following comment:

As will be seen by the news columns of to-day's paper which give an account of the thrilling capture of a bold bandit by Bill Crowley. Bill has profited by the bear hugs which Gene Hurtubise, for three consecutive years heavyweight champion of Canada, used to give Bill in his workouts with the powerful French Canadian at Peterborough. They do say that the way Bill pawed the nervy gentleman who was quietly taking Bill's hard-earned government job money from his trouser's pocket was a sight to behold.

"I would rather have had him on a canvas mat stuffed with nice curly hair, however," said Bill, "than on the somewhat inflexible mat of bricks on which I was forced to grapple with him. Even on a canvas mat stuffed with the aforesaid curly hair one has the protect ion of knee pads while I was forced to work on the brick pile with no other protect ion than that afforded by a pair of thin skinned pink pajamas.

"No," said Bill with the glint of a notable victory still gleaming from his eyes, "I didn't find him a difficult proposit ion to handle. A crotch hold and a further arm hold combined with a double leg grapevine and a half nelson and body scissors did the trick. The hold as you see was a very simple one, but it was the only one I could think of at the time. I was naturally flurried by reason of the big surprise I received when I saw the man in my room, and on account of the excitement of the chase."

Bill said he was too busy supervising telephone wiring work or something of that sort for the government to even consider a match with Gotch. Then ringing the bell for the Zam-Buk he dismissed his interviewer with a gracious smile.

$10 WAS PROCEEDS OF POLICE COURT

There were five drunks in the police court this morning as a result of yesterday's big day at the show. However, this is a comparatively small number, as compared with former years. The first was George Hammond, an outsider. He was unfortunate enough to get his right arm fractured. He appeared in the docket, with the arm in a sling, and pleaded guilty of being drunk and disorderly. He said he never was in the city before and pleaded for a chance. He was begging when arrested, but stated this morning that he had money of his own and did not know what he was doing. A $2.00 fine was imposed.

Four local young men paid fines of $2.00 each for being drunk.

DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR STOPPED

Harmless, Old-Fashioned Remedy Brings Back Color to Gray Hair and Makes It Grow.

How many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old-time, tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy nothing equals our grandmothers' "sage tea." Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer.

Nowadays, when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy.

Druggists are authorized to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Miss Nanon Welch, With "Baby Mine" at "The Grand" Wednesday, Sept. 20.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 16.—A terrific thunder and lightning storm passed over this city at midnight. It lasted for a full two hours and the rainfall was the greatest it has been this year.

Lightning burned out the Bell Telephone Co.'s cable on Park avenue, and cut off all long-distance communication east and west, as well as burning out fuses and private 'phones. The Chatham Gas & Electric Co.'s wires, leading to North Chatham, were burned in two and citizens on that side of the river had no lights. A bolt hit a barn on the premises of R. J. Dunlop, Richmond street, and tore a portion of the roof off, driving the lining into the hay, but did not set the building on fire. A new dwelling being erected by Albert Tomlinson on Lorne avenue was also struck. There it tore a chimney to pieces and ripped up a chicken coop beneath into splinters.

Reports from various parts of the county are to the effect that heavy frosts have done much damage to the tobacco crop, which is a very heavy one. On many West Kent farms growers of tobacco will realize $400 to $500 an acre for the weed. One young city man who rented four acres of land just outside the limit has cleared over $1,000 on his tobacco, after paying all expenses for hired help, etc. This is a quick return for three months of anxiety.

Near Slang in Germany.

Even the serious Germans, it appears, have a rich and racy slang. Here are some examples that a writer for the Baltimore Sun lately clawed out of a German dictionary: Bierfisch (beer fish), the little bits of cork that sometimes float in beer; bierrede (beer harangue), a speech made at a banquet; bierbass (beer bass), a heavy, unmelodious masculine voice; bierbruder (beer brother), a barroom acquaintance; biereifer (beer zeal), extraordinary and absurd enthusiasm.

SOME BISLEY HEROES

STORIES OF THE REDOUBTABLE SHOTS IN GREAT EVENTS.

Only Two or Three Men Have Won the King's Prize Twice and Among Them is Lieut. W. T. Davies of the 6th Welsh Regiment—Two Youths of 21 Have Carried Off the Big Trophy—Thompson's Feast.

Since the splendid shooting of Canadians at the great Imperial rifle meet in England the subject of the annual contest for the chief shooting prizes at Bisley must be more than ever attractive and interesting. Hence a few words about some of the more famous marksmen who have won the $1,250 and the premier prize of shooting in past years may be interesting.

Lieut. W. T. Davies, of the 6th Welsh Regiment, is one of the two or three men who have won the medal twice. His last occasion was in 1903, and his former one in 1898. Moreover, in 1897 he ran the actual winner very close; and in 1903, besides winning the $1,250 and the gold medal, he tied for the silver one with three other shooters. He is a Llanelly man, and, owing to his striking success, may be regarded as the finest marksman who has taken part in the great contest, or at any rate the most consistent one.

Lance-Corporal Ommundsen's name is one well known as Bisley, where he has taken prize after prize for years. He is of Scandinavian descent, as his name implies, and he was the hero in 1901 of one of the most sensational finishes in the records of shooting. Everybody was already congratulating Sergt.-Major Burr, of the Hants Regiment, on being the winner, for it seemed as if he must carry off the prize. But he was so upset with their congratulations and the excitement of the moment that he missed the target altogether with his last shot, and thus finished equal with Ommundsen. In firing off the tie Ommundsen easily beat his rival, scoring two bulls to the latter's two magpies; and so he came out a most sensational winner of the blue ribbon of marksmanship.

We have also Private George Gray—not the celebrated billiard player, by the way—who astounded everybody in 1908 by bearing away the premier honors of the classic struggle, though less than twenty-one years of age at the time! George Gray belongs to the 5th Scottish Rifles, had only been shooting for three years ere he won the $1,250, and is in business with his father at Glasgow. When asked how he came to be such a first-class shot, the Caledonian George Gray replied, naively, "By practising with a miniature rifle in my father's back garden at Helensburgh!"

Lieut. Addison, who is a South Australian, was another noted winner. For his father won the Queen's Prize in Australia in 1894; the son followed up this by taking the King's Prize at Adelaide in 1903, and again in 1904. This double feat was very clever, when one remembers how finely Australian troopers shoot as a rule. But the lieutenant's supreme performance was when he came off first at Bisley in 1907, amid the plaudits of the Antipodes, who had waited eagerly to learn how her best representative would succeed against the Mother Country's picked marksmen. Addison, then thirty-two years old, fully justified their confidence.

Reanie, of Glasgow, bears a name well known to most good shots. Curiously enough, when asked how he came to be such a marksman as to be able to beat all comers at Bisley for the $1,250, he put it down to a coal strike! This strike was in 1894, and it threw him out of employment for the time being.

"Having nothing to do, owing to the strike, I simply lived on the range, in order to pass the time usefully," Mr. Reanie said. "I was always practising shooting, and this undoubtedly made me so proficient that in my great year of success at Bisley I won no less than $1,500 in hard cash, beside several medals."

Sergt. Reid is another frequent attender at the camp, and a shot whom all intending winners of the chief prize have to watch closely. He carried off the chief event in 1909, and is in the general postoffice, London. He lives at Ealing, and he can beast of what few noted marksmen can—viz., that he has during his career as a shooter carried off no fewer than 200 valuable prizes as mementoes (very useful and solid ones, too!) of his success. The sergeant has other claims to special fame in the competition, for he was the last winner under the old regime, when the shooting took place on Wimbledon Common. Moreover, he had made the record score up to that time with the Martini-Henry.

Major Thompson has a unique boast. He can claim that his name has appeared six times in the last hundred for the great prize, and of these four were [illegible]

It is questionable if any other marksman but Thompson has ever done this. As a striking example of his consistent shooting, we may mention that in 1885 he was eighth, in 1886 he was first, and in 1887 he was second, only beaten on the post by Ward, a Devonian who made a most remarkable succession of bull's-eyes right at the last minute.

The major's fateful position, he avers, is second; for he tells how, in the year he won the $1,250 and the gold medal, he was second for the silver medal, second for the bronze medal, second for the Ballow Cup, and second for the Volunteers' best aggregate! As if this were not enough, the major has also on three separate occasions been second for the Caledonian Shield and the Championship of Scotland. So no wonder he regards "No. 2" as his fateful number on these occasions.

A Suicide For Love.

Montreal, Sept. 16.—Rushing to the back of a Chinese cafe after a quarrel with the young lady who had been dining with him, Ferdinan Rheaume, a waiter, hurriedly scribbled a note, and then drawing a bottle of carbolic acid, swallowed the contents. He then rushed back to the dining-room and succumbed almost at the feet of his companion.

Aerial Mails In United States.

Washington, D.C., Sept. 16.—Not to be outdone by the British postal authorities in the carrying of mails through the air, the latest method of letter transportation, Postmaster-General Hitchcock last night gave his consent to the establishment of an experimental airplane mail route between one of the outlying branches of the Brooklyn, N.Y., postoffice and the aerodrome at Nassau boulevard, Long Island, during the international aviation meet, which will be held there from Sept. 23 to Oct. 1. Aviators and their assistants, who will be stationed on the field throughout the meet, will be able therefore to receive their mail almost as quickly as though they were in one of the large cities.

DOMESTICS FOR CANADA

Work of the Immigration Department of the Canadian Northern

Fred J. Moss, European Emigration Agent of the Canadian Northern Railway, recently gave an interview on his work.

"We are now sending parties of 30 and 40 domestics every two weeks to Canada," said Mr. Moss, "transporting them on the company's steamers and lines to Winnipeg, which is the distributing point. I am also in touch with the finest of the farmers and farm laborers. The British Isles can spare 5,000,000 people who would do this country a lot of good by coming steadily and would not do the Old Country any harm by leaving. It is these latter three classes which Canada wants, and wants badly." Mr. Moss stated that there was never a time when Canada and the Canadians stood as high in the estimation of the British Isles as at present. This is the first year that the Canadian Northern has sent out immigrants to this country, but since January the company has sent to Canada 7,000 of them, and next year it expects to send out nearly 31,000, judging from inquiries received att he London offices. The Canadian Northern has also brought out this year 1,000 domestics, and each one of them has been placed by the company in a respectable situation. The company will continue to bring them out during the winter. Mr. Moss said that in one district alone in the West the farmers collected over $1,000 in one week to pay for transportation for the girls to come out.

MISSILE STRUCK ENGINEER

Had to be Taken to Hospital From His Train at Parkdale

With his jaw fractured and his face badly bruised, Thomas Tracey, an engineer on the Grand Trunk Railway, was taken to Grace Hospital as the result of an accident. Neither Tracey nor anybody else seems to know how the accident happened, but it is thought that some person threw a piece of coal or some other missile at the train and it struck the engineer. The fireman did not see it, and there was nothing found in the cab of the engine which would throw any light on the mystery. The accident happened between Swansea and Parkdale, and it was at the latter station that Tracey was removed from the train and taken to the hospital. He was fortunately able to bring his train into Parkdale, and another man relieved him there.

HOLDS VICTORIA CROSS

Earl Dunmore, a Distinguished Soldier, Visiting Toronto

Alexander E. Murray, Viscount Fincastle, eighth Earl of Dunmore, is visiting in Canada. This young man is quite a distinguished soldier, having been decorated with the Victoria Cross for services in the Frontier War in Afghanistan in 1897. He subsequently served with the Imperial Yeomanry in South Africa, where he commanded Fincastle's Horse, and received the medal with four clasps. He is one of the great landlords of Scotland, owning about 80,000 acres in Inverness-shire. Lord Dunmore's late father, the seventh Earl, was very well known in Canada, having been quartered at Montreal for a number of years before the British troops were withdrawn from the country. His was a captain in the Scots Guards at the time.

SHOWER OF BASEBALLS TOO MUCH FOR NEGRO

Several Landed on His Head and He Retired Carrying With Him Several Large Bumps

The colored man on the Midway at the Exhibition, Toronto, who defied the people to crack his skull with a baseball, came to grief. He saw stars and various other things for a short time, and when he recovered his senses he concluded that his assailants had "put up a job on him," which he greatly resented. When the smoke had cleared away he was sporting several large bumps on his head, which caused him some pain.

McLinden posed as the "pocket edition" of Jack Johnson, and held his head in an erect position in a small opening in a large screen for the enjoyment of those who were given an opportunity to shy baseballs at him. Business at this booth had been enormous, and his line of talk took the attention of patrons of the Midway from the other attractions. Finally a party of men went up to the booth and essayed to do the trick, and they did, in a manner which bothered the colored target. Under ordinary conditions one man at a time hurled the baseball at him, but in this case five men lined up and showered him with balls. The charge was so sudden that McLinden could not dodge or protect himself. He fell to the ground behind the sheet, and when he recovered his assailants had taken flight.

ANOTHER WARNING

"I have just been reading the account of a railway wreck in which every occupant of the smoking-car was more or less injured, while the rest of the passengers in the train escaped without harm," said old Hodge. "There, Ezra," exclaimed Mrs. Hodge, triumphantly; "there is another warning against the use of tobacco."

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

The arguments have all been made and comparative prices have been quoted at length. You have doubtless read, heard and digested. It only remains to recall the outstanding features of the question before the country—reciprocity in natural products with the United States.

Reciprocity will injure or disturb no industry or factory or workman, in Peterborough or elsewhere, but on the contrary will materially promote the interests of all.

The protection which the Fielding tariff has always accorded our manufacturing industries, will be continued unabated. Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding have time and again given assurance of this. The mutual effect of freer trade in natural products and protection for our manufacturers cannot fail of being beneficial by giving the workingman cheaper living and the manufacturer a more prosperous home market.

Reciprocity will benefit the farmer by giving him an unlimited market in the United States for these products which he cannot ship to England, or which he cannot sell at home to advantage.

Reciprocity will reduce the cost of living from twenty-five to thirty per cent. It will benefit the consumer in about sixty of the chief elements of his diet.

American eggs, all American fruits, fresh and dried, and all vegetables, will come in free of duty at the seasons when there is no production here.

Fish of all kinds, oysters and shell fish will come in free.

The existing duties will be materially reduced on fresh meats, bacon and hams, dried, smoked and salted meats, canned meat, canned fish, sardines and the like, canned vegetables, flour, oatmeal, pearled barley, macaroni, biscuits, etc.

These reductions will materially reduce the prices of these articles to the consumer.

How, you may ask, can reciprocity raise the price to the farmer and lessen it to the consumer?

The answer is simple enough. Reciprocity takes down two tariff walls which stand between the natural products of Canada and the United States and their natural disposal.

The American tariff is the wall against the producer, against the Canadian farmer, which prevents him seeking an outlet for his surplus in that direction and leaves him at the mercy of the Canadian food combines.

The Canadian tariff is the wall against the Canadian consumer, which prevents him from getting the benefit of cheap American products at the times and places when these do no compete with Canadian products.

At present the Canadian farmer receives less for his products than the American farmer and the Canadian consumer pays more for his food than the American consumer.

Reciprocity in natural products removes these two artificial barriers and allows the food products of a continent to find the most convenient channels.

The relief to producer and consumer should be almost immediate. Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

What are the side issues that have been dragged into this campaign—the loyalty of the Liberal party, annexation, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion and the British Born.

They are almost too absurd to mention, but I will answer them briefly.

Loyalty of the Liberal party? The answer to that is British preference, South African contingents, the Canadian navy. Actions speak louder than words. The very men who are plastering the majority of the electors of Canada with the imputation of disloyalty, have a working alliance in Quebec with the firebrand Bourassa, who hates England and preaches destruction to British ascendancy and Canada.

Annexation? The answer to that is that Lord Elgin, Governor-General of Canada, in 1854, a Conservative and an ardent Imperialist, was the chief instrument in obtaining the reciprocity treaty with the United States, which lasted from 1854 to 1866. His avowed purpose in securing reciprocity, was to cure the annexation sentiment, then prevalent among Canadian business men on account of the hard times.

Lord Elgin believed, with Lloyd-George, that reciprocity in natural products between Canada and the United States, was crystallized common sense, and with the London Times, that a happy and contented member of the British Empire, is better than an unhappy and discontented one. Lord Elgin's cure worked. Instead of annexation, reciprocity brought Confederation in its train, and gave this country the great blessing of national unity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion? The Protestants of Ontario outnumber the Roman Catholics six to one. Protestantism is in no more danger from a Liberal Roman Catholic premier than it was from a Conservative Roman Catholic premier, Sir John Thompson. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has no more Roman Catholics in his cabinet than Sir John Macdonald had, or Sir John Thompson or Sir John Abbott, or Sir Charles Tupper, or last but not least, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, once the Grand Master of the Orange order. Sir James Whitney has two Roman Catholics in his cabinet, and they have shown themselves equitable and capable administrators.

The British Born? We are all British born if we are born within the Empire, and we are all equally proud of it. Those who were born in the Mother Country and have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions need not be told what the Liberal Government has done to help the workingman and to open up the great Northwest prairie to the land-hungry homeseekers. In Canada, as in England, most of the workingman's blessings have been the gift of the Liberal Government. Neither need they be told what a Liberal Government has done for the old land across the sea in the matters of British preference, the South African contingents and the Canadian navy. The British born may be depended upon to rally to the side where they find their best friends.

Hoping to receive the same confidence from the electors of West Peterborough as I have received in the past, I am,

Yours Respectfully,

J. R. Stratton

NO COMPARISON

One day a priest in the south of Ireland, going his round, met a parishioner rather the worse for wear, with two very nasty black eyes. He said to him reprovingly:

"Why, Pat, what have you been doing? How have you got your face into that condition? You have been fighting again."

Pat replied:

"Deed your riverence, Mic has me and a slight difference; but if your riverence could only see Mick's eyes, you wouldn't think my thing of mine at all."

JOURNEY ON INLAND WATERS

Mr. Conroy of the Indian Department Travels 4,000 Miles

A journey of 4,500 miles on the inland waters of Canada's great Northwest gives an idea of the vastness of the Dominion. Such a journey has just been concluded by the Commissioner of the Indian Department and his party. They started early last spring from Edmonton, the journey from there on being as follows:—

Edmonton to Athabasca Landing, 100 miles, by wagon; to McMurray, 250 miles, on scows, 90 miles of this distance being rapids; to Lake Athabasca, 190 miles, by paddle steamer; to the east end of Lake Athabasca (Fond du Lac), 185 miles; back to the west end at Fort Chippewayan, 195 miles; to Smith Landing, 90 miles; portage to Fort Smith, 16 miles; thence to Fort MacPherson on the Mackenzie delta, 1,000 miles. These distances were duplicated on the return journey. The long trip down the Mackenzie River was made on one of the Hudson Bay Company's steamers. In the whole 1,500 miles there is but one rapid. The Indians visited were in good condition. They had had a good fur season, and were prosperous and contented.

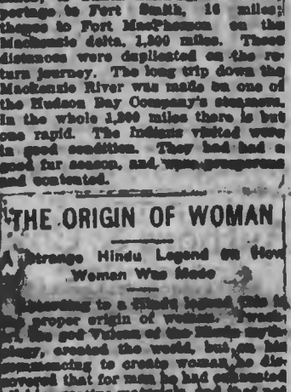
THE ORIGIN OF WOMAN

A Strange Hindu Legend on How Woman Was Made

Listening to a Hindu legend was to hear the proper origin of woman. Twashtri, the god Vishnu of the Hindu mythology, created the world, but on him commencing to create woman, he discovered that for man he had exhausted all his creative materials, and that not one solid element had been left.

This, of course, greatly perplexed Twashtri, and caused him to fall into a profound meditation. When he arose from it he proceeded as follows. He took:

The roundness of the moon.
The undulating curve of the serpent.
The graceful twist of the creeping plant.
The light shivering of the grass blade, and the slenderness of the willow.
The velvet of the flowers.
The lightness of the feather.
The gentle gaze of the doe.
The frolicsomeness of the dancing sunbeam.
The tears of the cloud.
The inconsistency of the wind.
The timidity of the hare.
The vanity of the peacock.
The tenderness of the diamond.
The cruelty of the tiger.
The chill of the snow.
The chattering of the parrot.
The cooing of the turtle dove.
All these he mixed together and formed a woman.



BREAKING IT GENTLY

She:—"Oh, how beautiful this poem writes. I declare I'm in love with it."

He:—"And I'm in love with the holder."

BIRDIE AND PET

"What are the names of the newly married couple in the next flat?"

"We haven't been able to find out yet. They still call each other 'Birdie' and 'Pet.'"

SHORT STORIES

She:—"Short stories seem quite the thing just now."

He:—"I should say so. Nearly every fellow I meet stops me and tells me how short he is."

SOCIAL ANSWERED

"What's the hardest thing about roller-skating when you're learning?" asked the fascinating young man of the instructress at the rink.

"The floor!" answered the attendant.

SHOT SAULT RAPIDS

Jack Enright Goes in for Breaking Records Late in Life

At the age of 64, Jack Enright has gone in for breaking records, and with this end in view he shot the Sault Rapids before a big crowd. The log he used was the same as that used by Pollock when he established a record in being the first man to shoot the rapids on a log, but Enright made his feat the more hazardous by sawing four feet off the log, making it only twelve feet long. He stood on the log for about half the distance, when in the middle of the roaring current he was thrown, and came in stitched to the rope which he had tied to the log. Enright boasted that at the age of eighteen he shot the Lachine Rapids on a cedar tie. Before embarking on his perilous trip he said to the bystanders, "I am 64 and am past work; if I come through I won't have to work, and if I don't come through alive the wager will defray my funeral expenses."

LONG SLEEP OVER

Miss Blanche David of Montreal Tells of Prolonged Repose

Blanche David, Montreal, looks none the worse for her prolonged sleep. Her last recollection previous to the 23rd August, she said, was that she got ready to visit her sister in a street not far away, and started off on Grande Avenue (where she lives), and then on to St. Lawrence Street. After that all was blank until on September 8th she came to herself in the hospital. On the night in question she declared she took a simple supper, with no medicament either in the house or outside, and she further asserted that she spoke to no one on the street, that her friends were very few, and were confined to her own sex. She could not account for the creosote which the doctors said she had used.

"I still feel rather sleepy and feeble," she said, in answer to a query as to how she felt now.

"I went to bed early last night and slept on until nine o'clock this morning. Of course I have had these sleeping attacks before, eight times this year, but not for more than two or three days previously."

FROM THE COLTS

Players Taken From the Canadian League by the Big Clubs

When the major league clubs, who have first chance, put in their drafts on the various minor league players, two clubs, the Philadelphia Nationals and Philadelphia Americans, thought enough of Scotty Cameron, the Berlin star, to place a draft on him, the National commission awarding Scotty to the world's champions in the draw. The Athletics also thought enough of Lefty Smith, of Brantford, to grab him, being the only club to put in a draft on him. Orcutt, the Brantford third baseman, was awarded to Detroit, while Chaput, of Berlin, goes to the Philadelphia Nationals.

This means that five Canadian league players go up to the big show this fall, as Tom Grieve, said by Hamilton to Philadelphia and subsequently traded to Cincinnati and then farmed out to Huntington, has been recalled by the Cincinnati club, and will report to the Reds at the end of the season in Huntington. Sending five into the big show in one season is a pretty good record, and there is no doubt but that this record will be greatly augmented as soon as the minor league drafts are put in, for class A and class B clubs still have a chance to grab off some players, although neither Berlin nor Brantford can lose any more, the rule allowing but two men to be drafted from each club, with the major leagues having first choice. But one player can be taken by the majors from a class A club, and for this reason Tim Jordan and Bill Bradley are left in Toronto, Al Shaw being given the preference in the draw. Jordan was drafted by the Chicago Cubs, while the Detroit Americans went after Bill Bradley. Then Brooklyn put in a claim for Dick Rudolph and Eddie Phelps, while the St. Louis Americans also went after Shaw, who was eventually awarded to Brooklyn.

THE VELVET CRAZE

The Dull Black Variety is Very Fashionable Just Now

Formed of thick chenille in huge patterns that resemble wire netting in design, "grille" veils are the latest novelties in ladies' fashions in London. The wearer looks exactly as if she were peering from behind a fine grating. Other veils have big white flowers embroidered on black net, the flowers being worn round the brim of the hat. A shot silk fringe veil, another newcomer, is extremely smart. Last year there was nearly a black velvet famine owing to the demand for that material for costumes, and this season promises to see a revival of the velvet craze. Dull black velvet is said to be very fashionable just now, but the novelty of the season is striped velvet, the stripes being of small size. Black and white is a favorite combination, and pheasant yellow and Helen pink, a lovely carmine color, are among the new shades. The new blues are greenish in hue, and shot velvet is becoming the rage.

ANCIENT POTTERY

Containing Correspondence Between Elisha, Kingg Ahab, and Queen Jezebel

There have been unearthed in Samaria some very interesting pieces of pottery bearing notes of the correspondence exchanged between the Prophet Elisha, King Ahab, and Queen Jezebel.

It is to be gathered from the writing on the pottery that there exists a record relating many of the events of the time, and efforts are now being made, say the Journal, to discover this.

It is known that Ahab's palace, or "Ivory House," at Samaria, refered to in the First Book of Kings, has been discovered, and a description of the contents, including wine jars, has been given in "The Daily Chronicle" from a correspondent at Jerusalem. One of the "finds" was a letter to Ahab from the King of Assyria. Letters fro mthe Prophet Elisha and Queen Jezebel would be even more interesting, but we must await confirmation of this remarkable story. Elisha succeeded Elijah as prophet four years before the death of Ahab.

WILL CUT CABLE RATES

Negotiations by British Government Give Promise of a Reduction

The report of the Pacific Cable Board states that negotiations for the establishment of a reduced rate for unurgent messages gives promise of a satisfactory outcome. The Postmaster-General thinks the advantage of the reduction will be such as to make it highly desirable to adopt it throughout the cable service of the Empire and between the British Dominion and externalStates. He had approached the British and American cable companies, and after obtaining their approval, had negotiated with the foreign Governments. There is now every prospect that within the next few months it will be possible for messages in plain language to be sent at half the existing rates, the charges subject only to conditions that transmission must await for a period not exceeding 24 hours.

DID CUPID KILL HORSE?

Romantic Elopement is Suspected by Vaughan Road Residents

What escapade or romance may lie behind the cruel driving of a horse which dropped dead near Toronto a few minutes after being abandoned by a young man and woman, the police are trying to learn. Mrs. Anderson, Vaughan Road, reported to the police that she saw the couple drive the tottering animal to a fence near her house. They climbed out of the light buggy, and the man tied the horse to the fence; both then hurried away, he putting the broken whip in his pocket. It is thought that the pair may have been an eloping couple from the northern part of the country. A few moments after they disappeared the horse dropped dead.

AWARDED A GRAND PRIZE

Success of the Grand Trunk Exhibit at the Festival of Empire

Cable advice has been received at the head offices of the Grand Trunk System to the effect that the Grand Trunk Railway System and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway have been awarded one grande prix each at the Festival of Empire and National Exhibition in London. The Grand Trunk exhibit is an extensive and splendid one, located in their own building, and depicts the advantages and progress of Canada and the Grand Trunk System.

It embraces many novel features, including moving pictures, models of their Pacific Coast steamships, and the new Chateau Hotel at Ottawa, as well as numerous oil paintings of Canadian Rocky Mountain scenery, etc. This is an important addition to the long list of such prizes that have been awarded to this company at the largest of the world's exhibitions.

YOUNG GIRL'S CRIME

Sentenced to Three Years at Montreal For Swindling Merchants

"Have her arrested," is what Mrs. Mallard told several witnesses when they complained to her that her daughter had been obtaining money and groceries under false pretences. The little girl, only ten years of age, was sentenced to three years in the Reform School.

According to Miss Trudeau, the youngster would watch for children about her own age leaving grocery stores, and would approach them, and after finding out if they had an account, would draw on it in this person's name, making believe she was a daughter of the family she victimized.

German Orphans Coming

For the purpose of trying to make arrangements for the placing of German orphan girls in Canadian foster homes, Dr. Elisabeth Munzinger, of Strassburg, Germany, visited J. J. Kelso at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto. She said that German philanthropists favored the scheme of sending their orphan girls to Canada as an experiment. Dr. Munzinger will visit German families in Waterloo County to make arrangements. No boys would be sent out because of the compulsory military service of that country.

GOT BACK 45 CENTS BUT PAID OUT $20

A British Columbia Divine Makes Out His Case Against C.P.R.

Declaring that he was unable to obtain redress by ordinary complaint, Rev. H. B. Currie, clergyman, living at Alberni, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, went all the way to Vancouver to apply to the Railway Commission for a refund of 45 cents. He had been charged $1.90 for freight on a barrel of carbide from Vancouver to Alberni, and insisted that he should rightfully have paid only $1.45. After half an hour's argument the commission sustained him and ordered the refund. Currie then applied for $30 travelling expenses from Alberni to Vancouver, but the commission could find no authority to award this. Chairman Mabee, however, said he sympathized with Currie's claim for this amount, especially in view of the fact that the latter was forced to spend the money on Canadian Pacific Railway steamers to get to Vancouver to collect his 45 cents.

PANTS AS BOOKS

A lady once sent to her son a pair of trousers by book post, which is, of course, cheaper than express.

The postal officials wrote to her: "Clothes cannot be sent by book post. If you will refer to the 'Post Office Guide' you will see under what conditions articles may be sent by book post."

After a few days the lady replied: "I have looked in the 'Post Office Guide' and find that articles which are open at both ends may be sent by book post. And if trousers are not open at both ends I should like to know what is."

If There Is A Weak Spot

In Your System or a Faltering Organ it Will be Worse at This Time of Year

Vigor and Energy Run Low in Spring Unless You Use

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

It may be the stomach, the heart, the lungs, the filtering or excretory organs, but if there is a weak point it is likely to show up at this time of year.

The blood is thin and watery. It fails to supply proper nourishment. The all-essential nerve force is lacking, and you feel the effects first in your weakest organ.

Your trouble may take the form of indigestion, you may have neuralgia or twinges of sciatic rheumatism. The cause is the same—weak blood.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you as nothing else can, because it supplies in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements which are necessary for the strengthening and invigorating of the various organs of the body.

Every dose of this great restorative organ goes to form new, red corpuscles in the blood—to make the blood rich and red. The faltering organs resume their functions, appetite improves, digestion becomes good, and gradually new energy and vigour find their way to every nook and corner of the body. To keep strong and well this spring use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50 at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited Toronto.

DOCTORS HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE

"Fruit-a-tives" saved my Life

RIVIERE A PIERRE, Q., May 9, 1910.

"I look upon my recovery as nothing short of a miracle. I was for eleven years, constantly suffering from Chronic Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

I was treated by several doctors and they simply did me no good. During the latter part of my illness, I was so thin that I only got pounds, and I vomited everything I ate.

The doctors gave me up as the stomach trouble produced heart weakness and was frequently unconscious. I received the Last Rites Of The Church.

At this time, a lady strongly urged me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'. When I had taken one box, I was much better and after three boxes, I was practically well again and had gained 20 pounds. I have taken 23 boxes in all and now weigh 152 pounds and am well."

(Signed) ARTHUR TOURANGEAU.

SIR HENRY GORING

Story of How the Late Baronet Heard of His Succession

An adventurous career and an interesting romance of the baronage are recalled by the death of Sir Harry Iverton Goring, at Tamworth. Before his succession as eleventh baronet, the late Sir Harry kept a tobacconist's shop in Silver Street, Tamworth, and on the day the news of his succession to the baronetcy reached him he was actually weighing out snuff. The late baronet was the son of Mr. Foster Goring, who married a daughter of the third Viscount Avonmore. In New Zealand, Australia, Canada, and India Sir Harry had travelled extensively. He was quite a young man when he went to New Zealand, where his father was private secretary to Governor Sir George Grey, but finding no suitable vocation, and after seeing some tough fighting in the Maori campaign, he enlisted as a private soldier in the Suffolk regiment. He subsequently transferred to the Staffordshire regiment, in which he served in India and rose to be sergeant-major. In 1886 he retired on a pension of six dollars a week. He had a large family, and he entered the tobacconist business in Tamworth, where he was living when, in 1897, his cousin, Colonel Sir Charles Goring, tenth baronet, died. He received the news through an acquaintance, who wired him to look at the obituary column of the "Times." The new baronet thought it was a hoax, but went down to the reading-room, and there verified the news. Sir Harry subsequently retired from business.

AGAINST DEAR FOOD

Housewives in the North of France Have Taken a Stand

Housewives striking against dear food are giving a fine example of determination in the north of France. They refuse to pay the present prices asked for butter, eggs, and milk, and boycott the dairymen. They have done more than that in some cases. One dairyman who offered eggs and milk at high prices was seized by the wives. They forcibly removed a great part of his clothing, which they kept. His eggs were smashed, and his milk poured over him. He then had to make off in his shirt, which was soaked with the omelette. In other places all supplies of eggs, butter and milk offered at high prices have been destroyed. The furious wives also burnt several dairymen in effigy. Troops are at Maubeuge to protect the few dairymen who dare to show their noses; but the military are not much good against a determined demonstration of housewives. The latters' leader was run in, but very soon she had to be released. Local mayors are giving promises to fix dairy produce prices by municipal regulations.

TEST FOR RAILWAY EMPLOYES

Sight, Hearing, Physical Condition and General Mental Fitness

The physical efficiency of the State railroad employes in Germany is to be subjected to severe tests in the future as the result of a number of fatal accidents which have given rise to grave doubts as to whether the calamities might not have been avoided if the employes had been in good physical condition. Henceforth every member of the railroad staff employed on the trains, in the signal boxes, and on the tracks, is to undergo thorough medical examination, with tests of sight and hearing and of mental condition, every five years up to the age of forty-five. After that age, and up to sixty, they are to be tested every three years, and after sixty every two years. In this way it is hoped to keep the staff in a state of almost perfect efficiency and to reduce the risks of accidents, owing to human weakness, to a minimum.

MOVING PICTURES FOR CHINA

These are days when the picture palace or cinematograph theatre is ubiquitous, and the fact that a London syndicate has just concluded negotiations with the Chinese Government to organize an extensive system of these moving picture shows throughout China is further proof of their popularity. The capital is being provided by local mandarins, and the theatres will be entirely in Chinese hands. The right to take films into any part of China is to be given the syndicate and, more remarkable still, it will have special privileges for taking records of religious and social ceremonies, which hitherto could only be attempted at the immediate risk of the operator's life.

SIR WILLIAM WHYTE TALKS OF THE C.P.R.

He Regretted that a History of the Construction of the Road Was Never Written

"I consider that it is one of the most lamentable things in the records of the C.P.R.," said Sir William Whyte, "that the history of the construction of the road has never been written. No one knows the human side of the building of the C.P.R. as does Sir William Van Horne, and I have asked him many times to take from his collection of reminiscences all the matter that pertained to this road and the road builders. I am looking forward to the appearance of these reminiscences, as will everyone else who has played a part in the upbuilding of the West. Perhaps one of the features of the West that lingers particularly in my mind is the buffalo bone collectors, who were scattered all over the plains for so many years gathering and burning, with little care of property or concern for the comfort of the dwellers of the plains, the bones of the kings of the wild prairie, the buffalo. In those days there was no fine for starting prairie fires, and we had man annoying setbacks in constructing parts of the road as the result of these bone hunters' carelessness. In talking over the early history of the country one hears the remark constantly, 'The climate of the West is changing. It is not as cold now as it was thirty years ago,' etc. Well, the climate of this great western Canada has not changed an iota. Conditions have changed. More land each year is brought under cultivation, houses are built, cities spring up, and the hard frozen ground is cleared of stubble. In the building of the road we had trouble off and on with tramps who came up here from across the line. One particularly hot summer a large gang of these men got out through the West and became such a nuisance that we had to get the Northwest Mounted Police to take a hand in driving them out of the country. We could bring two charges against them. Stealing a ride on the train was one, and having no visible means of support was another. Col. Herkimer was in charge at the time in Regina, and he sentenced half a dozen of the tramps who were brought before him to long periods of hard labor, and in no time the pest disappeared. I have often thought that the extreme cold of Western Canada has kept out the indolent undesirables from across the line. There is nothing I enjoy more than to sit down and go back to the West, to the days when the C.P.R. had a struggle to meet its pay day, and when the temperament of its construction engineers had to be nurtured like a hot house plant, and as I look back and recall the struggles and the troubles encountered, and the troubles avoided, I feel that to have helped, even in a small way, was a privilege and an honor, for we have a great empire in the West in its infancy even to-day."

OBJECTED TO THE HAT

A Montreal Judge Disliked the Millinery of a Witness

When Miss Lena Block was giving evidence in a case before Judge Choquet, Montreal, wearing a dainty peach basket hat down over her forehead and ears, so that only her mouth and chin were visible and the tip of her nose, the judge told her not to come into court with that sort of a creation on her head again as he could not see her sufficiently. Concealed as she was beneath it, the judge said he felt as though he were speaking to someone wearing a mask. The judge is a keen student of human nature, and likes to study the expression of witnesses in the box to test their credibility.

How London Devours Wheat

London was the largest market for home-grown wheat last year, 149,005qr. being [illegible] and Norwich ranged second with 38,357qr. The latter headed the list for barley with 326,384qr., which is more than one-tenth of the total supply, mainly owing to the Burton breweries buying at Norwich. This town also takes first place for oats, with 42,471qr., London being second with 29,212qr.

BRING OUT NORWEGIANS

Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister, Will Urge the Government to do so

"Northern Ontario is yours, what are you going to do with it?" asked Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, in an address delivered to stock breeders.

"The people of Ontario are becoming awake to the fact that the future of the province depends on the improvement of old Ontario and the development of newer Ontario. The stockman can assist materially in that work.

"When the people in southern Ontario realize these opportunities and possibilities of Northern Ontario," he said, "and that 100 acres there will produce as much as 100 acres in southern Ontario, they will realize the fact that something must be done there. Merely saying that there is a country there will not help much. Something will have to be done, and it was time the people of southern Ontario were doing it."

Mr. James told of the Norwegian farmers, some of whom he had visited during the summer, of their hard, industrious work and healthy food. He thought if 10,000 of the Norwegian farmers could be brought to Northern Ontario, with their experience and determination, the next generation would be as successful farmers as any in southern Ontario. It would not be stealing to bring them to Ontario, because several thousand from Norway and Sweden were going to the United States every year who knew nothing of the possibilities of Northern Ontario. He intended to urge upon the Government the advisability of securing immigrants from among the Norwegian farmers and placing them in Northern Ontario.

RAISING U. S. BILLS

A Pasted Cigar Label Works the Fraudulent Trick

If you happen to get any American $5 bills, look them over carefully to see that they are not simply raised ones. Be sure to look at the back for the counterfeit is easily detected there.

An American one dollar bill and the figure "five" cut from cigar labels are being used in the city to make a fairly presentable counterfeit of a bill worth four dollars more.

The bill is made by pasting a figure 5, clipped from a cigar label, over the figure "1" appearing in each corner of the face of the $1 bill. On this side it makes a good counterfeit, but as the same thing is repeated on the back the black figures on the green of the bill are easily detectable.

THE BEST OARSMEN

The Proud Position of Canadians During the Season, 1911

The outstanding feature of the rowing season of 1911 has been the excellence of Canadian oarsmen. On July 4th, at the People's Regatta, held at Philadelphia, the Argonaut Rowing Club, of Toronto, won the senior eight-oared race and the senior single sculls. In the latter, E. B. Butler proved his prowess as an oarsman fitted to meet the best scullers on the continent.

The Northwestern International Regatta, held at Duluth on July 21 and 22, revealed the strength of the Winnipeg Rowing Club, of Winnipeg. At this regatta the oarsmen from the Red River won the senior single sculls, junior and senior eights, and the pair oars from the best crews of the Northwestern States. Winnipeg truly almost wiped the slate clean of all colors but their own, and maintained the traditions which lifted the Stewards' Cup at Henley last year.

The greatest regatta of North America is that held annually by the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

Under the care of Mr. Joseph Wright, their captain and amateur coach, the Argonauts went down to Saratoga with the light of battle in their eyes. They entered six races and won all of them from such crack clubs as the New York Athletics, the Arundels, of Baltimore, the Detroit Boat Club, and the Vespers, of Philadelphia. The six victories were: Senior eights, senior fours, senior association single sculls, senior championship single sculls, and intermediate eights. To carry off five senior American championships was a remarkable achievement for a single club. Butler's wonderful performance of winning the three senior single races made all the rowing critics of America gasp with astonishment.

As for the English Henley, it is a matter of athletic history how the Ottawa eight beat the Belgians and chased Magdalene College, the winners of the Grand Challenge Cup. Also their four won the first heat of the Stewards' Cup.

VAST COLONIZATION SCHEME

The largest colonization scheme of recent years will be launched in the North-West of Canada. W. C. J. Manning, of Chicago, representing the Catholic Colonization Company, has returned south after having completed arrangements with Western realty agents whereby four million acres of land went under option, to be settled and purchased by Roman Catholics. It is expected by Mr. Manning that between thirty and forty thousand Catholics of the Central States will be brought in.

Bad Moving Pictures

The Hamilton Board of Education decided to investigate the charge that certain moving pictures in that city were a slur on the British Empire. The matter was brought up by Trustee Watkins, who said it was a disgrace to the loyalty of Canadians that films representing the British troops in cowardly straits as against the heroism of United States soldiers should be offered for the patronage of British people. The trustees agreed with him.

MARRIAGE EXAMINATION

Enactment Ordered by the Patriarch of Constantinople

A very salutary measure has been ordered by the Armenian Patriarch of Constantinople. If this measure be strictly carried out it will prove of the utmost benefit to the whole of the Armenian population of the Ottoman Empire. Henceforward every couple intending to contract a marriage will have to bring to the authorities a medical certificate of a fully qualified doctor testifying that both the bride and the bridegroom are in a state of perfect health. Without such a certificate no marriage will be possible in any Armenian community.

GATLIN INSTITUTE OF ONTARIO LIMITED DRINK HABIT CURED IN THREE DAYS

THREE DAYS AT THE GATLIN INSTITUTE is the price of freedom from the most enslaving habit that ever demanded salvation.

A Private Sanitarium Successfully Treating ALCOHOLISM

The Gatlin Institute, 428 Jarvis Street, Corner Maitland. • Telephone North 4538

ALCOHOL IS AN UNNATURAL SYSTEM - POISONING, brain-wrecking, will-breaking drink, and all powers of resistance fall under its attack.

Story of the Gatlin Treatment

TEN YEARS ago it was announced, for the first time, that drunkenness WAS NOT a disease; that a harmless, simple method of treatment had been discovered that would cure the most seemingly hopeless case of drunkenness in THREE DAYS; that the heroic treatment, covering a period of from 28 to 42 days, with painful hypodermic injections, was a thing of the past as far as necessity for such existed; that craving, desire and physical demand for and inclination to drink intoxicating liquors were but EFFECTS of stored-up alcoholic poison in the system that with the removal of that poison, the CAUSE of continued drinking and drunkenness was done away with; that all craving and desire at once disappeared, leaving the drinker in the same mental and physical condition as the day he was born as regards liquor, and with no more inclination to drink it than the day he foolishly took his first drink. The announcement further stated that the Gatlin treatment was the only one in the world which would accomplish this—that all methods of treating drunkenness other than the Gatlin were based on a FALSE DIAGNOSIS of "alcoholism."

This announcement met with skepticism; but daily, stronger and stronger claims for the Gatlin treatment were made. Legal contracts were offered that any drunkard in any stage of the drink habit could take the Gatlin treatment, and if there was a failure to cure—failure to effect a cure more than satisfactory to the drinker himself and to his family—that if he was dissatisfied in any manner with either the cure, the treatment, the Gatlin Institute, or with any person or anything connected with the Gatlin Institute, all that was necessary was a simple expression of dissatisfaction and the full fee paid would be refunded when he was leaving the institute, and treatment should cost nothing.

That same proposition is still made, and has been constantly and continuously made for TEN YEARS.

The Gatlin treatment CURES—and it cures in THREE DAYS—there is not the slightest possibility of failure.

The Gatlin Institutes began to grow—patients flocked to them by scores—then the cures effected ran into the hundreds—then into the thousands. These cures were of the LASTING KIND which made the Gatlin treatment famous. The Gatlin Institutes couldn't possibly accommodate all those who desired the treatment—other institutions became necessary, and others are opening throughout the continent.

Gatlin Institutes are now in operation at 340 So. Highland ave., East End, Pittsburg, Pa.; 1919 Prairie ave., Chicago, Ill.; 403 Seventh st., So., Minneapolis, Minn.; 1823 Jefferson st., Kansas City, Mo.; 1414 Seventh st., Parkersburg, W. Va.; 1362 High st., Des Moines, Iowa; 27 So. C st., Tacoma, Wash.; 434 Queen Anne ave., Seattle, Wash., and London, Eng., now being opened, with the GATLIN INSTITUTE OF ONTARIO NOW OPEN AND DOING BUSINESS AT 428 JARVIS STREET, TORONTO, ONT.

REPRESENTATIVE ONTARIO CITIZENS CONTROL THE GATLIN INSTITUTE

A GATLIN INSTITUTE was needed in Canada—a treatment that would cure quickly and perfectly without the disagreeable features of hypodermic injections, strong drugs, SUBSTITUTE STIMULANTS, and a loss of from 28 to 42 days of time—a treatment with merit enough to convince the public that EIGHTY PER CENT. of its patients did not RELAPSE—had become a public necessity.

A company composed of representative citizens, physicians and business men of Ontario—men of means, of reputation and of extensive interests here—was formed, and the exclusive right to use the Gatlin treatment in Ontario was secured. The cost of this right was not at all small, neither was the opening and fitting up of the splendid Gatlin Institute at No. 8 Howard street done at small cost. Inside of one year these quarters were outgrown by the rapidly increasing business, and it became necessary to seek a larger building for the Institute. The present location, No. 428 Jarvis street, gives ample room, and affords the best-equipped institution in Ontario for the successful treatment of alcoholism. We KNOW what the Gatlin treatment will do—we KNOW that there does not exist a case of drunkenness on earth that it will fail to cure—we KNOW what the demand for the Gatlin treatment will be when we have succeeded in convincing you that there is now a REAL CURE for the liquor habit—an easy, safe, harmless cure, which you can take in the comfortable quarters of our homelike institution or in the privacy of your own home, requiring a period of but THREE DAYS.

If it proves difficult to convince YOU that the Gatlin treatment is all and more than it is claimed to be just think how difficult it must have been to convince US that the Gatlin treatment had merit enough to warrant us in investing many, many thousands of dollars in the Gatlin Institute of Ontario. We know of many quacks who had prostituted their professions for a few paltry dollars; we knew that other liquor habit treatments, in a sense, were failures; we were so well acquainted with the "world" and with the fact that it is easy to make claims and statements, that it took ten times as much proof and argument to reason us into investing OUR money in the Gatlin Institute of Ontario as we will have to use to get YOU to take the Gatlin treatment and STOP DRINKING.

Anyone interested is respectfully invited to call at the Institute, 428 Jarvis street, corner Maitland, Toronto, Ont., or write for books of particulars and copies of contracts to cure. Long distance and local telephone, North 4538. A. Hargrave, Manager.

Liquor Drinking Men of Business

BUSINESSMEN—which includes lawyers, doctors, managers of corporations and higher salaried men, merchants, bankers, brokers—who drink liquor FAIL sooner or later. Each one of them will charge this failure to HARD LUCK. But that charge is false. The loss of executive ability, WEAKENED MENTALITY, impaired judgment, gross neglect—to WHISKEY! DOING THE THINKING—are direct EFFECTS of charging the system with the cumulative poison of alcohol, and the CAUSE of their business troubles.

The Gatlin treatment will, in THREE DAYS, remove every trace of alcoholic poison from your system, without any inconvenience whatever to yourself; in THREE DAYS it will take you right back to the condition you were in the first day you ever took a drink of liquor, with no more craving for more drink than you had on that day. What liquor drinker, who has a vestige of his normal faculties left, is there in this world who would not eagerly return to that day? What one, with the experience he has had in liquor drinking, would wish that FIRST DRINK if he could but go back to that FIRST DAY?

Come to the Gatlin Institute—take the Gatlin treatment, or send for the Gatlin Home treatment. It will make a new man of you; will restore to you your old-time normal brain—your old-time personality that was carrying you along the road to SUCCESS rapidly until you ran up against liquor; it will chase HARD LUCK from your business by driving the accumulated poison from your system and thereby do away with the CAUSE of your appetite and craving for liquor.

You, or your employe or your friend, will be accepted for treatment at the Gatlin Institute under a plainly-worded, legally executed contract that a CURE shall be effected in THREE DAYS—a cure that will be entirely satisfactory to yourself and to your family—that every claim made for the Gatlin treatment and what it will accomplish in THREE DAYS shall be verified in your case, or at the end of the third day the full fee you pay for treatment shall be refunded and treatment shall cost NOTHING. Any expression of dissatisfaction with either the cure in your case, with the treatment, with the Gatlin Institute, or with its management, when you are leaving the Institute, will mean that the fee paid shall at once be refunded. Remember, the money you pay the Gatlin Institute for a CURE has not changed ownership until you are satisfied that you are cured and that the Gatlin Institute has earned its fee.

Institute located at 428 Jarvis street, corner Maitland. Take Church street car; ask for Maitland street stop. Institute two short blocks east. Call or write for books of particulars, copies of contracts and other information. Book and full particulars mailed, sealed, in plain envelope. Long distance and local telephone, North 4538.

The Schacht Line for 1912

IN our introductory advertisements we did not dwell specifically upon any of the outstanding features of the Schacht Cars—we merely gave illustrations and let the specifications speak for the car.

In placing our 1912 Cars on the market, we are offering for sale a line (manufactured by a Canadian Company, with exclusive Canadian Capital) of which every Canadian can be justly proud.

The Schacht car is not a low-priced car, and yet when everything is considered, it is the most inexpensive car on the market. With its powerful motor, (cast en-bloc) having a 4½-inch bore and 5-inch stroke, generating 50 H.P. A. L. & A. M. rating—an engine so perfectly and so beautifully balanced that the driver is enabled to throttle the car down to a speed on direct drive (high gear) as low as 2 miles an hour, and with the same car attain a maximum road speed of 70 miles an hour. The motor, equipped with the peerless Mea Magneto has made the Schacht car famous as a hill climber—no other car on the market can boast a better hill climbing record than the Schacht.

The Schacht, Model J.M. at $2,450.00, fully equipped, combines in itself the specifications and qualities of cars ranging from $3,750.00 to $5,000.00. The long wheel base, the large wheels, the roomy driving seat and five passenger tonneau has been heretofore found only in the highest priced cars. In the Schacht for 1912 we have incorporated the left-hand drive and centre control, enabling the driver to use the necessary right hand to operate his gear control and emergency brake levers.

Due to the perfection of the Mea Magneto we have been enabled to dispense with the dual ignition. Such a hot, high tension spark being produced at the first movement of the Magneto, that only a quarter turn of the crank is necessary to start the motor.

In addition to the standard equipment such as five lamps, tools, etc., we are equipping our cars with English Mohair top with envelope, Windshield and Speedometer. Schacht Cars have all bright parts nickel plated and our standard color is deep Royal Blue.

In addition to our line of pleasure cars we are manufacturing a line of commercial trucks and delivery cars that are absolutely without peer in Canada. Our Model 21, 4-Ton Truck is sold complete with body for $4,100.00. It is equipped with the same powerful motor and Mea Magneto—has a wheel-base of 144 inches and an eight foot overhang—it has the dual rear wheels and single front wheels, all equipped with the best solid tires to be had. THE WOMAN OR THE CAR

An Incident That Changed a Woman's Decision.

By ELLIOT WALKER.

Ladd, the proprietor of the Tamaracks, shook his head with discouraging firmness.

"No," he declared decidedly; "I accommodate people here, not automobiles. First, no shelter for the machine; second, I won't have one round since my dog was run over; third, there's no use of talking. Better go along."

In the sudden darkness of the summer twilight came a blinding flash, disclosing more clearly the occupants of the big touring car—the chauffeur, gesticulating angrily; two other scowling men, a woman and a child.

With a rush of wind the storm broke. A deafening thunderclap shook the earth. The rain, almost horizontal in the flying air, drove a deluge of great drops under the hastily arranged covers.

"I'm going to get out!" shrilled a small scared voice. "I want to be in a house! Mamma, come!"

A tall figure leaped from the piazza of the little hotel, shoved Ladd aside and held out a pair of shirt sleeved arms.

"You shall, baby!" he shouted. "It's a confounded shame! You, too, madam! Let the men take care of themselves. Hurry or you'll be drenched!"

"Look out!" cried the mother sharply, for the child had jumped recklessly. "Thank you, sir. I feared she would fall. Yes, I think it is best. I'll be right in."

She fumbled for a bag, spoke rapidly to one of her companions and sprang from the step unassisted to run up the short path after the uncouted figure, striding swiftly, with the little girl clinging to his neck.

Ladd's loud voice came to her ears above the din.

"You're all welcome, I say. I'll bed and feed the crowd, but that pesky machine can't lodge at my place. No, gents. Sorry, but I've sworn to pass 'em along."

"A fine specimen you are to run a hotel," scolded the man by the driver.

"It's my house," retorted Ladd.

"Well, keep it and be hanged! I wouldn't put my head under such a roof. We'll be here in the morning, old curmudgeon. Take care of Mrs. Dixon. Push her along, Henri. Never mind speed limits."

A few rattles, a dozen snorting gasps, and the car dashed away through the mud.

Mr. Ladd, bareheaded and dripping, gazed after it with a satisfied grin.

"Too bad to break up a party," he grunted. "This storm will last a good hour. They'll get a nice twenty mile trip to Jepworth, splashing soft dirt. Well, I've got two guests, anyhow, and tomorrow I make my third nick on old Hank's tombstone."

He chuckled his way into the barn.

* * * * * * *

Lois Dixon sat in the dining room, a small apartment largely given over to social usage other than the delights of the table. A high chair had been found for Dot, who was assaulting bread and milk. Seraph Ladd, corpulent and apologetic, talked from the adjacent kitchen.

"Oh, no, my dear," she was saying "the Tamaracks isn't much of a hotel. Folks stay here for meals, and we take in a few transients and occasionally a regular. The regulars are mostly men who come to fish and kill time. There are good trout in the tamarack swamp brook, but it's a pesky hole. That man you saw is a regular. He has been here a week."

"I can hardly say I saw him. Everything was done so quickly. I'm quite dry now, and so is Dot. Your husband doesn't appear to approve of automobiles," this last sentence with an aggrieved intonation.

"He doesn't!" exclaimed Mrs. Ladd rather warmly. "Jason is good natured about most other things, but after our dog was knocked across the fence (poor old thing; he was only gnawing a bone in the road) Jason swore an oath never to let a car stop overnight again. So he boarded up the shed. My, the way some of these people whiz along a country road is fearful! Your supper is most ready, Mrs. Dixon. I take it you are a widow woman, because"—

"Yes, I've been widowed for five years," Lois interrupted. "We were simply taking a short pleasure drive. A slight accident delayed us for an hour, else we should be at home by this time. We were making for Jepworth, where I have a sister."

"I see." Mrs. Ladd began to place dishes. "I sort of wondered."

"A friend of mine and his brother, besides the chauffeur," explained Lois, blushing a trifle. "It did seem queer that I was left so unceremoniously to the care of strangers, but I can look out for myself, and I always go prepared for emergencies. Still, I should have thought"—

"Oh, it's the machine every time," laughed the old woman. "Men seem to forget. What with their wrangling and hurry for cover, you and Dotty were better out of it."

"Apparently." Mrs. Dixon's tone was sarcastic. "However, to let me come in unattended and to leave all explanations to me when he knew I was upset and trying to calm Dot"— She paused. Seraph was eying her shrewdly.

"Considerate, I must say," observed the hostess. "Well, draw up and eat."

"Mercy! You have cooked enough for three!" Lois laughed outright.

"It's not all for you, my dear. Our regular hasn't had his supper. He turned up only a few minutes before you did. I'll tinkle the bell for him. You don't mind company, do you? He's a real nice man, but sort of quiet this trip. Acts sort of impatient and nervous, too, which isn't his usual way."

"I must ask you to introduce me, then. I'll be glad to thank him for helping us."

The bell rang softly in the hall. Lois, busying herself with her napkin and Dot, did not glance at the entering figure.

Mrs. Ladd, impressed by the importance of the act of introduction, spoke up smartly.

"Nat, let me make you acquainted with Mrs. Blakeley—I—I mean Mrs. Dixon. Mr. Blakeley, Mrs. Dixon. This is her little girl. Dear, dear! Wasn't it funny that I should have got you twisted?"

"Very funny," murmured Blakeley, bowing and making considerable noise with his chair. Lois dropped her napkin. Dot stared, smiling and nodding.

"Now I've embarrassed you!" cried Mrs. Ladd, retreating to the kitchen. "Gracious!" she exclaimed to herself. "Neither of them can find a word to say. I guess I'll shut this door or they may hear me giggle."

The silence was broken by Dot. "You've got whiskers," she remarked, with complacence. "That's why. Didn't you know me?"

"No," said the man thickly. "I hadn't my glasses on. I recognized no one. I put that wrap over your head, dumped you in a chair and called Mrs. Ladd. I didn't know you, dear"—

"And you've put on a coat," went on his inquisitor, surveying him affectionately. "I liked you better with just a mustache. It seems ever so long since you came to see mamma."

"Hush, Dot," said her mother softly.

"But he used to bring me candy," persisted the child. "Mr. Barker doesn't. I like Mr. Blakeley best. Don't you?"

Lois' cheeks crimsoned.

"It's bedtime, dear. Mrs. Ladd will take you to the room. I'll be up in a minute. Be a good girl and run out to the kitchen for her."

Dot tiptoed to Blakeley's chair.

"Good night," she said coyly and put up her lips.

The man kissed her tenderly, with a great lump in his throat. He had hoped for many good night caresses from this little one, but that hope no longer existed. As she disappeared he gazed steadily at the woman opposite.

"Let us have it over, Lois," he blurted. "I heard the news a month ago. Believe me, my dear, I shall try to think only of your happiness. Barker will be a very happy man."

"Not with me, Nat."

"What! Do you mean"—

"I mean that I do not intend to become Mrs. Barker. I have not yet given him my answer. He will get it tomorrow when he returns with his automobile. You have been misinformed."

Her eyes shone into his as he strained forward, eager, transformed with a sudden joy.

"Lois!" he cried. "Oh, my love, tell me, is there a chance for—yes, yes, you are crying, dear!"

* * * * * * *

"My introduction wasn't so far wrong, after all, Jason!" beamed Seraph Ladd the next day. "I wonder what Mrs. Dixon thought when I called him 'Nat,' so familiar? She says she will be Mrs. Blakeley the next time I see her."

The Last Resort.

Mrs. Hobson was an ideal tenant for any landlord. She knew all the rules and kept to them in every place she lived. When she discovered that the agent for the Uphill apartments was slow in ordering necessary repairs, she possessed her soul in patience. But when she had spoken and written unavailingly several times in regard to the leak from one of her steam radiators, she decided to send a personal note to the owner of the property, whom she had met and liked.

"Dear sir," she wrote, "will you be kind enough to instruct your agent to purchase for my use a large tin pail and a rubber mat, four feet by ten? The pail will do to catch the water from the leaking radiator pipe when I am in the house and can frequently empty it, but the rubber mat is a necessity at other times. Yours respectfully, Mary Hobbon."

She never needed either the pail or mat.—Youth's Companion.

Writing of the Great.

Sheridan's writing was a scandal to his school and puzzled the town. He once wrote a pass to Drury Lane, and the doorkeeper stopped its bearer and immediately pronounced it a forgery because he could not decipher it. The atrocious writing of celebrities recalls the claim once made on behalf of Baron Bramwell that he wrote three hands—one which he alone could read, another which his clerk could read and he could not and a third which nobody could read, and the last named was his usual style. The writing master of the elder Dumas attributed the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo to a badly scrawled message to Grouchy which was wrongly interpreted. The Duke of Wellington wrote an equally bad fist. Lord Palmerston was such a stickler for legibility of script that he would send a dispatch halfway around the world to have it clearly rewritten.—Boston Transcript.

Only Transitory.

Prospective Tenant—I like the house, but I don't like that huge building in front. It's such a dreary outlook.

Agent—Oh, but that's only a gunpowder factory. It might explode any day.—London Opinion.

PRECIOUS DOCUMENTS.

Care of the Constitution and Declaration of Independence.

Open to the light of day for the first time in nine years, the Declaration of Independence and the constitution of the United States were recently inspected by Secretary of State Knox and found to be in as good condition as when they were put away in their abiding place, a steel safe especially designed for their custody.

The four pages of the constitution and the pages containing the resolution submitting the constitution to the states of the Union are in excellent condition. The ink is as black as when fresh laid to the parchment with a quill pen and is of a quality that will outlast any ink of modern make.

The Declaration of Independence, with hardly a signature legible of all those which are appended to it by the great men of the infant republic, however, is otherwise losing nothing of legibility. Its condition is due to the fact that away back in 1852, when there were no other means known of getting a facsimile, a press copy was taken which absorbed the ink from nearly all the signatures and left the script of the body of the document still readable, but more faint by half than it had been before.

The declaration had also been exposed to strong sunlight while on exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876 and at the Chicago exposition in 1893.

The documents are kept in a light steel case that would offer only slight resistance to heat and fire. Each page is hermetically sealed between two panes of glass, which are then bound in wooden frames of highly polished oak.

Secretary Knox directed that Chief Clerk McNeil make estimate for a safe depository for the documents that should be fire proof, water proof, air proof and light proof. The two valuable documents were then closed up again in the safe and the seal affixed, to be opened again only for transfer to a stronger place of keeping.

The documents will not be open to public inspection. The safe is kept in the library of the state department.—Washington Star.

Japanese Census on European Lines.

The Japanese are going to take their next census according to European methods. A Japanese professor from the University of Tokyo is now in Rome with a view to studying the taking of the Italian census. He knows Italian as perfectly as a native. He has already been in Berlin and Vienna with a similar object. The Japanese census is to be taken on more exact lines than has ever been attempted on previous occasions.—Rome. Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.

ADVENTURES of the WORLD'S GREAT DETECTIVES

By George Barton

The Moscow Railroad Mine

An Episode in the life of General Drenteln Chief of the Secret Police of Russia.

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY W.G CHAPMAN

THE CONSPIRATORS AT WORK ON THE MINE.

This is one of a new series of stories concerning adventures which have occurred in the lives of the world's Greatest detectives. Mr. Barton has gathered his material from real life, but in some cases imaginary names have been substituted for real ones, simply as a matter of justice to the innocent descendants of culprits mentioned in the narratives. Permissible liberties have been taken in the construction and arrangement of these fact stories, but in all that is essential they may be regarded as human documents of unusual interest and value.—Editor.)

On the first of December, 1879, the railway carriage carrying Alexander II., the czar of Russia, was dynamited at a point near Moscow and several persons were seriously injured. Fortunately, the czar's train preceded instead of following the baggage train, and this miscalculation on the part of the conspirators saved the life of his imperial majesty.

An investigation showed that a mine had been dug beneath the railway. Two secret service men, descended into the hole made by the explosion and came to a subterranean passage which led to a little cottage close to the railway on the outskirts of Moscow. The inhabitants had fled, and the police found an untouched meal on the table of the dining room.

The czar was so startled over this dastardly attempt on his life that he determined to use unusual means to discover and punish the perpetrators of the outrage. The ordinary protection, with which he had surrounded himself, had proven insufficient. The police of Moscow were remiss in permitting the digging of the mine under their noses, so to speak. In this crisis he sent for General Drenteln, the chief of the secret police, and charged him with the commission of bringing the would-be assassins to justice.

General Drenteln was well fitted for the task. He was hard, cruel and as remorseless as death itself, and had been the cause of sending many prisoners to Siberia. Once a prisoner tried to escape, and the penalty announced by the general was hanging. His personal bravery was unquestioned; he exposed himself in public places without fear. Six months before the Moscow attempt on the czar's life a Nihilist, named Mirski, had shot at the chief of the secret police and had escaped. Drenteln had taken the thing with characteristic calmness. His wound, which was slight, was bound up, and he at once resumed his official duties.

This, then, was the man who was to uncover the mystery of the Moscow mine. He went about his work with provoking deliberation. He was confident that the explosion was part of a great general conspiracy and that a large number of persons must be involved. Instructions were sent to every part of the empire to keep a close watch on all known or suspected Nihilists. The magnitude of the task may be appreciated when it is understood that all of Russia was in a turmoil over the attempt to destroy the head of the government. Literally, thousands of persons, for months, were engaged in shadowing thousands of other persons.

General Drenteln realized that three attempts had been made on the emperor's life within the short period of a year, and he endeavored to make some connection between these various plots. He could not help but feel that the same persons must have been interested in each of the conspiracies.

In the autumn of 1878 a mine had been laid at Nikolaieff, on the Black sea, to blow up the emperor, but it had been discovered by the police and the scheme frustrated. The second attempt was made by Anthony Solovieff, a former school teacher. From reading the theories of socialism, he had gradually accepted the doctrines of that order and finally became a Nihilist. The perseverance of the man may be understood when it is known that he learned the trade of blacksmith in order that he might come into close communication with the class of people whose wrongs he sought to right. He journeyed to St. Petersburg in the summer of 1878 for the purpose of killing the emperor, and haunted the palace in order to get the opportunity of carrying out his design. On the second of April, 1879, he was in hiding when Alexander came out to walk up and down the sidewalk in front of the palace. Solovieff fired four shots at the czar. He was seized immediately, tried in the following June and hanged before the month was over.

The third attempt on the life of the emperor has already been detailed in the beginning of this article.

Drenteln's first move was to make a personal investigation of the house from whence the tunnel had been dug under the railroad tracks near Moscow. It was a trifle better than a peasant's cottage. It was sparsely furnished, the floors were bare and the beds and tables and chairs were as plain as it was possible to make them. In the front room he picked up a copy of "The Will of the People," the organ which represented the "Party of Terror," composed of the most extreme Nihilists.

That, in itself, was not a very tangible clew. Copies of that paper, as well as of "Land and Liberty," the organ of the most conservative Nihilists, were constantly being picked up in different parts of the empire. The publication of these papers was treated as treason. Presses were confiscated and men arrested, but as fast as this was done the papers magically appeared in other places. So General Drenteln did not lay very great store by this find. However, a few moments later, he discovered a book which gave gave promise of results. The volume, in itself, was of no consequence, but it contained a book mark on which was printed the business notice of a stationer in St. Petersburg.

Drenteln interviewed the man at once. He was a commonplace tradesman and had nothing to conceal. He answered questions freely.

"Have you ever seen this book?" asked the general.

"Yes," was the response; "it looks like one of a kind that I have on sale."

"Are you sure?" sternly.

"Why, yes. There is nothing wrong about it, I hope. It is not a prohibited book."

SOLOVIEFF FIRED FOUR SHOTS AT THE CZAR

"No; not exactly. But it has been found under unusual circumstances. How many of these books have you sold?"

"Two," was the unhesitating reply. "You see," he added, complainingly, "there is not much demand for these dry works on political economy."

"Who bought them?" demanded the inquisitor.

The dealer paused for a moment to consider.

"The first one was sold to a woman—a school teacher, I think."

"Do you know her name?"

"No."

"And the second?"

"That was to a tall, raw-boned man."

"Did you know him?"

"No; I never saw him before."

"Would you know him if you met him?"

"Surely."

A watch was placed on the stationers' store. There was never a minute, day or night, that it was not under the observance of the secret police. One day a tall, gaunt-looking fellow lounged into the place. The stationer, eager to justify himself, pointed to the newcomer.

"There stands the man!"

The stranger was arrested at once and taken to police headquarters. He gave the name of Jules Goldenberg. One of the detectives said that he reminded him strongly of a person who had been seen in the company of Antony Solovieff, who had been executed early in the year for an attempt on the life of the emperor. While he was in custody the secret police were sent to search his house, where they found incriminating evidence, the most important of which was a quantity of dynamite. Goldenberg was terrified, and in order to save himself he turned state's evidence. He gave the authorities his version of the explosion at Moscow, and also furnished the names of scores of persons who were directly and indirectly concerned in the plot. More than a hundred persons were arrested, and many of them were subjected to summary punishment. Others were held to await developments, and Goldenberg was one of those kept on the anxious bench. He hoped for his liberty, but he did not know whether he would be pardoned or punished.

The story illustrates the persistence, no less than the fanaticism, of those who had been pursuing the emperor. About the middle of June of that year the Nihilists held a congress, or rather a secret meeting, in the province of Tomboff, at which many of the leading spirits openly advocated the killing of the czar. As a result of that gathering, it is averred, it was decided to blow up the imperial train during the journey of the emperor from the Crimea to St. Petersburg.

Having decided on this course, the conspirators went about their work with painstaking care. Dynamite, picks, axes and other implements necessary to dig and prepare the underground passage for the explosion were carefully gathered and placed in hiding at various points. The mines for the explosion were laid under the railway lines at three different points. One was near Odessa; another adjoining Alexandrovsk, and the third near Moscow. One of those inexplicable decisions which we call chance caused a slight change in the emperor's itinerary. As a consequence of this the Odessa mine was abandoned. The train passed Alexandrovsk on schedule time, but owing to some defect in the capsule the mine did not explode, although the battery was closed at the right moment. The imperial train passed uninjured over the dreadful precipice, the czar chatting with his companions in blissful ignorance of the awful fate he had been spared.

It was at Moscow, however, that the assassins were partially successful. Months before they had purchased a small house near the railway, and the work of excavating a passage began in that humble structure and ended under the tracks of the railway. A large number of persons were concerned in this task. Leo Hartmann, an electrician, superintended the electrical branch of the work. Sofia Perovskaia and numerous others gave the benefit of their advice and assistance. Naturally, the greatest caution was exercised, the work being done quietly and secretly and most of it at night. There was a rainy season at that time of the year, and it is claimed that at times the miners worked in freezing water, standing in it up to their knees.

The train came along according to schedule, and the explosion took place, but the emperor, as already stated, escaped because his train had fortunately preceded instead of following the baggage train.

When these facts became known, and during Goldenberg's imprisonment a virtual reign of terror existed in all parts of Russia. A state of siege was established throughout the Russian empire. In St. Petersburg the precautionary measures were more rigid than anywhere else. A police order was issued requiring each householder to keep a watch day and night at the door of his house to see who went in and out and to see that no placards were affixed. In the months following the Moscow attempt against the emperor, it is said that there were nearly five thousand political prisoners in the Fort Petropowlovsk. These, in turn, were removed in a single night to eastern prisons to make room for newly arrested persons. Some eight hundred prisoners, under a strong escort, were sent from Odessa to Siberia. In the same month the trial took place at Kieff of the persons who, about a year before, had resisted the police sent to arrest them for being in possession of a secret printing press.

General Drenteln had determined to impress the entire population with the fact that law and order was to be established and the emperor's safety assured. He succeeded, apparently, because it was many years after that before the hand of Nihilism was raised against anyone in authority in the Russian empire.

In the meantime Goldenberg, after having betrayed hundreds of his associates, was seized with fear and remorse, and one morning ended the whole sombre tragedy by committing suicide.

HE WAS A DANGEROUS RISK

In These Rushing Days the Pedestrian Has No Show at All With Insurance Company.

Here was a case where it seemed as if everything was settled. The insurance company's doctor had reported that the man seemed to be all right, and the man himself had certified that he was not engaged in any dangerous occupation.

"I lead a sedentary life," he told them. "I work in an office and we have no danger or excitement."

"How about sports?" the examiner asked. "Do you football? Baseball? Do you box? Do you belong to an athletic club?"

"No some of that stuff. I guess I'm a safe risk."

"Do you scorch?"

"What do you mean?"

"Do you drive your car faster than the speed limit?"

"I have no car."

"What? How do you get about?"

"I walk."

"Risk refused. A scorcher is a dangerous risk, but a pedestrian has no chance at all. Buy a car, old chap Sorry—good night!"

Training School for Burglars.

An academy where burglary was being taught on the most approved lines by experts in the profession was discovered by the police at Berlin lately. The principal, who was an old convict, examined each student in the various branches of the science before granting the leaving certificate, which was equivalent to a degree in burglary. In return for their training, board and lodging, the students were expected to pay a fixed sum and a percentage on their profits during the first year or so after they entered the profession.

On the Warship.

First Officer—Things look threatening on shore. We will have to land a force.

Second Officer—Go tell that to the marines.

Question Too Personal.

"I had a mighty queer surprise this morning," remarked a local stock broker. "I put on my last year's suit and in one of the trousers' pockets I found a big roll of bills which I had entirely forgotten."

"Were any of them receipted?" asked a listener who seemed to be a pessimist.

And the temperature dropped immediately to a point where everybody felt comfortable.

Poison Ivy.

The poison ivy can be distinguished by the fact that its leaves have only three leaflets. Its flowers are in loose, slender, auxiliary panicles. The smooth fruit is pale brown. It is found in moist, shady places, and presents two forms, one erect and the other climbing. It clambers over rocks and fences and by means of aerial rootlets ascends the trunks of the tallest trees. When bruised, it exudes a milky juice, which becomes black on exposure to the air and an fabrics makes a stain indelible to all ordinary solvents. A country remedy which has proven effective for poison ivy is ordinary lard, with sufficient prepared chalk to make a thick paste. Apply often, rubbing well into the poisoned surface.

He Made an Army.

A noteworthy example of patience in small things is to be seen in the recent acquisition of the invalides of some eight thousand litle soldiers made of cardboard and mounted on little wooden stands, says the London Globe. It is the work of M. Paul Schmidt, a Strasburger, and represents the troops stationed in the famous cathedral city in 1848. Infantry, cavalry, artillery, voltigeurs, zouaves and barracks firemen are represented, and these had taken part in the conquest of Algiers. For the most part, at any rate as far as the officers are concerned, the faces are true portraits and at the back of each figure the name and rank of the party is to be found.

Pity the Chinese Student.

A new map of China was recently published by a German house which undertakes to transcribe the chief names in the exact forms which they assume in the dialects of the respective provinces as well as the commonly accepted form. In this way the fifteen chief dialects are represented, says the National Review. The commonly accepted form is printed in dark green, the dialect forms in black. Thus such unfamiliar forms appear as Taetsiu for Taichow, Fope for Hupei, Fulan for Hunan, Hokkiong for Fukien, Sejutchen for Suchow, etc. Other features which make the map valuable are the thoroughness with which it treats Mongolia and the Kokonor country north of Szechuan—regions which in most maps are left more or less blank spaces.

Walnuts From France.

The best walnuts in the world—at least they have that reputation—are those grown around Grenoble, France, and a singular fact about them is that at least three-quarters of the entire production are transported across the ocean to be eaten in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other large American cities. The calcareous soil of southeastern France appears to be particularly favorable to the walnut. On the rising land at the base of the French Alps the nut trees often form veritable cultivated forests. The finest variety, the "mayette," has a light-colored shell, and a broad, flat base, on which it readily stands upright.

Ants Plague English District.

An extraordinary plague of ants is causing alarm in the Durham, England, colliery village of Ryhope. One hundred and twenty miners' houses are infested with myriads of the pests, which swarm in the living rooms, causing serious discomfort and damage. The ants spread rapidly, and swarm about the cupboards and on the food in the houses. They are of a foreign species, and were brought to the village in consignments of Egyptian hay. The colliery owners have engaged experts to exterminate the pests. The infested houses are dealt with in turn, the ants being dug out in colonies and their nests destroyed.

Chess-Playing Automatons.

There have been several automaton chess players, but it should not be necessary to say that they were all worked by the man behind the machine, or rather, within or under the machine. At the great fair held in the Crystal Palace, in London, in 1851, an automaton played the game beautifully; and so early as 1769 Baron Von Kempelen of Hungary invented an android that was the marvel and wonder of the time. Von Kempelen went all over Europe with his "Turk."

A Doubtful Statement.

"I have nothing whatever to say," said the eminent statesman.

"Well," replied the interviewer, "I might print that, but I am afraid the public will think I am faking."

Nine Men Killed in Racing Disaster at Syracuse

WERE MOWN DOWN

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 18.—Nine persons were killed and fourteen injured, some of them seriously, as the result of an accident during the closing miles of a fifty-mile motor race at the State Fair track yesterday afternoon, when a Knox car, driven by Lee Oldfield, leaped from the track, crashed through the fences surrounding it and plunged into the throngs that lined the other side of the speedway. Six of the nine people were killed outright, and two others were so badly injured that they died on the way to the hospital.

The list of dead may be increased, as it is believed that several of those who are numbered among the injured are so badly hurt that they cannot live.

The track was wetted down to prevent President Taft from being covered with dust as he went around the track. This was such as to cause drivers who were to compete in the 50 mile event to protest against it.

When the race was called Ralph De Palma and Bob Burman, who had been driving in previous races, refused to go on because of the condition of the track. They said the water had made it too dangerous for them to take chances. There was some delay, and during the time the track dried somewhat. The race was called, and De Palma and Burman were both entrants, along with Oldfield and six others.

The accident happened in the forty-third mile. De Palma had been leading with a lap to the good, and Oldfield was trailing him as they entered the first quarter of the beginning of the forty-third mile. The big cars traveling, it is estimated, at 75 miles an hour, were running side and side as they swung around the turn, after passing the grand stand on the first quarter. As they took the turn there was a report. The car driven by Oldfield leaped into the air. Then it swerved to the outer side and crashed through the fence. The crippled machine, beyond the control of the driver, plowed its way through hundreds of persons who had lined themselves along the fence in the hope of viewing the race.

Announcement that no one was hurt was made to the people in the grand stand. Despite this hundreds hurried to the point where the car left the track.

The runaway car had left people piled together, many of them mangled almost beyond recognition in heaps on the ground. At once nearly a score of the dead and injured were picked up. Hurry calls were sent to this city for ambulances and everyone in the city responded. Vehicles of many kinds on the fair grounds were also impressed into service as temporary ambulances. The dead and injured were taken to the emergency hospital on the fair grounds and at the same time the woman's building was turned into a hospital ward. Physicians on the grounds, those who were there as spectators as well as the regular staff, were hurried to the hospitals. Aid was volunteered by scores of physicians and there were many offers from trained nurses, who were in the vast throng in attendance. One woman tore off all of her under garments that bandages might be provided for the wounded. Her only sister was wounded, but she stuck heroically to her task and continued to provide bandages until she had no more material from which to improvise them.

For more than 20 miles, spectators declared, Oldfield had been driving his car with one of the shoes flapping. In the hope of beating out De Palma, however, his manager, instead of stopping him, it is said, urged him to increase his speed. In spite of the fact that it quickly became known that many had been killed and injured, the officials of the track refused to call off the race and the last few miles were run while hundreds thronged the track.

Oldfield, the driver, who is among the injured, is in a city hospital, and is being guarded by an officer, and as soon as he recovers will be arrested.

French Aviator Killed.

Verdun, France, Sept. 18.—Edouard Nieuport, the French aeronaut, died yesterday as a result of internal injuries received when he fell with his machine Friday. The aeroplane was caught in a gust of wind as it was rising from the ground and was capsized. Nieuport, senseless, was lifted from the wreckage and an immediate examination showed that no bones had been broken. The aeroplane, however, had struck the ground with sufficient force to be torn to pieces and it was doubted if the aviator had escaped without grave injuries.

Edward Whymper Dead.

Chamouni, France, Sept. 18.—Edward Whymper, artist, author and traveler, died here yesterday. Mr. Whymper was a noted mountain climber and was a medallist of the Royal Geographical Society. He ascended Mount Pelvoux in 1861 and the Pointe des Ecrins, the highest peak in the French Alps, in 1864. He also ascended the Matterhorn and climbed mountains and made explorations in Ecuador and in Canada, where he was one of the pioneers in making popular the ascent of the Rockies. He was born in 1840.

HUNGER ENDS HUNT

Kidnapper of Miss Gladys Price is Now a Prisoner

MADE A CONFESSION

Hannah, N.D., Sept. 17.—Run to earth after four days of the most spectacular man hunt ever witnessed in Western Canada, the kidnapper of Miss Glad Price was taken at nine o'clock yesterday morning, three miles north of Hannah, just south of the boundary. He confessed fully his part in the outrage, and waived extradition. He tells an amazing story of his criminal life, declaring that he is an escaped convict from California, where he was serving a three-year term.

The capture comes as a climax to the most persistent and most puzzling pursuit known to the Manitoba police. Early Saturday morning the fugitive appeared at the home of Farmer Timothy Hiller, north of here, three miles. He wanted food and said he was famished. He was recognized at once. The farmer fed him and at the same time sent a messenger hurriedly to Hannah. The desperado, when fed, asked for a razor, saying he wanted to shave himself. This operation he did easily, showing the tremendous nerve he still retained. He looked haggard and fatigued. After half an hour and knowing that armed men were searching for him everywhere, he coolly walked out and entered a haystack near by and went to sleep.

Deputy Sheriff May, with a posse, occupying two auto cars, hurried to the scene and surrounded the hay stack. They had their guns ready, as the conduct of the man convinced them he would never be taken alive. But he weakened. When he saw the circle of guns he threw up his hands and was brought here. He had no weapon concealed in the hay, having broken his gun. The man says his name is Davis, but he is the same character known variously in Southern Manitoba as Henry Bill Wilson, George Brown, Warren, Bill Miner and other aliases.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Four men have been arrested at Chatham on a charge of perjury in connection with their registration.

Mr. William McIntyre of Grand Valley was found dead in the river at Guelph. He had been a patient in the Homewood Sanitarium.

A spectacular fire Friday night swept the plant of the Scott-Graff Lumber Co. at Duluth, causing an estimated damage of more than $100,000, fully covered by insurance.

The rifle team from the Forty-Sixth Regiment, Canadian militia, Saturday morning defeated the team in Rochester, N.Y., by a narrow margin of three points, in their sixth annual match.

A body was found floating in Toronto bay near the ferry dock yesterday by James Collins, 19 Woodbine avenue, and is believed to be that of Walter Woodhouse, an English immigrant.

Six-year-old Hugh Ogg, who was run over by a Toronto dump cart on Wednesday, died early yesterday of a fractured skull. He was carried into a nearby store from which he was not removed till death came.

The starved bodies of two victims of the foundering of the tug Martin in a severe storm a month ago, arrived on a tug which reached the harbor yesterday. The corpses, which were found lashed to a raft, are believed to be those of the cook and fireman.

Heavy Rains In Ohio.

Columbus, O., Sept. 18.—Rains that have fallen almost continuously for the past 24 hours have put small streams in Ohio out of their banks, submerged low lands in towns and cities, washed away bridges, tieing up railroad traffic and damaged and destroyed growing crops and other farm property, doing damage in the state estimated at a half million damage.

RIOTERS SHOT DOWN.

Many Persons Are Killed In Food Riots In Vienna.

Vienna, Sept. 18.—A critical situation has arisen in Vienna, owing primarily to the high price of the necessaries of life. Riots broke out yesterday, and many persons were killed or wounded. There was a fierce exchange of bullets, and the soldiers were pelted with all sorts of missiles.

Following a huge socialistic demonstration yesterday afternoon outside the Rathhaus, held for the purpose of protesting against the high prices of food, it became necessary to call out troops to disperse the rioters. In the early clashes fifty of the rioters were wounded, and one hundred arrested.

Fifty thousand persons were present at the demonstration, and fiery speeches were made, demanding that the Government permit the importation of foreign meat and take other measures to remedy the conditions which have resulted in the prohibitory price of food products. After the meeting a large procession marched to the Parliament buildings, cheering for revolution and Portugal. Revolvers were fired in the air, and the mob began stone-throwing. The windows of many public and private buildings, restaurants, tram-cars and street lamps were smashed. Finally a cordon of dragoons and a detachment of infantry appeared on the scene. They charged the rioters and dispersed them. The mobs reassembled, however, in the suburbs, which are occupied by the working classes, where they wrecked more property. The troops were retained throughout the day guarding the imperial palace and Government buildings, and holding all approaches to the inner city.

Towards evening the rioting in the Ottakring quarter became more furious. The mob demolished all the street lamps in the main thoroughfares, plunging the streets into darkness. They erected barricades and hurled missles of various kinds on the soldiers from the upper windows of houses. The order was at length given to the troops to fire. At the first volley many rioters fell, either killed or wounded. Several of the soldiers and policemen were also injured, and 100 more of those engaged in the conflict were placed under arrest.

The agitation is the culmination of months of bitter discontent over the steady increase in the cost of not only food, but of lodging, clothing and all the necessaries of life, and unless Parliament takes action it is feared that the development of the disturbances will be very serious.

Will Be Easily Settled.

London, Sept. 18.—The Times' correspondent at Peking says the Chinese war ministry is taking a less gloomy view of the revolutionary outbreak, and believes that should the Sze-Chuen rebellion continue it will be easily suppressed when the foreign drilled troops, which are advancing from I-Chang, and other reinforcements arrive there, as the rebels are armed mainly with old matchlock guns. According to the correspondent the Government further believes that the imperial edict issued last Monday, which now should have arrived at Cheng-Tu, will have a quieting effect.

No anti-foreign incident has yet been recorded, the correspondent says, but it is feared that unless order is soon restored similar outbreaks will occur in Hupeh, Sunan and Canton, where the natives hold grievances against the Government's policy. The correspondent says in conclusion that one certain effect of the rising will be the abandonment of military movements in Tibet and near the Assam and Burmah borders.

Four Drowned.

Montreal, Sept. 18.—Four young men, said to have been under the influence of liquor, lost their lives yesterday afternoon, when the rowboat in which they were crossing the river, upset below the Victoria Bridge in the swiftest part of the St. Mary's current.

The men were: Henri Lafrancois, aged 23; Felix Livernois, aged 21; Joseph Lamarre, aged 19; Joseph Gagnon, aged 17.

Constable St. Denis saw the boat upset and gave the alarm. Two tugs steamed to the rescue, but before they arrived all four men had sank from sight. Their bodies have not been recovered.

PREMIER IS ELECTED

Sir Wilfrid's Opponent in Quebec Thinks Better of It

BIG MEETING AT JOLIETTE

Joliette, Que., Sept. 18.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived here Saturday evening at 6 o'clock and addressed a gathering of 8,000 people, who, notwithstanding that this town is a hotbed of Conservatism, cheered the Premier enthusiastically.

Here an important announcement was made by Hon. C. R. Devlin that a telegram had just been received from Quebec that the Premier had been elected by acclamation, owing to Remi Leduc's withdrawal. The crowd cheered wildly as the speaker said that it was a just tribute to the greatest of Canadian statesmen. It was also announced that J. A. Ethier's opponent in Two Mountains had dropped out.

The Premier devoted an hour's speech to an exposition of the navy bill. So clear and strong did he make his case, and so emphatic was he, that with the sweltering heat his collar wilted and the perspiration ran down his face and neck.

The Premier in Grand Mere predicted victory, and said that Liberals all over the country had no need to regret their votes, for the Liberal program had been carried out. In 1896 false prophets had urged that the churches would be destroyed and religion ruined, but the Liberal program was wide enough to shelter all creeds and classes. He appealed to Conservatives to support him, but he remarked that he preferred yet the opinions of his friends to those of his opponents.

On the reciprocity appeal, he said it was made to reason, not to sentiment, and it was an attempt on the part of the Liberals to do better for the country than ever before. It was also to the mutual advantage of the two nations.

The Premier explained the naval scheme carefully and refuted the attacks of the Nationalists, in whose naval ideas lay one salient feature, that of destroying Laurier. But it was easier to say than to do.

The assertion was absolutely false that there would be obligatory service. In the Cartier naval scheme it had existed, but had been eliminated by the present Liberal Government. The Premier went into the cost, the reason for and the future of the navy, and said it was an attempt on the part of Canada to assert her nationhood.

RESENT POSTPONEMENT.

Port Arthur Conservatives Make It an Election Cry.

Port Arthur, Sept. 18.—The Conservatives of this riding are leaving no stone unturned in their fight against James Conmee and on Saturday their campaign took the shape of a protest again the deferred polling.

The following resolution was passed: Moved by F. S. Wiley of Port Arthur, seconded by Alf. Cooper of Fort William:

That the action of the Liberal executive of the district of Thunder Bay and Rainy River, and the Liberal executive in Ottawa, in postponing the federal elections from Sept. 21 to Oct. 29, is not in the best interests of Canada; therefore, be it resolved, that we place ourselves on record as being opposed to any such pernicious and iniquitous methods being used or introduced into Canadian politics; for the reason that they are bad from a business point of view. They are detrimental to that feeling of fair play which goes so far to build up a community; they are destructive to that feeling of British fair play that builds nationality; they are calculated to foster and bring trickery; and finally any party should be above using the returning officer to postpone for the moment the defeat they see staring them in the face.

J. J. Carrick, the Conservative candidate, made a speech, saying that unfair tractics had been employed by the Conmee organization, and declaring that the Liberals must have known of the postponement for some time. "This constituency," he said, "is known all over the east and west as a hot-bed of political corruption."

Charged With Arson.

Bemidji, Minn., Sept. 18.—"Attempted arson in the third degree" reads the indictment of the grand jury returned against Dr. D. G. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake. The minimum penalty on this charge is three and one-half years.

Dr. Dumas was accused of having entered into a conspiracy to rob and burn the postoffice at Puposky on the night of June 18, when Martin Behan and Mike Davis were fired upon and Behan was captured. Dr. Dumas was arrested next day.

When Dr. Dumas was arraigned in court his attorneys asked that the prisoner be given time to prepare a plea. The request was granted.

Millionaire a Suicide.

Los Angeles, Sept. 18.—Martin Costello, 65, of Tombstone, Ariz., prominent for more than a quarter of a century in the development of mines in the southwest, and reputed to be a multi-millionaire, committed suicide here Friday night. Costello dressed himself in faultless after-dinner attire, left his family at home and rented a room in a lodging house. He folded his coat for a pillow and, lying down on the floor, sent a bullet through his heart, dying almost instantly. Despondency is believed to have been the cause.

Taft Makes It Plain That He Will Give In to Senate.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 18.—In his address here Saturday night President Taft made it plain that he was willing to make a concession to the Senate to obtain the ratification of the arbitration treaties. For the first time he has taken the position that there is no good reason, if the Senate or Congress desires, why the three Americans to be appointed on a high joint commission to pass on questions should not be confirmed by the Senate, if it is thought dangerous to trust the President to make the appointments.

Mr. Taft indicated that he would go further than this and be willing to wipe out the joint high commission entirely if need be and leave the decision as to whether a question was arbitrable or not to the decision of a board of arbitration. Still further, he would be willing to have this board pass, not only upon the merits of the question, but also upon the jurisdiction.

"Either we are in favor of arbitration of issues which are likely to lead to war, or we are not," exclaimed the President. "If we are in favor of war as the only means of settling questions of importance between countries, then let us recognize it as a principle and decline all arbitration, but if we are really in favor of arbitration as a means of avoiding war, then why should we not be willing to submit to impartial men the decision upon a question rather than to leave it to the result of a battle in which, with a fair cause, we may be beaten, or with an unjust cause we may conquer?"

Troops Are Organizing.

El Paso, Texas, Sept. 18.—Early on Saturday a body of about 100 Magonistas crossed the river near the smelter, and advanced on the western outskirts of Ciudad Juarez with the avowed intention of attacking.

The men are heavily armed and their intention, it is reported, is to destroy the tracks of the Mexican Central Railway to prevent the coming of more troops into Juarez from Chihuahua. Whether that is the real object of the movement is not known, but it is certain that the river crossing has been made and the advance is proceeding. The rural purpose is said to be an advance to the interior of the state of Chihuahua, where the Magonistas forces are reported to be organizing.

Other Liberals are reported to have crossed the line near Columbus, N.M., 60 miles west of here and are presumed to be headed for the same point in the interior.

Nine Men Killed in Racing Disaster at Syracuse

WERE MOWN DOWN

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 18.—Nine persons were killed and fourteen injured, some of them seriously, as the result of an accident during the closing miles of a fifty-mile motor race at the State Fair track yesterday afternoon, when a Knox car, driven by Lee Oldfield, leaped from the track, crashed through the fences surrounding it and plunged into the throngs that lined the other side of the speedway. Six of the nine people were killed outright, and two others were so badly injured that they died on the way to the hospital.

The list of dead may be increased, as it is believed that several of those who are numbered among the injured are so badly hurt that they cannot live.

The track was wetted down to prevent President Taft from being covered with dust as he went around the track. This was such as to cause drivers who were to compete in the 50 mile event to protest against it.

When the race was called Ralph De Palma and Bob Burman, who had been driving in previous races, refused to go on because of the condition of the track. They said the water had made it too dangerous for them to take chances. There was some delay, and during the time the track dried somewhat. The race was called, and De Palma and Burman were both entrants, along with Oldfield and six others.

The accident happened in the forty-third mile. De Palma had been leading with a lap to the good, and Oldfield was trailing him as they entered the first quarter of the beginning of the forty-third mile. The big cars traveling, it is estimated, at 75 miles an hour, were running side and side as they swung around the turn, after passing the grand stand on the first quarter. As they took the turn there was a report. The car driven by Oldfield leaped into the air. Then it swerved to the outer side and crashed through the fence. The crippled machine, beyond the control of the driver, plowed its way through hundreds of persons who had lined themselves along the fence in the hope of viewing the race.

Announcement that no one was hurt was made to the people in the grand stand. Despite this hundreds hurried to the point where the car left the track.

The runaway car had left people piled together, many of them mangled almost beyond recognition in heaps on the ground. At once nearly a score of the dead and injured were picked up. Hurry calls were sent to this city for ambulances and everyone in the city responded. Vehicles of many kinds on the fair grounds were also impressed into service as temporary ambulances. The dead and injured were taken to the emergency hospital on the fair grounds and at the same time the woman's building was turned into a hospital ward. Physicians on the grounds, those who were there as spectators as well as the regular staff, were hurried to the hospitals. Aid was volunteered by scores of physicians and there were many offers from trained nurses, who were in the vast throng in attendance. One woman tore off all of her under garments that bandages might be provided for the wounded. Her only sister was wounded, but she stuck heroically to her task and continued to provide bandages until she had no more material from which to improvise them.

For more than 25 miles, spectators declared, Oldfield had been driving his car with one of the shoes flapping. In the hope of beating out De Palma, however, his manager, instead of stopping him, it is said, urged him to increase his speed. In spite of the fact that it quickly became known that many had been killed and injured, the officials of the track refused to call off the race and the last few miles were run while hundreds thronged the track.

Oldfield, the driver, who is among the injured, is in a city hospital, and is being guarded by an officer, and as soon as he recovers will be arrested.

French Aviator Killed.

Verdun, France, Sept. 18.—Edouard Nieuport, the French aeronaut, died yesterday as a result of internal injuries received when he fell with his machine Friday. The aeroplane was caught in a gust of wind as it was rising from the ground and was capsized. Nieuport, senseless, was lifted from the wreckage and an immediate examination showed that no bones had been broken. The aeroplane, however, had struck the ground with sufficient force to be torn to pieces and it was doubted if the aviator had escaped without grave injuries.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 18.—The following officers were elected by the Fire Chiefs' Association: President, J. S. France, Woodstock; vice-president, F. M. Weixers, Soo, Ont.; secretary, L. O. Fenyck of Hamilton, H. B. Graham, Lake Superior Corp.

Edward Whymper Dead.

Chamouni, France, Sept. 18.—Edward Whymper, artist, author and traveler, died here yesterday. Mr. Whymper was a noted mountain climber and was a medallist of the Royal Geographical Society. He ascended Mount Pelvoux in 1861 and the Pointe des Ecrins, the highest peak in the French Alps, in 1864. He also ascended the Matterhorn and climbed mountains and made explorations in Ecuador and in Canada, where he was one of the pioneers in making popular the ascent of the Rockies. He was born in 1840.

HUNGER ENDS HUNT

Kidnapper of Miss Gladys Price is Now a Prisoner

MADE A CONFESSION

Hannah, N.D., Sept. 17.—Run to earth after four days of the most spectacular man hunt ever witnessed in Western Canada, the kidnapper of Miss Gladys Price was taken at nine o'clock yesterday morning, three miles north of Hannah, just south of the boundary. He confessed fully his part in the outrage, and waived extradition. He tells an amazing story of his criminal life, declaring that he is an escaped convict from California, where he was serving a [illegible] term.

The capture came as a climax to the most persistent and most puzzling pursuit known to the Manitoba police. Early Saturday morning the fugitive appeared at the home of Farmer Timothy Hiller, north of here, three miles. He wanted food and said he was famished. He was recognized at once. The farmer fed him and at the same time sent a messenger hurriedly to Hannah. The desperado, when fed, asked for a razor, saying he wanted to shave himself. This operation he did easily, showing the tremendous nerve he still retained. He looked haggard and fatigued. After half an hour and knowing that armed men were searching for him everywhere, he coolly walked out and entered a haystack near by and went to sleep.

Deputy Sheriff May, with a posse, occupying two auto cars, hurried to the scene and surrounded the hay stack. They had their guns ready, as the conduct of the man convinced them he would never be taken alive. But he weakened. When he saw the circle of guns he threw up his hands and was brought here. He had no weapon concealed in the hay, having broken his gun. The man says his name is Davis, but he is the same character known variously in Southern Manitoba as Henry Bill Wilson, George Brown, Warren, Bill Miner and other aliases.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Four men have been arrested at Chatham on a charge of perjury in connection with their registration.

Mr. William McIntyre of Grand Valley was found dead in the river at Guelph. He had been a patient in the Homewood Sanitarium.

A spectacular fire Friday night swept the plant of the Scott-Graff Lumber Co. at Duluth, causing an estimated damage of more than $100,000, fully covered by insurance.

The rifle team from the Forty-Sixth Regiment, Canadian militia, Saturday morning defeated the team in Rochester, N.Y., by a narrow margin of three points, in their sixth annual match.

A body was found floating in Toronto bay near the ferry dock yesterday by James Collins, 19 Woodbine avenue, and is believed to be that of Walter Woodhouse, an English immigrant.

Six-year-old Hugh Ogg, who was run over by a Toronto dump cart on Wednesday, died early yesterday of a fractured skull. He was carried into a nearby store from which he was not removed till death came.

The starved bodies of two victims of the foundering of the tug Martin in a severe storm a month ago, arrived on a tug which reached the harbor yesterday. The corpses, which were found lashed to a raft, are believed to be those of the cook and fireman.

Heavy Rains In Ohio.

Columbus, O., Sept. 18.—Rains that have fallen almost continuously for the past 24 hours have put small streams in Ohio out of their banks, submerged low lands in towns and cities, washed away bridges, tieing up railroad traffic and damaged and destroyed growing crops and other farm property, doing damage in the state estimated at a half million damage.

RIOTERS SHOT DOWN.

Many Persons Are Killed In Food Riots In Vienna.

Vienna, Sept. 18.—A critical situation has arisen in Vienna, owing primarily to the high price of the necessaries of life. Riots broke out yesterday, and many persons were killed or wounded. There was a fierce exchange of bullets, and the soldiers were pelted with all sorts of missiles.

Following a huge socialistic demonstration yesterday afternoon outside the Rathhaus, held for the purpose of protesting against the high prices of food, it became necessary to call out troops to disperse the rioters. In the early clashes fifty of the rioters were wounded, and one hundred arrested.

Fifty thousand persons were present at the demonstration, and fiery speeches were made, demanding that the Government permit the importation of foreign meat and take other measures to remedy the conditions which have resulted in the prohibitory price of food products. After the meeting a large procession marched to the Parliament buildings, cheering for revolution and Portugal. Revolvers were fired in the air, and the mob began stone-throwing. The windows of many public and private buildings, restaurants, tram-cars and street lamps were smashed. Finally a cordon of dragoons and a detachment of infantry appeared on the scene. They charged the rioters and dispersed them. The mobs reassembled, however, in the suburbs, which are occupied by the working classes, where they wrecked more property. The troops were retained throughout the day guarding the imperial palace and Government buildings, and holding all approaches to the inner city.

Towards evening the rioting in the Ottakring quarter became more furious. The mob demolished all the street lamps in the main thoroughfares, plunging the streets into darkness. They erected barricades and hurled missles of various kinds on the soldiers from the upper windows of houses. The order was at length given to the troops to fire. At the first volley many rioters fell, either killed or wounded. Several of the soldiers and policemen were also injured, and 100 more of those engaged in the conflict were placed under arrest.

The agitation is the culmination of months of bitter discontent over the steady increase in the cost of not only food, but of lodging, clothing and all the necessaries of life, and unless Parliament takes action it is feared that the development of the disturbances will be very serious.

Will Be Easily Settled.

London, Sept. 18.—The Times' correspondent at Peking says the Chinese war ministry is taking a less gloomy view of the revolutionary outbreak, and believes that should the Sze-Chuen rebellion continue it will be easily suppressed when the foreign drilled troops, which are advancing from I-Chang, and other reinforcements arrive there, as the rebels are armed mainly with old matchlock guns. According to the correspondent the Government further believes that the imperial edict issued last Monday, which now should have arrived at Cheng-Tu, will have a quieting effect.

No anti-foreign incident has yet been recorded, the correspondent says, but it is feared that unless order is soon restored similar outbreaks will occur in Hupeh, Sunan and Canton, where the natives hold grievances against the Government's policy. The correspondent says in conclusion that one certain effect of the rising will be the abandonment of military movements in Tibet and near the Assam and Burmah borders.

Four Drowned.

Montreal, Sept. 18.—Four young men, said to have been under the influence of liquor, lost their lives yesterday afternoon, when the rowboat in which they were crossing the river, upset below the Victoria Bridge in the swiftest part of the St. Mary's current.

The men were: Henri Lafrancois, aged 25; Felix Liverneis, aged 31; Joseph Lamarre, aged 19; Joseph Gagnon, aged 17.

Constable St. Denis saw the boat upset and gave the alarm. Two tugs steamed to the rescue, but before they arrived all four men had sunk from sight. Their bodies have not been recovered.

PREMIER IS ELECTED

Sir Wilfrid's Opponent in Quebec Thinks Better of It

BIG MEETING AT JOLIETTE

Joliette, Que., Sept. 18.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived here Saturday evening at 6 o'clock and addressed a gathering of 8,000 people, who, notwithstanding that this town is a hotbed of Conservatism, cheered the Premier enthusiastically.

Here an important announcement was made by Hon. C. R. Devlin that a telegram had just been received from Quebec that the Premier had been elected by acclamation, owing to Remi Leduc's withdrawal. The crowd cheered wildly as the speaker said that it was a just tribute to the greatest of Canadian statesmen. It was also announced that J. A. Ethier's opponent in Two Mountains had dropped out.

The Premier devoted an hour's speech to an exposition of the navy bill. So clear and strong did he make his case, and so emphatic was he, that with the sweltering heat his collar wilted and the perspiration ran down his face and neck.

The Premier in Grand Mere predicted victory, and said that Liberals all over the country had no need to regret their votes, for the Liberal program had been carried out. In 1896 false prophets had urged that the churches would be destroyed and religion ruined, but the Liberal program was wide enough to shelter all creeds and classes. He appealed to Conservatives to support him, but he remarked that he preferred yet the opinions of his friends to those of his opponents.

On the reciprocity appeal, he said it was made to reason, not to sentiment, and it was an attempt on the part of the Liberals to do better for the country than ever before. It was also to the mutual advantage of the two nations.

The Premier explained the naval scheme carefully and refuted the attacks of the Nationalists, in whose naval ideas lay one salient feature, that of destroying Laurier. But it was easier to say than to do.

The assertion was absolutely false that there would be obligatory service. In the Cartier naval scheme it had existed, but had been eliminated by the present Liberal Government. The Premier went into the cost, the reason for and the future of the navy, and said it was an attempt on the part of Canada to assert her nationhood.

RESENT POSTPONEMENT.

Port Arthur Conservatives Make It an Election Cry.

Port Arthur, Sept. 18.—The Conservatives of this riding are leaving no stone unturned in their fight against James Conmee and on Saturday their campaign took the shape of a protest again the deferred polling.

The following resolution was passed: Moved by F. S. Wiley of Port Arthur, seconded by Alf. Cooper of Fort William:

That the action of the Liberal executive of the district of Thunder Bay and Rainy River, and the Liberal executive in Ottawa, in postponing the federal elections from Sept. 21 to Oct. 12, is not in the best interests of Canada; therefore, be it resolved, that we place ourselves on record as being opposed to any such pernicious and iniquitous methods being used or introduced into Canadian politics; for the reason that they are bad from a business point of view. They are detrimental to that feeling of fair play which goes so far to build up a community; they are destructive to that feeling of British fair play that builds nationality; they are calculated to foster and bring trickery; and finally any party should be above using the returning officer to postpone for the moment the defeat they see staring them in the face.

J. J. Carrick, the Conservative candidate, made a speech, saying that unfair tactics had been employed by the Conmee organization, and declaring that the Liberals must have known of the postponement for some time. "This constituency," he said, "is known all over the past and west as a hot-bed of political corruption."

Charged With Arson.

Bemidji, Minn., Sept. 18.—"Attempted arson in the third degree" reads the indictment of the grand jury returned against Dr. D. G. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake. The minimum penalty on this charge is three and one-half years.

Dr. Dumas was accused of having entered into a conspiracy to rob and burn the postoffice at Pupesky on the night of June 15, when Martin Behan and Mike Davis were fired upon and Behan was captured. Dr. Dumas was arrested next day.

When Dr. Dumas was arraigned in court his attorneys asked that the prisoner be given time to prepare a plea. The request was granted.

LIGHT SHED ON A GREAT MYSTERY

Lord's Purpose Explained —Why God Permitted Sin and Death to Reign.

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 17.—Pastor Russell delivered two addresses here to-day under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association, Local Branch. We report the one in which he discussed the permission of evil by the Almighty. He took no particular text although, as usual, he quoted from the Bible freely throughout his discourse. He said in part:

The question of the Ages is, Why did the Almighty, originally, permit Evil—Sin? And why has an Omnipotent Ruler such as He, for more than sixty centuries, permitted Satan to continue his reign of sin and death? Leaving out entirely the unscriptural theory so prevalent, respecting a purgatory of centuries, or a torment everlasting, and considering merely the trials, suffering, sorrow and pain of humanity during the present life, how shall we account for their permission by an All-Powerful Creator, who knew the end from the beginning?

Why does He permit injustice, unrighteousness, headaches, heartaches, etc.? Why does He not deal with humanity graciously, kindly, lovingly, as a Father—as He deals with the angelic sons of God? Is it just or loving on the part of our Creator to bring forth millions of his creatures under these admittedly unfavorable conditions—beset by weaknesses and sinwardness from their birth and surrounded by others similarly weak, and beset by Satan and his minions—wicked spirits? Is it just that we should thus be in an unequal fight subjected to weaknesses and dying and imperfect conditions on account of the sin of our first parents and then, on the same account, be in danger of an eternity of torture with nine hundred and ninety-nine chances out of a thousand against us?

Our question is surely too deep for any human philosophy, and those who reject the Bible as of Divine inspiration may as well abandon all hope of an answer. God Himself, and none other, could tell us of His own secrets—why He did as He did. Truly we read, "The secret of the Lord is with them that reverence Him; and He will show them His Covenant" (Ps. xiv, 4).

The light now shining upon the Word of God shows us that the Divine purpose in connection with mankind is a progressive one, embracing Ages and Dispensations. If we ignore these, we are thereby blinded to the true answer to our question. Accepting these, it is the privilege of Bible students to-day to see the light in God's Word—to see matters from the Divine standpoint, to understand the "Mystery of God, hidden from Ages and from generations, and now made known unto His saints," namely, that in the Ages to come, all the trials and difficulties, all the sorrows and tears of the past, will be more than compensated for, and proved to be a part of the great Divine Program which will work out to the glory of God and the enlightenment and blessing of angels and men.

First of all, God chooses to have children possessed of a quality like His own—freedom of will. He therefore not only created man perfect in mind and body, but He gave to him a will, the power of choice—liberty to choose one course or another. God foresaw that giving man this liberty of will would lead to the transgression of Mother Eve, and to the disobedience of Father Adam, through his love for his wife. Adam's preference was to die with her rather than to live in harmony with God without her; for if he should disobey he would come under the sentence of death. Although Adam and the angels were perfect, they had not a perfect knowledge of their Creator, of His Love, His Wisdom, His Justice, His Power.

God, therefore, without interfering with Adam's liberty, permitted the great calamity of death to come upon him and his race. From the very beginning God premeditated the entire Plan of Salvation, as He has since been working it out; and He will completely accomplish the same ultimately through Messiah's Kingdom. The great lesson which will eventually come both to angels and men will show forth Divine Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power, fully co-ordinated. In no other way that we can imagine could this great Revelation of the Divine character be so well made. However, in order to comprehend this great Program, it is necessary that we follow strictly the Scriptural teachings, and avoid wholly the nonsense of our creeds, manufactured during the Dark Ages. We must see that "the wages of sin" is not eternal torment, nor purgatory, but death.

God allowed this reign of sin and death from Adam until Moses without so much as making an offer of terms of reconciliation and peace. Then an offer was made to the nation of Israel, and to no other nation. The offer of Israel's Law Covenant was, "He that doeth these things shall live." God, of course, knew that Israel could not keep perfectly the condition of that great and wonderful Law. The offer served as a lesson to that nation respecting the impossibility of any man's keeping the perfect Law; and the same lesson comes to us of this Gospel Dispensation. We see that what the Jew could not do we cannot do; where he failed we would fail.

Thus through the Law Covenant God taught a great lesson to Israel and to the Church; and He will ultimately teach the same lesson to the world and to angels—proving that by the deeds of the Law no fallen flesh could be recovered and re-instated in Divine favor. Four thousand years passed from man's creation, and death reigned from Moses to Christ as thoroughly as it had previously reigned from Adam to Moses. The Law Covenant did not stop the reign of sin and death. Something more than a Law is necessary. The Divine Program demands recovery from sin and death, and the Divine Program purposes this recovery.

Nearly nineteen centuries have passed since the first advent of our Lord, and still the reign of sin and death is in progress more than ever. The increase of knowledge has brought increase of sin; increase of population has brought increase of death; until to-day the world is in a terrible condition of mental, moral and physical dilapidation, and ninety thousand go into the tomb every twenty-four hours.

But a Remedy is in sight. It was foretold through the Prophets, but it began to operate in Jesus. His miraculous birth, His faithfulness and consecration unto death, His reward of resurrection and exaltation to the right hand of the Majesty on High, are all essential to man's recovery—essential to the overthrow of this reign of sin and death over our race.

We see still further developments and preparations. The Scriptures inform us that it is the Divine purpose to have a multitudinous Messiah, of which the glorious Jesus is the Head and the Church the Body.

We perceive that God for nearly nineteen centuries has been calling and drawing a special class of mankind to constitute His Elect, the Bride Class, to be joint-heirs with His Son in the Kingdom of Glory which will finally vanish sin and Satan and deliver the willing and obedient of mankind into the full liberty of the children of God—freedom from sin and death, and into the enjoyment of life everlasting and Divine favor.

This special class is required to walk by faith and not by sight—to walk in the "narrow way" of self-denial and opposition to the world, the flesh and the Adversary, in the footsteps of Jesus. Ignorance, selfishness, sin, death, all go to make up the deplorable conditions in the world and to constitute the way a narrow one in which this Elect class is required to walk, in order to demonstrate their full loyalty and obedience to the will of God—even unto death. Evidently, no such narrow way could have existed had God not permitted evil—sin. Evidently, therefore, this Elect class could not be developed and tested except by the Divine permission of sin. The very essence of their character-development is associated with the Divine promise that "all things shall work together for good to those who love God, to the called ones according to His purpose."

It seemed wise to our Heavenly Father that our Lord Jesus should learn obedience through sufferings and be tested in respect to His willingness to endure suffering for righteousness' sake. How appropriate it is that the same Father should make similar arrangements for all of the Church, whom He will receive from amongst the race of Adam to be members of the Royal Priesthood under Jesus, the High Priest of our order.

We see a necessity for this, not only as respects our own testings and a thorough proof of our own heart-loyalty to the Lord, but additionally we see a wisdom on God's part in these preparations a priesthood of the future. A priest, as recognized amongst the Jews, was not merely one who offered sacrifices, although every priest was of necessity a sacrificer. The special mission of the priestly tribe amongst the other tribes was that of instructing, helping, healing, teaching. And so God is preparing a Royal Priesthood for the Messianic Age to bless, to heal, to teach, to uplift all the willing and obedient.

The royalty of the priesthood signifies that it will no longer be a sacrificing class, for all sacrificing will be at an end. It will be a glorious class, royal, of the divine nature, and representatives with our Lord Jesus of the Divine power. As priests who will have to do with judging and chastening, healing and helping humanity, how much sympathy do we suppose that these Royal Priests should have? Are they not to be on the Divine plane of glory, "members of the Body" of Messiah?

Humanity is learning a great lesson through the permission of sin. Present experiences teach the lesson that "the way of the transgressor is hard"; "The wages of sin is death"; "The soul that sinneth it shall die." The exceeding sinfulness of sin is thus being demonstrated to humanity. Few profit by the lesson in the present life, and these are chiefly such as are called to the heavenly calling. The great majority of mankind learn to know sin, evil, only. Even God's provision for the future of mankind is obscured from the masses. "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of God's goodness should shine into their hearts."

But with the dawning of the New Dispensation of Messiah's Kingdom, the true light of the knowledge of the glory of God's character will shine everywhere. "All the blind eyes shall be opened and all the deaf ears shall be unstopped." Messiah's gracious reign, the manifestation of Divine mercy, will be for the very purpose of uplifting these poor, fallen members of our race—the masses. During the thousand years of Messiah's Kingdom, the whole world will have full opportunity for learning the great desirability of righteousness, as now, for a few years, they have the opportunity of learning the undesirability of sin.

By the close of the Mediatorial reign what wonderful lessons respecting God and evil mankind will have learned. Then will come their final testing. After full knowledge of both good and evil. Which will they choose? God urges all to choose the right and its reward of life eternal. Nevertheless, He will not coerce; He will allow each individual to take his choice, to mark out his own course, whether in harmony with or contrary to the Divine arrangements. Such, however, as come to the point of loving righteousness and hating iniquity, shall be accounted worthy of a place in the glorious Kingdom of Messiah.

God's dealings with humanity constitute a great object lesson to the angels. They perceive the inflexibility of Divine Justice—the decree of God. "Dying thou shalt die" has been unflinchingly executed against Adam and his race for six thousand years. They perceived, further, the Love of God, which passeth all understanding. They perceive the Divine provision that the Son of God should die, the Just for the unjust, to bring mankind back to full harmony with the Creator. They see the breadth of the Divine character exemplified in the great reward given to our Lord Jesus Christ for His obedience to the Father's will, even unto death—an exaltation to the divine nature, honor and immortality.

They perceive, too, a still greater manifestation of Divine goodness, in God's invitation to the Church to become joint-heirs with Christ in His glory, honor and immortality, on conditions of obedience and walking in the Master's footsteps to the extent of their ability. Who could have dreamed of such "Love Divine, all love excelling," which stooped down, not only to redeem the race, but also to invite some of the members thereof to these exceeding great and precious things which "God hath in reservation for them that love Him."

Next in order the world will receive Divine mercy, extended through Jesus, by the Father's arrangement, to Adam and every member of his race, no matter how degraded, no matter how fallen, no matter how mean. The redeeming blood has been shed, "The Just for the unjust," for the sins of the whole world.

While Divine power is manifested in all the realms of nature and creation, a still greater Divine Power was manifested in the resurrection of our Lord Jesus from the dead, after He had been deceased three days. But even the power manifested in our Lord's resurrection seems small in comparison to the further works of resurrection which the Scriptures assure us our dear Lord's death insures. It will be a still more miraculous work to resurrect the Church to glory, honor and immortality, after many of them have been in the power of death for centuries.

And still more stupendous is the resurrection work which God proposes for the world of mankind—thousands of millions to be awakened, and restored to the same conditions they formerly enjoyed — conditions, however, of imperfection, from which they will be gradually released and uplifted by Messiah.

This resurrection work for the world, which will be gradually carried forward during that thousand years, will all be accomplished by the Father's power, through the Messiah, the Mediator of the New Covenant. It will be a continuous miracle of awakening and uplifting the race.

Not until the close of the reign of Messiah and the complete uplift from sin and death of all of Adam's race willing to return to Divine favor, will the Wisdom of God be manifested in its full, clear light. Already some may see, partially, obscurely, some of God's Wisdom, but the majority are still inquiring, Why was evil permitted? These have not yet seen the Divine Wisdom in connection with the permission of evil. Ultimately this shall be clearly seen—by the saints, by the angels and by the world of mankind. Well does the Revelator exclaim:—

"Who shall not glorify Thee, O Lord! when Thy righteous dealings are made manifest!" "All nations which Thou hast made shall come and worship before Thee!" (Revelation xv, 4.) As now, "Day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge, and there is no place where the voice is not heard"—the voice of Nature, acclaiming her God—so, eventually, "Every creature in heaven and earth and under the earth shall be heard saying: "Praise, glory, honor, dominion and might be unto Him that sitteth upon the Throne, and unto the Lamb forever." All this will be the result of God's permission of the reign of evil, sin, death. The key is found in the Plan of the Ages—showing the work which each Age is to accomplish, and the grand climax, eventually, of evil.

When Blood Was Impure

The Old-fashioned Doctor Brought Relief by Bleeding

To-day We Keep the Blood Pure by Using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

The doctor of a century or two ago was accustomed to free his patient of an excess of poisoned blood by the cruel process of bleeding.

We would not stand for that heroic treatment to-day, because we understand better the work of the liver and kidneys and how to awaken them to their duty of filtering poisons from the blood.

These are the only organs of the body which filter poisons from the blood, and so cleanse the system of the foul waste matter which causes pains, aches and dangerous diseases, and there is no way you can so quickly bring the liver and kidneys into action as by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Don't imagine that a liquid medicine is necessary to purify the blood. The supreme test is, "Does the treatment awaken the action of the liver and invigorate the kidneys?" Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are unique in their combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, and on this account wonderfully successful as a means of purifying the blood.

The whole digestive and excretory system is cleansed and invigorated by this treatment. The appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, and the tired, languid feelings of a poisoned system give way to new health and vigour. Useless Sacrifice.

Duncan had eaten, with symptoms of pleasure, his first shrimp, but the mushroom that followed it proved less to his liking.

"Mother," he said, pushing the partly eaten agaric to the far edge of his plate, "I wish they hadn't killed that one."

Somewhat Abrupt.

"My pet monkey was run over, and as his next friend I want to sue."

"I can't take the case," said the lawyer.

"Don't you want business?"

"Yes, but I don't want any monkey business."

As a Liver Invigorator, Blood Purifier and General System Renovator, they are unequalled. Sick headache is invariably brought on by a sluggish liver, constipation or irregular bowels; these pills are a cure for sick headache in any form.

Pimples, eruptions and yellow skin are often caused by a lazy liver; one pill three times a week, will soon clear the complexion.—Price 25c. per box.

A FEAST IN SAMOA

Develops Into a Conglomerated Scramble For Food.

A SCENE OF WILD DISORDER.

The Native Guests Steal All the Eatables Within Reach, Which They Pass Over to Crowds of Waiting Relatives Gathered on the Outside.

The principal native foods of Samoa are bananas, breadfruit, taro, fish and pork. Bananas prepared "Fa Samoa" would not appeal very strongly to an epicurean taste, for they are gathered unripe and baked under heated stones, as all Samoan cooking is accomplished. A baked green banana favors somewhat a roasted chestnut, but not enough to cause any mistake between the two.

The breadfruit, in my estimation, appeals more strongly to a white man's taste than any other Samoan food. The large, mealy balls are baked, broken open and eaten, usually with one or other of the two Samoan sauces palusami and fai-ai. Palusami is made from the young shoots of the taro plant, cocoanut milk and sea water. Fai-ai is evaporated cocoanut milk. The milk is poured into a leaf, the ends and edges tied at the top, and it is then baked until the water evaporates, leaving a thick cream, which is very rich and quite palatable. Taro is the root or bulb of a plant which is an exact counterpart of what we call "elephant ear" in the United States and is somewhat like a yam, but inclined to be stringy or shrubby. The inside of a baked taro bulb is very solid and of a bluish tint.

The fish needs no explanation.

Pork is the supreme delicacy, according to the Samoan mind, and it is always eaten in a half cooked state. Since a Samoan will sell his birthright for a piece of pig, one-half grown is worth $20 or $40 and will always find a market; therefore it is easily seen that pork can be afforded only on holiday occasions. The Samoan method of killing a pig is unique. The animal's feet are tied together, and it is laid upon its back. Then two large, heavy natives place a 2 by 4 scantling across its neck, after which they seat themselves one on each end of the scantling.

As the unfortunate pig is slowly strangled to death its heartless executioners calmly talk politics. The reason for strangulation in putting a hog to death is simply this: A pig is held in such high esteem that it breaks the Samoan heart to see even the blood being wasted. The blood is used in conjunction with the fatty parts of the entrails and when baked forms some kind of pudding. I have never tasted this kind of pudding myself, but a Samoan will tell you that it is simply delicious, and I am willing to take his word for it. Even the cleaned entrails are utilized, and right here in Samoa we can again bring into use the Chicago stockyard phrase that "only the squeal is lost."

I well remember the first and only Samoan feast I ever had the pleasure of attending. I received an invitation one day from a Samoan whose friendship I had formed to attend a feast the following night which he was giving to dedicate his new home. There were several white men present and about fifty natives. We were arranged in two rows facing each other, sitting cross legged, and in front of each was a small mat on which was a profusion of food, including a lupe (or pigeon), a piece of pork (palusami), taro (breadfruit)—in fact, everything which goes to make a Samoan feast—all to be washed down with cocoanut milk. I had taken two or three mouthfuls of the pigeon when I noticed that there was a ring of natives each with a basket waiting impatiently just outside the house. As I turned to the man on my right for the purpose of asking why these people were assembled outside I sensed a movement in close proximity on my left. Turning quickly around, I was just in time to catch a farewell glimpse of my fine supper being dumped bodily into one of those waiting baskets. I saw at once the reason for that overflow meeting outside. The woman who sat next to me had taken a favorable opportunity when my back was turned to pick up my mat and dispose of my meal to her waiting relative, who had attended the overflow meeting with a basket.

Then ensued a conglomerated scramble, and the feast was turned into a scene of wild disorder as each native strove to outdo his neighbor in securing the most food to send home. The strategy, flank movements and tact that they exhibited under the inspiring grab game so far provoked my comedy

MARRIAGE MADE EASY.

The Methods of the Modern Matrimonial Agent.

To the unthinking mind it would seem a strange proposition that London is the modern Gretna Green; but just as in the first half of the nineteenth century the Border village offered facilities for easily tying the matrimonial knot, so now scores of would-be brides and bridegrooms look with longing eyes on the great metropolis.

Before the passing of what is known as Lord Brougham's Act in 1856, couples who desired to be speedily married often found the English law far too slow or difficult for them.

In order to expedite matters a hasty journey to the Border, and an equally hasty interview with the historic blacksmith, was arranged—with results, let us hope, satisfactory to all the parties concerned.

But, alas! the stern Act of Parliament above referred to put an end to all such swift alliances, and marriage came to be treated in the slower and more stately manner befitting such a solemn ceremony.

Yet it is a curious fact, just as our ancestors hurried to Gretna Green, so do many residents in foreign lands regard London at the present day. To their anxious minds the great metropolis is the Mecca to which all who wish marriage made easy should undertake a speedy pilgrimage.

There are (1) those who wish to avoid the local publicity attendant on marriage in their own district, (2) those who, for a very good reason—often the absence of the very necessary documents — find it practically impossible to be married in their own country, and (3) those who are, through some legal regulation, debarred from marrying at all in the state to which they owe allegiance.

Of course, the latter class is by far the most numerous, and provides the ever-watchful London newspaper reporter with many a modern-day romance.

They also provide a number of more or less reputable "matrimonial agencies" with something more solid—in the shape of fees for arranging the binding together in legal ties of many an anxious couple of foreign origin. Thus there has arisen in recent years a widely-spread and regularly-organized system of circumventing the law.

Advertisements can always be met in certain foreign newspapers, calling attention to the advantages offered by the English marriage laws. The address of the marriage-broker's agent is given, and, when this gentleman is applied to, he most readily quotes inclusive fees, and guarantees to arrange matters so that the proposed marriage may be carried through in a perfectly binding manner.—Tit-Bits.

Fighting the Hatpin.

Another step has been taken in Prussia against the use of long hatpins, according to the Berlin correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph. The railway administration of Saarbrucken has given orders to its officials that women whose headdresses are transfixed by those weapons are to be requested to remove them, and if they decline they shall be prevented from traveling by trains and be called upon to leave the stations. If they refuse sequiescence they will render themselves liable to a fine. "Possibly the Prussian official is the only one in the world who could carry out these instructions without feelings of embarrassment," says Pall Mall Gazette.

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

A JACK OF ALL TRADES.

Monopoly Will Never Kill England's Postmaster General.

The British postmaster general is what Londoners call a universal provider, a regular department store of public functions.

He will insure your life, give you a little bank to hoard your pennies in, take care of your savings, sell you an annuity, a postal order or a foreign draft, invest your spare capital in a nice little government bond and pay a weekly pension to your aged mother or aunt.

He carries letters and other mail matter, transmits telegrams, cablegrams and wireless messages, maintains an enormous staff of messenger boys and conducts an express company business for every sort of parcel, from a halfpenny packet up to shipments of eggs, dressed poultry and fresh fish.

He collects all the worn copper coins for the British treasury. He has factories for making his supplies and an electric central station of his own in London for lighting his offices, sending the current through his cable ducts. He will sell you a license for a dog, a carriage, a motorcar or a family coat of arms, or he will put in your telephone and take care of your bells.

At a dinner the other night the postmaster general confessed that he sometimes doubted whether he had any human personality at all. When he thought of his own functions, he said, he was appalled by them. In his official capacity he is responsible for more property than anybody else in the United Kingdom, employs far more people than any individual or corporation, prosecutes more malefactors every day than the public prosecutor and sends out every week more apologies for himself and explanations of his actions than all the rest of the British population combined.—Telephone Review.

LITTLE SORREL.

The Favorite Battle Charger of Stonewall Jackson.

Among the many battle steeds ridden during the war between the states by the celebrated Confederate Corps Commander Stonewall Jackson of Lee's army his favorite was a charger affectionately named Little Sorrel by the Second corps of the Army of Virginia. He was about fifteen hands and, as General Longstreet said to the writer, strongly resembled, except in color, President Zachary Taylor's Old Whitey of the Mexican war. Jackson rode him at Bull Run, Winchester, Cedar Mountain, Manassas, Antietam, Fredericksburg and in many other battlefields. He mounted Little Sorrel for the last time at Chancellorsville May 2, 1863, and in the battle was mortally wounded by his own men and died a week later.

General Bradley T. Johnson of Maryland in a letter to the present writer remarks: "Jackson was an ungainly horseman, and when he rode by the troops Little Sorrel would strike off on a run. The general would pull off his cap and ride bareheaded at full speed past miles of shouting Confederates. The saying was when you heard that yell before or behind you on the march, 'There goes old Jack on a rabbit.' When the soldiers started a rabbit they'd scare him to death with yelling."

Little Sorrel died at the Soldiers' home near Richmond at the age of thirty-six years and is now to be seen, like Sheridan's Winchester, carefully preserved in a glass case after being prepared by a skillful taxidermist at Lexington, Va.—James Grant Wilson in S. P. C. A. Bulletin.

Sensitive Meredith.

The house at 17 Red Lion square, W. C., London, was once occupied by William Morris, Burne-Jones and Dante Gabriel Rossetti. George Meredith in the days of his extremest penury joined with those other three young men in their bachelor establishment. The state of his boots, we are told by one of the biographers, at length aroused the solicitude of his fellow tenants, who one night stealthily replaced them by a new pair. But Meredith was so much piqued by what was meant in all kindness that he withdrew from the fellowship the next day.—London News.

A Political Placard.

John B. Thompson of Kentucky, who served in both houses of congress, was a master of the art of ridicule. Here is his characterization of the contempt in which party platforms are held after elections:

"The two or three last platform presidents we have had when they got in the car of state and safely seated all around everywhere you could see, 'Do not stand on the platform when the cars are in motion.'"—McClure's Magazine.

PRINCE ALBERT HAS KILLED HIS STAG

Head of the Royal Game Will Be Added to Collection Now at Balmoral.

AMERICANS ARE LIVELY

Castles Are Being Occupied by Tenants Well Known on This Side of the Atlantic.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

KING GEORGE, who enjoyed excellent sport with the grouse at May Hall last week, where he was entertained by The Mackintosh and Mrs. Mackintosh, is now at Tulchan Lodge, where Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sassoon had invited a small party, including Lord Derby, Lord Herbert Vane-Tempest and Lord and Lady Wyverton. While at Tulchan the King occupied the private royal flat which Mr. Sassoon had arranged for the late King Edward, the rooms of which command a splendid view.

The King's host has a parchment document in his library at the lodge, in which his guest, if so disposed, can read how he traces his descent in a direct line from the fifty-sixth son of King David. It is said that the information proved in this parchment has cost Mr. Sassoon something like ten thousand pounds to acquire.

Queen Mary came up to London from May Hall in order to take leave of Queen Alexandra, the Empress Marie and Princess Victoria before their departure for Abroad, and afterward returned to the north to join the King.

By a remarkable coincidence Prince Albert shot his first stag on the moor above Balmoral, upon the anniversary of the Prince of Wales' performing a similar feat last year. The head will be mounted in due course and placed in the gunroom at the royal residence, where a unique collection of heads is to be seen. This includes those of the first stags shot by each of the sons of the late Queen Victoria, the present King, the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale, the Prince of Wales and, now, Prince Albert.

PRINCE A GOOD SHOT.

Under each head is affixed a plate giving the name of the young shot, the date and the moor where the game was brought down. Prince Albert, it is stated, possesses a straight eye, and though it is only quite recently that he was first permitted to handle a rifle he gives every promise of becoming a first class shot. He will be the King's companion when the latter commences to shoot over Balmoral and neighboring moors.

The next few weeks in Scotland will be exceedingly gay, and already many visits are being made up for the meetings that succeed one another so rapidly [illegible] September. The King and Queen [illegible] Deeside very full when they arrive at Balmoral, for, besides the Duke of Fife and his family at Mar Lodge, Aboyne, and Mrs. Beatty are again in residence at Invercauld, and Princess Alexis Dolgorouki is preparing to entertain a great deal at Mraemar Castle.

Both Monaltrie and Drummond castles are occupied by American tenants, and Balmoral is let to Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin, who, with Lord and Lady Craven, will have a large party staying with them for the Northern meeting at Inverness.

Mr. Frederick Townsend Martin gave his annual entertainment to about seven hundred of Glen Urquhart to-day.

Countess Laszlo Szechenyi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, is also expected in Scotland soon, where she will pay a series of visits to her own compatriots who have homes there.

MR. WHITNEY'S TOUR.

Mr. Henry Payne Whitney, who came here from New York with a party of friends for the purpose of getting a few days' grouse shooting, was accompanied by Mrs. Whitney and her two children, Mr. Joseph Harriman and Mr. Payne Thompson. The party occupied specially fitted private suites during the voyage from New York. The sitting rooms were decorated daily with choice flowers, for which Mrs. Whitney paid $200 before leaving New York.

During the early part of the voyage the party kept to their own rooms, but subsequently they dined in the saloon with the other passengers. Mrs. Whitney wore magnificent dresses on the voyage, and on one occasion a diamond necklace worth $5,000, a wedding gift from her husband.

The party, accompanied by an enormous amount of baggage, left London in special saloons attached to the 11:30 A. M. east coast express as far as York, where they were by special train to Middleton-in-Teesdale.

Lord and Lady Algernon Gordon Lennox, who are celebrating their silver wedding, are spending the autumn at Broughton Tower, a beautiful old place near Banbury. Though Lady Algernon's health is still far from robust, they are having from time to time a few friends to stay with them. Some years ago Lady Algernon started at Broughton a factory for bottling fruit and making jam. The greatest care is taken to preserve the shape and the natural color of the fruit throughout and every modern appliance for stoning, peeling, &c., is in use. This factory gives employment to numbers of girls and women in the neighborhood.

Lady Algernon has decided that she can no longer take an active part in her fruit bottling industry, but she has many other interests in life, and an especial fondness for that fashionable little dog, the Pekingese, of which she was one of the first importers into England.

He Strives to Please.

Pupil—Photographer—What makes you look such a woebegone expression?

Photographer—My wife's away. I want to send her a telegram.

Women of England Follow the Boy Scout Movement and Organize Themselves Into Military Bodies

THE CAMP KITCHEN.

Here are the military women of England in the field. The photographs presented show that these mothers and sisters of the Boy Scouts are not to be outdone by their children when it comes to a matter of home defence. Therefore they have organized into service departments and are taking the entire matter very seriously. Mrs. Stobart, the commandant of the particular organization that allowed itself to be photographed, is shown in the act of issuing her orders for the day to her chief aide de camp, while in other groups are seen those who attended to the subsistence and another small party at work on a breakfast of the regulation ham and eggs—and probably marmalade.

TON OF OIL EQUAL TO THREE OF COAL

New Fuel Expected to Work Wonders in Steamship Being Constructed on Clyde.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

So rapid has been the progress made on the Clyde at Whiteinch with the construction of a steamship of 5,000 tons burden driven by oil fuel, built for the Danish East Asiatic Company, Copenhagen, that it is now expected she will be running demonstration trials on the Clyde before the end of the year.

The most serious of the problems involved by the peculiar propelling machinery has been solved. One of the sixteen inch cylinders has been in operation with satisfactory results in the workshop for some weeks, and it only remains to make the others on the same model.

The vessel is designed for a speed of twelve knots, and it is believed she will run as far on 100 tons of oil as she would on 300 tons of coal, while the space usually occupied by the bunkers will be filled with cargo. There will be no firemen, funnels, smoke, ashes or dirt, and the engines can be started in five minutes, as compared with fifteen hours required to raise steam with boilers.

The only other vessel of the type in course of construction in the United Kingdom is being built at Middlesborough for a shipping company of which Lord Furness is chairman. She is a vessel of 2,000 tons and will be engaged in the North Atlantic trade. If the experiment is successful other oil propelled craft will be ordered for the same concern.

It is on the Continent, however, that most of the enterprise in connection with the application of oil engines to ocean going vessels is centred. Two are in hand for the Hamburg-American line—one of 6,500 tons, on the Weser, and another of 5,500 tons, on the Elbe. The German Levant line and the Hamburg-South American Company have also motor vessels on order, while the other day the German-American Petroleum Company placed a contract with a firm in Kiel for two petroleum tank ships with a carrying capacity of 7,900 tons each.

These cargo vessels of moderate size will be followed by passenger motor craft of large dimensions, while the speed of transatlantic travel will be considerably increased.

SAILORS WANT TO REST ON SUNDAYS

British Bluejackets Favor Plan Now in Force in the American Navy.

IS UNNECESSARY LABOR

Morning Inspection by Captain and Staff Entails Work Which Might Easily Be Avoided.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

THE order relating to the observance of Sunday in the United States navy, which was issued by Secretary Meyer two days before his departure for Europe, has just been received here, and, coming in the midst of a discussion about the extent and character of Sunday labor on board His Majesty's ships, it has attracted a good deal of attention.

The order relating to the observance of Sunday in the United States navy, which was issued by Secretary Meyer two days before his departure for Europe, has just been received here, and, coming in the midst of a discussion about the extent and character of Sunday labor on board His Majesty's ships, it has attracted a good deal of attention.

For some time there has been a feeling—not confined to the men, but shared to some extent by the officers as well—that the work carried out on board British war ships on Sundays is unnecessarily excessive, and every now and again some little incident will happen which adds to the usual amount of work, when the open discontent finds expression in letters to the newspapers.

Cause of New Order.

Mr. Meyer's new order, which is said to have had its origin in the fact that a certain vessel coaled on a Sunday when such an operation was not absolutely necessary, illustrates the difference in the methods of the British and American services as regards Sunday labor. In America Sunday inspections of war ships and their crews have been discontinued since September, 1909, and the regulations state that no work is to be done that does not appear to be necessary for the efficiency of the service. If, therefore unnecessary work is performed on a Sunday the fault is not that of the system but of the commanding or other responsible officer of the vessel.

In England, on the other hand, many officers would allow the bluejackets to do less work and to have more time to themselves, but they are bound by time-honored custom and routine. In less strenuous times such routine may have been admirable, but it has come to be oppressive to officers and men engaged almost continuously for six days a week in arduous training for war.

The principal cause of criticism is the Sunday morning inspection of the ship and her crew by the captain, accompanied by the various responsible officers, which involves a considerable amount of cleaning and polishing. Although a vessel is thoroughly cleaned on Saturday, the men have to be turned out on the following morning almost as early as on week days, in order that everything may be spick and span when the captain goes his rounds before church.

Hard Work in Morning.

Moreover, the work does not end at merely making the vessel clean and tidy. There is the natural desire to excel, and every man is anxious for his particular spot or corner to outshine the others and earn for him commendation from his superiors. The result is that an enormous amount of polishing and furbishing is crowded into the early hours of Sunday, and men frequently go without breakfast sooner than be suspected of slackness. Cleaning finished, they must put themselves in the best order before going to divisions.

Then for the next hour or two comes the long drawn out inspection by the captain and his officers. No one denies that this inspection is necessary and expedient for the orderly working of the ship, but there would seem to be no reason why it could not be transferred to Thursday or some other day of the week. A fruitful source of stress and irritation would thereby be removed, and the ship's company would have more time to themselves for rest or recreation.

Church Service Details Relief.

Two minor grievances in regard to Sunday have also been discussed. The first concerns the amount of boat work between ships which do not all carry chaplains and the landing and bringing off again of men who belong to religious bodies other than the Established Church. In this respect, however, there should be no cause of complaint if the regulations are carried out, as it is provided that officers in charge of ships carrying Roman Catholics or men of other denominations are to be of the same denomination wherever practicable.

As to the boat work between ships for church, this cannot be avoided entirely, as not every ship carries a chaplain, and presumably the men would prefer to go on board another vessel to a service conducted by a duly appointed minister than remain to a service conducted by the captain or commander of their own vessel, even if such were held.

Lastly, there is the matter of Sunday evening work brought about by preparation for coaling or going to sea early on Monday morning. This is a matter resting with the admiral or captain, and while in case of emergency there could not be, nor would there be, any cause for complaint, if such a practice becomes frequent it involves the employment of almost all hands remaining on board, and interferes with the Sunday evening service.

But neither boat work nor evening labor causes so much friction and discontent as the morning inspection, and while many would look on the abolition of this time-honored institution with regret, the comfort and contentment of the personnel [illegible] primary consideration.

LONDON TALKS OF BETTER MANNERS

But This Is Only One of the Effects of the Silly Season That Has Dawned.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

WHAT with "mystery ships" being seized and renewed interest in paper bag-cookery, the silly season seems to be on us, and now comes an English philosopher with the statement that a new spirit of courtesy is abroad among Englishmen as a result of 1911's record hot wave.

"John Bull," says the philosopher, "has become more Continental in his ideas, manners and dress, as a result of continuous sunshine."

Sunshine, he adds, has an enormous influence upon character. As is generally known, the great difference in temperament between the Spaniard and the Swede is almost entirely due to the influence of the sun.

"Northern races—and Great Britain is, of course, included among them—enjoy very little sun, on the whole," he goes on. "They are more used to leaden skies and dull, rainy weather. In the Far North they are subjected to rigorous cold for months on end.

"Such weather conditions produce in the long run men and women of a hardy, stubborn, self-contained type. They are somewhat melancholy, it may be, but cool-headed, calculating and business-like.

"Countries with little sunshine produce the thinkers and the fighters. I might even say that they breed the highest type of man to be found in the world."

A physician, commenting on the effect of sunshine upon the Englishman, said:—

"Young men are more gallant and theatrical in their attentions to the opposite sex. One young fellow I know, previously quiet and retiring, now bows and even kisses the hands of his lady acquaintances.

"Men generally appear to have lost the 'starchy' respectability which they previously had. In the matter of clothes they are more free and easy, while their manners have greatly improved.

"The dining out of doors habit is also on the increase, while the evening promenade is becoming a general thing with Londoners."

But the revolution in habits is not so serious as the statement foregoing might lead one to believe. The average Englishman still clings to lukewarm beer and tepid whiskey and water. So fear not, the Kingdom is safe.

Treatment.

Puck:—"Hum, yes," said His Majesty, "I'm languid—out of sorts. Nothing seems to interest me."

"In that case," said the court physician, "I should recommend an imbroglio."

Then the court clouds began to get busy and the diplomats hunted up their umbrellas.

"Now," said the monarch, "I feel like a fighting cock. Good old family physician."

Deplores Recent Anti-Jew Riots

The Jewish World, of London, Seeks a Cause for the Outbreaks in Wales.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

JEWS are much perturbed by the recent riots against their brethren in South Wales, on which subject the Jewish World does some plain speaking:—

"Our memory," it says, "goes back in vain in search of a parallel for such anti-Jewish excesses in modern England. We can only compare the terrible events of the attacks made upon our people in this country in the time of the Crusaders, or, perhaps more appropriately, to the programmes with which the pages of Russia's latter day history have been besmirched.

"It has been stated that among the causes of the outbreaks was the attitude of the Jewish property owners in that district, who, it is alleged, act toward their tenants with particular harshness and have evicted some of them in trying circumstances. We are going to be quite frank in this matter. We have made inquiries from those whose knowledge of the facts cannot be questioned, and we have ascertained that, while these charges are baseless as applied to the general body of the local community, or to any considerable part of it, there is one particular quarter in which, unfortunately, they can be only too well substantiated.

"Hence it would appear that some handle at any rate was provided for the demonstration of anti-Jewish sentiment. We are convinced, of course, that the main motive of the wreckers was the lust for plunder, otherwise personal violence would surely have been offered,

"But behind it, and providing both a direction and a ready cause of inflammation of the savagery of the mob, was an anti-Semitic feeling for which there was some slight show of pretext. Two warnings emerge clearly enough from this consideration of the facts—first, that among the dregs of the populace the old cry of 'Down with the Jews!' has not yet lost its potency even in England, and is likely to be revived on the least provocation, and, second, that the Jewish community is popularly judged by its worst members, and therefore it behooves us to deal drastically with those in our midst who constitute a distinct danger to Jewry at large."

His Desire.

Puck:—"Your first wife wished upon you," said the jailer to his evangelical prisoner.

"Dat bein' de case, boss," replied Brother Spradley, who was under durance vile on the charge of bigamy, "I jy'o' has any pity for a po' man—yo' been married three times yo'self, isn't yo', boss?—well, den, if yo' has any pity for a miserable fellah yo' passon, even if he is cuhsed, fo' de Lawd's sake, sah, infawm de lady dat I'm in. Tell her I isn't in, and tell hit loud and constant, if yo' please, sah."

Too Big.

Pupil—Mary—Why doesn't she bury her past, and begin all over again?

Carrie—She can't afford to, her's a whole mausoleum.

AMERICAN OYSTER TO GET A CHANCE

Management of the Hotel Cecil Will Serve the Bivalve in New Winter Garden.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

THERE is to be a winter garden in London. The management of the Hotel Cecil, tired of looking at wasted space valued at £37 a front foot in the great courtyard, has determined to utilise it by erecting a glass covered pavilion which will serve as a winter garden when the cold weather is with us and that can be transformed into a summer garden when hot weather arrives.

In the centre of the pavilion a band will discourse music during the afternoon and evening; meals will be served à la carte, there will be real Pilsener and Munich beers on draught, and—this will interest Americans—the management will signalise the opening by placing American oysters and other American delicacies that appeal to the palates of our overseas cousins on the bill of fare.

In winter the structure, which will be converted into a veritable palm garden, will be made comfortable by an American steam heating plant; in summer the air will be cooled by an American ventilating system.

Work is already under way, and it is expected that this inviting annex to the Cecil will be opened early in February.

ONE AND NINEPENCE THE PRINCE'S PAY

Heir to the British Throne Is at Work as a Midshipman Aboard the Hindustan.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

THE PRINCE OF WALES, who joined the battle ship Hindustan on Monday, August 7, is living the ordinary life of a midshipman and seems to be enjoying his naval training. The Hindustan anchored successively at Portland, Plymouth and Torbay, and the Prince—who goes ashore frequently with Commander Campbell, the commander of the vessel, who is also the Prince's governor—has inspected Portland Prison, the quarries and officers' playing fields at Portland, and the battle ship Centurion and the cruiser Lion, approaching completion at Devonport.

When ashore at Weymouth the Prince strolled on the promenade with the other officers, dressed in flannels, and was quite unrecognised. His pay is at the customary rate of one shilling and ninepence a day. He takes his meals with the other midshipmen and, with them, has quickly learned "to obey in silence and on the run."

The day's work of the Prince includes the supervision of one of the Hindustan's guns, and he must see that it is kept clean and in thorough order. He also has to take his "trick" in a watch, write up his daily log and go through gunnery and torpedo drills.

The royal middy is in daily touch with the seamen of the Hindustan and knows the Christian name and surname of each member of his division. The Prince will have a week or two of shooting with the King at Balmoral in October before his Majesty leaves for India.

London's Merchants Point to the More Time for Business in Rival Countries.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

ENGLISH merchants, tiring of interminable holidays, are suggesting that the time devoted to business in the city should be extended. Those who advocate this new idea declare that in Germany and America, England's great rivals, business men and their employes work longer hours, and to this they attribute the success of Britain's trade rivals.

Mr. H. Sanders, the senior member of a big London exporting house, advocated the German and American system.

"With too few exceptions," he said, "the business of the city, as well as of the nation, starts a full hour too late, and the notion of too many city men that serious work ends on Friday completes the mischief."

Mr. Sanders said he would have no objection to the short hours system if the clerks used some of their leisure time for study, with a view to equipping themselves the better for their work, but he thought few of them did this.

Mr. R. T. Rowntree, secretary of the London Clerks' Association, said that ninety-five per cent of the clerks in London worked from nine to six, and that that is quite long enough. Mr. Rowntree says he is sorry he has to agree with Mr. Sanders regarding the neglect of the English clerk to study during his leisure time.

"In spite of the good showing made by the returns as to the number of students attending evening classes in London," said Mr. Rowntree, "I know that a very large proportion of clerks in London make no effort whatever to add to their efficiency by study and the acquisition of languages and other accomplishments.

"The German clerk who comes over here is a very different person. All the time he is here he is studying and learning all he can about our business methods, and he knows more about a business in which he is engaged at the end of six months than does many an English clerk who has worked with the firm for years."

GYPSY BARONS ARE TO VISIT ENGLAND

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

FIFTY picturesque Austrian gypsies soon will pass through England on their way to America. The captain and lieutenant have arrived in London on a reconnoitring expedition. Both scouts, or pathfinders, were dressed in the gorgeous scarlet and silver garb of the Galician gypsies and attracted marked attention.

Inquiry at the Austro-Hungarian consulate showed that when the captain and his lieutenant have obtained the necessary legal permits to travel through England to Liverpool the forty-eight others of the party, now remaining in Magdeburg, Germany, will come to England.

An official of the consulate stated that both the captain and his lieutenant are adept linguists, speaking five or six languages fluently.

They are coppersmiths and horse dealers. They are not poor, belonging as they do to that category known in Germany as "Gypsy Barons." According to their passports, they left Galicia fifteen years ago, so that it has taken them a little under a sixth of a century to cover ground which might have been traversed in the train in two days.

DRANK 218,000,000 TYPHOID BACILLI

Amazing Test of Thames Water Is Made by Dr. Houston, Who Still Lives.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

A REMARKABLE and daring experiment by Dr. Houston, director of water examination for the Metropolitan Water Board, during which he drank raw water from the Thames containing typhoid bacilli, is described in a report just issued.

Some time ago experiments were made which proved that "cultivated" strains of the microbe possessed considerable vitality, but tests with bacilli taken direct from a typhoid case showed that they were not quite so hardy when they had grown among their natural surroundings.

The "wild" microbe is not always easy to obtain, but Dr. Houston was able, for the purposes of his experiment, to take his supply from a person who had suffered from typhoid and had infected no fewer than forty persons.

The bacilli perished very rapidly when placed in samples of raw Thames water, but Dr. Houston regarded the result, although satisfactory, as a negative one, and decided on a more positive test. Accordingly, he drank half a pint of the infected water. This had no ill effect, although the water had contained more than 218,000,000 typhoid bacilli.

MORE PAY FOR THE LONDON "BOBBIES"

Now Somebody Suggests That the Compensation of Army Officers Be Increased.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.

EVERY "Bobby" in this city is wearing the smile that won't come off, and the reason therefor is contained in the announcement that the Home Secretary, on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Police, has decided to grant an increase of pay of one shilling and sixpence a week to constables, two shillings to sergeants, and in like proportion to the higher ranks.

No one will grudge the increase to "Bobby," whose lot, as every one knows, is not always a happy one, but who nevertheless is an example of courtesy and kindness to the policemen of all other cities of the world.

Perhaps, now that the government has given a measure of justice to the police some one may take up the question of increasing the pay of army officers, who, according to one who has grown gray in the service, are still receiving the same compensation that was allowed when George the Third was King and when a pound had the purchasing power of four guineas to-day.

"I get the same allowance for heat and light," said this officer, "that was given a century ago—fourpence a day—and in winter I manage to get both by purchasing a fourpenny cigar and lighting it when I turn in for the night."

GOOD ADVICE

And How a Young Man Profited by It

By HELEN MERRIWEATHER

Copyright by American Press Association. 1911.

Tom Flint was a telegraph operator on nothing a year. That means Tom knew how to work a telegraph instrument, but had no position. Worse yet, Tom was in love with Sallie Erskine, and on account of his poverty marriage was out of the question. If there can be anything still worse than this it was that Sallie was as much in love with Tom as he was with her, so there were two instead of one to suffer.

One day while looking for work Tom went into a railroad office in Kansas City, where he lived, and told his story to the superintendent. All the world loves a lover, and the official looked over a list to discover if there were any vacancies.

"There's only one place I can give you," he said, "and that is station agent at W., the most desolate stop on the line, flat as a pancake all around and not a tree in sight. The salary is only $50 a month. But there is a little house the agent may live in without paying any rent."

Tom sighed.

"See here, young man," continued the superintendent, "my advice to all persons in your condition is to make a beginning. A chip on a bank never moves. But let a boy throw it into a puddle. Some day it rains, the chip is washed into a runnel; the runnel takes it to a creek; the creek carries it to the river. Maybe it gets stranded on the way. Never mind; it will rain again, and another flood will start it on."

Tom was impressed with this, and, going to Sallie, he told her of the offer and what the superintendent had said. She shuddered, but agreed that if Tom would take the position she would go to W. with him.

They found the station even more desolate than had been described. The house furnished them by the company was a dilapidated farmhouse nearly a mile from the station. They would have preferred the latter to live in, but it was a one story building only fitted for railway use. Tom was an ingenious fellow and at once took steps to bring the house and station nearer together by means of the telegraph. He had no extra apparatus and knew that if he asked the company to send him one for his and his wife's benefit he would get snubbed. So he invented a reason. He wrote the superintendent that the station, being a long distance from those on either side, afforded excellent opportunity for train robbers to make it a base of operations.

They might easily capture it and use it and the telegraph as they saw fit, but if he had a wire stretched to his house he might communicate with his wife and she could send out a warning.

The superintendent referred Tom's letter to the fourth vice president, who had the disposing of such requisitions at his disposal, and his letter was returned with the following indorsement:

Disallowed. Captured station agents are not permitted to send messages to any one. They are always suppressed.

The superintendent, however, who had a strategic eye, saw that Tom's suggestion was a good one and commended him for it, but the superintendent was powerless in the department of the fourth vice president.

This agreement with him frightened both Tom and his wife, and they saved enough money from his salary to order the apparatus at their own expense. Tom put it in and placed several keys in different positions to be used without being observed.

A year elapsed, during which Tom and Sallie used the telegraph line between house and station for messages very different from those of life and death. For awhile they were simply "Dinner is nearly ready, dear;" "All right; I'll be with you in ten minutes," or "I'm awful lonely; can't you come home for awhile before No. 9 arrives?" "Yes, sweetheart, I will." But after awhile it was "Oh, dearie, the baby has taken four steps all by his own self." After that the messages flying between them were principally about infantile matters.

But Tom's strategic intuition, which he had not been conscious of as such, at last proved correct. One night he was at the station waiting for the 10:15 train to pass, after which he might go home to sleep till 6 in the morning. He was sitting before his telegraph instrument trying to keep awake when suddenly there appeared a masked face at the window opposite him and a revolver pointed at his head. His hands were in his pockets, of which he could see the man covering him took cognizance and considered satisfactory, since to put a finger on the telegraph key Tom would need to withdraw them.

But here is where Tom's foresight came in. He had arranged a key on the floor under the table. He at once called Sallie. She was not used to getting messages at night, since Tom did not like to awaken her if she was asleep. So, suspecting something wrong, she at once put out her hand to a stand beside the bed and answered the call. Instantly Tom replied:

"Robbers!"

Since Tom's original reason for connecting the house and the station by wire had grown from a desire to keep his wife from loneliness to a real provision against robbers, Sallie had long possessed instructions what to do in case she received such a message. This one was so unexpected that she thought for a moment that Tom was instituting a trial practice, but she knew he would not do that and at once called the station on either side of W., giving Tom's message. Replies came at once, assuring her that assistance would be sent her husband as soon as possible. Then she heard a message stopping the 10:15 train Tom had been waiting for at the next station west. From time to time she was asked if she had heard anything more from her husband, but she was obliged to reply that she had not.

She suffered terrible anxiety and begged to know what they were doing for his relief. They assured her that the 10 o'clock train would arrive on time and those on it would be prepared to offer every assistance. This only half comforted her. She was about to click the news to Tom when it occurred to her that the robbers might have an operator with them, who would understand the message. Indeed, Tom and she had often talked over such a contingency and had agreed that she had better send him no message except to answer his first call. This had led Tom to think that any one capturing his office could hear Sallie's warning message, and he had arranged a cut-off that would prevent their intercepting them or the replies.

Meanwhile the man covering Tom had motioned him to throw up the window sash. Tom did so, and the robber stepped in from the platform, followed by two others, both masked and armed. They asked Tom for his red light, and one of their number took it out and placed it on the track. One man kept Tom covered every moment, forcing him to stand at a distance from the telegraph instrument. There was no operator among them, and they did not require Tom to send decoy messages. In fact, they would not have dared trust him to do this. They watched him so closely that he had no opportunity to send another message than the first.

Before the arrival of the train the robbers bound Tom hand and foot and laid him on the station floor as far as possible from the telegraph instrument. Then they all waited till they heard the rattle of the train, when they went out, ready for a fight, stationing themselves at distances from one another equal to the length of a car. When the train pulled up and they were about to board it four armed men stood on each platform. Every man on seeing this armament turned and fled without a shot. But they were followed and all captured.

Meanwhile Sallie was waiting in her bedroom to know whether her husband was alive or dead, her baby sleeping peacefully. She watched the clock and heard the train come into the station, but no shooting. The few minutes between its arrival and the clicking of his instrument that followed were a terrible suspense. It was Tom who called and announced that he was unharmed.

He was frightened at receiving no reply for some minutes. Sallie had fainted.

The next day a man was sent out from the railroad's general office to investigate the occurrence. He reported that $50,000 was in the express car of the train which had been saved by Tom's foresight and ingenuity. He also mentioned that Tom had warned the company of the dangerous position of the station, that he had applied for the apparatus used, had been refused and had put it in at his own expense. The permanent issue the following indorsement on the report:

Bring the man who has displayed such ability to this office and advance him as rapidly as possible.

The same day the fourth vice president was notified that his resignation would be accepted.

A few days later a man arrived with an order for Tom to turn over the station to him and to report himself at the general office. The little family packed their belongings and went to Kansas City. Tom reported himself to the superintendent.

"What did I tell you, young man! I told you to make a beginning. Your foresight"—

"Foresight be hanged!" interrupted Tom. "I wanted that apparatus to keep Sallie from being lonely."

"My boy," replied the superintendent impressively, "don't make a fool of yourself. You are to go to the president, and when he applauds you for your strategic eye and wonderful gift of preparing for emergencies look wise and say nothing."

Tom took the superintendent's advice and is now fourth vice president of the road.

THEY ASKED TOM FOR HIS RED LIGHT.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 16.—The market opened under realizing with values ½d to ⅝d lower, and later declined ⅝d to ¾d, with the undertone weak. There was no attempt at support during the session. Selling was induced by the weakness in Winnipeg and the decline in Buenos Ayres yesterday, and a belief here that the Morocco situation will meet with an early settlement, there was pronounced pressure of Canadian and Australian parcels, and spot markets were ½d lower, with the demand small. Reports from Germany and France continue favorable on wheat, and the Russian report was better than expected. At the close the market was weak, ½d to ⅝d lower.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 16.—Optimism as to an early settlement of the Morocco dispute acted to-day in favor of lower prices for wheat. The close was ¼c to ⅝c under last night. Net declines were the rule, too, in all the other leading staples.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 16.—Cables were all weaker and prices lower, the foreign market for wheat being generally affected by the very probable settlement of the Moroccan situation shortly. Demand was dull. Russian barley was offered here at 55c, c.i.f., Montreal, per 400 pounds, Odor Per shipment, which is equivalent to 72c per bushel of 48 pounds. An easier feeling prevailed in the local market for oats and prices declined ½c per bushel. A fair trade continues to be done in flour for local account. Mill feed is scarce and firm under a good demand.

In sympathy with a further advance in cheese prices at country points, the market is much stronger and ½c to ¾c per lb. higher under a good demand. Receipts for the week were 76,900 boxes, compared with 74,782 a year ago. Butter is quiet and easier with prices ½c per pound lower. Receipts for the week were 18,923 packages, as against 14,899 a year ago. The demand for eggs is good at firm prices. Receipts for the week were 4537 cases, as against 5095 a year ago. THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 20th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained by writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

UP TO THE PROVINCES.

Sir Wilfrid Answers Appeal For Votes For Women.

Toronto, Sept. 18.—That the Dominion Parliament has no power to extend the electoral franchise to women, and that each province is a law unto itself in the matter, is pointed out by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in replying to a letter from Dr. Margaret McAlpine, corresponding secretary of the Canadian Suffrage Association.

A similar letter was sent to R. L. Borden. J. F. Bopee, replying in Mr. Borden's absence, gives assurance that the matter will come before Mr. Borden as soon as possible.

Sir Wilfrid's reply is:

Dear Madam,—

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 8th inst., in which you request, on behalf of the Canadian Suffrage Association that the provision which excludes women from the franchise in this Dominion, be abolished, and that a measure be introduced which will give the women of the Dominion the vote on the same qualifications as those applied to the men of this country, or on some other basis.

In answer, I beg to call your attention to the fact that under the existing system in Canada, we have no Dominion franchise and that the electoral vote is exercised under franchise granted by each Provincial Legislature. Yours very sincerely,

Wilfrid Laurier.

Germans Are Cautious.

Paris, Sept. 18.—The German Foreign Minister, Herr Von Kiderlen-Waechter, yesterday informed the French ambassador at Berlin, M. Cambon, that the German Government would not be ready before today to indicate what they thought of the French reply to the latest German note concerning Morocco.

Almost a Catastrophe.

Mr. Le Queux was once a sub-editor on a London evening paper and he often tells how, one afternoon, on returning to the office after lunch, he found the following words on the "tape" machine: "Her Majesty died at 11 a.m." With his usual energy Mr. Le Queux got to work, and soon everybody was helping to rush out a special edition. Just before the machines started printing the paper, however, it was found that a careless office boy had torn the "tape" in the middle of the message, which, in its entirety, read: "John Frayling, coachman to Her Majesty, died at 11 p.m."

PETERBOROUGH MONDAY SEPTEMBER 18 1911

VOTE FOR J. R. STRATTON THE MAN THAT GETS THINGS DONE

A Foregone Conclusion

The Liberal Government will be sustained. Even the Opposition concedes this.

The Liberal Government had a majority of forty-five in the last Parliament. It will have a majority of fifty-five or more in the next House.

Outside politics altogether the provinces will vote for their own special interests.

Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island will vote for their coal and fish, New Brunswick for its hay and potatoes, Quebec and Ontario for their mixed products, the prairie West for its wheat, British Columbia for its fruit and fish and the consumer everywhere for cheaper living.

Weight of numbers will carry the day. The size of the victory is the only thing in dispute.

To People Who Eat

What does reciprocity in natural products mean to the average consumer? Simply free trade in food.

Canada and the United States both remove their food taxes amounting between them to six million dollars a year.

Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

Sixty of the chief elements of your diet will come in free or at greatly reduced duties.

Reciprocity takes taxes off what you eat. It leaves you free to buy what you like, when you like and where you like at the best prices.

You will have cheaper, better, more varied meals. You will save a quarter on every dollar.

The Tariff Untouched

Reciprocity benefits the manufacturer by giving his workingmen cheaper living and making them happier and more contented.

Reciprocity benefits the manufacturer by filling up the Northwest, increasing the purchasing power of the farmer, and enlarging the home market for manufactured goods.

A larger market for manufactured goods means more orders, more work, more workingmen and higher wages.

The manufacturer's protection is not touched. The Government has pledged it word that it will not be interfered with.

The Liberal Government has never strayed from the principle of moderate, just and adequate protection to the manufacturer since it came into power in June, 1896.

Protection is safe in Liberal hands. Of all the Canadian tariffs the Fielding tariff has been the most stable.

A Worker Wanted

Can West Peterborough afford to be on the losing side.

Can West Peterborough afford to be represented at Ottawa by a man whose offensive campaign must make him particularly distasteful.

If West Peterborough wants warm justice, not cold justice, at the hands of a Liberal Government which candidate is likely to get it?

Public improvements in progress or in prospect for West Peterborough amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars—work for the contractor, the teamster, the mechanic, and the labouring man.

Should West Peterborough do anything that might cause these matters to lag or stop entirely?

What does West Peterborough want? A good worker, a good asker, a good getter—or a dreamer?

The British Born

Men who try to create divisions between the British born in Canada and the British, born in the Mother Country, are not good patriots.

The British born who have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions know what the Liberal Government has done for the working man and the homeseeker.

The Liberal party in England and Liberal party in Canada are the same in their efforts for the common people.

The Liberal Government in Canada gave England the British Preference, the South African Contingents and the Canadian Navy.

Premier Asquith says reciprocly is good for business and good for the Empire.

Lloyd George says it is crystallized common sense. British Ambassador Bryce helped to make the agreement.

Reciprocity is not Politics---it is just business. You can vote for your party all the rest of your life. THIS TIME VOTE FOR YOURSELF

A WESTERN CONSERVATIVE SUPPORTS RECIPROCITY

Mr. R. W. Buller, Brother of Ald. Wm. Buller, Does Not Believe in the Flag-waving Campaign of the Conservatives --- No Annexation Sentiment Across the Line.

I have travelled extensively in the States and there is no more annexation sentiment there than there is on this side of the border. Furthermore, I think this flag-waving is gotten up only for political purposes."

The above statement was made to the Examiner this morning by Mr. R. W. Buller, of the Railway and Steamship News Service, Victoria, B. C., and incidentally a brother of Ald. Wm. Buller, of Peterborough. Like his local brother, Mr. Buller is a Conservative, but he is in favour of the Reciprocity agreement, and has no hesitation in saying so. He is an old Peterborough boy, who has been for a number of years in the West, and finds Peterborough a greatly changed city. Mr. Buller will spend a couple of days in the city before leaving for New York.

SOUTH MONAGHAN BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE

The large barn on the farm of John Blakely, near the Benafort bridge, South Monaghan, was totally destroyed by fire about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and as the result of a second blaze, originating from sparks from the first fire, an old house, three hundred yards away, containing sleighs and lumber, belonging to Wm. McClelland, was also wiped out. Mr. Blakely's barn contained all his season's crop, two sets of sleighs, a cultivator, a sulky rake and other implements, as well as one hundred and fifty bushels of wheat belonging to Mr. McClelland. The total loss is estimated at about $3,000 or $4,000 while the insurance will not be greater than $300 or $400. It is thought that the fire must have started from a spark from a passing steamboat.

RAILWAY STRIKE IN IRELAND

Special Wire to The Examiner.

DUBLIN, IRELAND, SEPT. 18. — Riotous scenes to-day attended the calling out of more railway men in a general strike and now the service on all the big railroads of Ireland is demoralized. One man was shot because he refused tostrike with his fellows. Troops have been requisitioned for.

WHY ELECTION WAS DEFERRED

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, SEPT. 18.— The official explanation of the returning officer for Thunder Bay and Rainy River, received here to-day, says the postponement made necessary by the fact that it was impossible to distribute ballots in time for general election day, as a lot of them have to be sent to polling booths over long canoe routes.

When other helpers fail and comforts flee, Moon College educates and places thee.

PETERBOROUGH MAN IS KILLED IN THE WEST DEATH OF JOHN HEAD

Word has been received in Peterborough of the tragic death of Mr. John Head, formerly of this city, in Medicine Hat, Alberta, on Saturday. No particulars have been received by his relatives here, the message merely saying that he had been accidentally killed. He was about twenty-five years of age, and had been a resident of the West for some years, although he was home on a visit at Christmas. A brother of the deceased was instantly killed this spring by being crushed to death by a stone at the links of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. Further particulars will be given in to-morrow's issue of the Examiner.

Fire Threatens To Destroy Peterboro' Gas Co's Plant

Fire did $100 damage to the Peterborough Gas Commpany's plant on Sunday evening. Just how the fire started is a mystery. When the fire department arrived in answer to a call from Box 23 the fire had assumed threatening proportions. Jets of flame were shooting out from all parts of the building in which the gasometers are situated, while the presence of the deadly gas made the work of fighting the fire more hazardous. The first notification of the fire found the brigade in a somewhat crippled condition, one-half of the force being away to tea. However, the firemen responded promptly and on their arrival attacked the flames with a zealous energy that beckoned their thankfulness with the task that lay before them.

Two lines of hose were laid and as many streams well directed, were soon playing an important part in the subduing of the rapidly advancing flames. After about two hours' strenuous work the fire was finally extinguished.

In the absence of Fire Chief Howard who is attending the Fire Chiefs Convention at Milwaukee, Assistant Chief Menzies was in charge of the brigade. This is the third time that fire has visited the gas plant during the past two days.

CANADIAN MISSIONARIES ARE HEARD FROM

Special to The Examiner:

CHUNG KING, CHINA, SEPT. 18. —Thirty-one in all of a hundred and sixty Canadian Methodist missionaries in West China have arrived here safely from stations around Jen Show, Jung Hsein and Tsclint Sing. Nothing has been heard directly since the 11th inst of the remainder, who are supposed to be in Chentu. However, the British Consul at Pekin has received word that there has been no fighting inside the walls of that city since that date, but several skirmishes outside. The foreigners are being treated civilly so far as is known. The British Consul, following direct enquiries from Canada, is endeavouring to get further information.

MONTREAL, SEPT. 18—On September 30th John W. Loud, freight traffic manager Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific will retire on a handsome superannuation allowance, after fifty years' service.

Against The Union

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., SEPT. 18.—Giving evidence before the Government Railway Commission this a.m., enquiring into the differences of the recent great railway strike, Lord Claude Hamilton, chairman of the Great Eastern Railway, said the recognition of labour unionism on the railroads would mean general chaos and commercial disaster.

Purchases A Toronto Business

It will interest the many friends of Mr. W. A. Edwards, who for the past few years owned and operated the Crystal Theatre, to learn that this gentleman has purchased one of the leading blacksmith shops of Toronto. Mr. Edwards' recent purchase is the shop formerly conducted by Messrs. Lowden and Paton, 654 Queen street, west, Toronto. It is well known that, for years, Mr. Edwards had the exclusive work of shoeing the valuable string of race horses owned by Mr. Willie, of Galt. Since severing his connection with the Crystal, Mr. Edwards has been connected with Mr. W. Kennedy's blacksmith shop on Charlotte street, where many of the leading livery of Peterborough have been attended to. During his management of the Crystal Mr. Edwards, on many occasions, gave the use of his theatre gratuitously to charitable institutions, including the Children's Aid, Temperance, and church causes.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

MONDAY, SEPT. 18, 1911

A HAPPY AUGURY.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's election by acclamation in Quebec East is only a foretaste of the wider victory he will achieve in the country. Sir Wilfrid elected by acclamation in the capital of his home province, while Mr. Borden is fighting a precarious battle for his political life in the capital of his home province.

FALSE PROPHECIES.

Sir Charles Tupper, leader of the Conservative party, in 1887, predicted that the Fielding tariff would ruin Canada.

Now another prophet, Mr. Borden, is predicting that reciprocity will ruin the country.

What a country Canada would be, or will be, in fifteen years if, as is certain to be the case, the reciprocity prophecy is as splendidly discredited as the Fielding tariff prophecy.

VICTORY SURE.

There is no doubt the Larier Government will be handsomely sustained as a result of the voting next Thursday. Advices from all over the Dominion are most satisfactory. Most of the froth over the annexation crusade is confined to the cities and towns, but even there the people are seeing through the buncombe and are declining ot be fooled any longer.

The farmers, on the other hand, are rallying to the support of reciprocity in a most remarkable fashion, scores of them in every riding having announced their inteniton of voting for the Liberal candidates where they never voted anything but Conservative before. They are voting for themselves this time, without any detrimept to the integrity of their Conservative principles.

OF COURSE.

The Toronto News prints news that is not news.

It says the shoe manufactures of Quebec City are against the reciprocity agreement. That's no news. We knew all along that the cobines and monopolists and big "interests" are against reciprocity.

Reciprocity hits the food combines hard, and the boot and shoe combine could do no other than sympathize with them. Selfishness and greed are at the book of the opposition to reciprocity. The monosolists don't relish anything that will cut into the inordinately high prices that combination helped by a high tariff, helps them to impose.

Reciprocity threatens the sky-high prices of the food combines and gives the consumer a show.

Of course, the shoe combine would be against reciprocity. It would be treason to the principle of selfishness and greed, upon which opposition to reciprocity is founded.

A BIG CANADIAN'S OPINION.

Lord Mount Stephen, one of the Canadian barons, made by the Canadian Pacific Railway, does not think reciprocity is ruin for Canada or the Mother country. The Belfast Telegraph, evidently fishing for an opinion that would sustain the plea that reciprocity meant smashing British connection and the strengthening of Laurier, asked Lord Mount Stephen what he thought about it. The result is thus reported in a despatch from London:

Canadian Associated Press Cable.

LONDON, SEPT. 16.—Lord Mount Stephen in a message to the Belfast Telegraph says reciprocity will be a good thing for both countries and do no harm to England. Talk of it leading to the annexation of Canada by the United States is utter nonsence.

WHERE MR. BURNHAM STANDS.

Mr. Burnham, who began his campaign with a great flourish as the Defender of the Faith, pillar and prop of Protestantism, the implacable foe of everything French—either race or religion—has developed into an ally of Henri Bourassa ,the so-called Nationalist, whose policy is down with everything British, down with the flag and down with Laurier—Laurier refused Mr. Bourassa office—and upon the ruins to build a French republic on the banks of the St. Lawrence.

Mr. Burnham tries to crawfish out of the hole he is trying to crawl through into office for himself and party. But it won't do—he's found with goods upon him. The slogan of his organ is "a vote for Burnham is a vote for Borden," and the facts show that a vote for Borden is a vote for Bourassa How's that? Simply this way. Mr. Bourassa's campaign is financed from the Conservative funds. The Conservatives have agreed to oppose no "Nationalist" candidates in Quebec; and the Nationalists have agreed to not oppose any Conservative candidate.

More, Mr. Bourassa has appeared on the platform in support of Mr. Borden's candidates; he has even had the "check" to invade Ontario, and the Conservatives had enough disregard of decency to allow him to do so, and even encourage him. He spoke at Sudbury on a Conservative platform in support of the Conservative candidate.

If this is not proof enough, there is the proof of motive. Both want Laurier defeated. They have a common interest, and that is the motive of their alliance.

In face out the facts, Mr. Burnham may deny the fact of the Borden-Bourassa pact, till he is black in the face—as a supporter of Mr. Borden he is particeps criminis—sharer in the crime.

It is equally useless for Mr. E. B. Osler, of Toronto, to deny the alliance between Borden and Bourassa and the roaring demagogues who are going up and down the Province of Quebec stirring up hatred against English and suspicion against Ontario. No doubt he is quite right in saying it was never mentioned in caucus—at least, not in his hearing. He might also safely guess that there is no document containing the treaty of alliance. Things are not managed that way in politics. Parties and leaders are satisfied with substantial proofs of friendship.

Look at the list of Quebec candidates published in the Mail and Empire and in the World. Out of sixty-five opposition candidates in Quebec, all but six are described as Conservatives, without any qualification, by the Mail and Empire, all but seven by the World. These six or seven candidates are placed by both papers in the Conservative column, with the letters "Nat." after their names. The other 58 or 59 candidates are described as Conservatives without any qualification. This means that almost the entire Nationalist delegation is taken into the Tory camp. What is the use of denying the Borden-Bourassa alliance?

P. E. Blondin is classed as a Conservative, not as a Nationalist, by the World and the Mail. Blondin is the man who said of the English that "those who disembowelled our fathers on the Plains of Abraham are asking you to -day to go out and get killed for them. We have had enough of England and the English." Remember, Mr. Blondin is classed by the World and the Mail and Empire as a straight Borden candidate.

Mr. Fauteux, running in Two Mountains, is classed as a straight Conservative, a Borden man, by the Mail and Empire and the World. Fauteux is the man who said: "The real object of England in forcing a navy upon us was not to have the boats or out money, but the blood of French-Canadians."

A. Sevigny, Dorchester, is classed as a straight Conservative by the World and the Mail and Empire. Sevigny is the man who said: "The Laurier Cabinet is a Cabinet of Imperialists who want to sacrifice Canada's interests, and plunge us into war with which we have nothing to do. The navy bill is an attempt by Ontario and the Provinces of the West to coerce Quebec and enslave our people forever. What has England ever done for you? She has no need of your help. She is strong enough to defend herself. Laurier's ideal is to make you the vassals of the majority in the West. You must protest by your votes against this slave traffic. You must fight against helping England in her wars; unless you do, conscription will come next."

With these candidates taken to the bosom of the Conservative party, and publicly endorsed and guaranteed as Conservatives, what is the use of Mr. Burnham or anybody else denying the alliance? It is a fact.

You are invited to "vote for Burnham and British connection." As a matter of fact, you are invited to "vote for Burnham and Canadian disruption" through this unholy alliance with the most outspoken blatant and vicious foe to British connection, British ideals and British supremacy in the country.

WHY PRESIDENT TAFT IS UNPOPULAR.

ANN ARBOR, SEPT. 9. — A meeting of the Braun Arbor of the Gleaners in Northfield Township a resolution was unanimously adopted to boycott the State Fair at Detroit on September 18 because of the presence of President Taft at the fair grounds on that day. The resolution declares that the President "has shown himself in favour of ruining home markets and agriculturists by forcing reciprocity upon the country."—New York Commercial.

The farmers of the United States are afraid of the competition of Canadian farmers. Reciprocity must therefore be a good thing for the Canadian farmer. And it will increase his prosperity. The farmer can't bury his money—he must spend with merchants and in the purchase of all kinds of manufactured products. Thus the benefits of reciprocity, better markets, more money goes the whole round benefitting farmer, merchant, manufacturer and working man.

CANNED MUSIC

During the late war with Spain, General Miles, at that time ostensibly the Commander-in-Chief of the army in America, got himself into all sorts of trouble by saying that the troops were being served with embalmed meat, referring to the meat done up in cans and sold for the use of the army, says Washingtonia. Of course he had in mind the age of the prepared article, as well as the chemicals used for preserving the meat. This was before the days of pure food laws, and at a time when it is claimed that the packers went upon the theory that any old thing was good enough to can, and that some chemical preservations are actually beneficial to health.

"Canned Music" does not stand in this class. Some of the old songs may be old, in fact some of them are old, for they are written by such eminent composers as Handel and Hayden and Meyerbeer and Gluck, but they are as fresh and as young as they were when they were first given to the public. Those songs, sung by the best singers, and the music accompanying them, rendered by the orchestras and bands of Europe and America, have been canned, and so perfectly has the work been done that when served up from the can they are almost equal to the best produced in the opera house.

Every evening hundreds of thousands of people listen to a delightful entertainment with out the trouble of going to the opera house; they can have this entertainment when the opera houses are closed and the professional singers and musicians are taking their summer vacation. There was a time when eminent musicians as Sousa trailed against this music, but now Sousa and his incomparable band are playing through the canned process to thousands who never had an opportunity to hear the band any other way.

It is not alone the music of this high class that one can get from his can, but if he desires he can have that of the popular order, and the reproducing instruments are especially fine in rendering sacred music, and there are few church choirs that render as sympathetically and well the grand old hymns of Luther, Wesley, Watts and others who have made their songs of praise so touchingly beautiful. The chants and songs of the early missionaries had more to do with civilization among the barbarous and savage nations than the priestly vestments, church ceremonies or eloquent sermons. Music is a great civilizer; not only a great civiliser, but a great refiner. The household wherein music is found is always more peaceful, more refined than is the one where music is never heard. Edison in his invention of the phonograph was a greater benefactor to the human race than even Bell, who gave us the telephone. All styles of Edison phonographs sold on easy payments—prices from $19.00 up. Come in and hear them. The J. M. GREENE, MUSIC Co., L'T'D., Charlotte street.

Hutchinson took place at 4.30 o'clock on Tuesday, Sept. 12th at their residence, North Monaghan. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. G. W. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Guy Tripp, of Franklin, Ont., aunt of the bride. The bride, who was given away by her stepfather, wore white Morocco silk, trimmed with satin and allover lace. She wore the customary veil of tulle and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white asters and wore the groom's gift, a pearl brooch. Miss Mildred O. McCrorie, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, in pink mull with satin baby ribbon and lace trimmings and carried pink asters, while little Florence G. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was an opal ring, to the flower girl a gold bracelet and to the groomsman a fancy stick pin. The bride's gift to Mrs. Tripp was a beautiful pearl handled cold meat fork. After the ceremony a dejeuner was served in the dining room.

The happy couple left for their future home in Lindsay, Ont., amid showers of confetti and rice, where they will be at home to their friends after Oct. 1st.

THE BEST, BIGGEST, WARMEST RALLY WAS THE LAST HELD

Mr. Stratton Reviews the Campaign and the Issues, Particularly Addressing the Manufacturer, the Workingmen and the British-Born

The last Saturday night rally in the Stratton Committee Rooms was the best, biggest and heartiest of the series. Reciprocity improves on acquaintance. The better the people understand it the better they like it. "Give it another week," said Mr. Walter Davidson, "and there won't be a vote against it in the country."

There was plenty of personal enthusiasm for the candidate. He has fought a good fight against a great deal of pointless abuse, and the audience showed that they liked his mettle. His merits as a man, apart from his political activities, came in for praise.

GOOD HEART, NOT FORGOTTEN

One of the redeeming features about an election campaign is that if the enemy tells lies, your friends bring out the good points. Everybody in the country knows J. R.—as he is affectionately called—and everybody who is not poisoned by partizan clamor has a good word to say for him. In no constituency in Canada does the personal equation count for more than it does in West Peterborough.

As one speaker put it, "If every citizen of Peterborough county, of fifty years of age and over, had as many good deeds to his credit as J. R. Stratton, he would have nothing to fear here or hereafter. Why, you can't pass an industry that he hasn't either helped to bring here or has a stake in, or isn't as heartily interested in as if it were his own. You can't see a public work in city or country that he hasn't pushed along. Down at Ottawa they treat him like a Cabinet Minister when he asks things for Peterborough. You can't close your eyes on a thing that means more work and more wages for the workingman, and more business for the Peterborough merchants that J. R. Stratton isn't pulling for. You can't see a church in which there isn't a contribution of his. You can't stop on the street without hearing of some decent, helpful thing J. R. Stratton did for somebody. A dollar here, five dollars there, ten dollars another place—little drops of water, little grains of sand. And not given to make himself solid but just because giving is second nature to a kind heart."

THE CHAIRMAN TELLS FORTUNES

Chairman R. R. Hall cast a calculating eye over the probabilities in the various provinces. In Nova Scotia he predicted a clean sweep for Laurier, the provincial election a short time ago having shown which way the cat was jumping. He prophesied that Mr. R. L. Borden and Mr. Crosby would lose their seats in Halifax to the Liberal candidates, Mr. A. K. Maclean and Mr. Blackader. In New Brunswick the Liberals had made a clean sweep last time, and they would do just as well this time. In Prince Edward Island the Liberals had three seats now and would get the other one on Sept. 21st. In Quebec the Conservatives had left 50 seats in which they had not placed a candidate, thus admitting to the rest of Canada how much chance they felt they had of turing the Liberals out. In Ontario the Liberals would do better than last time, particularly in the border counties, where the people are protectionists in the day time and free traders at night.

In Manitoba every day brought Liberal gains. It was conceded that Mayor Ashdown, a Liberal, would be elected in Winnipeg. Premier Roblin's admission that he would not consider any Conservative a traitor to his party if he voted for reciprocity, showed how Manitoba feeling was and how the canny premier was trying to get in out of the rain.

In Saskatchewan and Alberta Mr. Hall predicted that every seat would go Liberal, and in British Columbia that the Hon. Mr. Templeman would redeem Victoria, and Mr. J. H. Senkler, Vancouver.

"Just as surely as the sun rises," said Mr. Hall, "the Liberal Government will go back with an increased majority."

A FRIEND AT COURT

With a Liberal Government in power, Chairman Hall reflected that it would be a prudent thing for Peterborough East and West to have two Liberal members at Ottawa.

"For the city and riding of West Peterborough," said Chairman Hall, "you cannot have a better man or a more enterprising citizen than Hon. J. R. Stratton. He has never spared himself in your interests."

Chairman Hall read Senator Cox's interview in the Examiner showing what kind of man Peterborough ought to have for a representative.

"The tariff," said Mr. Hall, "is safe in Liberal hands. It is safe in Mr. Stratton's hands. He would not do a thing to lessen the manufacturers' protection or interfere with the workingman's job. I hear the Conservatives are conceding him 400 majority. Well, if they give him that much let us give him 400 more and that will make 800 of a majority."

Mr. Hall's remarks had the right ring and were loudly applauded.

DODGING THE REAL ISSUE

When Mr. Stratton took the platform it was some time before the cheers subsided and he could begin to speak. Mr. Stratton expressed his confidence in the verdict of the electors on September 21st. So far as he was able, he had endeavoured to confine discussion to the real issue, the agreement between the two countries. His opponent touched the agreement lightly, as if it were some trivial matter, instead of being one of the most important issues since confederation. Mr. Burnham had done his best to divert discussion to issues that no sensible man would entertain for a moment. If it were possible that Mr. Burnham could be elected on such irrelevancies it would be a sorry day for Peterboro and every man who had any interest in the city should see to it that such a calamity was averted. For a man to be elected on Mr. Burnham's professions would be to place a premium upon lying, deception, misrepresentation and downright slander. It was not flattering to any audience to have Mr. Burnham suppose them so credulous as to believe they were listening to a sensible exposition of the matters before the general public, conducted according to the amenities of debate as among gentlemen. Under ordinary circumstances such harangues would not be listened to even by the most ignorant, if they had any respect for decency.

BURNHAM, BOURASSA AND BUNCOMBE

Mr. Stratton pointed out that Mr. Bourassa in Quebec, and Mr. Burnham in Peterborough, were working a two-faced game, Bourassa saying in Quebec that Laurier is too British, and not Catholic enough, nor French enough, and Mr. Burnham and friends in Peterborough laying stress upon the charge that Laurier is too Catholic and not British enough for Ontario. The thing was too ridiculous to dwell upon. All one had to look at were the letters from Mr. Gordon of Nipissing and Mr. Smythe of East Algoma, practically assenting to Mr. Bourassa's views on the navy and other matters, to see the collusion between his opponent and the Nationalists of Quebec.

"Peterborough does not want," said Mr. Stratton, "either Burnham, or Bourassa or Buncombe."

STANDING BY THE NAVY

"My policy with regard to the navy," said Mr. Stratton, "has been consistently British and Canadian. I did not favour sending $25,000,000 of money over to England, where it would lose its identity, a mere drop in the bucket, in the enormous sums that were being spent on the British navy. But I did advocate and was the first to urge in the House of Commons, the building of a Canadian navy—that would help Great Britain in need—right here in Canada—spending the money here with our own workingmen and expert mechanics, erecting shipyards at St. John, Montreal and Vancouver, building the ships of our own wood and iron and nickel and developing our own resources, strengthening and enlarging our own industries, relying on our own intelligence to make the ships and on our own courage, under experienced guidance to man them, and making the navy not only an honour to Canada and a help to the Empire but a factor in our national prosperity. That has been my policy, and I stand by it, and this is the policy of the Government.

THE WELFARE OF THE WHOLE PEOPLE

Mr. Stratton said that it had always been his policy to do everything possible to promote the prosperity and welfare of the whole people. He was the first to stand up in the Legislature and advocate the policy which is now in force in this province with regard to the manufacture of the products of our forests and mines in our own country. He had always advocated the manufacture of our wood into pulp and so far and so soon as possible into paper within our own borders. He was among the first to induce the Ontario Government to send exploration parties into New Ontario with a view to finding what resources we had in that vast territory. He was among the first to urge the construction of he New Ontario railways which bare the treasure of silver and other metals hidden there and opened up a country for development which gave Old Ontario an opportunity for further expansion.

"You will observe from my views and my record," said Mr. Stratton, "that I have always tried to build up the resources and industries of my own country. My object is to benefit all the people. As a moderate protectionist I would be the last man in the world to wish or do ill toward our manufacturing industries, and the people engaged in trade, empolyers or employed. The interests of the manufacturer and the workingman are as safe in my hands as they are in the hands of the Liberal Government, which has time and again given assurance that protection for manufacturers will not be interfered with. The manufacturers of Peterborough cannot say I have faltered in my duty towards them, any more than to any other class of the community. When new tariff legislation was proposed last year I wrote to the manufacturers, one and all, to get their views on what would be to their interest and to head off any chance of harm. And all answered my letters except two, whom I had so far supposed to be gentlemen."

THE MANUFACTURERS' TARIFF SAFE

"Who is there in Peterborough," asked Mr. Stratton, "who has a clearer conception of its wants, whether as producer or consumer? I myself am both a producer and a consumer. I know the requirements of both. I have interests with both. I am free from prejudice and I have a well balanced national prosperity at heart."

"You may be sure," continued Mr. Stratton, "that I would not be on the side of this agreement if it injuriously affected any of the people's interests. How, may I ask, will the free exchange of natural products injure the workingman or the manufacturer?

How will the free exchange of potatoes, turnips and cabbages injure the Canadian General Electric Company? How can the free exchange of farm products interfere with the William Hamilton Company, in the production of turbines and saw mill machinery? Will not free lumber and timber stimulate the lumber business and create increased demand for our mill machinery, especially in view of the fact that sixty five per cent. of our lumber is exported?

WILL NOT AFFECT LOCAL INDUSTRIES

How will a wider market, adding to the people's prosperity affect the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, unless by increased capacity for the purchase of its products? How will the four canoe companies of ePterborough suffer from the free exchange of plums or potatoes or by the reduction of the United States' duties on canoes from 35 to 22½ per cent., or the reduction of the Canadian duty from 25 to 22½ per cent.? With skilled employees, trained in the home of the canoe, with cheaper and more accessible raw material, cannot our canoe builders successfully compete with their opponents in the United States on better terms, especially when their export trade will be helped by a reduction of 12½ per cent., to a larger market and greatly increased business. How will the Colonial Weaving Company do anything but gain by the increased prosperity that will improve the demand for their products—labels for clothing, boots and shoes and other goods. How will the Brinton Carpet Company be injured by increased prosperity, through larger trade, furnishing a better home market. How will the Rapid Tool Company suffer from cheaper raw material, cheaper coal and a more active home market? How will knocking of forty cents a bushel on onions or two cents on a head of cabbage, affect the prosperity of the Lundy Shovel and Tool Company, or decrease the wages of its employees? Will th Brewery suffer? Free barley may lead to increased prices, but compensation will come from the brewery's standpoint by a better market and prices, giving the farmer more money to exchange for its finished products. The Lubricator Company is in no way affected prejudicially. As for the Quaker Oats Company, you have al-lread Mr. Robert Stuart's endorsement of the agreement, and you know that the company is only waiting until the agreement passes before building another factory and extending its operations in Canada.

"How," Mr. Stratton asked, "can it affect any of our manufacturing industries except to give them a larger and more prosperous home market? How can it affect any workingman except to give him steadier empoyment at better wages to catch up with the increased trade? What harm can there be in an agreement that enlarges the manufacturers' market and gives his workmen cheaper living, easier minds and more money in the bank to educate the children and better their prospects in life?

A CHANGE OF FRONT

Mr. Stratton said it was difficult to understand why, of a sudden, the Conservative leaders—for very many Conservatives favour the agreement—are now antagonizing the concrete application of a policy for which both political parties have been striving for half a century.

"To do the Conservative party justice," said Mr. Stratton, "they have tried harder to get reciprocity in natural products with the United States than the Liberals have done. To show how anxious and industrious the Conservatives were in their search for reciprocity, the Mail and Empire at the close of the Conservative regime, in 1896, proudly boasted that 'of the ten offers of reciprocity Canada had made to the United States, nine had been made by Conservatives.'"

THE BRITISH BORN CRY

Mr. Stratton referred at some length to the unpatriotic efforts of Mr. Burnham's supporters to create division beween the new-comers to Canada and those who had come before and built up the country.

"They cal lthe new-comers the British born," said Mr. Stratton, "as if we weren't all British born, and proud of it. But Mr. Burnham and his friends try to lead the new-comer astray. They try to drag him into a party to which he doesn't naturally belong for most of these men belong to the working classes and here in Canada as in England it is the Liberal Government—whose efforts are always for the mass of the people—that has given him his blessings."

"Mr. Burnham, who is allied with Mr. Bourassa in his sweets-scented task of setting the French against the English, is now engaged right here in the other delectable mission of creating division between the newly come Canadian and the one who has been on the ground longer, between one good British subject and another."

"Such a policy of disintegration and disruption,' 'said Mr. Stratton, "I will never support. The worst thing anyone can do for the British born new-comer is to render him hostile to the people who are already in the country. The best service anyone can do the British born is to assimilate him with the people and conditions of the new land which they are making their home."

"I will never advocate a policy such as Mr. Burnham expects to carry him into power. I want to be elected on the ground that I have done good, and will do good in the future, or I don't want to be elected at all."

Hon. Mr. Stratton had to pause unti the applause aroused by this sentiment subsided.

"I am very sorry indeed to see," he continued, "placards on the walls announcing that Mr. Arthur Hawkes of Toronto will address a meeting in the opera house on 'The Place of the British Born in the Coming General Election.' Oh, you should read all about Mr. Hawkes in the Examiner. He is a clever man, who is in the business of speaking and writing for money. He has lived twenty-five years in Canada, and he only Britishborns at elections. He does not enlighten the British born at his own expense."

"And I"I wager," said Mr. Stratton with a smile, "that British born, Irish born, Scotch born, Canadian born, or American born, you'd all rather have work this wintes than a lecture from Mr. Arthur Hawkes on a nonsensical subject. I think that I am a better man to rely on than a one-night-stand strife-breeder like Mr. Arthur Hawkes, who is here to-day and away to-morrow."

And again Mr. Stratton had to wait until the cheers died down.

THE PROPER PLACE

"The place of he British born in the coming general election," said Mr. Stratton, "is perfectly clear and simple. It is on the side of their real friends, the Liberals who have done everything there is for labour and has stood by the unions and kept Canada a white man's country, who has opened up the country to the homesteader, who gave England her British preference, her South African contingents, and the Canadian navy, and who are now favouring a narrangement that will give the workingman cheaper living, and more work at better wages."

"The place of the British born," said Mr. Stratton, "alongside of Premier Asquith, who says the agreement is good for business, and good for the Empire; alongside Lloyd George, the friend of labour, who says the agreement is crystallizd common sense, and alongside British Ambassador Bryce, who helped to make the agreement."

Mr. Stratton pointed out that no man in Peterborough had done more to help the British born than he had with work and money.

"I never turend a deaf ear," he said, "or rfused to help any case of ral necessity."

MR. STRATTON'S PLATFORM

"My platform," concluded Mr. Stratton, "is to advance the prosperity and welfare of the whole people; to administer the affairs of Canada economically; to see that the revenues are expended fairly, notforge tting Peterborough; to develop the resources of the country on sound principles; to promote immigratein, and provide transportation facilities, wherever required; to secure peaceful and harmonious relations between the various elements of the Canadian people; to strengthen and confirm the ties of affection, loyalty and interest that bind us to Britain and the Empire; and to make Canada ever greater and better."

Mr. J. J. Hartly and Mr. Walter Davidson spoke briefly, urging the electors to roll up an old time Stratton majority.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King and candidate.

MR. KERR HOLDS ROUSING MEETING AT APSLEY

Reciprocity Candidate Addressed the Best Meeting Ever Held in That Section on Saturday Night and Was Given a Great Reception---Reciprocity a Popular Issue.

The largest political meeting ever held in Apsley took place Saturday evening in Mr. Kerr's interest. The Town Hall was not only filled to its limit, but people stood outside where the voices of the speakers could be heard. People were present from miles around. After the meeting one prominent resident stated that whereas Mr. Sexsmith had forty of a majority here last time, Mr. Kerr is likely to convert that into an equal majority this time in his favour.

The Chairman was Mr. Duncan Brown and the speakers, Mr. Kerr and Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor of Farm and Dairy, Peterborough. At the opening of the proceedings the little spite of her modest struggles he presented Mr. Kerr with a bouquet and received the customary salute. That Mr. Kerr is making progress was shown a moment later, when, in spite of her odest struggels he presented a young lady with a similar salute, to the immense delight of the crowd, when, on behalf of the ladies of Apsley, she presented him with an elaborate bouquet.

The meeting lasted almost three hours. A number of Conservatives were present. The arguments of the speakers were convincing and it is believed that numerous converts to Reciprocity were made.

Mr. Kerr, in a brilliant speech, showed plainly how hollow was Mr. Sexsmith's claim that he had been unfair at the meeting at Norwood, when he had asked Mr. Sexsmith, as the sitting member, to speak first, by pointing out that all four of the Conservative members of Parliament for Toronto on nomination day had spoken first and had been followed by the Liberal candidates. The only conclusion that could be reached from Mr. Sexsmith's action, Mr. Kerr claimed, was that he and his unknown speaker from Toronto were afraid to meet him in fair and open debate.

Copies of the reciprocity agreement were distributed, proving that it was not binding for a period of years, as had been claimed by Conservative workers. The three rumours about the Quaker Oats Company, each of which have been disproved, were dealt with. The value of the United States markets was pointed out for practically all lines of farm produce. The extent of our exports to the States, in spite of the high duties was revealed, the loyalty argument was riddled and the real danger of the Borden-Bourassa Alliance was pointed out.

Mr. Cowan confined his remarks to a presentation of the question, and to the importance of farmers standing by their farmers' organizations in this fight. He answered various arguments that have been advanced against reciprocity, showed it to be a farmers' question principally, and by concrete cases demonstrated what reciprocity is likely to mean to the farmers of Canada. Mr. Cowan's speech was able and convincing.

After the meeting several requests for further meetings in the surrounding district were made. These will be arranged if time permits. The popularity of reciprocity and of Mr. Kerr is growing rapidly and a large majority for both next Thursday seems assured. This evening Mr. Kerr will address a meeting at Lakefield, and Mr. Cowan one at Oak Lake. Tuesday evening a meeting will be held at Keene, and Wednesday evening meetings at Norwood and Havelock.

SOCIETY WEDDING

Daily Telegraph, St. John, N.B., Aug. 31.—An interesting society wedding was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when one of the city's most popular young ladies, Miss Helen Waddington Frink, was given in marriage by her father, R. Walker W. Frink, to Rev. Harry R. Trumpour, of Peterborough, Ont. The officiating clergyman was Rev. G. A. Kuhring, rector of St. John's (stone) church. The church, which was handsomely renovated of late, was prettily decorated in white and gold flowerings and presented an attractive appearance. The decorations for the most part, were the work of the Sunday school teachers.

The bride was gowned in a charming travaling costume of blue, wore a hat of corresponding shade, and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. She was unattended. J. W. Davidson and George Morrissey, acted as ushers. D. Arnold Fox presided at the organ. Besides the bridal chorus, the choir sang, 'O Perfect Love.'

Immediately after the wedding which was attended by near relatives of the bride and groom, and a host of friends who filled the church, Mr. and Mrs. Trumpour drove to the depot and left for their future home in Vancouver, B.C., where the groom has been appointed professor in the Latimer Theological College. They take with them the best wishes for future prosperity and happiness from a wide circle of friends, who remembered them with many handsome gifts of silverware, cut glass and other useful and valuable testimonials of esteem.

Rev. Mr. Trumpour has just been appointed by the Council of Latimer Hall, Theological School of the Church of England, in connection with the University at Vancouver, B.C., to the professorship on the study of the New Testament. Although only thirty-one years of age, he has had a very bright record as a scholar, teacher and rector. Matriculating in his sixteenth year with honours in history, classics and mathematics, he was graduated with first class honours in classics at the University of Toronto in 1900, losing for the school medal. He spent three years as classical master at Rothesay School for Boys. Entering Wycliffe College, Toronto, which is the largest Church of England college in Canada, he stood first in practically all the subjects of the three years' course. In 1904, he took his M.A. degree at the University of Toronto, and in 1905 he helped to win a championship in the Inter-collegiate debating union. In 1906 he received his B. D. degree. During 1906-6, he was tutor in New Testament and Greek. He returned to Rothesay as head master for two years. During part of this time he acted as curate at Stone church. At the end of this period he was appointed rector of All Saints church, Peterborough, Ont. At that time the church seated 250. Since this time this building has been transformed into the parish house and a new church was built to seat 700. The work of the church has grown remarkably in every way. The offertory has increased 30 per cent. and the communicants 50 per cent. Mr. Trumpour will begin his new duties on the opening of Latimer Hall in October, and should prove a decided acquisition to the staff of the college and the educational interests of the province of British Columbia.—Church Life.

A NEW SYSTEM OF MOTOR.

Messrs. Alexander & Miller, the well-known local electricians, have once more demonstrated the hold they have on the public. This firm recently installed a 25 h.p. motor, 220 volts, with the new automatic "cut out." This latest idea in electrical motive machinery is well worthy of attention. When once the switch is "thrown" or put in proper position, by reason of magnetic attraction, the switch is automatically kept closed. Thus all chance of such accidents as have recently caused loss of life, is practically eliminated. This new motor has been installed in Messrs. Houdrey's new pia factory, which replaces the factory recently destroyed by fire.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"ENGAGED" means "pledged in marriage."

That is what my dictionary says.

I have looked up the word, because I have been asked by so many young people from time to time to define the privileges and claims and liabilities of the engaged state, that I wanted to have my friend Noah's help.

"Engaged" means pledged in marriage"—that is, it means that two young people who are engaged, have decided that they love each other enough to leave father and mother, and all home ties and cleave to each other all through life.

Now how much liberty of intercourse with some particular member of the opposite sex, other than the betrothed, should these two people who feel that way have? This is the question which in one concrete form or another, is continually being asked me.

And my Yankee answer is, "How on earth can they want any at all?"

The only question, I suppose, is whether either may provide himself or herself with an occasional substitute when he or she cannot possibly have his betrothed.

Of course, there can be no question but that neither would ever want anyone else, when he or she could have his life partner. That would be to deny the meaning of the betrothal, that each vastly prefers the other to anyone else in the world.

Now, perhaps I'm wrong, but it seems to me that in this matter engaged ought to be considered the same as married.

And, when a man is married, he presumably doesn't expect to take some other woman to the theatre or a dance, even if his wife is away from home or he is in another city. And, as engaged people have made up their minds that they care enough for each other to be married, I don't really see why he should want to, when he is engaged.

And, when a woman is married, she presumably doesn't want to entertain or be entertained by other men, even if her husband is away. Why then, should she want to when she is engaged?

I believe that if two people care enough to be engaged, they should care so much that all other men become sexless to the woman and all other women sexless to the man.

If any engaged man or woman finds that this is not so, he or she finds a danger signal.

Now all this doesn't mean that I am advocating that an engaged man shall become monklike in his attitude toward other women, or that women shall shun the society of all men and the two confine themselves solely to each other's society.

Married people don't do that.

It just means that I think that the same standards on this subject should be observed by engaged as by married people.

These are my notions on this subject.

You—my correspondents—have asked for them and you have them.

But please don't lay too much stress on them, or judge anyone's conduct by them.

I believe that the very best way to avoid trouble on this subject is for each engaged couple to talk the matter over frankly with each other, and abide by the feelings of the more scrupulous since one party cannot possibly suffer as much from giving up a little freedom as the other party would suffer from that arch-torment, jealousy.

WINNIPEG 79TH CAMERONS' VISIT TO CORONATION.

Corporals Liddell and Robertson, the two Greenock representatives of the 79th Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg, are again in the Land of the Maple Leaf after a three weeks' holiday in Greenock, Scotland. Fifty men and five officers did the Camerons send to the Coronation, and to most of these it has proved the trip of their lives. Their colonel paid all the expenses and as a souvenir each man received a George V. sovereign. A welcome surprise awaited the two Greenock laddies, for, on stepping ashore, they, like their comrades who preceded them a fortnight before, each were presented with the handsome sum of £30, the officers receiving £50, as a further kindness from their generous honorary colonel, Lord Strathcona.

LEYDEN CENTENARY.

By the kind permission of Captain J. Fyfe-Jamieson, Cavers House will be open to those desirous of seeing the old portion of the mansion, the "blue room," containing the library to which Leyden frequently resorted for study.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY

The Market Square was the scene of an exciting runaway at 4.30 on Saturday afternoon. A team of handsome grey horses were quietly proceeding by the Police Office with a load of flour belonging to the Peterborough Cereal Co., when suddenly one of them shied, and both being young animals, they bolted across the square, dashing into one of the telegraph poles, outside the Hotel National. Freeing themselves from the vehicle they galloped up Charlotte street, but when near the G. T. R. Station one of them fell; the progress of the other animal being thus impeded they were both caught, showing no ill effects from their experience. The vehicle, however, did not fare so well. The fore portion that collided with the telegraph post, was somewhat damaged, and the bags of flour were precipitated on the sidewalk.

Mr. Stratton's Horses At Peterborough Fair

The Prize-Winning String Makes a Great Hit With the Spectators

At the request of the directors of the Peterborough Exhibition, Mr. J. R. Stratton sent six of his horses to the show grounds Friday and Saturday to enable those interested in high steppers to see the horses that have been winning prizes in Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal

For a pair of fifteen, two and over, Mr. Stratton showed "My Pride" and "Premier" in mail phaeton, gentleman's turnout. For a pair of fifteen two and under he showed "Loch Ryan Princess" and "Latest News," in lady's victoria. The latter pair also appeared in victoria with coachman and footman. In lady's single turnout he showed "Perfect Dream." He also showed a tandem and a random, the latter being three horses driven in front of each other. Another novelty shown was a "unicorn," being three horses, a pair and one in the lead.

"None Nicer," the beautiful saddle mare, was much admired, and Midget, in the runabout class, showe herself the pet of Peterborough.

Mr. Stratton also showed a four-in-hand, these being the animals that had been admired so much at the spring and fall shows throughout the horse sho weircuit in Canada. The horses were greatly admired and the crowd showed their appreciation of their exhibit ion by frequent applause.

Mr. Stratton's horses are being shown by request at Ogdensburg, N.Y. The horses left by G.T.R. express Saturday night for Ogdensburg, where they will be exhibited Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

A great deal of interest has been taken in these horses which have shown to the outside world that Peterborough is famous for other things besides Canadian General Electric, Quaker Oats and other prosperous industries.

SCOTTISH EXHIBITION.

For the benefit of those who have not seen the wonders of the Scottish Exhibition at Glasgow, it may be stated, that as dush falls the wizard's wand mysteriously moves an electric switch, and in an instant thousands of beautiful electric bulbs blaze forth in a way that brings out the beautiful architecture of the buildings. There are many wonderful designs, too, and perhaps one of the best ways to view this fairyland is to start at the bridge crossing into Historic street. Then the eye can see the ampitheatre bathed in charming colours peeping through the green foliage. A little further on the illuminated bridge reflected twice on the water comes into view, and then the full glorious vista of ampitheatre and Kelvin Bandstand eets the eye. A walk round the ampitheatre, where King George and Queen Mary beam dow non music lover, and then a saunter round the carriage-way and viz the Stewart Fountain, with its festoons of lights, will bring one in to the Fountain Square. No one has ever been in this splendid courtyard and gone away unoved. The effect here is entrancingly beautiful. The fifty tower of the Concert Hall stands out in a blaze of glory; while the Palace of Art on one side, and the Kelvin Hall on the other, is treated in a manner that gives one some idea of what electricity and brains combined can do. Before completing the evening's grand tour a visit must be paid to the Music Court. It has been illuminated and decorated in a way that brings out to the full the beautiful lines and graceful curves of the buildings, and the city's saints are eblazoned in beautiful colours.

SELFISHNESS AT THE BOTTOM OF RECIPROCITY OPPOSITION

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Politics has always been a matter of the study, rather than the platform, with me; yet, possibly, because of that very fact, I am struck with the analogy between the Reciprocity, or, rather, anti-Reciprocity campaign, and other movements, which have, at long intervals, shook great peoples. It is impossible to make a direct comparison of Reciprocity with the Temperance question, as the latter has so much of the religious element in it, yet, thus far, both are alike; the progress of both of them are fought by what? Selfishness. As Mr. W. A. Fraser said recently, in speaking of the interests of the monied classes: "The price of meat is nothing to them." The High-Protectionist" speaks glibly of "building up Canada" by ourselves, and letting well enough alone; yet, when we analyze his arguments we find that it is his own private bank account that he would like to see built up, and as for that increasing hoard, the monopoly which ever grows at the expense of others, why it is his, so let it alone.

This is a time when every one can well afford to drop the prejudices of party and creed and look this great question squarely, honestly in the face; look at it on both sides, and not as we see the moon, only on one side. Poor, wretched creatures are they that are absolutely politically blind.

In the first place, is it likely that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, a man whose whole life has been spent in the service of Canada; a man who is by no means personally rich, and one who has always stood for the masses and not the classes—is it likely, I ask, that such a man, a patriot in the truest definition of that much-maligned word, should, at the age of three score and ten, enter into a vile, damnably treacherous pact to sell this Dominion, part and parcel, to a greedy, pauperizing agreement. No, Wilfrid Laurier may be trusted far more, a thousand times more, than such little-souled brute interest and big interest, which is now putting its hands feverishly deep down into its pockets and spending its selfishly acquired money to keep the selfish pile from dwindling a hair's breadth.

Slavery is dead and gone; buried so long ago that we have all begun to wonder at its really existing. Yet it did exist and lived upon selfishness. Intrinsically, the questions are so far apart that it would be absurd to compare them; the one was a matter of life and death, while the present question is directly a matter of dollars and cents; yet one was and the other is (the anti-Reciprocity campaign) based upon selfishness. A few good people and a great many selfish people fought for slavery, in the Legislature, at the bar, even in the pulpit. Did they really believe their own words when they quoted the Scriptures to justify slavery. Do the selfish, grasping souls, who now shout "Protection," when it is only they that need protection do they really believe in themselves?

Listen to what Lincoln said at the height of his career, regarding the advocates of slavery: Most people have heard it simply because it was worth hearing: "You can fool part of the people all the time, and all the people part of the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time." That is what a section of our party-ridden Conservative friends are trying to do—trying to fool all the people part of the time, but "you cannot fool all the people all the time."

Yours truly,

A Student of the Question.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

Break Away

It's like getting out of prison into the sweet pure air of freedom again, when one "really succeeds" in breaking away from the Coffee habit.

Coffee is said to have more victims than any other nerve-destroying habit and works more in secret.

The aches and ails are not often charged to the real cause —Coffee— until one breaks away and quits for 10 days.

Then the truth comes out.

It doubles the speed in the return to health if Postum is used, for the elements are there to rebuild the broken-down nerve cells.

And Postum well-made is delicious—mild and smooth, with that "snappy" flavour everyone enjoys.

There's a meaty little book, "The Road to Wellville," in packages.

TOTAL ATTENDANCE AT THE EXHIBITION WAS THE LARGEST YET RECORDED

Another Big Crowd on Saturday Afternoon Resulted in 1910 Figures Being Smashed.

A LARGE SURPLUS

As predicted, the 1911 Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was the banner one in the history of the Association. Splendid as were the results in 1909 and still more so in 1910, this year's Exhibition has set a new mark to be aimed at in point of attendance and financial receipts. Although the exact figures cannot be made public to-day it is safe to say that last year's attendance figures were smashed, the amount of money from the concessions was larger, the total receipts bigger, and the surplus will be the largest yet. Last year's surplus was $1,000, but the sum this year will be in excess of this figure. The directors have to thank the citizens of Peterborough for the magnificent manner in which they patronized the Exhibition. It was their splendid support on Friday, both in the afternoon and evening, that sent the total attendance up to record proportions.

There was another grand crowd present Saturday, practically as big as on Friday afternoon.

The perfect weather conditions left no doubt as to the success of the third day. From the large number of strange faces seen up town in the morning it was easy to see that there would be a big attendance at Exhibition Park and this prediction was amply verified by the rise of the afternoon crowd. City people were not as largely represented on Saturday, although there were thousands of them there. The bulk of the crowd, different from that of Friday, came from outside the city, and that the visitors were delighted with the Exhibition is putting it mildly. Everywhere through the crowd an Examiner reporter overheard remarks of a complimentary nature for the fair and for the management. Saturday's crowd saw everything there was to be seen. They viewed the exhibits of live stock and poultry; they inspected the roots and grains in the main building; they patronized the Midway attractions liberally, and they took the keenest possible interests in the programme before the grandstand, especially the horse racing and the judging of the light draught horses.

This last feature took place in front of the stand and the work of the judges was watched with interest. No better carriage or roadster horses have ever been shown in Peterborough. In one class there were no less than thirteen entries, as fine a lot of horses as one could wish to see and the task of the judges in picking first, second and third in this class was not the easiest in the world. The applause that greeted the winner, Mr. Gus. White, of Peterborough however, showed that their decision was a popular one. The ladies' driving event was another feature that was decidedly interesting. There was keen competition and the fair drivers handled the ribbons in a manner that shamed the men in the opinion of some critical horsemen in the crowd. Miss Kate Leary won first prize in this event, with Miss Nellie Graham second, and Mrs. L. T. H. Ardiel third. Mr. Stratton's horses, which, by the way, were shipped to Ogdensburg Saturday night, were shown in front of the stand, and the display, as on the first day, was a treat indeed, the magnificent string being received with rounds of applause.

For the Hall Cup.

During the afternoon the Canadian General Electric team, champions of the Midland Football League and the St. James' team, champions of the Church League met in a game for the R. R. Hall Cup, emblematic of the soccer championship of the County of Peterborough. C. G. E. were the holders of the handsome trophy and they succeeded in securing possession of it for another year by defeating the Church League title holders by 3 goals to nil, after a snappy, well-played game, that was watched with interest by a large gallery of soccer fans. The afternoon was a trifle warm, but the players failed to show much regard for the temperature as the pace was fast from start to finish. Although the C. G. E. had the edge on their opponents, St. James never let up for a moment and had the C. G. E. goal in danger on frequent occasions. The Electricians scored the first goal just before half-time, the second, soon after resuming, and the final one just before the whistle blew. A more extended report appears on the sporting page.

Good Racing.

The horse races provided a lot of excitement and the uniformly good racing of the first day was again in evidence. The first heat of the free-for-all saw the fastest heat stepped on the Peterborough track in a long time, when 'Lou Jean,' Mr. Hodgins' speeder, stepped a mile in 2.15, which is pretty close to the track record. The Orillia trotter was in fine fettle and won the free-for-all handily, leading all the way in each heat, showing a fine burst of speed and splendid action. The chief interest was in the race for second place. Hodgins' "The Undertaker" and Bone's "Dot L" furnished the contention. The two had a great battle, "The Undertaker" taking second in the first heat, while "Dot L" got the place in the next two. Dr. Sinclair, the starter, had some difficulty in this event, having to change drivers behind Jerry Dillard, and fine the driver of "Dot L" $5.00 for persisting in scoring ahead of the pole horse. The summary:

1—"Lou Jean," Hodgins, Orillia 1 1 1
2—"Dot L," Bone, Orono 3 2 2
3—"The Undertaker," Hodings, Orillia 2 3 3
4—Jerry Dillard, Dr. Johnston, Port Hope 4 4 4
Time—2.15, 2.16, 2.17¼.

Patterson's 2.22 Class.

Eddie Jones' "Patterson" won his third race in eight days, by carrying off the 2.22 class from three entries. The Peterborough horse showed the same speed and endurance as on Friday, and was at his best in the last heat. He finished the first heat in fourth place, but won the next three in a row. The Judges were not satisfied with the teaming in the first heat, and the drivers were called to the stand and given to understand that there would have to be a change. There was no trouble after that. M. Storey's "Percy H" won the first heat, giving him second place. The feature heat was the second, when "Patterson," after trotting the first half-mile in third place, made an exciting drive down the back stretch, overhauling first "Robert Patch" and secondly, "Percy H." while the crowd cheered enthusiastically. Following is the summary:

1—"Patterson" E. Jones, Peterborough 4 1 1 1
2—"Percy H.," M. Storey, Peterborough 1 2 3 2
3—"Robert Patch," Hodgins, Orillia 2 3 4 3
4—Lulu Chimes, McIvor, Peterborough 3 4 2 4
Time—2.23, 2.23¼, 2.23¼, 2.23.

EXHIBIT NOTICES

BLACK ORPINGTONS.

One local man, Mr. W. F. Dunnett, Barnardo Ave., made good with his splendid display of Black Orpingtons. He obtained 1st and 3rd on cock birds, and 2nd and 3rd on hens, 1st and 2nd on cockerels, 1st and 2nd on pullets, and 1st on breeding pen. Those wanting Black Orpingtons might write or call on Mr. Dunnett.

F. R. J. MacPHERSON.

No more interesting exhibit at this year's Peterborough's Fall Fair was to be seen than the grand display of stoves and ranges displayed by Peterborough's leading electrician, Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson. Whilst Mr. MacPherson's name is a household word and a synonym for excellence in electrical work of all kinds, his display at this year's Fall Fair was confined to stoves and ranges. Many hundreds, if not thousands, of thrifty housewives and heads of families were posted in the various points of merit concerning stoves, spent a considerable portion of their time investigating and admiring the magnificent display of Supreme Ranges and Supreme Stoves. Among the many superior excellencies of this make of stove might be mentioned the great saving of fuel, a most significant and important item, effected by the Supreme make of stoves. The Supreme Range or stove is actually and absolutely guaranteed to save 50 per cent. of fuel. With the prices for coal now charged by the "Coal Barons," it is well worth considering how or by what make of stove a saving of half your coal bills may be effected. Another noteworthy point is that the Supreme stoves consume their smoke. In a manufacturing city like Peterborough the smoke nuisance is a fast growing menace to vegetation and to human health. By using the Supreme Range or stove, the smoke nuisance is eliminated, and, at the same time, the unconsumed carbon, otherwise escaping into the lambent atmosphere, is made the servant of the man or woman using the Supreme range and used to advantage for cooking or heating purposes. The design of the Supreme stoves is unique and in a handsome class of its own. The Supreme is the latest product of the most modern stove makers' art, Beauty of design is combined with the utmost utility in cooking or heating. The Supreme is the only range in Canada made from original wood patterns. Another point for serious consideration is that the Supreme Range is not sold under a one or two years' guarantee only. The Supreme Range lasts for a life time. To enumerate the many and varied makes and models of the Supreme Ranges and Stoves would take too much space to go into detail. In short, the thrifty housewife, dissatisfied with her old model stove, or the bride, anxious to procure the most economically operated and most serviceable range, should call at the store of Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson, George St., and see the splendid assortment of Supreme stoves on sale there.

ELECTRIC INSTALLATION CO.

One of the enterprising firms of Canada that has faith in the future of Peterborough's growth and prosperity, and have thus invested their money, and connected their destiny and progress with Peterborough, is the Electric Installation Co., 238 George street. This recent addition to Peterborough's more important industries has secured commodious and well lighted premises at the above mentioned address. This company is under the management of Mr. J. A. Ash himself, an electrical expert and a competent judge and connoisseur of high grade and artistic electrical fixtures. The company's exhibit at this year's Peterborough Fall Fair, was one of the most attractive features of the Exhibition, and drew the earnest attention of thousands of visitors. Mr. Ash had a competent staff of employees at the booth and these electrical experts were kept busily engaged from early morning until the evening closing of the Exhibition, explaining, answering questions and taking orders for goods. The Electrical Installation Co. do not confine their energies to display and selling electric fittings and fixtures, but make a specialty of "Wiring" stores, houses, warehouses, etc.

Here is a matter well worth serious consideration. Recently many fires have destroyed considerable property. When the insurance experts made investigation, in too many cases their verdict was, "Defective wiring!" The Electric Installation Co. make a specialty of prompt and guaranteed electric wiring. All the work in this respect is subject to the Fire Underwriters' inspection. Any citizen whose residence or store is wired by this company can retire at night, confident that his property when wired by the Electric Installation Co., J. A. Ash, local manager, is absolutely safe, as well as economically illuminated.

CANADA'S PRIDE RANGES.

One of the most interesting exhibits displayed at the Fall Fair was that at the south-west corner of the Exhibition building by the Canadian Malleable and Steel Range Co. There were shown a large number of kitchen ranges of all styles and prices. Possibly the greatest winner and most popular of this great company's exhibit were CANADA'S PRIDE, CANADA'S IDEAL and KITCHEN PRIDE, all stoves that, from their manifest superiority, over all competitors, commended themselves to the thrifty housewife. These ranges are made of malleable iron and thus, are guaranteed not to warp, crack or break. This make of stove saves the user a large percentage of fuel and gives better results in cooking than any other make. The local agent is Mr. J. Pethick, 331 George street, Peterborough, who with his staff are glad at all times to display their goods. These "Canada" made stoves are sold on "easy terms," i.e., at $1.00 down, and the balance on monthly payments.

STEVE OLIVER'S DISPLAY.

Once more Mr. Steve Oliver, of Lindsay, skimmed the cream of poultry prizes at Peterborough's Fall Fair. This gentleman, who is one of the most noted poultry raisers in Ontario, does not confine his attention to any one brand of this industry, but has a remarkably fine display of many breeds of chickens and geese, etc. Mr. Oliver also had some grand specimens of cattle and swine on exhibition. One pig, less than a year old, attracted the attention of hundreds of farmers who unanimously agreed that never had they seen so large and well proportioned a porker for its age before. It is well worth a visit to the Lindsay Fair on the part of those who failed to see Mr. Oliver's exhibit, to see so magnificent a display of high grade poultry. At the local Fair, Mr. Oliver's aggregation of chickens went a long way towards the unqualified and undeniable success of the poultry exhibition. Among the prizes awarded to Mr. Oliver were first prize for Yorkshire hogs, seven first prizes and one second for fine Jersey cattle and 42 firsts, 27 seconds and 9 third prizes for poultry. As a matter of interest, Mr. Oliver captured $105.50 in prize money. The actual matter of the money, however, is not of such general interest as the splendid display presented by Mr. Oliver, which materially helped to make this year's local fall fair so great a success.

Retain The Hall Cup C. G. E. Won

By virtue of their victory over St. James' on Saturday, the Midland League champions become holders of the championship of Peterborough county, and with it the handsome "Hall" cup, for the second year in succession.

St. James' put up a much better showing than most people expected, and in the first period were more than once near opening an account, but the better judgment of the C. G. E. prevented them scoring. The latter took charge of the game near half-time, and when Smith scored with a beautiful shot from the wing all hope for the "Jimmies" seemed to have fled. The teams changed ends with the C.G.E. leading 1-0, and within ten minutes Geo. Miller put on a second with a sharp shot from close range. Continuing to hold the upper hand and with the wind in their favour in this half, the C.G.E. pressed to the end and Geo. Miller popped on another by smart play close on time. St. James were by no means disgraced, but the C.G.E. won all the way. The game was watched by quite 2000 spectators; the pitch was a poor one from a playing point of view.

Thus the Canadian General team ended the season in flourishing style and Manager Patterson is to be congratulated upon keeping the boys together and capturing the trophy again. An interesting item in connection with the club doings this season has been the regular attendance of their mascot, Master Geordie Benton, who has been present at every game, home and away, including the Barasse game at Toronto. The little chap is a great enthusiast and very popular with the players.

C.G.E. lined up as follows: Goal, E. Morsity; backs, W. Hull and E. Hooper; half backs, E. Allan, A. Pagett (capt.) and W. Dawson; forwards, B. Smith, A. French, Geo. Miller, E. Dawson, W. Boycott.

Mr. Frank Roberts was referee and gave complete satisfaction.

WISE WORDS
A Physician on Food

A physician of Portland, Oregon, has views about food. He says:

"I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not cease with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to protect their health especially by hygienic and dietetic laws.

"With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying to the public that in my own experience and also from personal observation I have found no food to equal Grape-Nuts and that I find there is almost no limit to the great benefit this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence.

"It is my experience that no physical condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach especially at breakfast to start the machinery of the human system on the days work. In cases of indigestion I know that a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts, and cream and I think it is necessary not to overload the stomach at the morning meal. I also know the great value of Grape-Nuts when the stomach is too weak to digest other food.

"This is written after an experience of more than 20 years treating all manner of chronic and acute disease, and the letter is written voluntarily on my part without any request for it." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Presentation To Mr. Patterson

After five pleasant years with Messrs. Cressmans, Mr. Russell Patterson, manager of the Staple Department, is now severing his connections with that firm, to undertake other work in a larger field. On Saturday evening last the members of the staff collected, and amongst enthusiastic wishes for his success, made him a presentation and address. The present consisted of a travelling bag, and a fountain pen suitably engraved, while the address, which was read by Mr. Max Schlulter, was as follows:

For men may come, and men may go,
But I go on forever.
"The River."

Dear Patsy,—You have seen many changes in our little circle, you have seen many of us come and go, and now you have added your name to the list of passers-on. You have decided to change your course in life, to get out of the groove of every-day merchandising and to try for a much higher goal. You have succeeded in the past, you will succeed in the future.

When we look back over the past years, we see you linked arm in arm with the best interests of this business, we see you a boy among the boys and a big brother to the girls—and yet you heed the call to go—you pass on.

You are undertaking what seems to us a gigantic proposition, but we admire your pluck and enthusiasm. You cannot fail, failure is unknown to men of your calibre.

Let us wish you all the success you are striving for, and more. Always count us with your best friends, don't forget the pleasant times we have had together, and that we are watching your progress with keen interest.

You're worth more to us than this little token of esteem represents, so please accept it in the spirit in which it is given—as a remembrance. Three cheers and a Tiger for Patsy.

"The Bunch."

HORSE BOLTED

A South Monaghan young couple had a very exciting experience last evening while driving into the city. When some miles out the horse took fright at something, and bolted, breaking the harness, but was finally stopped by the young man, who exhibited great presence of mind. He tied the broken harness together with his shoe laces and, after considerable delay, proceeded on his way. No other damage resulted.

HOUSE BURNED

A house occupied by Mr. P. Healey, together with a couple of outbuildings, was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon. The fire department were unable to combat the flames owing to the fact that the house was outside of the city limits and the nearest hydrant was over half a mile away. When the fire was first discovered it was located in the barn, which is adjacent to the house. An alarm was immediately turned in. When the brigade arrived the men concentrated their efforts on saving the contents, in which endeavor they were successful to a marked degree, even to the removal of the vegetables which were stored in the cellar, after which procedure they were reluctantly forced to leave the house a prey to the rapidly approaching flames. The origin of the fire is unknown. The house and the building adjacent were estimated to be worth about $700.

Miss Magaret Drummond, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, attired in blue satin, veiled in chiffon and carrying pink roses. Miss Florence Drummond acted as little flower girl. ELLIOTS

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I consider it a duty to write you, during this political campaign. I appeal to my fellow country men to support Mr. J. R. Stratton on Thursday. To represent Peterborough we need no better man; he has done a lot to make Peterborough what she is; her progress has been greatly helped by him, and he is not through yet. I am better acquainted with Old Country politics, as a Liberal there, so shall I vote here. It is in my interests as a workingman to do so. For the Old Country the Liberal Government done something; under the Conservative party she was not recognized. Canada has progressed under the Liberal Government, let her continue to do so. The Conservatives of Peterborough say that our great Liberal Lloyd-George, was too far seeing; he could not judge Canada's welfare. He is a man through and through, and if this reciprocity question was detrimental to the Old Country or Canada herself, Lloyd George is the man that would have said so. We have our Lloyd George in Laurier, the right man in the right place, and if Canada is to still progress, we must keep him there. The man that recognised our home (England) under his government we were granted the preferential tax. Canada to-day is what the Liberal Government has made her. Let them continue with their good work, and as an Englishman I implore you in our own interests to assist them back to power, by giving your vote to Laurier and the best man that will ever represent Peterborough, on the 21st.

Thanking you for your space,

Yours faithfully,

"A Tory."

WILL GIVE UP SEAT

If Mr. Leduc Can Prove His Story of Drugging

LEADER'S GENEROUS OFFER

Ottawa, Sept. 19.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in a statement issued yesterday, undertakes to resign his seat in Quebec East, if the story of Rene Leduc, that his resignation was extorted from him, is substantiated. The Premier's statement reads:

Last evening I received the following telegram:

"Quebec, Sept. 17, 1911.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Ottawa:

"One of your most important chiefs in Quebec East extorted from me, while I was under the influence of liquor, my resignation as candidate against you. I have asked the returning officer, to whom the document has been delivered, to give it back to me. He has referred me to the clerk of the Crown in Chancery. I hereby ask you to give instructions that my extorted resignation be given back to me, and that the election be not stolen. The people of Quebec East desire to vote, and they trust that you will not take advantage of the mistake made.

(Signed) "Rene Leduc."

"It is difficult for me to believe that any friend of mine would be guilty of such conduct as is alleged in the above telegram. I am all the more loth to believe it as the candidature of Mr. Leduc never was considered serious. I have no power over the clerk of the Crown in Chancery, who is an officer of the House of Commons, and who, moreover, I think under the law, cannot take action.

"I have only to add that should the facts turn out to be true, I would not keep the seat under the circumstances, and would deem it my duty to resign and seek a new election.

"Wilfrid Laurier."

Leduc's withdrawal in Quebec East, under whatever circumstances, does not seem to help Dr. Lortie, the Opposition candidate in Soulanges. So says J. G. Foley, clerk of the Crown in Chancery, who has been looking up the law. The election act does not say that a member of Parliament may not be a candidate in another constituency, and in the absence of any direct prohibition, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, though member-elect in Quebec East, will run against Lortie in Soulanges.

It is a foregone conclusion that if he carries Soulanges, he will elect to sit for Quebec East and Lortie will go up against the odds of a bye-election.

Official notification of the postponement of the Thunder Bay election has been received by the clerk of the Crown in Chancery. Mr. Foley has a letter from Returning Officer Horrigan, stating that the size of the constituency did not allow of carrying out the necessary preparations within the time specified. The ballots, he says, were only issued on Saturday, and there are 75 boxes to be distributed over an area of 300 miles.

Appeal Ruled Out.

Ste. Scholastique, Que., Sept. 19.—The petition for a writ of mandamus to restrai nthe returning officer who declared J. A. Ethier, Liberal candidate in Two Mountains, elected by acclamation ,on account of omissions in the nomination papers of his opponent, Andre Fauteux, was argued yesterday before Judge Robidoux. The judge dismissed the petition with costs to the petitioners on the ground that the returning officer, having already made his report to the clerk of the Crown in Chancery, was no longer returning officer and consequently a writ could, not be served on him.

STOLYPIN IS DEAD

Prime Minister of Russia Fails to Survive Serious Wounds

MANY ARRESTS MADE

Kiev, Sept. 19.—Premier Stolypin is dead, the victim of the assassin.

One hundred and fifty of the associates of Bogroff, who shot the Premier, have been arrested.

Dmitry Bogroff talked freely yesterday of his past life, and furnished the authorities with valuable clues. The original confident behavior of the prisoner has given place to despondency, and he is now receiving medical treatment.

Among the versions of the circumstances leading up to the crime, and which must be investigated, is the assertion that Bogroff belonged to a new autonomous revolutionary group, the aim of which is to assassinate individual statesmen. In the course of the questioning Bogroff declared that he held M. Stolypin as one of the most pernicious men of the state.

Another version is that the revolutionaries put Bogroff, who, according to the police, had been filling the dual role of revolutionary agent and police spy, in a dilemma, where he had to kill Stolypin or be himself killed. Bogroff chose to attempt the first alternative.

Representatives of the Jewish community were panic-stricken and begged for protection, and 30,000 troops were poured into Kiev, to prevent excesses. The city is depressed but calm. M. Kokovsoff, the Minister of Finance, who was appointed acting Premier after M. Stolypin was shot, has sent a peremptory circular to the various governors on the maintenance of order. It is stated on excellent authority that M. Kokovsoff will be appointed Premier.

PREMIER STOLYPIN.

Governor-General Trepoff has issued a public notice that disorders will not be tolerated and stringent regulations are published forbidding the carrying of arms. It is officially announced that the manoeuvres are ended and that the troops are returning to Kiev. Hundreds of well-to-do Jews are departing from the city.

Peter A. Stolypin was a tall, handsome man of 55 years. His short-cropped hair was gray, but his beard was dark. He has been described generally as an administrator of ability. He was neither a bureaucrat nor a reactionary in the ordinary sense of those terms, and has been said to have been imbued with liberalism, but determined to put down the revolutionary movements at any cost.

As governor of Saratov, he took such steps against the Terrorists and Liberals alike as won him the detestation of the advanced parties and his life was attempted in 1906. He was appointed Prime Minister by Imperial ukase on July 22, 1906, and stamped out the revolution that had grown to threatening proportions during the Premiership of M. Witte, and which Witte's successor, M. Goremkin, had not been able to control.

Stolypin's life was attempted again in August of that year, when a bomb that killed thirty persons was exploded at his home. The Minister escaped with slight injuries, but two of his children were wounded. As Minister of the Interior, preceding his Premiership, M. Stolypin came into conflict with the Douma, and when he made his first speech before that body, he was greeted with cries of "Murderer!"

The opposition's hatred of Stolypin reached a crisis last March when the upper chamber of the Douma, having rejected his bill for the establishment of the Zemstov of local government in the western provinces, the Premier resigned but was induced to resume office when the Emperor agreed to dissolve the Douma and promulgate the measure under the authority of the fundamental laws.

The Government is considering a suspension of constitutional guarantees throughout Spain. Strikes are general at Bilbao and Saragossa and partially successful at Cadiz, Valencia, Seville and Gijon. It is expected that the workmen will go out at Barcelona, Corunna, and Ferrol.

A SOLEMN WARNING

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Replies Seriously to the Manufacturers

MAY ROUSE COUNTRY

Ottawa, Sept. 19.—Ottawa has tendered Sir Wilfrid Laurier many splendid receptions, both on personal and political grounds. Last night's greeting to the Prime Minister in its enthusiasm and record-breaking crowd exceeded all previous demonstrations. Dey's Arena, the largest auditorium in the city, was packed to overflowing with a crowd of fully ten thousand. The Conservative candidates caught the overflow, and a small opposition meeting was held in a neighboring hall.

The popularity of Mr. Hal McGiverin, the first speaker, was evidenced by the rousing and continued cheers which greeted his appearance. His election on Thursday next is conceded by the local Conservatives. He dealt vigorously with the flag-waving appeal of his opponents, noting that at the same hour Mr. Bourassa, the Empire-breaker, was speaking at Sudbury in open alliance with the Conservative candidate.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived late from Rockland, where he had been addressing a rally on behalf of the Secretary of State. Reaching Ottawa, he was presented with copies of the local evening paper, in which J. R. Booth, the lumber king, and W. H. Rowley, of the E. B. Eddy Co., condemned the reciprocity agreement.

"The manufacturers," said Sir Wilfrid, "have a case, but if they are going to take the position that we cannot benefit the farming classes without injuring the manufacturers, I take issue with them. The Government," he said, "had refused to imperil the manufactures in the negotiations, but the manufacturers must not be surprised if they prepare rods for their own backs at no distant future. If the Canadian manufacturers will not allow the farmers to be benefitted in this agreement, they do not know human nature. The Canadian manufacturers must understand that if as a result of this election this Government is defeated, the Canadian farmer will rest under a sense of injustice. I repeat it not as a menace or threat."

The Government would, if returned pursue an unaltered course to the manufacturers, but a power might be stirred up which they could not control.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier left the Ottawa meeting to Sir Alan Aylesworth and Mr. Murphy, and crossed the river to speak at Hull. He goes to Montreal to-day.

Graham at Kingston.

Kingston, Sept. 19.—Hon. George P. Graham gave the principal address at a rally held in the interests of John McDonald Mowat in the Opera House last night. In addition the addresses were made by the canddate, Hon. William Harty, and George Mills of this city.

Reciprocity was touched on by Mr. Graham at some length. His chief argument was that as the Government had made a good showing during the fifteen years it had been in power, and it would be wise to leave well enough alone. He pictured the great boom that would come to this section of the country when the Welland Canal was deepened to twenty-five feet to allow big grain boats to come here and unload.

Chicago Police Enquiry.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Formal investigation of the charges that the Chicago police have systematically levied tribute for the protection of gambling and other forms of vice, began yesterday. Some of the evidence is said to be of a sensational character and is alleged to involve several police officials.

Ran Aground.

Kingston, Sept. 19.—The steamer Sinbad of the Hall Company of Ottawa ran aground on the Carlton sand, near Cape Vincent, N.Y., coal-laden, on her way from Erie to Quebec.

Lumberman's Slang.

No other industry, perhaps, furnishes so many original, peculiar, and interesting words and phrases of a technical-cum-slangy nature as the lumber industry of Canada. Timber tracts, says Canada, are divided into "limits" or "berths." The growing timber on a tract is a "stand," and the contents of a "stand" are measured in "feet"—a "foot" being a board one foot square by one inch thick, and not a cubic foot. To make a survey of a stand of timber is to "cruise" it, the man who does the work is a "cruiser," and his report thereon is a "cruise." Trees are "falled," and the man who "falls" them is a "sawyer." A man who works in a lumber-camp is known as a "lumberjack" or "shanty man." When going up to camp he speaks of going "up to the shanties." Timber tracts that have suffered the ill-effects of forest fires are said to be "breedy," which is, of course, a corruption of "brule" (burnt).

Still and Dan.

The first meeting and partnership between Mackenzie and Mann in the early days of railway construction in British Columbia is thus reported in Munsey's Magazine for September:

Where's the Bank of Commerce, pard?
I'm looking for it myself, pard.
Let's look together, pard.
Sure, Mike.

Of No Use to Canada.

Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 19.—In presenting the report of the German Conference to the general council of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in North America yesterday, Rev. Dr. E. Hoffmann, of Berlin, Ont., said that the educational institutions of the church in the United States were of no benefit to the church in Canada.

Of a score of students sent to the States in the past twenty-five years to be educated in the seminaries, with one or two exceptions, they had remained on this side of the border, and the exceptions had returned to the United States after having spent a year at the most in the Canadian field.

The report of the Board of Education asked the council to recommend to the synods that have no apportionment for education a per capita apportionment of ten cents for educational purposes, and also asked the synods to make a canvass of their congregations for students for the ministry. The report was approved.

Irish Railway Strike.

Dublin, Sept. 19.—The discontent which has been evidenced for a long time among the employes of the Irish railways reached an acute stage on Sunday night when a general strike on the Great Southern and Western line was declared.

This is Ireland's largest railroad, and it is feared that the strike may become general, although at present the other railroads are only slightly affected.

In Dublin itself large numbers of freight handlers have gone on strike, while at Limerick no trains were sent out owing to a strike among the men there.

Mass meeting were held Sunday in many places in England in order to express dissatisfaction with the railway companies' interpretation of the agreement of August 19.

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bellerive, Que. — "Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise." — Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Bellerive, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y. — I run a sewing machine in a large factory and got all run down. I had to give up work for I could not stand the pains in my back. The doctor said I needed an operation for womb trouble but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did more for me than the doctors did. I have gained five pounds. I hope that everyone who is suffering from female trouble, nervousness and backache will take the Compound. I owe my thanks to Mrs. Pinkham. She is the working girl's friend for health, and all women who suffer should write to her and take her advice. — MISS TILLIE PLANTIC, 8 Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

The Cat's Eyes

And How They Came to Be Restored

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

As the two men entered the darkened studio Bertrand stumbled over something that spat and hissed back at him. There were two points of flame that glared at him from a distant corner.

"Heavens! What was that?" ejaculated Bertrand, with a nervous laugh.

Harris snapped on the shaded electric lamp and turned a carelessly smiling face toward his friend. "No one but Hara—and she won't hurt you. Probably her dignity's ruffled because you used her for a doormat. Here, old girl."

The cat came from behind a deeply valanced chair with deliberately padding velvet footfalls and many a sidelong look at Bertrand. She leaped into the artist's lap and arched her back under his caressing.

"A cat! How the dickens did it occur to you to keep a cat?" growled Bertrand, showing a resentment that seemed entirely out of keeping with the unimportance of the matter.

"Came to me, and so I had to keep her," explained the artist. "See anything queer about her?"

Bertrand stared at the creature, almost with dread in his eyes. She was a sleek, graceful animal of an indefinite smoke gray color, short haired and round headed, with the peculiar ears that mark the Egyptian feline. Her eyes, large and round and pale topaz in color, stared at him strangely. He turned his own glance away hastily.

"See anything queer about her?" repeated Harris.

"Egyptian, isn't she?"

"Yes; something else too."

"Her eyes. She's got a beastly impertinent stare," hazarded Bertrand reluctantly. He hated cats.

Harris laughed. "Observing chap you are," he chuckled. "Hara's eyes are worth five hundred each, eh, old girl?" He tweaked her ears, and the stare of her optics was lost as she bent her head to his caress.

"LOOK AT HER NOW!"

"Give it up," said Bertrand, weary of the subject.

"Blind," explained Harris laconically.

"The devil she is!" vociferated the other.

"She is a devil sometimes; but, all things considered, I call her a very patient lady. Want to hear the story?"

"Yes and no. You know I don't care for cats," admitted Bertrand, settling himself in his chair and lighting a cigar from the box on the table.

"You know I was prowling in Egypt last winter, and among the pyramids of Abusir I came across Hara." He smiled and rolled a cigarette. "My guide had led me into an especially interesting tomb, that of the Princess Hara, whose family had ceased to reign the Lord only knows how many thousand years ago. I had made the rounds of funeral urns, viewed several interesting mummy cases, including those of the princess and some of her retainers, and admired some of the ancient furniture that had been found within the sealed chamber.

"All at once there ran between my feet this cat, not as you see her now, with pure topazes for eyes, but with hollows where eyes had once been. She curled around me and arched her back and mewed pitifully, and when I took her in my arms she stretched herself on my shoulder and laid her velvet tongue against my cheek.

"Oh, yes, I was an idiot, of course. Just because I found her in the tomb of Princess Hara I kept her and called her Hara and bought topaz eyes for her, and here she is. My guide protested and told me great evil would befall me and mine because I adopted the cat. The beggar said she was probably the reincarnated soul of Princess Hara's cat, if not the princess herself. Now, I've read something of that royal lady's life, and I'll admit she was something of a cat. Scratch, will you? Bounce!"

Harris tossed the cat to a distant corner and lifted his handkerchief to his bleeding cheek. "She does that once in awhile," he said ruefully, "and the funny part of it all is that it happens whenever I've been criticising the Princess Hara, whom I really believe was quite a devil in her way. Scat, you brute!"

The Egyptian cat had suddenly taken three long leaps across the room and launched herself at Harris' throat. He tossed her into a heap of cushions and laughingly brought out a bottle of antiseptic solution and applied it to his scratch.

Suddenly he became aware of Bertrand's long silence and looked quickly at his friend. The latter was hunched forward in his chair staring dazedly at the cat, which crouched on her cushions and glared back at him from sightless jeweled eyes.

"What's the matter, Bertrand?" Harris asked sharply.

Bertrand looked up with a little shudder.

"Retribution," he said dully.

"What? What are you talking about?" Harris shook him into an upright position.

"It's retribution," repeated Bertrand, pointing a finger at the cat.

"Explain yourself, old man. I don't know what you're talking about. What has Hara got to do with you?"

"I, too, have been in the tombs of Abusir," said Bertrand, regaining his composure, "but it was several years ago. I committed a little crime—a theft. There; it's out now, although I thought I paid then for what I took. My guide had shown me the mummy of the Princess Hara, and I was attracted by the mummified body of her pet cat, which reposed at her feet. Well, the cat mummy had in its head the finest pair of cat's eye jewels I ever saw—steely blue in color with pale yellow pupils. To make a long story short, I took the cat's eyes and tucked underneath the little cat's body the worth of the jewels. I wanted them for my collection, you know."

Harris nodded assent and added: "You know, I'm a collector myself—coins—and I've been tempted a score of times, so I know all about it. Well, go on, old man, you didn't go back and steal the cat afterward, did you?"

"Why do you ask that?"

"Merely because there was no mummified cat in the Princess Hara's coffin when I visited it."

Bertrand stared with unbelieving eyes.

"Do you mean that?" he asked thickly.

"Yes; it isn't strange, though. The tombs are poorly lighted, and there are people who might fancy a cat mummy. But not for mine!"

"Don't you think it's very strange?" asked Bertrand at length.

"What is strange?"

"That I should take the jeweled eyes from the mummy of Princess Hara's favorite cat and you should visit the tomb later and not see the dead cat, but come across an apparently live one minus its eyes?"

"Great Scott, Bertrand, what are you trying to evolve out of this mess?" laughed Harris, and then as Bertrand's face did not relax its seriousness he added sharply, "You cannot mean that you believe there is any connection between the cat mummy you despoiled of its eyes and—my Hara here?" His voice was incredulous.

"Why not?" demanded Bertrand. "Recollect what you have told me concerning her—how she came to you apparently from nowhere. She is sightless, and she flies into a fury whenever you speak ill of the Princess Hara. Look at her now!"

Hara sat among the cushions, her beautiful topaz eyes fixed on Bertrand's face. Her tail softly lashed the cushions, while her heavy claws nervously pricked in and out of their velvet sheaths.

"What's your idea?" asked Harris after a pause. "Want to replace the cat's eyes and restore the sight of my reincarnated pussy?"

"No harm in trying," said Bertrand doggedly. "I had the stones set in cuff links. I'll pry them out if you'll guarantee to replace them in the cat's head."

"Hara doesn't take kindly to having her eyes fussed with," remarked Harris, "but I have had to take 'em out once or twice and we'll see what can be done with yours. Too bad to spoil your links, though."

"I don't care for them now," remarked Bertrand as he deftly pried the jewels from their setting. "Examine them, Harris, and you'll see that they are peculiar in shape and singularly large. What do you suppose will happen?"

"Several scratches and bites from my gentle Hara," smiled Harris as he caught up the cat and with a few careful movements of gloved hands made the transfer of jeweled eyes.

"By Jove, I believe she likes 'em," laughed Harris as the cat leaped to the floor and approached Bertrand. "Very likely recognizes you as the chap who deprived her of her eyesight and—Oh, my Lord, what is that?"

He pointed a shaking finger at the sleek form of the Egyptian cat, Hara, and Bertrand stared down at the horrible transformation that was taking place at his feet.

Hara, the cat, so lately vibrant with life and activity and spitting venomously at her master, sat in the middle of the rug, apparently shriveling into a small dried replica of a mummified cat.

The two men watched her with bated breath. She suddenly toppled over and lay still, a little dark brown bundle with frayed edges of linen cloth clinging to her form. The only spark of light about her were the jeweled cat's eyes that stared unwinkingly at the ceiling.

There was a smell of myrrh and benzoin and other sweet scented gums.

"That's what's happened," said Bertrand, with a queer laugh. "What are we going to do with it?"

Harris was looking at his watch. "We are going to catch that liner in the morning, and we are going to Egypt to restore Princess Hara's favorite cat to its resting place. As for these topaz eyes, she won't need 'em any more. We may as well let these pay for the trip."

Baby Eczema For Three Years

Three Doctors and Scores of Treatments Failed

The Dreadful Itching Was Stopped and the Sores Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Here is an illustration of the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Ointment has over torturing, itching eczema. By its soothing influence it stops the itching, and it heals the sores as if by magic.

Mrs. W. m. Miller, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema, and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice, and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her, all to no purpose whatever, and all kinds of balms, soaps and lotions were tried, with no results.

"Finally I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to my surprise she immediately began to improve, and was completely cured of that long-standing disease. That was four years ago, when we lived at Cornwall, Ont., and as not a symptom has shown itself since, the cure must be permanent. With a grateful heart I give this testimony to the great value of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

In scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home to allay skin irritations and heal and cure sores, wounds and ulcers. 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Tales of Cities.

At a cost of about $2,500,000 the German city of Hamburg is building twin tunnels under the River Elbe for vehicles and pedestrians.

In London today there are 16,000 fewer paupers than there were a year ago, as a consequence of which at least one big workhouse is to be let or sold.

Quebec is a city without pawnbrokers, the last person in that business having died about thirty years ago. Since that time, it is said, no person has applied for a license. The high license fee is held responsible to a considerable extent for this unusual state of affairs.

Size of Alaska.

Alaska has 590,884 square miles, 378,165,760 acres.

Alaska is more than twice the size of the German empire.

Alaska is nearly thirteen times the size of New York state.

Alaska would make nearly 500 states as large as Rhode Island.

Alaska is something more than one-fifth the size of the United States proper.

Alaska is larger than all the states north of the Ohio and Missouri rivers and east of the Mississippi.

The Writers.

Lord Morley received $50,000 for his "Life of Gladstone."

E. Phillips Oppenheim wrote his first story at eighteen and had his first novel published when he was twenty.

Amelia E. Barr is seventy-nine, has written fifty-nine novels and is still turning them out, two a year. She has had fifteen children.

Hugh Fullerton has been writing baseball for twenty-one years, but the one fretting, consuming ambition of his life, says the Magazine Maker, is to write a cookbook for brides.

Facts From France.

In 1859 there were over a million births in France. Last year there were only 774,358.

The number of flax spindles in France is about 500,000 and of linen looms about 18,700.

Submarine photography is being practiced by the French. Pictures of the sea bottom have been taken, the flashlight being furnished by an alcohol lamp fed from a reservoir of oxygen.

Recent Inventions.

A penholder for bookkeepers which will rule one, two or three lines has been patented by a New Jersey man.

An implement has been invented for slicing a boiled egg evenly—a more difficult task than generally is supposed.

A patent has been granted a Kansan for a portable metal roof, made in sections, to be fastened over a haystack when rain threatens.

AN AMAZING QUAKE

EARLY CANADIANS WERE YELLOW IN THEIR JOURNALISM.

The Story of the Seismic Disturbance of 1663 as Told by a Writer of That Time Vie With the Modern Metropolitan Reporter's Work — Tremors Lasted From February to August —No Lives Were Lost.

The more or less severe but not destructive earthquakes that have visited Eastern Canada are all associated more or less directly with the "Great Champlain and St. Lawrence fault," running from the gulf up the river to Quebec and then curving southwesterly to Lake Champlain, says Dr. Otto Klotz in a report to the Dominion Government. Of these the quakes of 1663, 1791, 1860, and 1870 are the most noted. The first one has gained a certain celebrity from its exaggerated description. This earthquake, which lasted about six months, occurred during the French occupation. We may regard the record of this as the beginning of our literature on seismology, and hence give it a place here, although its scientific value is rather circumscribed.

From a manuscript in the Jesuits' College at Quebec the editor of "Hochelaga Depicta" took the following account of this quake:

"On the 5th of February, 1663, about half-past five in the evening a great rushing noise was heard throughout the whole extent of Canada. This noise caused the people to run out of their houses into the streets, as if their habitations had been on fire; but instead of flames or smoke, they were surprised to see the walls reeling backwards and forwards, and the stones moving, as if they were detached from each other. The bells sounded by the repeated shocks. The roofs of the buildings bent down, first on one side and then on the other. The timbers, rafters and planks cracked. The earth trembled violently, and caused the stakes of the palisades and palings to dance in a manner that would have been incredible had we not actually seen it in many places. It was at this moment every one ran out of doors. There were to be seen animals flying in every direction, children crying and screaming in the streets; and women seized with affright, stood horror-struck with the dreadful scene before them, unable to move, and ignorant where to fly for refuge from the tottering walls and trembling earth, which threatened every instant to crush them to death, or to sink them into a profound and unmeasurable abyss. Some threw themselves on their knees in the snow, crossing their breasts and calling on their saints to relieve them from the dangers with which they were surrounded. Others passed the rest of this dreadful night in prayer, for the earthquake ceased not, but continued at short intervals, with a certain undulating impulse, resembling the waves of the ocean, and the some qualmish sensations, or sickness of the stomach, was felt during the shocks as is experienced on a vessel at sea. . . . The violence of the earthquake was greatest in the forests, where it appeared as if there was a battle raging between the trees; for not only their branches were destroyed, but even their trunks are said to have been detached from their places and dashed against each other with inconceivable violence and confusion, so much so that the Indians in their figurative manner of speaking, declared that all the forests were drunk. The war also seemed to be carried on between the mountains, some of which were torn from their beds and thrown upon others, leaving immense chasms in the places from whence they had issued, and the very trees with which they were covered sunk down, leaving only their tops above the surface of the earth; others were completely overturned, their branches buried in the earth and the roots only remained above ground. During this general wreck of nature the ice, upwards of six feet thick, was rent and thrown up in large pieces, and from the openings in many parts, there issued thick clouds of smoke, or fountains of dirt and mud, which spurted up to a very considerable height. The springs were either choked up or impregnated with sulphur—many rivers were totally lost, others were diverted from their course and their waters were entirely corrupted. Some of them became yellow, others red, and the great river of St. Lawrence appeared entirely white as far down as Tadousac. This extraordinary phenomenon must astonish those who know the size of the river, and the immense body of water in various parts, which must have required such an abundance of matter to whiten it.

In several places, as towards the mountain behind Quebec, the thundering noise and trembling motion continued successively for a considerable time. In others, as towards Tadousac, the shock continued generally for two or three days at a time with much violence. As far as it has come to our knowledge, this earthquake extended more than 600 miles in length and about 300 in breadth. Hence, 180,000 square miles of land were convulsed in the same day at the same moment.

"The circumstance, which appears the most remarkable of all, regards the extraordinary protection of Divine Providence which has been extended to us and our habitations, for we have seen near us the large openings and chasms which the earthquakes occasioned, and the prodigious extent of country which has either been totally lost or hideously convulsed, without our losing either man, woman or child, or even having a hair of their heads touched."

We might add another circumstance, and that is, that the narrators of the above anticipated the sensationalism of our "yellow" journals by two and a half centuries.

His Flag Was Up.

When the crowd assembled for their game of ball Johnnie, the pitcher, was missing. Jimmie was sent to investigate.

"Is Johnnie at home?" asked Jimmie of the sister who answered his knock.

"Course," answered the sister. "Don't you see his shirt on the line?"—Success Magazine.

FOND OF ELECTIONS.

In Switzerland They Select Even Gravediggers by Ballot.

According to Professor E. F. Roget of Geneva, the Swiss have the greatest political intelligence in the world today.

"Every citizen of a canton is a Swiss citizen," says Professor Roget. "One must become a member of some local commune to become naturalised and in order to do so must be accepted by the local communal council.

"Every male Swiss citizen is an elector from the age of twenty, there being no property qualification. Every Swiss is a soldier and every soldier an elector. The federal elector may vote wherever he may happen to be, guarantees being taken that he votes only once.

"The cantons are the political units, and no elector may exercise political rights in more than one canton. On moving from one locality to another the Swiss must wait three months before he may exercise the franchise in his new neighborhood."

Professor Roget declares that "every collective authority in Switzerland is elected.

"The foreigner," he states, "is often surprised to see in a Swiss newspaper on a Monday the results of all kinds of elections on the Sunday. If he had gone into a polling booth on the Sunday he would have found in this corner a clerk at a desk, at which the elector would vote for the local schoolmaster.

"In another corner would be a desk at which he would vote for the local judge, in another part of the same room he would vote for the local gravedigger, and so on through a whole series of officials, all of whom are popularly elected.

"The result of this training is that the political intelligence of the Swiss is extremely developed, and that he thoroughly understands what he is voting about at home in his native country, and that when he goes abroad he finds it very easy to understand and to take part in any political movements among which he may find himself."—Exchange.

A Sincure.

General Horatio C. King, on one occasion narrating some war memories, said:

"We suffered many hardships on both sides, but the poor, brave Confederates suffered most. I remember a grizzled old colored man who at the outbreak of the Spanish war applied for a place as an army cook.

"'What experience have you had?' the old fellow was asked.

"'I was cook, sah, fo' a Confederate regiment in sixty-fo',' he answered—'that is, sah, I had the position of cook, but, to tell the truth, I didn't work at it.'

"'Why not?'

"'There wasn't nothin' to cook, sah.'"

Doctors in Russia.

Dr. Ralph Thompson, in Medical Europe, states that "in Russia nobody ever asks a physician the amount of his bill. It is universally understood that a gentleman pays his doctor a fair sum—such a sum as he can afford to pay within the limits of his income and his sense of generosity. The Russian mind cannot conceive how a man engaged in the holy pursuit of saving life and alleviating suffering can put a price on his services." After this it is not surprising to learn from the same authority that Russia is the only European country of importance where the medical profession is not overcrowded.

The City of the Dove.

When mighty Amra went to conquer Egypt he camped on the east bank of the Nile opposite Memphis, that great twenty miles long capital of mud bricks whose western verge was the pyramids and whose mud brick houses have all vanished. Amra crushed the Egyptians and came back to get his camp to move over and occupy Memphis. A dove had built in the folds near the top of his tent. Blood bathed Amra, the ruthless, would not let her be disturbed. A new city started about his tents. It grew northward along the Nile. It is today Cairo. Memphis is only a name.

Getting Back.

"Gee, no!" exclaimed the pretty cash girl. "I don't want nothin' to do with you. I wouldn't marry you if you was the last man on earth. Is that plain enough English for you?"

"It is certainly plain enough," said the mortified bookkeeper, "but it isn't English."—Chicago Tribune.

The Dear Girls.

Milly—You know, dear, we've been engaged for two years, and I think it's time we were getting married. Tilley—Oh, I don't know, dear. If you really love him you'll let him be happy for a little longer yet.

Pandemonium.

"Nature knew what she was doing when she deprived fishes of a voice."

"How do you make that out?"

"What if a fish had to cackle over every egg it laid?"—Exchange.

Fame can never make us lie down contentedly on a deathbed.—Pope.

No Wedding Day Bargain.

The Husband (during the quarrel)—You're always making bargains. Was there ever a time when you didn't? The Wife—Yes, sir; on my wedding day.—Variety Life.

The Cynic.

"Married yet, old man?"

"No, but I'm engaged, and that's as good as married."

"It's better, if you only knew it."

Suffering is part of the divine plan.—Beecher.

THE LONG TRAIL OF PERIL THAT LED TO LIBERTY

HOW Four Civil War Officers Escaped from the Confederates Only to Undergo Manifold Dangers and Hardships on the Flight Back to the Union Lines

SHOULD all the campfire chronicles of the War of the Rebellion be compiled, none of those matchless narratives of death and daring, romance and adventure, would surpass the story told here. This is the tale of the escape of four Union officers who had fallen into the hands of the Confederates. Leaping from a moving train, they tramped through South Carolina, North Carolina and Eastern Tennessee to Knoxville, a journey of approximately one thousand miles. Their flight lasted forty-seven days, during which they were in constant danger of recapture. Bloodhounds once pursued them, and the ragged quarry took refuge by night in a swamp infested with snakes. The writer himself marched barefoot for several hundred miles three days amid snow. He had neither hat nor coat to protect him from the chill mountain blasts.

Worthy of the imagination of a master dramatist in the actual episode of the pitched battle of brother against brother. The writer gives a stirring description of this clash, in which the kinsmen, estranged by their conflicting impulses of patriotism, led the opposing forces.

BT. BRIG. GEN. J. MADISON DRAKE

WHEN the tocsin sounded in April, 1861, in common with three thousand New Jerseymen, I organized a company of volunteers and hastened to the defence of the nation's capital, and for four long years, without missing a day's duty, served my country in a cheerful manner. I will not tax the reader's patience by attempting to describe the numerous battles or the many long and fatiguing marches through which we passed in that time, but simply relate a chapter or two from my experiences in various prison pens and a brief account of a journey I made, accompanied by three companions, from Charleston, S. C., to the Union lines at Knoxville, Tenn., requiring forty-seven days and nights to accomplish the task.

Captured in the sanguinary conflict at Drewry's Bluff, Va., at an early hour on the morning of May 16, 1864, by a brigade of Alabamians, commanded by General "Archie" Gracie, whom I knew in my boyhood, I was, with a portion of my command, promptly escorted to the wharf under the frowning battlements of impregnable Fort Darling, which overlooked the majestic James River at a height of nearly two hundred feet.

We took passage on a Confederate gunboat, and two hours afterward disembarked at Rocketts, in Richmond, the capital of the Southern Confederacy, where a motley crowd had assembled to witness the landing of Yankee prisoners of war. A short walk through a prominent street brought us to a large three story brick building, in the rear of which flowed the placid Kanawha Canal and James River. Over a low door in the northeastern corner of this dismal yet carefully guarded structure I read the ominous sign, "Libby & Son, Ship Chandlers and Grocers," and my heart became sorely disquieted, as I knew that thousands of patriotic Union soldiers who had entered the yawning portal had left hope behind when the iron clad door swung to with an alarming clang at their heels.

The keeper of the prison, "Dick" Turner, a Northerner by birth, speedily relieved us of whatever valuables we possessed, greenbacks and jewelry preferred. He relieved our minds by assuring us that on our departure the valuables would be returned, but Turner had a bad memory, and we lost our deposits. Besides retaining our treasure Turner showed his unfitness to entertain gentlemen by serving a very poor bill of fare. In fact, it was the same menu day after day, when he did not forget us entirely, which he occasionally did. None of his boarders was ever afflicted with gout.

At an early hour one morning in June, when General Grant's guns were thundering through the Wilderness and we were confidently expecting to see our cavalry surrounding our prison house we were rudely awakened by the guards, hustled out into the street and marched double quick across the Mayo bridge over the James to Manchester, where we embarked on a train of filthy cars used the day before in transporting cattle. We were here joined by one thousand of our enlisted men who had been confined on Belle Isle, an island in the middle of James River. Many of them were afflicted with scurvy. A long and tedious ride, requiring several days, brought us to Macon, Ga., where I found 1,500 fellow officers confined in an open pen.

It was here, as well as at Savannah, where I was subsequently confined, that I engaged in tunnelling projects with a view of escaping. Our labors, however, in this direction proved futile. Mountains of difficulty were overcome by men whose souls aspired to breathe the air of freedom, but treachery accomplished the ruin of promising projects and adverse fate paralyzed the strong arms which were ever ready to execute noble purposes. If our keepers relied in their vigilance to detect our enterprising excavations some detestable comrade (?) with a greed for favors at the hands of our jailers would convey to them information of our operations. More than once did I work through the long night in digging tunnels and skulk to my so-called quarters just as daybreak came peeping in, with my hands lacerated and my strength exhausted, only to find that some contemptible poltroon had treacherously defeated our plans.

When the yellow fever reached its worst stage, in September, we were transferred from Savannah to Charleston, myself and others being thrown into the jail yard, where I got delectable quarters directly under the scaffold. Here I was compelled to remain day and night with no covering save the star spangled firmament. The bursting shells sent into the city from our batteries along the coast, had some terrors for us, but they seemed less dangerous

My thoughts weighed heavily upon me during my imprisonment, but never so painfully as at Charleston, where I had no diversion, tunnelling being out of the question. I had no correspondence with my family or friends, or with my gallant comrades in the regiment, and was profoundly ignorant of events in the outer world.

The Plot to Escape.

Early in October rumors prevailed that we were to be removed to some other point, and believing that an opportunity for escape would at last present itself I invited three friends—Captain Harry H. Todd (a gallant Scotsman), of the Eighth New Jersey Volunteers; Captain J. E. Lewis, Eleventh Connecticut Volunteers, and Captain Alfred Grant, Nineteenth Wisconsin Volunteers—to join me in an attempt to regain freedom. Providentially, we found a portion of an old school map of South Carolina and, after carefully studying it, quickly decided upon a plan of action.

Six hundred officers were called off next morning, October 6, and marched to the railroad station, where we took passage on dilapidated cars, attached to which was a rickety, wheezing, wood burning locomotive. As our train passed slowly along the outskirts of the pestilential city our attention was attracted to a camp on the race course grounds, filled with the most wretched looking beings it ever fell to my lot to look upon. They were Union soldiers—prisoners of war. Although we were greatly distressed, many of us in rags, covered with filth and ever-present vermin, and half starved, others of us unable to stand or walk owing to scurvy, yet our hearts went out to those brave enlisted men thus huddled together in the open air.

Myself and three chosen companions having matured our plans for flight, all that remained was to put them into execution. During the forenoon I took the precaution to remove the percussion caps from the rifles of the seven armed guards who bore us company in the box car in which we travelled. I did this to prevent them from injuring any one in the excitement attending our flight; also to delay them in giving an alarm to the engineer by firing their guns.

The shades of night were enveloping the earth as our train reached the long wooden structure spanning the Congaree River a short distance above its confluence with the swift flowing Wateree, and to us, in perfect readiness to leap from the car, it seemed as if it would never reach the opposite bank, so intense was our anxiety to make a stroke for freedom and "God's country," a term by which prisoners of war designated the North. The instant Captain Todd gave the long expected signal we each sprang from the rapidly moving car.

Rifle flashes (we could not hear the reports, so distant was the train) warned us that much remained to be done, and done quickly. It was while contemplating the necessity of entering a dark and forbidding looking cypress swamp to evade enemies now in active pursuit that we heard the rush and roar of an approaching storm. The trees set up a mournful

"Turned and Saw His Younger Brother, Whom He Relentlessly Hated, Standing, Rifle in Hand, Within Clear View, He Levelled His Gun and, Uttering a Fearful Curse, Discharged the Weapon."

dreaded bloodhounds and the hoarse voices of our excited human pursuers, which we heard all through the long night, admonished us to submit to every discomfort rather than endanger our highly prized freedom. Convinced that the water through which we had wearily waded had destroyed our trail and that so long as we remained in our present position the dogs would be unable to reach our hiding place, we studiously avoided all conversation during the night and following day, remaining perfectly quiet.

When the shades of night again fell we found a bright new moon to cheer us in our loneliness, and feeling that our pursuers had departed we cautiously made our way to the edge of the swamp, which we found at this point to be bordered by a plantation. We held our breath as we listened some time for human sounds, and finding everything, as still as a graveyard emerged from our cover and skirting the right bank of the Wateree River pushed forward in our flight.

Set Upon by Fierce Dogs.

Having no desire to visit Columbia, whither our comrades had gone by train, we hastened toward the river, and had gone but a short distance when a pack of ferocious dogs hounded after us. A long run enabled us to evade the savage brutes, and while congratulating ourselves upon our narrow escape we came plump upon three white men standing near a sawmill. They gave chase, but we succeeded in eluding them by making our way into an almost impenetrable swamp, close at hand. Hideous serpents of various kinds compelled us to seek safety on the trunk of a huge pine tree, prostrated long since by age and infirmity. We had considerable difficulty, after the sun went down, in getting out of the swamp, but we forgot some of our tribulations on discovering a bed of sweet potatoes, to which we helped ourselves.

Before the lapse of a week we met with a great misfortune in the loss of our cooking utensils, including knives, spoons, towel and several boxes of matches. The rations with which we had provided ourselves before starting having given out, we sought sustenance in the cornfields and swamps, and early one morning were enjoying a feast in the woods skirting a sweet potato patch when a party of horsemen dashed furiously toward us. We had not anticipated danger in so lonely and secluded a spot and were perhaps a little careless in our movements. But self-preservation being the first law of nature, and having no weapons of defence, we sprang instinctively to our feet and ran in an opposite direction, leaving all our valuables—necessities they were—behind.

The ever growing question of subsistence at length became so desperate that it looked as if we should be skirts of fields, diligently seeking corn and beans, and occasionally finding a stray ear which, spurred by a ravenous appetite, we managed to masticate, the process nearly breaking our teeth.

We had a remarkable adventure at the midnight hour near Dalton, N. C. Breathless from a long chase by a dozen horsemen we halted in a dense wood to regain strength, and while thus engaged heard a man and woman approaching, both singing from the depth of their lungs. Taking it for granted they were negroes we concluded to invite their assistance, and when the couple reached us we stopped them. The woman, with a yell of terror, ran off like a frightened deer, while the man, in a voice that betrayed no nervousness, asked who we were. His challenge satisfied us he was a white man, and the click of a pistol gave evidence of his ability to defend himself.

Necessarily, we resorted to conventional strategy, putting and answering questions with the utmost wariness, all the time wishing we had allowed him to pass unchallenged. It required but a brief time, however, to discover the status of the stranger, and probably he had never been embraced before with the vehement warmth we displayed on discovering he was a loyalist, a firm friend of the American Union. He insisted upon our visiting his home, two miles away, which we did by following a path in the woods, thus avoiding mounted patrols, which continually scoured the country.

His amiable wife, who had awaited his return from town, speedily prepared an excellent supper, the first square meal we had had in six months, to which we did the fullest justice, the smiles and kindly words of our hostess seasoning the rich repast. That night, sitting before a cheerful blaze of that noble North Carolinian's great hearth, he told us the story of the loyalty of the people in the western section of the State, proving to us that freedom still had brave defenders among the hardy foresters of the "Old North State."

When the rising sun, dazzling and radiant, shot suddenly golden beams of light we were several miles beyond Dallas, our brave and genial host, C. C. Withers, formerly a member of the Legislature, having accompanied us some distance, and after directing us to other Unionists, he disappeared in the deep shadows of the woods surrounding us.

A Generous Foe.

We now pursued our journey with lighter hearts and nimbler feet, notwithstanding our boots were fast giving out. Long before we reached the majestic Catawba River, in North Carolina, I was compelled to walk barefooted and, much as I suffered, it was no comparison to what I underwent after reaching the mountains. While making our weary way through a pine woods and endeavoring to give a wide berth to the town of Morganton, a rendezvous for Confederate conscripts, we were almost paralyzed on discovering, a few yards away, and directly in our course, a splendid looking Confederate officer mounted upon a fine horse. In his holsters were a brace of pistols and at his side dangled a well worn sabre. Retreat on our part would have been useless, and we instinctively halted as the horseman stood before us with sympathy depicted in his every look. He asked no questions, apparently understanding our desires, directed us to the best point for crossing the Catawba River, whose angry roar we could plainly hear, and putting spurs to the noble animal he gracefully bestride dashed away. How our hearts went out to that gallant soldier as we resumed our tramp! Two hours later we stood upon a high bluff overlooking a rushing stream which required two days' time to cross.

This speedily brought us into Caldwell county, where we providentially met many deserters from the Confederate armies—men who were impressed or driven into a service which they had condemned from the start. These brave men, headed by the numerous Estes family, welcomed us with open arms.

We had but little difficulty in persuading a hundred and more of these loyal North Carolinians to accompany us to the Union lines, reaching which we promised to use our best influence in procuring them arms and clothing, and with but little hesitation they bade their wives and little ones farewell and started on a long journey across the highest mountains east family of a Baptist clergyman named Prichett. These good people, despite their wretchedness, extended a kindly welcome, bidding us make ourselves as comfortable as the limited capacity of the log cabin allowed. Most of our party, however, continued on to what was called the "rock house," a huge bowlder under which Mr. Prichett and his two sons had often found refuge when sought for by the Confederate soldiers. Mrs. Prichett regretted she had no meat with which to regale us, but shortly after "Jim" Pahyaw, a noted Union scout, arrived with a young black bear he had killed near the old mansion below.

During the night a violent snowstorm set in, and when day appeared the ground was covered with fleecy flakes to the depth of six or seven inches. My heart almost failed as I remembered that I was without covering for my lacerated and bruised feet, my boots having long since become useless; that I had no hat; that my thin blue blouse was in tatters; that my red flannel shirt, which I had worn more than six months without a change, was threadbare, and that my trousers scarcely reached to my knees owing to hard usage. I feared I must now certainly perish—so intense was the cold which suddenly set in in great earnest—so biting the blast that swept the mountain.

After the noon hour, however, our friends were persuaded to resume the tramp, which increased my sufferings more than tongue or pen can tell. My companions pitied me and had great solicitude, but they could do nothing to ameliorate my condition. Fortunately, just before night we were joined by Major E. A. Davis, Lieutenant James Hartley and half a dozen men belonging to Colonel G. W. Kirk's Third North Carolina Mounted (Union) Infantry, who had come up from Cumberland Gap to obtain recruits for that command. With their Henry rifles (sixteen shooters) the detachment was a valuable acquisition.

Brother Fights Brother.

While making our tedious way down the great hillside next day we were surprised at the sudden appearance of Miss Banner, fiancée of Lieutenant Hartley, living at Crab Orchard, Tenn., bringing the alarming intelligence that Captain John Hartley, a brother of the Union lieutenant, was advancing in our direction at the head of his company of Confederate Rangers. Major Davis and Lieutenant Hartley, burning to punish their enemies despite the disparity in numbers, at once decided to offer battle and promptly deployed their little force along a ridge commanding the pass, each man taking cover from convenient trees and anxiously awaiting the close approach of the enemy.

The Confederates, totally unmindful of danger, with no suspicion of our proximity, entered the pass at high noon, only realizing a sense of their awkward position and danger when Lieutenant Hartley, boldly stepping from the covert of a tree, called upon his brother to surrender. His vibrant voice, ringing among the painful solitude of the everlasting hills, paralyzed the oncoming enemy for a single moment, but when the fearless Confederate leader turned and saw his younger brother, whom he relentlessly hated, standing, rifle in hand, within clear view, he levelled his gun and, uttering a fearful curse, discharged the weapon, the well aimed bullet tearing through the Union lieutenant's cap. This reply to the imperious command to surrender was instantly followed by the sharp crack of a hundred rifles. The Confederates were defeated and compelled to retreat, uttering fearful maledictions as they marched away, leaving their dead behind.

Reaching Crab Orchard, we were compelled to stop owing to the cold and the slippery state of the ground. A Mr. Buck generously contributed a cow, which, being slaughtered, afforded us a change of food. Most of our party quartered in a cave between two mountains, myself and three companions stopping at the comfortable and hospitable home of Mr. Francis Marion Hampton, a member of the Legislature and a cousin of General Wade Hampton, of South Carolina. He came down from his cave on the mountain and had a long talk with us. He had occupied the cave more than a year, seeing his family daily from that place of refuge.

A few days afterward we reached the chain of the Great Smoky Mountain range, the very spot of all others we had been particularly enjoined against visiting, owing to the presence there of Indians, acting in the interests of the Confederacy.

It was while crossing Indian Creek at midnight that we had a startling surprise, and a fearful tragedy was averted with difficulty. A horse and mule we had appropriated a few days before proved of great usefulness in ferrying our party across the torrent. Each animal carried two persons across the flood at a time, then by means of a long rope was guided back for other passengers. Most of our party had thus been ferried to the left bank when the North Carolinians and Tennesseeans, among whom bad blood had existed for several days, became embroiled in a fierce fight. For a time it was a serious affair, several of the combatants being badly cut. We had much trouble in stopping the battle and in reconciling the malcontents.

It was from the summit of Higgins' Ridge that I for the first time, gazed upon and across the lovely Cumberland Valley. Far below we saw Greenville, the old home of Andrew Johnson, who, a few days previously, had been elected Vice President of the United States. Bull Gap, too, where a portion of the Union army was said to be posted, and our present objective point, was within sight, but a long distance away.

Loses His Companions.

Desperately in want of food, Captains Todd and Grant, who started with Captain Lewis and myself from Charleston six weeks previously, went off in search of provisions. During their absence a young mountaineer who manifested deep concern for me begged me to accompany him to his cave, where, he assured me, safety and many comforts would be found. While he was laboring to induce me to accept his generous invitation we were startled by the sound of heavy hoofbeats, the rapid firing of small guns and the demoniac yells of many horsemen rapidly advancing up the deep and wild ravine in which we had located, thinking the spot immune from danger. The bushwhackers, whom we had dreaded and who had pursued us the previous day, had discovered our hiding place.

Thus fearfully aroused from a train of sad reflections, I sprang from the trunk of a large tree on which I had been reclining, while the mountaineer was engaged in the task of providing a pair of moccasins from rabbit skins, and, without taking ceremonious leave of my friend, dashed directly up the steep mountain side, lacerating my bare feet and legs as I ran in my headlong course among the rocks and brush which lined my rough and darkened pathway. I need scarcely add that my flight up the great hill was accelerated by a shower of bullets. Finally attaining the summit, accomplished only by painful and laborious effort, I fell unconscious.

How long I remained in that state I have no means of knowing, but when I awoke I realized that I must certainly perish unless I could get my blood in circulation. I set to work, indulging in such exercise as I was capable of. To add to my discomfort an easterly wind, that pierced to the marrow, brought a sale and heavy rain, intermingled with hail, thoroughly saturating what little apparel remained upon my attenuated body, down which ran copious streams of icy water. The hailstones beat upon my unprotected head, arms and feet, while the cold that had set in was so intense that I had but little use of my hands. My feet, frozen some days previous while crossing Grandfather Mountain, seemed like balls, so benumbed had they become.

That night was the longest, dreariest and most appalling of any I had ever experienced. What had become of my comrades I knew not, nor had I any means of ascertaining, but along toward noon, when on the brink of despair, my weak and pulsating heart rejoiced when sounds of human voices were borne to my listening ears. Secreting myself until I became convinced they were friends, I rushed down the mountainside to find Captain Lewis and a score of the refugees who had followed us from North Carolina. Captains Todd and Grant were missing. They reached our lines in Kentucky some days afterward.

In less than a week we were safe within the Union [illegible]ville, whose citizens were in a high state [illegible] consequent upon the approach of Breckinridge.

PROFESSOR ON THE GRIDIRON.

Harry Griffiths Is No Longer For Varsity Campus.

In Ontario there is a schoolmaster of high distinction in romance languages who never gets credit for being an academician at all. To his students he is known as "Harry"; to a large part of the student body of the University of Toronto even more intimately as "Red." The great Canadian sporting public speak of him adjectively as "Reddy"—"Reddy" Griffith. They think that they know him. But the electric, little auburn-haired man, who turns out championship college Rugby teams in Toronto is a many-sided genius.

Mr. H. C. Griffith was a professor in the French department of the University of Toronto. For several years he has acted as honorary coach to the college football club. So great has become his reputation in the football world, that his real academic position the public have completely overlooked. Now, that is not because Griffith does not count in the lecture room, but because fame catches a man quicker pulling off athletic stunts than examining French papers. That Griffith really after all draws a professor's salary, the public have been reminded lately. He says he is not going to teach any more French at Toronto. And that means that in a few weeks, when the leaves begin to yellow, and the gridiron squads to trot out on the campus at the Ontario University, there will be no dynamic "Reddy" Griffith teaching signals to Toronto pigskin artists. And all over the Dominion there is a sigh from hundreds of seniors and fair coeds and freshmen.

They don't want to lose him. Griffith, the student's faculty hero, has carried their interests to a grand stand finish. No man at the University of Toronto ever did more for athletics and esprit de corps than H. O. Griffith. He has done a great deal for the uplift of sport outside of his own constituency. Griffith is an idealist in sport. In that sense he is the professor on the gridiron. At the American colleges there are professorial football enthusiasts. At Soldiers' Field you may see them sitting in boxes at the championship games. They differ from Griffith. Season after season he has given every night of his time to exhorting, cheering and teaching a bunch of raw boys punting, tackling and trick plays. He has never got a single cent for it. Highly paid professional coaches attend to the training of Harvard and Yale gladiators. The faculty look on.

Why does Professor Griffith step from the cloister and coach football teams? Because he loves the game, and he's just as much a college boy as a professor. He's a diverse personality.

There is "Reddy" Griffith, a short, tense figure in tweed suit and tan gloves, hatless, chasing a ball around a field, a pack of panting youths at his heels. "Follow up, seconds! Follow up—up!" Then there is the scholar with as keen a love for hunting down slips in French grammar as has the wizard of the gridiron for uncovering bad team work. This football Griffith is a sphinx when you ask him about the team's chances. When the Dominion was on tip-toe last year just before the 'Varsity-Hamilton conflict, to the pressmen he was taciturnly polite. He loses his nerve only when the camera snaps. Griffith, the professor, is somewhat of a lackadaisical person, tripping over to Europe every summer to stroll on the boulevards and in the cafes and art galleries, and when he come back and gets a few fellows in his room, he can keep them up all night with whimsical reminiscences of the Latin Quarter.

Griffith is leaving 'Varsity, and the worries of the Intercollegiate Union. To become a bromide? Not Griffith. He has became a master of that live prep. school for boys at St. Catharines—Bishop Ridley. He is a graduate of this school, and he has always had a hunger to get back.—Canadian Courier.

His First Flight.

For some years there has been a dispute in Toronto between store magnate J. C. Eaton and others as to the first Toronto man to own an automobile, which distinction Mr. Eaton claims. There need be no controversy in future ages about the owner of the first aeroplane in the Queen City. He is J. J. Jackson. Mr. Jackson's bird is a Bleriot, like that of De Lesseps, seen by Canadians last year.

Mr. Jackson has tried out his machine, and his short flight was probably the most exciting experience ever endured by a mere Torontonian. It was at the Donlands aviation meet that Jackson got ambitious to soar. One evening in the twilight, after McCurdy and Willard had electrified spectators for an hour or so, Jackson, who had never been [illegible] before, suddenly [illegible] great energy, trotted out his machine, climbed into the seat, grabbed the steering wheel, turned on the power and—up. Thirty feet he rose, and he went. The Bleriot bucked like an unbroken colt. The propellor insanely thrashed the air, engine fussed, Jackson hung on like a cowboy. At last he grew tired of being an air-man. He steered for earth. Then he fell. The bird crushed its owner against its framework. Jackson was lucky to escape with his life. But he's plucky. He smashed a good deal of his first machine, but he says he's going to follow up the game until he becomes a real live bird.

Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, says, referring to the infantile death rate from intestinal diseases and diarrhœa spread by the house fly, he believes that the so-called harmless fly is yearly causing the death of thousands of infants, as well as spreading the germs of typhoid fever.

FREAK APPETITES.

Animal Repasts Have Been Both Queer and Costly.

Cat-owners have written of cats which liked parsnips and jam-tarts, and others which revelled in mushrooms, tomatoes, and cocoanut cake.

But it has remained to Devonport to produce a pussy which feasted on hatpins. The landlord of the Friendship Inn at Devonport has a cat which swallowed a nine-inch hatpin, head first, and the point of which was found sticking out of the poor creature's head. A veterinary surgeon operated, and the victim is convalescent.

A cat belonging to a farmer at Ballina, New South Wales, taught itself to catch fish, and would dive into the sea and bring out mullet, which it ate with delight. Alas! its angling career was ended by a hungry shark.

A bullock butchered at Hadleigh seems to have been training itself to emulate the ostrich. In its stomach were found over ninety pieces of bricks, two nails, and a fair-sized lump of iron. The pieces of brick, some of which were as large as a hen's egg, were worn perfectly smooth, and one of the nails had pierced the coat of the stomach; yet the animal was fat, and in good condition.

About two years ago a dog-owner was summoned by the S.P.C.A. for cruelty to his dog. It was proved that he had given it biscuits soaked in whisky, and that the animal had fallen dead. In the evidence it was stated by a veterinary surgeon that quite a number of animals have a taste for this form of refreshment.

Mons. Beron, a Parisian hatter, whose shop is in the Boulevard de Belleville, was justly proud of the fine array of Panama hats which adorn his premises the summer before last. One afternoon in July, on returning to his shop after a short absence, he found a horse inside, busily devouring the last of a row of ten of his best hats. These hats were worth about $20 apiece. So the hungry horse's meal was worth a good deal more than the animal itself.

Talking of expensive meals, a most extraordinary claim was made against the National Bank of Belgium. An old peasant woman had laid on the grass her jacket, in the pocket of which were banknotes to the value of $250, her life-savings.

While she was at work, her pet goat got at the coat, and ate part of it, including the notes.

The meal was poor nanny's last. She was killed, the chewed remains of the notes were recovered from the stomach, and the bank, after verifying the facts by chemical analysis, paid the claim.

Here is another goat story too good too lose. Mme. Poisson, a widow, dropped a banknote for $20 in the Rue de Vanguard, in Paris. A man leading a goat was pointed out to her as having picked it up.

"It is quite true," said the man; "and I was going to give it back, when my goat snatched it and swallowed it."

The lady called the man a thief, and the lady, man, and goat were taken to a police-station. The man's story was disbelieved, and, in desperation, he told them to kill the goat and look inside it.

This was done, and, sure enough, the remains of the note were found. The owner then claimed for the loss of his goat, the widow refused to pay, and there followed an action for false arrest, slander, and compensation.

Salt and Tobacco.

Many smokers have adulterated their own tobacco. Parr sprinkled his pipeful with salt to make it last longer. And it does. Parr, one of the most leisurely of smokers and longest of livers, made his salted pipe last an hour. There is a faint crackling as the salt burns, but no difference in the taste. And it was Lamb who, disdaining adulterants, sat opposite and smoked in furious clouds. When Parr asked gently how he had attained this fierce dexterity the reply was characteristically Lamb's, "By-by t-toiling after it, sir."—London Standard.

MR. DENISON'S MUSKRAT.

He Evaded the Meal With True Machiavellian Cunning.

Mr. A. R. Denison, of Toronto can plan hunting trips and fishing expeditions with the same facility which he shows in planning buildings, says The Toronto Star Weekly. He is the architect of many a wild thing's misfortune, and never so happy as when living next to nature. Sometimes, however, it is unpleasant to get too near to nature—even human nature. Here's a story which demonstrates it.

The scene is laid in the northern part of the province, and the beginning of things is the shooting of a muskrat. Mr. Denison left it lying on a portage. An Indian found it. The Indians esteem these creatures a great delicacy, and the brave in question planned a feast.

It so happened that he had long been anxious to do Mr. Denison a good turn. With this in mind, he called upon the architect, and invited him to be his guest at the forthcoming banquet. The white man was too good-natured to refuse, and the delight which he would experience in eating muskrat became the derisive talk of the camp. Mr. Denison, however, determined to take precautions, and when he started forth for the Indian's tent, he carried a generous basket of white man's provisions.

Arriving at his destination, he found the muskrat revolving on a spit over a fire which had browned it deliciously. His red host was jubilant. Not so the guest, who had secretly hoped that someone would steal the animal before the hour appointed for its dismemberment. The conversation which ensued when they finally sat down to dinner was something like this:

Denison—"Well, John, you consider the muskrat a great delicacy, don't you?"

John—"Yes."

Denison—"Have it very often?"

John—"[illegible] very scarce now."

Denison (after an awkward pause)—"John, I brought a lot of provisions in that basket."

John (rather dubiously)—"Yes."

Denison (sparring for time)—"You say you don't get muskrat very often?"

John—"Very scarce."

Denison (suddenly inspired)—"Well, look here. In Toronto we get muskrat every day. I have him for breakfast, dinner, and supper; nothing we get so much of as muskrat."

John (enviously)—"Heap good."

Denison—"So you see, John, it would be a shame for me to eat part of this muskrat when I get them every day at home, and you hardly ever have them. I'll just eat some of these provisions I've brought, and you can have the muskrat all to yourself."

It is said that John never suspected the real situation, and that he not only gobbled the whole muskrat without assistance, but managed to help empty the visitor's basket as well.

Honored Abroad.

Dr. Richard Andrew Reeve, of Toronto, upon whom the University of Birmingham, England, has conferred the honorary degree of LL.D., is professor of ophthalmology in the University of Toronto, and has been for years one of the leading specialists in Ontario in diseases of the eye and ear. While still a student, Dr. Reeve had chosen Ophthalmology as a speciality, and the year after being admitted to the College of Physicians and Surgeons was appointed assistant surgeon of the Toronto Eye and Ear Infirmary, a position he held until he resigned to devote his attention to his rapidly extending private practice. He received the degree of M.D. from Toronto University, and, after holding a lectureship, was appointed professor and dean of the faculty in 1898. He is also a member of the University Council and has been president of the Ontario Medical Association. Although so intimately associated for so many years with the medical faculty of Toronto University he obtained his medical education at Queen's University, Kingston.

Dr. Reeve will be seventy years of age next year, but he does not look it, and he has as steady a hand and as good an eye in the operating room as he had when he began practice the year the first Dominion Day was celebrated. Dr. Reeve is a prominent member of the Ophthalmological Society of the United Kingdom, and some of his notes on the treatment of diseases of the eyes contributed to that learned body have attracted attention throughout the world.—Family Herald.

Healthful Advice.

Doctor—You're very run down indeed. You mustn't take any violent exercise of any sort. For instance, you mustn't—er—er—what are you?

Patient—Ar, anarchist.

Doctor—Well, you mustn't—er—er—throw any bombs for a long time.

Always Thirsty.

Mrs. Wigwag—When your husband takes you to the theatre does he ever go out between the acts? Mrs. Gustle—Well, I wouldn't express it in just that way. He sometimes comes in between his periods of drinks.

THE SPIRAL NEBULAE.

One of the Terrifying and Mysterious Forces of Space.

The most stupendous manifestations of force of which we have any knowledge are presented by the spiral nebulæ, whose mysterious and terrifying forms were first clearly revealed by the Lick observatory photographs made in 1898-1900 by the late Professor James E. Keeler. The heavens are full of them—they exist by thousands—and as astronomical photography is brought to greater perfection their amazing shapes tend more and more to upset all former ideas concerning the processes of creation and destruction going on in the interstellar spaces. They affect in an equal degree all theories about the origin and ultimate fate of our own solar system.

Who would imagine on looking up at the starry heavens some quiet night that the earth is like a person lost in the midst of the whirring wheels and spinning shafts of some enormous mill or machine room, where running belts, whirling spindles clamping pistons, grinding cogs, gyrating governors, dizzying flywheels and leaping rods confuse the eye and the mind and paralyze the limbs with the terror of impending annihilation? We are not aware of this startling situation because, while we see the stars, we do not see what is among the stars. The spinning machinery of the universe is revealed only in photographs, and as far as our senses are concerned it performs its functions with a silence which to the imagination becomes a part of the horror of space.

These cosmic wheels spin with incalculable velocity, but the span of human life is but a second of time in comparison with their periods. If we could magnify time so that a second would become as a century, then an hour would be equivalent to 360,000 years, and the true aspect of the spiral nebulae would burst upon our astonished senses.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York American.

SIRES AND SONS.

Viscount Dungan, the eldest son of Earl Cowley, is working as a scenic artist at a salary of £2 a week.

Thomas W. Lamont, who recently became associated with the banking house of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. was formerly a financial reporter on a New York daily paper.

Andrew Fisher, prime minister of Australia, has declined to receive a degree from Oxford on the ground that he is an uneducated man and the honor is not suited to him.

Representative Henry H. Bingham of Pennsylvania is the oldest member of the house in point of service, having served continuously for seventeen terms. He lives at Philadelphia, where he was born not quite seventy years ago.

Hermann Hatzfeldt, who once served for a time as charge d'affaires with the German embassy at Washington, recently fell heir to valuable estates and titles by the death of Prince Alfred Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, an uncle far advanced in years. The former charge d'affaires, among his other inheritances, gains a seat in the Prussian house of lords.

Princess Maria of Sweden, wife of Prince Wilhelm, the king's son, is an unusually democratic woman and is endearing herself to the Swedish people because of her unassuming manner and her patriotism.

Don't Say "Rabbits."

To mention the word "rabbits" on board a Cornish fishing-smack arouses the ire of the crew. Should the hated word be uttered as the boat is leaving the harbor on a pilchard expedition, the speaker would stand a fair chance of being hurled overboard. The mere mention of "rabbits" destroys all chances of a "catch."

ANOTHER APPEAL.

Mr. Borden Delivers Himself of Patriotic Manifesto.

Halifax, Sept. 19.—Mr. R. L. Borden to-day issued a manifesto to the electors of Canada, in which he said in part:

As this campaign closes and the solemn duty confronts us of deciding, very probably for all time, the most momentous question ever submitted to the Canadian electorate, I declare with perfect sincerity to my fellow-countrymen that the outlook is full of hope. The keen attention which the people have given to the discussion of this question has made the few weeks of this campaign far more revealing than months of ordinary debate. Throughout this Dominion the electorate now understand that they are called on to determine, not a mere question of markets, but the future destiny of Canada, perhaps of the Empire.

Even upon the economic side, the reciprocity compact is but a step in a greater process. On either side of the boundary line its advocates realised perfectly that in its final outcome this treaty undoubtedly means the commercial and fiscal union of Canada with the United States. The chief magistrate of the great republic has warned us in language of striking and unmistakable import that the consummation of this treaty will forever prevent the consolidation of our Empire. With profound insight and clear vision, he has made the memorable declaration that if Canada accept this compact she can never become a part of that great imperial commercial band which, as he anticipates, will reach from England around the world to England again. We must make our choice between reciprocity within the Empire and reciprocity with the United States. And let us never forget that Canada cannot become fiscally and commercially a part of the United States and remain politically a part—and an important part—of the British Empire.

The relations created by this compact will increase threefold the power of the United States over our commercial destinies. Less than two years ago by the threat of prohibitory duties they forced our Government to alter our tariff. Do not imagine that the spirit which compelled this unwarranted concession to our powerful neighbor will die on the morrow of its first great success. If we accept this compact, we must anticipate a renewal of the attempt. Where is our guarantee that the renewed pressure will be met in any firmer fashion than before? We recognize our constant duty to maintain the most friendly relations with the great neighboring nation, but I ask you to believe that such relations can best be assured if we preserve in fullest measure our present fiscal independence and autonomy.

Above all do not forget that the momentous choice which you must make is for all time. If the tariffs of the two countries are interlocked by this treaty, be assured that the stronger party will always carry the key.

This question is above all parties and all individuals. I appeal to Liberals as to Conservatives, and I speak to them not as a party leader, but as a Canadian citizen, whose hopes are bound up with the hopes of his country.

To all who are proud of her past, to all who hope for her future, I make an earnest and sincere appeal to rise above all party ties, to take heed of higher considerations and to determine their course with a sense of the enduring results of their decision. I entreat them not to swerve from the straight path that leads to the making of a great nation. I beg them to cast a soberly-considered and serious vote for the preservation of our heritage, for the maintenance of our commercial and political freedom, for the permanence of Canada as an autonomous nation within the British Empire.

(Signed) R. L. Borden.

Wilson and the girl went away from the city together but through the efforts of the police were located near Ann Arbor, Mich., leading the life of tramps. They consented to return and were brought back here. The prisoner pleaded guilty to a charge of seduction, and was given two years, to run concurrently with the other sentence.

It was on the strength of the mayor's assertions that action was taken.

PETERBOROUGH TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 19 1911

VOTE FOR J. R. STRATTON THE MAN THAT GETS THINGS DONE

A Foregone Conclusion

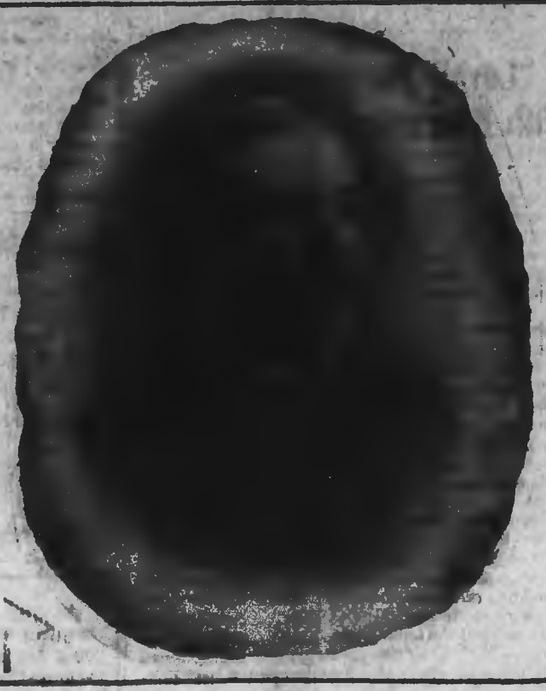
The Liberal Government will be sustained. Even the Opposition concedes this.

The Liberal Government had a majority of forty-five in the last Parliament. It will have a majority of fifty-five or more in the next House.

Outside politics altogether the provinces will vote for their own special interests.

Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island will vote for their coal and fish, New Brunswick for its hay and potatoes, Quebec and Ontario for their mixed products, the prairie West for its wheat British Columbia for its fruit and fish and the consumer everywhere for cheaper living.

Weight of numbers will carry the day. The size of the victory is the only thing in dispute.



To People Who Eat

What does reciprocity in natural products mean to the average consumer? Simply free trade in food.

Canada and the United States both remove their food taxes amounting between them to six million dollars a year.

Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

Sixty of the chief elements of your diet will come in free or at greatly reduced duties.

Reciprocity takes taxes off what you eat. It leaves you free to buy what you like, when you like and where you like at the best prices.

You will have cheaper, better, more varied meals. You will save a quarter on every dollar.

The Tariff Untouched

Reciprocity benefits the manufacturer by giving his workingmen cheaper living and making them happier and more contented.

Reciprocity benefits the manufacturer by filling up the Northwest, increasing the purchasing power of the farmer, and enlarging the home market for manufactured goods.

A larger market for manufactured goods means more orders, more work, more workingmen and higher wages.

The manufacturer's protection is not touched The Government has pledged it word that it will not be interfered with.

The Liberal Government has never strayed from the principle of moderate, just and adequate protection to the manufacturer since it came into power in June, 1896.

Protection is safe in Liberal hands. Of all the Canadian tariffs the Fielding tariff has been the most stable.

A Worker Wanted

Can West Peterborough afford to be on the losing side.

Can West Peterborough afford to be represented at Ottawa by a man whose offensive campaign must make him particularly distasteful.

If West Peterborough wants warm justice, not cold justice, at the hands of a Liberal Government which candidate is likely to get it?

Public improvements in progress or in prospect for West Peterborough amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars—work for the contractor, the teamster, the mechanic, and the labouring man.

Should West Peterborough do anything that might cause these matters to lag or stop entirely?

What does West Peterborough want? A good worker, a good asker, a good getter—or a dreamer?

The British Born

Men who try to create divisions between the British born in Canada and the British, born in the Mother Country, are not good patriots.

The British born who have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions know what the Liberal Government has done for the working man and the homeseeker.

The Liberal party in England and Liberal party in Canada are the same in their efforts for the common people.

The Liberal Government in Canada gave England the British Preference, the South African Contingents and the Canadian Navy.

Premier Asquith says reciprocity is good for business and good for the Empire.

Lloyd George says it is crystallised common sense. British Ambassador Bryce helped to make the agreement.

Reciprocity is not Politics---it is just business. You can vote for your party all the rest of your life. THIS TIME VOTE FOR YOURSELF

Ontario Urgently Needs New Market For Horses And Cattle

Not many years ago there was a big demand in Ontario for cattle with which to stock Western ranches.

To-day, the product of these cattle is being carried east by the train load to compete in Ontario markets.

As it has been in cattle, so it will be in horses. The Western Provinces will supply their own needs in a few years. A little later the West will be sending horses here for sale. When that time comes, if an outlet for Ontario horses is not in the meantime opened in the Eastern States, there will be as big a slump in prices here as occurred after the enactment of the McKinley tariff.

MORGAN AS AMBASSADOR OF PEACE

NEW YORK, N.Y., SEPT. 19.— J. Peirpont Morgan, as an ambassador of peace, may become greater by far than President Taft. It has just developed that this United States financier on being asked yesterday by German National interests for a big loan, promised to make it on condition that Germany accept the terms of France in the Moroccan controversy. The answer is not known yet.

SPAIN UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Special to The Examiner:

MADRID, SPAIN, SEPT. 19.—Following his threat of yesterday, Premier Canalejas has proclaimed the whole of Spain under martial law because of the revolutionary tendencies of labour troubles. A well ripened plot to assassinate General Weyler was discovered.

MANUFACTURERS ARE INDICTED

Examiner Special.

BOSTON, SEPT. 19.—All the chief officers of the United Shoe Manufacturing Company, which employs four thousand hands in the United States and Canada, have been indicted, charged with conducting a business inrestraint of trade.

BENDER HAS LA GRIPPE

Special to The Examiner.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., SEPT. 19.—Baseball fans of this city, who expect their American League team to take the pennant are much perturbed over the fact that the Indian pitcher, Chief Bender, is confined to bed with the grip and may not be in condition to play any more games this season.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

WOULD SMASH THE BRITISH PREFERENCE

When confronted by Mr. Louis Heyd with the record of his opposition to the British preference law of 1897, under which goods imported from the Motherland pay from a quarter to a third less in duties than similar goods from foreign countries, Mr. W. F. Maclean, the fiercest of flag-wavers, cried:

"I'd do it again. Preference for preference is my plan."

So: This ultra-loyalist who makes a special appeal to the British-born would wipe out the British preference and re-enact it only when the people of Great Britain consent to the taxation of their food. The "British Born" at home have voted three times against food taxes which would greatly increase the misery of the poor, but Mr. W. F. Maclean stands upon the platform of no tariff favours to Britain till she consents to tax her people's food.

Here's a spectacle for the British-born and for the loyal Canadians who want to give Britain the best of it in trade. In fifteen years, from 1882 to 1896, under Conservative rule, the imports of British goods into Canada decreased from fifty million dollars a year to thirty-two millions. In the fifteen years under Liberal rule, since the adoption of Fielding's British-Preference the imports of British goods have increased from twenty-nine millions in 1897 to a hundred and nine millions in 1911.

The British preference that has aided materially in bringing about this result Mr. Maclean would smash unless he could get "preference for preference." The Liberal trade policy is founded on the British preferenc, which is not affected by the reciprocity agreement.

.. VOTE FOR STRATTON, LAURIER, THE BRITISH PREFERENCE, AND UNTAXED FOOD ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC.

The Peter Hamilton Company Are Supporting Mr. Stratton

In an interview with The Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company this morning, a representative of The Examiner was told by them:

"We do not consider that the small reduction of duty under the reciprocity agreement will affect our industry to any appreciable extent one way or the other.

"But we wish to say that we will be very glad to see Mr. Stratton re-elected. He is the kind of representative we want at the present time, and we are giving him our support."

PRESENT DISADVANTAGES OF CANADIAN FARMERS

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs us 25c. a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c. a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c. to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c. a bushel duty. They beans can come into Canada for 20c. They charge us 25c. a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c. a barrel on what they sell us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c. a lb. on butter, we charge them 4c. They charge us 6c. a lb. on cheese, we charge them 3c. This it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not that worth while?

A Vote For Burnham is a Vote For Bourassa and Disruption Of Canadian and Empire Unity!

CONSERVATIVE FARMERS REASONS.

Among the many Conservative farmers of Middlesex, who have declared in favour of reciprocity the name of Mr. Robert F. Toohill, of Napier, may be added. He is ex-Reeve of Metcalfe Township, and a prominent farmer, who has never voted Liberal before. He is quoted to-day as saying:

"I cannot stand by the Conservative party in this election, and I intend to vote against the Conservative candidate in West Middlesex. I never cast a Grit vote in my life before. I cannot see where the farmer can possibly lose if this agreement is entered into. In my judgment, he has everything to gain by this pact. Take one example, that of wheat. The miller buys wheat to-day at 80c a bushel, which means that he pays $26.70 a ton. Out of that he grinds 1,500 pounds of flour, which he sells to the consumer at $3.75 a hundred, netting him $41.25. After that he has 500 pounds of saleable stuff left. Out of this he sells a second grade of flour at $1.50 per hundred, his shorts at $24 per ton, and his bran at $22 per ton. Out of this 500 pounds of offal he has left he has $6, making him all $47.75 out of the ton of wheat. The farmer gets $26.70, while the miller receives $47.75. Owing to the combine the farmer must accept that price for his wheat, and buy his goods back at the price set. Under reciprocity the farmer could sell on the American markets and receive a much higher price for his wheat. At the same time, he will be able to get his flour and shorts back at much cheaper prices than he is compelled to pay the miller at the present time. The same argument holds good in practically everything the farmer has to sell. That is why I am in favour of reciprocity, and that is why I am going to vote for the Liberal candidate in this election. There is no politics in it—simply business; and I am going to vote for my own interests.

THE FLAG OF FREEDOM.

The British flag is the flag of Canada, not of a party. It stands for the history of which all Canadians are proud, for the liberties which all Canadians cherish. It stands for a union of freemen in the United Kingdom, in Canada, in Australia, in New Zealand, working together for the advancement of civilization, for the removal of injustice, for the uplifting of thepeople. It leads the gallant host who, as Lloyd George says, are cutting a path for humanity through the jungle to the light.

More than once in Canada the attempt has been made to abuse the flag of freedom, by using it in the service of privilege and tyranny. The great Canadians who won self-government for Canada were branded as disloyal. Canada obtained self-government, and became more loyal than ever. The British flag was more firmly planted in Canada than ever. It is the flag of freedom and the enemies of freedom cannot pervert it to the ends of tyranny and selfishness. Freedom broadens down from precedent to precedent, and the British flag waves proudly over the citadel of liberty.

To-day a faction which dominates the Conservative party is again seeking to degrade the British flag—to make the symbol of freedom cover up the designs of selfish interest. Their conduct is an insult to the British flag, and an insult to hundreds of thousands of loyal citizens, staunchly British and staunchly Canadian. It is an insult also to the memory of Sir John Macdonald, of Sir John Thompson, of Sir Leonard Tilley, of D'Alton McCarthy, all stalwart Britishers who upheld reciprocity in food products with the United States.

It is a piece of impudence to an intelligent farmer, whether Liberal or Conservative, to tell how that he will abandon the Union Jack for the Stars and Stripes, if he sells his barley in the United States. It is an insult to tell an intelligent workman that he will abandon the Union Jack for the Stars and Stripes if he buys some meat and vegetables coming from the United States. The loyalty of Canadians does not depend upon tribute paid to canners, packers and middlemen.

The true test of loyalty is freedom. A vote for freedom is a British vote. British institutions are distinguished from all other institutions by freedom. Any man who ties his British flag up to restriction, to unjust taxation, to unjust privilege, to the domination of a privileged class, is a traitor to his flag and to his country. He does not understand British freedom, and is not worthy to enjoy it himself, much less to teach loyalty to others.

SOME POINTERS FOR THE BRITISH BORN.

The "British Born" are to be addressed this this evening by an emissary of the British Conservative party machine in this election.

This is a free country—one of the glories of being British. Free speech is the birthright of the British Born. In any country under the British flag, "man may speak the thing he thinks" unmolested and unafraid.

There is, therefore, no objection in the world to Mr. Hawkes or any other man addressing the British Born whether Canadian or Scotch or English or Irish, if he does it of his own person initiative—off his own bat, so to speak.

But there is something sinister in a man coming under the auspices of the Conservative machine, not from personal interest in the British Born, but paid for his services with money probably contributed by the United States' Trusts, to defeat reciprocity, at any cost and in any way in the party interests.

Mr. Hawkes is a hireling of Hon. Frank Cochrane, the Ontario manager of the Borden campaign, and both are part and parcel of the Borden-Bourassa alliance.

The British Born know who Mr. Bourassa is — a brilliant and bitter French Canadian, who, as he has repeatedly said, hates everything British, wants to smash British connection, by building a French republic on the banks of the St. Lawrence; hates the British flag, which, he says, "we (the French) have shot full of holes so that we can breath the free air through them."

Below is proof that Mr. Hawkes is the agent of the Conservative machine. The following letter was sent out to Conservative newspapers from Conservative headquarters, from the office of the "Dominion Liberal Conservative Committee Rooms, 410 Crown Life Buildings, Toronto," dated August 16th, 1911:

The Editor,

Dear Sir,—I am glad to tell you that we are fortunate enough to have the aid of the pen of Mr. Arthur Hawkes in the Election Campaign, and I know you will be glad to use the signed articles by him that will come to you.

Mr. Hawkes has written ten National Specials, under most attractive titles; and, under his nom de plume of John V. Borne, twenty-six pithy articles of about 350 words each, under the general heading, "Points about the Deal."- Mr. Hawkes will address at least one meeting a day for the rest of the campaign, and has also promised to write a series of news stories, entitled "Through Ontario with the British-born," which will be placed freely at your disposal.

I thought that you would like to know we shall be very glad to see this ammunition as widely used as possible.

Your faithfully,
F. COCHRANE.

This is proof that Mr. Hawkes is the paid speaker for the Conservative machine, as he has a right to be in this country — if he is well paid he deserves that; for Mr. Hawkes is clever enough to be dangerous—when he is the paid advocate of a bad cause.

And no British Born man will hesitate to say that promoting the interests of an alliance with Bourassa, the Briton-baiter, the Briton-hater, the flag-trampler, is a bad cause.

Below is proof of the alliance between Mr. Borden and Mr. Bourassa. They both have the same motive. Mr. Borden wants to destroy Laurier because he wants office; Bourassa hates Laurier almost as much as he hates British connection, because Laurier would not give him an office.

They have united upon this common ground to reach the same end. They hope to kill two birds with one stone. If Laurier is defeated, Mr. Borden will gain power; and Mr. Bourassa will have his revenge, and dictate the terms up which Mr. Borden will hold power, and this will, for a time, satisfy this thirst for power.

Mr. Bourassa will claim his reward and will have it—he hates Laurier simply because Laurier wouldn't give him an office.

What better proof of the alliance between Mr. Bourassa and Mr. Borden can be asked than the fact that Mr. Bourassa appears on the same platform as Mr. Borden's candidates and urges their election.

Mr. Bourassa spoke in favour of the Conservative candidate at Hull; at a Conservative meeting, which closed with cheers for Borden and Bourassa, but no cheers for the King!

At Sudbury, in Ontario, Mr. Bourassa appeared on the Conservative platform in the interests of Mr. Borden's candidate. Two of Mr. Borden's North Ontario candidates, as a result, no doubt, have pledged themselves in writing, to support Bourassa's anti-naval, anti-British policy.

At the Conservative meeting in Sudbury yesterday, the Conservatives threw off all disguise and took the arch-traitor to everything Canadian and British to their arms. The chairman of the meeting, president of the local Conservative Association, called for "Three cheers for Bourassa and Borden," a combination that would make Sir John's bones writhe in his grave at Cataraqui.

Mr. Hawkes is working in Mr. Borden's interests, Mr. Bourassa is doing the same; therefore, Mr. Hawkes, the guardian of the British Born, is working hand in hand with Mr. Bourassa, the destroyer of the British Born, the hater of everything British and Imperial.

As far as the object aimed at is concerned, Mr. Bourassa might as consistently be here to-night in Mr. Borden's interests, as Mr. Hawkes. They are both working for the same end. Bourassa is helping to make Borden win. Mr. Borden's winning will be helped by the election of Mr. Burnham. Therefore, Mr. Bourassa, the ultra-montaine Catholic, the empire-wrecker, is helping Mr. Burnham "defend the faith."

A child should not be fooled by such transparent tactics.

A VOTE FOR BURNHAM IS A VOTE FOR BOURASSA, THE EMPIRE-WRECKER AND FLAG INSULTER.

ONLY TWO DAYS TILL THE ELECTION, AND MR. BORDEN IS MUM ABOUT THE BOURASSA ALLIANCE. IS IT A CASE OF SILENCE GIVES CONSENT?

Large Manufacturer Says "I Am Supporting Mr. Stratton"

"I Believe as a Business Man That We Should Have a Business Representative"

A representative of The Examiner saw Mr. Green, President of The G. Walter Green Company, Limited, this morning in regard to his attitude towards the candidates, this contest:

"I am supporting Mr. Stratton in this election."

"I believe, as a business man, that we should have a business representative, and I think that I am acting in the best interests of Peterborough in supporting Mr. Stratton."

"At this time I think it would be best for Peterborough in every way to elect Mr. Stratton."

Where The "Loyal" Burnham Stands With Bourassa Hand In Hand

Mr. Burnham, who began his campaign with a great flourish as the Defender of the Faith, pillar and prop of Protestantism, the implacable foe of everything French—either race or religion—has developed into an ally of Henri Bourassa, the so-called Nationalist, whose policy is down with everything British, down with the flag, and down with Laurier—Laurier refused Mr. Bourassa office—and upon the ruins to build a French republic on the banks of the St. Lawence.

Mr. Burnham, when he sees where the logic of facts has placed him, tries to crawfish out of the hole he is trying to crawl through into office for himself and party. But it won't do—he's found with goods upon him. The slogan of his organ is "a vote for Burnham is a vote for Borden," and the facts show that a vote for Borden is a vote for Bourassa. How's that? Simply this way: Mr. Bourassa's campaign is financed from the Conservative funds. The Conservatives have agreed to oppose no "Nationalist" canendates in Quebec; and the Nationalists have agreed not to oppose any Conservative candidates.

More, Mr. Bourassa has appeared on the platform in support of Mr. Borden's candidates; he has even had the "cheek" to invade Ontario, and the Conservatives had enough disregard of decency to allow him to do so, and even encourage him. He spoke at Sudbury on a Conservative platform in support of the Conservative candidate, and as a result two of the Conservative candidates in North Ontario have peldged themselves in writing to support Bourassa's anti-motherland and anti-British platform; and the chairman of the Conservative meeting, who is also president of the local Conservative Association, called for "three cheers for Bourassa and Borden"! Isn't that proof of the alliance?

If this is not proof enough, there is the proof of motive. Both want Laurier defeated. They have a common interest, and that is the motive of their alliance.

In face of the facts, Mr. Burnham may deny the fact of the Borden-Bourassa pact till he is black in the face—as a supporter of Mr. Borden he is particeps criminis—sharer in the crime.

It is equally useless for Mr. E. B. Oser of Toronto, to deny the alliance between Borden and Bourassa and the roaring demagogues who are going up and down the Province of Quebec stirring up hatred against England and suspicion against Ontario. No doubt he is quite right in saying it was never mentioned in caucus—at least, not in his hearing. He might also safely guess that there is no document containing the treaty of alliance. Things are not managed that way in politics. Parties and leaders are satisfied with substantial proofs of friendship.

Look at the list of Quebec candidates published in the Mail and Empire and in the World. Out of sixty-five opposition candidates in Quebec, all but six are described as Conservatives, without any qualification, by the Mail and Empire, all but seven by the World. These six or seven candidates are placed by both papers in the Conservative column, with the letters "Nat." after their names. The other 58 or 59 candidates are described as Conservatives without any qualification. This means that almost the entire Nationalist delegation is taken into the Tory camp. What is the use of denying the Borden-Bourassa alliance?

P. E. Blondin is classed as a Conservative, not as a Nationalist, by the World and the Mail. Blondin is the man who said of the English that "those who disembowelled our fathers on the Plains of Abraham are asking you to-day to go out and get killed for them. We have had enough of England and the English." Remember, Mr. Blondin is classed by the Mail and Empire as a straight Borden candidate.

Mr. Fauteux, running in Two Mountains, is classed as a straight Conservative, a Borden man, by the Mail and Empire and the World. Fauteux is the man who said: "The real object of England in forcing a navy upon us was not to have the boats or our money, but the blood of French-Canadians."

A. Sevigny, Dorchester, is classed as a straight Conservative by the World and the Mail and Empire. Sevigny is the man who said: "The Laurier Cabinet is a Cabinet of Imperialists who want to sacrifice Canada's interests, and plunge us into war with which we have nothing to do. The navy bill is an attempt by Ontario and the Provinces of the West, to coerce Quebec and enslave our people forever. What has England ever done for you? She has no need of your help. She is strong enough to defend herself. Laurier's ideal is to make you the vassals of the majority in the West. You must protest by your votes against this slave traffic. You must fight against helping England in her wars; unless you do, conscription will come next."

With these candidates taken to the bosom of the Conservative party, and publicly endorsed and guaranteed as Conservatives, what is the use of Mr. Burnham or anybody else denying the alliance? It is a fact.

You are invited to "vote for Burnham and British connection." As a matter of fact, you are invvited to "vote for Burnham and Canadian disruption" through this unholy alliance with the most blatant and vicious foe to British connection, British ideals and British supremacy in the country.

A VOTE FOR BURNHAM IS A VOTE FOR BOURASSA AND CANADIAN DISRUPTION.

Under Martial Law

Special to The Examiner

MADRID, SEPT. 19.— It has been learned that King Alphonso signed the decree declaring the country under martial law, after he had made great protestations against being asked to take this action. There was an extreme difference of opinion between Alfonso and Premier Canalejas, and it was not till the latter threatened to resign and plunge the country into another election in a most precarious time, that Alfonso would consent. The opinion is that his monarchy is tottering to downfall as Manuel's of Portugal did.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville; "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

The arguments have all been made and comparative prices have been quoted at length. You have doubtless read, heard and digested. It only remains to recall the outstanding features of the question before the country—reciprocity in natural products with the United States.

Reciprocity will injure or disturb no industry or factory or workman, in Peterborough or elsewhere, but on the contrary will materially promote the interests of all.

The protection which the Fielding tariff has always accorded our manufacturing industries, will be continued unabated. Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding have time and again given assurance of this. The mutual effect of free trade in natural products and protection for our manufacturers cannot fail of being beneficial by giving the workingman cheaper living and the manufacturer a more prosperous home market.

Reciprocity will benefit the farmer by giving him an unlimited market in the United States for those products which he cannot ship to England, or which he cannot sell at home to advantage.

Reciprocity will reduce the cost of living from twenty-five to thirty per cent. It will benefit the consumer in about sixty of the chief elements of his diet.

American eggs, all American fruits, fresh and dried, and all vegetables, will come in free of duty at the seasons when there is no production here.

Fish of all kinds, oysters and shell fish will come in free.

The existing duties will be materially reduced on fresh meats, bacon and hams, dried, smoked and salted meats, canned meat, canned fish, sardines and the like, canned vegetables, flour, oatmeal, pearled barley, macaroni, biscuits, etc.

These reductions will materially reduce the prices of these articles to the consumer.

How, you may ask, can reciprocity raise the price to the farmer and lessen it to the consumer?

The answer is simple enough. Reciprocity takes down two tariff walls which stand between the natural products of Canada and the United States and their natural disposal.

The American tariff is the wall against the producer, against the Canadian farmer, which prevents him seeking an outlet for his surplus in that direction and leaves him at the mercy of the Canadian food combines.

The Canadian tariff is the wall against the Canadian consumer, which prevents him from getting the benefit of cheap American products at the times and places when these do no compete with Canadian products.

At present the Canadian farmer receives less for his products than the American farmer and the Canadian consumer pays more for his food than the American consumer.

Reciprocity in natural products removes these two artificial barriers and allows the food products of a continent to find the most convenient channels.

The relief to producer and consumer should be almost immediate. Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

What are the side issues that have been dragged into this campaign—the loyalty of the Liberal party, annexation, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion and the British Born.

They are almost too absurd to mention, but I will answer them briefly.

Loyalty of the Liberal party? The answer to that is British preference, South African contingents, the Canadian navy. Actions speak louder than words. The very men who are plastering the majority of the electors of Canada with the imputation of disloyalty, have a working alliance in Quebec with the firebrand Bourassa, who hates England and preaches destruction to British ascendancy and Canada.

Annexation? The answer to that is that Lord Elgin, Governor-General of Canada, in 1854, a Conservative and an ardent Imperialist, was the chief instrument in obtaining the reciprocity treaty with the United States, which lasted from 1854 to 1866. His avowed purpose in securing reciprocity, was to cure the annexation sentiment, then prevalent among Canadian business men on account of the hard times.

Lord Elgin believed, with Lloyd-George, that reciprocity in natural products between Canada and the United States, was crystallized common sense, and with the London Times, that a happy and contented member of the British Empire, is better than an unhappy and discontented one. Lord Elgin's cure worked. Instead of annexation, reciprocity brought Confederation in its train, and gave this country the great blessing of national unity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion? The Protestants of Ontario outnumber the Roman Catholics six to one. Protestantism is in no more danger from a Liberal Roman Catholic premier than it was from a Conservative Roman Catholic premier, Sir John Thompson. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has no more Roman Catholics in his cabinet than Sir John Macdonald had, or Sir John Thompson or Sir John Abbott, or Sir Charles Tupper, or last but not least, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, once the Grand Master of the Orange order. Sir James Whitney has two Roman Catholics in his cabinet, and they have shewn themselves equitable and capable administrators.

The British Born? We are all British born if we are born within the Empire, and we are all equally proud of it. Those who were born in the Mother Country and have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions need not be told what the Liberal Government has done to help the workingman and to open up the great Northwest prairie to the land-hungry homeseekers. In Canada, as in England, most of the workingman's blessings have been the gift of the Liberal Government. Neither need they be told what a Liberal Government has done for the old land across the sea in the matters of British preference, the South African contingents and the Canadian navy. The British born may be depended upon to rally to the side where they find their best friends.

Hoping to receive the same confidence from the electors of West Peterborough as I have received in the past, I am,

Yours Respectfully.

J. R. Stratton

Elector to Borden, (who is vainly endeavouring to make the "Premier" Boots fit)—"Say Robert, if you'd try a little Reciprocity filling in them, they might "go" all right"

From the Ottawa "Dipper."

Another Manufacturer "For Stratton With Both Hands"

"It Would be Bad Business to Exchange Mr. Stratton For Anybody Else Just Now"

Mr. Andrew Macfarlane, President of The William Hamilton Company, Limited, returned to Peterborough on Saturday evening after a two weeks' business trip.

In answer to the question: "How's business?" Mr. Macfarlane said, "Business is good."

"How about the elections?"

"I found that wherever I have been, it is strongly felt that the Government will be sustained."

"How do you feel with regard to West Peterborough?"

"I feel as I have always felt—that we don't want and can't get a better representative than Mr. Stratton. Mr. Stratton is the most influential man we have in Peterboorugh at the present time, and from the good that he has done and from the good that he is doing, and from the good that he can do, and will do, West Peterborough must in its own interests re-elect him."

"It would be bad business and bad politics for the people to exchange Mr. Stratton for anybody else just now."

"I am glad to say there is no chance of their doing that."

"I am for Stratton with both hands."

The Directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, have instructed the secretary, Mr. Fred Hall, to thank very warmly in their behalf, Hon. J. R. Stratton for his kindness and consideration in placing his string of successful horses at the disposal of the Directors on Friday and Saturday, when they were brought to the grounds for exhibition purposes only, to show the visitors something rarely good in horse flesh.

This exhibit added very greatly to the interest of the exhibition, and Mr. Stratton's public spirited action was no doubt as greatly appreciated by the public as it is by the Board of Directors.

GOOD REASONS

For Demanding the Original Remedy, Newbro's Herpicide

If you knew it, you would not willingly accept counterfeit money. Instead, you would probably raise a disturbance and seek some means of redress.

Why then accept a preparation said to be "just as good as Newbro's Herpicide?" You know it is a counterfeit, an imitation of the real thing. You want the original dandruff germ destroyer, Herpicide, and you can get it, too, if you insist.

Redress is always possible in such an instance. The most effective method is to trade where you get what you ask for and no suggestions offered.

With the death of the dandruff germ the hair stops falling and is permitted to resume its natural growth and beauty. Such results follow the use of Newbro's Herpicide. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

A counterfeit article is never "just as good." Herpicide is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

Applications may be obtained at all good barber shops and hair dressers.

Send 10c. in postage for sample and booklet on the care of the hair to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

TRY A NEW IDEA PATTERN FOR YOUR FALL SUIT.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

SUPPOSE an engineer had a certain great weight to lift.

Suppose it took three hundred horsepower of pressure to lift that weight.

And suppose that the engineer should apply fifty horsepower to it, and then shut off his engine and then try again and again with fifty or seventy-five or a hundred horsepower.

Wouldn't we think he was an extraordinary foolish man?

He has wasted his power, we would say, and has accomplished nothing. He would have done better to use all his power at once or not try to do the thing at all.

And yet how many people act just like that engineer?

I am thinking of a woman who lives with a very trying elder sister.

The older woman is one of those people who make life miserable for all about them by harbouring a thousand whims and crotchets and cautions and irritating little prejudices and fusinesses.

All these things fret the younger sister to the verge of insanity—fretful, nervous inefficient protest.

She argues, she pleads, she scolds, she nags.

But never—and here you catch my smile — never hard enough to do any good.

Her sister's obstinacy and self will is a weight that cannot be moved except by some great pressure.

And that the younger sister never exerts.

As a result both their lives are embittered and saddened by perpetual petty warfare without one bit of good being accomplished.

Now this is the way it seems to me. That the only thing to be done in a case like this is for the sufferer to make up her mind that she, when she wants anything badly enough, will stand firm and get it, and that when she doesn't want anything enough to exert that pressure she will give up and give up pleasantly.

In other words, when the weight must be lifted, she will exert the necessary amount of power and lift it, and when it doesn't she won't waste her power.

In regard to the law of obedience, Elbert Hubbard says:

"Revolt is sometimes necessary, but the man who mixes revolt and obedience is doomed to disappoint himself, and everybody with whom he has dealings. To flavour work with protest is to fail utterly."

It seems to me it's the same way with family life.

There are conditions in family life when revolt is absolutely necessary.

When you are sure these conditions exist, why revolt and do it thoroughly.

But when you know that acquiescence is wisest, why acquiesce and do it cheerfully.

But don't mix the two.

At least, not if you care anything for peace in your home.

MANUFACTURERS WHO SAY AGREEMENT WILL HELP

Goderich Men's Ringing Answer to Circular Issued From Conservative Headquarters of the Town --A Clear-cut Statement

GODERICH, SEPT. 17.—The persistent efforts of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and large monied interests of Canada to line up the manufacturers against reciprocity have received an emphatic refusal by the factory owners and operators of Goderich. A circular recently issued from the local Conservative headquarters depicted disaster to all factories, and consequent lack of employment for their men, if reciprocity carried, to which the following unanimous denial has been issued by prominent manufacturers of various lines of staple goods:

"To whom it may concern: We have seen the circular issued from the Conservative committee rooms in this town, in which it is stated that the factories of Goderich will be so injuriously affected by the proposed reciprocity agreement that they may be compelled to close down, thus throwing out of employment all the men engaged therein. We hereby declare that the adoption of the policy of reciprocity, as proposed, will not have any injurious effects upon our industries, but rather will help them by furthering the development of the western Provinces and by increasing the general prosperity of the country. We deprecate untrue statements made for a partisan purpose, which are calculated to give our workmen needless anxiety.

Just a Little Diapepsin Ends Indigestion in Five Minutes

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order Stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapepsin.

If your Stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a re-enforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak Stomachs should take a little Diapepsin occasionally, and there will be no more Indigestion, no feelings like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach or Belching of undigested food, Headaches, Dizziness or Sick Stomach, and, besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours. All these symptoms resulting from a sour, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved in five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent. case of Pape's Diapepsin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you up and you feel like life is worth living.

The Name "Canadian" Sells Canadian Horses

Buffalo Dealer Who Can Get Higher Prices for Canadian Horses Simply Because They Are Canadian

BUFFALO, SEPT. 14.—The London Advertiser representative, who is seeking, and finding, the truth about the American markets as they apply to the Canadian farmer and customer, spent a large part of to-day among the leading horse dealers of Buffalo.

It would have been fine to have had Hon. Adam Beck along. Hon. Adam said there would be no demand for Ontario horses in Buffalo, and that reciprocity would ruin the horse business of the Ontario farmer, because it would take away his western market.

Hon. Mr. Beck would have discovered had he listened to the horsemen of Buffalo as The Advertiser man did, that the Buffalo dealer is ready to buy every Canadian horse than can be brought across the border AT THE HIGHEST PRICES PAID ON THE CONTINENT.

The supremacy of the Canadian horse is firmly established in Buffalo. The Buffalo dealer wants all the horses he can get, and he would be glad to displace the western horse that is shipped in at present in favour of the Canadian horse. But there will be room for both, because the demand was never greater than it is at the present time.

What Buffalo's Largest Horse Dealer Says.

A. D. Cronk, proprietor of the Crandall Horse Company, is the largest dealer in Buffalo, and probably the best known dealer on the continent. He buys and sells from 30,000 to 40,000 horses every year. He has been in the horse business for 24 years, and has handled thousands of Canadian horses. His barns at Buffalo have accommodation for many hundreds of horses.

The Advertiser asked Mr. Cronk what he thought of Canadian horses,"

"They are the best in the world," was his reply. He proceeded to strengthen his declaration by a striking illustration.

"Stand two horses outside my barn," said he. "Let those two horses be absolutely alike in strength, wind, and all other qualifications. Suppose one is a Canadian horse and one a Nebraska horse. YOUR CANADIAN HORSE WILL BRING FROM $20 TO $25 MORE THAN THE NEBRASKA HORSE, SIMPLY BECAUSE HE IS A CANADIAN HORSE. I will buy and sell every Canadian horse that can be shipped over at an advance over the western animal.

"The market in Buffalo will be quite as good a market as the western market, and the Canadian farmer will save in freight rates, and will be a good market after the west produces its own horses and makes no demand on Ontario."

Makes Hair Grow

McDermid and Jury has an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed. A large bottle for 50c.

ANOTHER COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE GRADUATE MAKES GOOD

The many friends of Mr. Robert M. Fair, of Millbrook, and of the Collegiate Institute, to whose excellent instruction he is doing great credit, will be pleased to learn that he has won new laurels. After passing his senior matriculation here with honours, he became a student in the Stratford (G.T.R.) Locomotive Works. He is visiting home at present, and has just received notice that he has won one of the four scholarships offered for annual competition by the Grand Trunk. This is not a mere empty honour, either. It is substantial to the extent that the holder of the scholarship is entitled to free tuition in the Science Department of McGill University, for four years at $200 a year, easing altogether $800 in the course.

LAME BACK

To have a lame back or painful stitches means Disordered Kidneys, and the sooner you have the Kidneys and Bladder in a perfectly healthy condition the sooner you will enjoy life. As far as we know, there is only one remedy that is guaranteed to cure you, and that is FIG PILLS. If they don't make you a strong, healthy person in two weeks, your money will be refunded. At all dealers, 25c. per box, or The Fig Pill Co., St. Thomas, Ont.

FUNERAL OF MRS. DAWSON

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Dawson of East City, which took place on Saturday afternoon, at the Little Lake cemetery, was attended by an unusually large number of friends and relations. The flowers were both numerous and beautiful, denoting the respect and esteem in which she was universally held.

The Rev. Mr. Craig of Mark street Methodist Church, and the Rev. J. G. Brown of St. James', officiated, and the pallbearers who acted as such by the special desire of the deceased were Messrs. Freeman Thompson, John Henthorne, W. S. Robinson, Harry Gibbs, sons-in-law, Sydney Bennett, and George McCague, nephews.

TO CHECK A COLD

"It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. She is cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

WHAT IS RECIPROCITY?

A Catechism for the Electors Seeking Light

Q.—What is reciprocity?

A.—An exchange of benefits?

Q.—What is reciprocity in trade?

A.—An agreement by which two countries undertake to remove or reduce taxes upon goods imported into each country.

Q.—What is the agreement between the United States and Canada?

A.—An agreement by which the United States will remove heavy duties from grain, animals, fruits, and vegetables, and Canada will remove smaller duties. It also reduces the duties on meats and other foods.

Q.—What change will this effect?

R.—Formerly the American tariff on farm produce was much higher than ours. Now both countries will have the same tariffs on farm products and foods. The handicap against Canada will be removed, if Canada chooses.

Q.—Who have asked for and advocated this measure?

A.—Both political parties and almost every public man in Canada, on both sides of politics, until Mr. Fielding and Mr. Paterson obtained it.

Q.—Is trade with the United States a new idea?

A.—No. We already trade with them to the extent of nearly $480,000,000— more than half our total trade.

Q.—Is it a new idea to import goods from the United States free of duty?

A.—No, we already import nearly $100,000,000 worth of free goods, mostly for the benefit of our protected industries.

Q.—What then, is the addition made to our free imports by this agreement?

A.—It will give the workingman free food, or food lightly taxed.

Q.—Is that an unfair advantage.

A.—It is the same advantage that is given to the manufacturer, who imports his raw material free from the United States.

Q.—Is the agreement a treaty for a term of years?

A.—No, it is an agreement or understanding, which may be ended at any time by either party.

Q.—Does it affect the British preference?

A.—No, because it deals mostly with an entirely different list of imports, especially food, which we do not import from England, and we can pass reciprocity one day and increase the British preference the next day if we want to.

Q.—Who established the British preference?

A.—Mr. Fielding and his colleagues, who are now advocating reciprocity.

Q.—And who opposed it?

A.—The whole Conservative party, with Mr. Bourassa, voted against it in 1900.

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 3th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained By writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

WHEEL CAME OFF

While proceeding up George street last night about 8 o'clock, a well knowu Smith farmer had the misfortune to lose an axle unt of his wagon, with the result that the wheel came off. It started off on its mad career by breaking the speed law, and would probably have extended its gambols had it not been for the intervention of one of nature's scientific laws, namely, "gravity." A number of willing helpers were soon on the scene and with a "heave ho" and a lift all together, the wheel was restored to its original position.

County Court News

Robt. Lockie, a North Monaghan farmer, had a search warrant issued for the house of his sons. He complained to the County Court authorities that his wife and his sons had taken numerous articles from his house during hisabsence. His wife had left him some time ago and resides at the home of one of his sons. The articles alleged to have been taken, comprise some hand saws, two planes, a brace and bit, sowe towels and about 75c. worth of pork; also a goat skin robe. He accuses his wife and sons of having taken the above articles, but when the house where his wife was living was searched, nothing was revealed. She declares she knows nothing of the affair. A further search is being made.

The woman, charged with bigamy, who was arrested at Chemong a few days ago, was taken to Manitoulin Island on Monday morning, where she will stand trial.

Build Up Peterboro' and County

Death Of Thos. Elliott

Mr. Thos. Elliott, a former resident of Peterborough, died at Mill City, Ore., U.S.A., on Sept. 7, 1911, and his remains were laid to rest at Dallas, Ore., where he had spent 25 years of his life and his wife had been buried five years before.

A very appropriate and impressive service was held in the Methodist Church, on the morning of the funeral, when the pastor, the Rev. Geo. F. Hopkins made a strong and persuasive appeal to the friends assembled for a true life and devoted service. His text was "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.... they rest from their labours, and their works do follow them"; which, he claimed, found, and would continue to find, abundant illustration from the life of the deceased.

Mr. Elliott was born near Peterborough, January 8, 1830, and in 1852, was married to Martha Might, Cavan, near Millbrook. Up to the time of his going to Oregon, his business was that of a farmer, but there his work was more diversified. He was always an exceedingly industrious man, hard work seeming to him as the breath of life.

In earlier years he took a very active interest in politics, as a supporter of the Liberal Party, as well as in municipal and school matters. He was for a time a member of the Peterborough Town Council. After going to Oregon his political energies were unsparingly devoted to the Prohibition Party of the United States.

Preeminently he was a religious man. Converted in boyhood, he gave about 70 years to the Church and Sunday School; particularly to the latter, of which he was a Bible Class teacher from early manhood. He served the Methodist Church till near the end; but it is a mark of his catholicity of spirit that, soon after his marriage, he transferred from the "Wesleyan" to the "Bible Christian" branch of Methodism, and that, only two years ago, as a matter of convenience, he left the fold in which he had been so long nurtured and took up heartily, so far as his declining strength permitted, the spirit and activities of the Presbyterian Church.

Eight children grew to maturity, of whom five survive: Mrs. Henry Donnelly, Calgary, Alta.; Rev. Wm. Elliott, Vancouver, B.C.; Mrs. John Andrew, Mill City, Ore.; and Mrs. Chas. Alisky and Mr. Sam. C. Elliott, both of Portland, Ore.

My daughter has improved so much that you would scarcely know her — Miller's Compound Iron Pills did it. Wm. Madill.

The Work Of The Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. W. Read, Superintendent of the Y. W. C. A. Boarding Home, wishes to inform the public, and especially those who are being canvassed, to become members, that nobody has ever been turned away from our doors wanting a night's lodging, or a meal. We take young girls out of work and keep them a few days, getting them as good a home as we can. We have had two different girls here three or four times, out of work, and no place to go, and we kept them and got them places. We hear the cry "This is only a fashionable boarding place." I want it understood we take all young women who are working for their living. Those who get good salaries are in the highest-priced rooms. Those who are getting less salary pay less, and those who are getting small salary we suit the price to their earnings. I wish the public to understand we do all the good we can and help many a girl, as the prosperity of the Boarding Home shows. All boarders are members. We are known by our works.

CLOTHES WERE RUINED

Several of the members of the Fire Department are mourning the depreciation in value of some of their wearing apparel, caused by coming in contact with coal tar during the progress of fighting the Gas Works fire. The work of combatting the flames was rendered extremely hazardous by the many dangerous pitfalls filled with coal tar, which are located in and around the building. In several instances the pits or trenches were covered with a layer of ashes. As a result, a number of the fire fighters unconsciously stepped into them, much to the ruination of their boots and clothing.

A WONDER WORKER

"It heals like magic," is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

Horse vs. Auto

A humorous incident, though one which might have resulted seriously, took place this morning on Park street. A horse with a buggy, containing a youth, was quietly trotting down the street when an automobile turned the corner of Sherbrooke street and proceeded in the same direction. As the automobile attempted to pass, the animal took frights and bolted, with the result that for a hundred yards or so, horse and automobile raced abreast. The car, however, pulled off and the horse was quieted.

LOSS GREATER THAN AT FIRST REPORTED

The house and outbuildings occupied by Richard Healy, and owned by Mrs. Moorehouse, of East City, which were burned to the ground yesterday, were estimated to be worth in the neighbourhood of $1800. First reports received yesterday, placed the damage at $700, but this is considered to be far below the actual value. Several loads of hay and about 30 bushels of oats were also destroyed.

A portion of the brigade, together with the able assistance of willing workers, formed themselves into a bucket brigade and confined their efforts to saving the surrounding buildings from sparks and cinders, which were dropping freely about.

MURDER INDICTMENTS.

A Sample of the Idiotic Style in Which They Are Written.

Murder has been written of as a fine art, but it remained for the United States to treat it as a sport. In many of the states an indictment for murder contains nearly enough words to fill a column and sounds like the conversation of an idiot. Here is a sample:

"That the said J. F. G., a certain pistol then and there charged with gunpowder and leaden bullets, which said pistol he, the said J. F. G., then and there in his right hand had and held, then and there unlawfully, purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice, did discharge and shoot off to, against and upon the said F. M., with the intent aforesaid, and that the said J. F. G., with the leaden bullets aforesaid, out of the pistol aforesaid, by the force of the gunpowder aforesaid, by the said J. F. G., then and there discharged and shot off as aforesaid, him, the said F. M., in and upon the upper right side of the back of him, the said F. M., then and there"—

This isn't as idiotic as it looks, however. It is part of our sporting theory of justice, which makes a murder trial a game of skill and finesse between opposing counsel. By the slightest deviation from statutory form one side may lose the game. Convictions for the most abhorrent crimes have repeatedly been set aside because of trivial verbal omissions in the indictment.

Had the murder referred to in the above quotation occurred in Canada the indictment would have read simply: "The jurors of our lord the king present that J. F. G. on the 6th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and eight, at the city of Winnipeg, in the province of Manitoba, murdered F. M." Canadian procedure concerns itself with the murder. Ours in many jurisdictions concerns itself with the legal sport, whether the murderer is punished or not being a secondary consideration.—Saturday Evening Post.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Threshing delay, due to wet weather in the Canadian northwest, brought about firmness today in wheat. Latest trading left corn 1-4c to 3-8c to 5-8c up; oats at 1-8c to 1-4c to 1-4c advance, and hog products either unchanged or varying to 7 1-2c decline.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ¼d to ½d higher than Saturday on wheat, and ¼d higher on corn. Berlin closed ⅛c to 1⅛c lower on wheat; Buda Pest, ¼c higher. Paris and Antwerp unchanged.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Sept. 16, were 2000 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 1625 hogs and 400 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 1200 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 1600 hogs and 250 calves.

Considering the large run of cattle, of which there were fully 600 head of Canadian Northwest ranch stock, the tone of the market was remarkably steady, and prices showed no important change as compared with those of last Wednesday. The gathering of buyers was large and as the weather was cool and favorable for keeping stock, the demand from butchers and packers was good and consequently an active trade was done.

A few very choice steers sold as high as 6c per pound, but the bulk of trading was done in choice stock at 5½c, good at 5¼c, fairly good at 5c to 5¼c, fair at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 4c to 4½c per lb. Cows brought 3½c to 4c and bulls sold at 3½c to 3¾ per lb.

In sympathy with the lower prices ruling for hogs in the Toronto market and throughout the country, trading with the country abattoir supplies [illegible] a weaker feeling developed in the market this morning and prices declined about this day week 50c to 75c per cwt. At this reduction the demand from packers was good and all the offerings met with a ready sale; selected lots bringing $7.65, mixed lots $7, sows $5 to $5.25, and stags $4 to $4.50 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Ample supplies of sheep and lambs were fairly large, a stronger feeling prevailed in the market and prices advanced ¼c to ½c per lb. The demand was good and sales of lambs were made at 5½c to 6c and sheep, at 3½c to 4c per lb. The trade in calves was fair at prices ranging from $4 to $10 each, as to size and quality.

Treasure Found.

Fifty pieces of solid silverware were found buried at the foot of Frederick street, Toronto, the other day, by workmen excavating for the street railway company. There were knives forks, spoons and various other articles of pure silver and bearing the mark of "Royal Canadian Rifles."

It is possible that the treasure was the booty of some thief nearly a hundred years ago. At that time the water in the bay was very much deeper than it is now. It is possible that the thief put the silver in the water, was unable to find it and it was buried when the beach was filled in. The silverware is to be divided amongst the workmen who unearthed it.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made from Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs, which, unfortunately, are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hairs, however, are not always an indication of advancing age, for many people have gray hairs quite early in life. Of course, it is unnatural, and indicates that there is something wrong with the individual, and that Nature needs assistance in correcting the trouble. The same is true of hair that is constantly falling out and becoming thinner every day. If everything is right with Nature, the hair, even in comparatively elderly people, should be long, thick and glossy, without even a streak of gray.

The ideal assistant to Nature in restoring and preserving the hair is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a clean and wholesome dressing for daily use. It not only removes dandruff, but strengthens weak, thin and falling hair and promotes its growth. A few applications will restore faded or gray hair to its natural color.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

A JAGUAR HUNT.

British Guiana Man Tells of Struggle That Cost Him Two Dogs.

The following account of a jaguar hunt in British Guiana is contained in a letter to a friend written by Mr C. J. B. Monypenny, of Endeavor, Demarara River, British Guiana, and appearing in The Field:

"You will, I am sure, be very sorry to hear that I have lost poor Ronald, the half-bred hound. He got killed by a large tiger (jaguar) on Saturday while I was out hunting, accompanied by an Indian and four dogs. I started from Christianburg at 6.30 a.m. to hunt maipouri (tapir), which are said to be fairly plentiful in the back country. We went further than we generally do, as I was determined to try over new ground, having had a lot of black days lately. After walking till 10 a.m. without finding fresh tracks we came out on the railway line about five miles back, where we met some coolies who are employed cutting wallaba wood. These men informed us that they were very much troubled by a large tiger which prowled around their camp at nights, and pointed out the fresh tracks where the brute had crossed the line about five o'clock that morning.

We at once took up the track, the dogs paying great attention to it. It led us up an abandoned timber path and across a creek, and then on to some high land, where the Indian could make nothing of it and the dogs seemed to lose the scent. While casting about we came across fresh signs of maipouri, and, from the excited way in which the dogs took up the trail, was sure of finding the animal. Suddenly the dogs dashed off full cry, and we, being sure they had started the maipouri, followed as fast as we could run. After running for some distance we heard the dogs giving tongue as if they had something at bay, and getting up to them we found they had stopped the tiger in a deep gully with fallen trees lying about, under one of which the brute had lain hidden and attacked the dogs.

A charge of buckshot through the shoulder at ten paces bowled him over but not before he had killed two of the dogs, poor Ronald and the brindled bitch Trial. Both were bitten through the brain. The tiger, a full-grown male, measured just under seven feet, and weighed between 160 and 170 pounds, the largest I have seen up this way. As it was a fine specimen, the Indian and I carried him as far as we could on the way home, but as it was getting late, and we were still over four miles back, we left the beast and came on to get men to assist in bringing him in. When about three miles from Christianburg, the remaining two dogs, Arawak and Cognet, started hog, one of which we blocked up in a sand hole (where the dogs had brought him to bay) till we could send for him next morning.

I am convinced that the tiger had been following us, keeping out of sight, with the hope of picking up one of the dogs, and had just crossed the trail of the maipouri which the dogs were working. But for the fact of the brute bolting down into the gully I believe he would not have killed the two dogs. The hound when he took the descent must have run right on to him."

Her Father's Child.

The six-year-old daughter of a well-known evangelistic preacher was playing on the sidewalk one day when a shabbily dressed and downcast man approached her father's house.

Halting at the foot of the steps, he looked at her, and in a weary voice—the voice of an unsuccessful book agent—he asked if her father might be found in his study.

"He isn't home," said the little girl, drawing close to him and gazing up into the tired face, "but he'll be home pretty soon. You go into the house, you poor, perishing soul, and mother'll look after you till he comes."

Americans Still Coming.

During the month of July there were 29,261 immigrant arrivals in Canada, 18,609 at ocean ports and 11,612 from the United States, as compared with July of last year, the increase is 17 per cent. For July last year the figures are 16,019 at ocean ports and 9,190 Americans.

For the four months of the current fiscal year arrivals at ocean ports numbered 127,925 and from the United States 54,814, making a total immigration from April to July inclusive of 182,739. The corresponding months last year gave 100,872 at ocean ports and 54,609 American, making a total of 155,481.

A PIONEER FORESTER.

Grand Master Aubrey White Fought the Lumber Vandals

Mr. Aubrey White, recently elected to the honorable office of Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, is Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests of Ontario, a post he has held since 1897. He is one of the fathers of forestry and forest conservation in Canada, which fact will surprise many good people who are given to accusing lumbermen of being nothing else but ruthless destroyers of the forests, for Mr. White is an old lumberman. In the late sixties and early seventies he was one of the largest operators in the Muskoka district; but, although a lumberman, he was far from being a destroyer of forests. In the very earliest days of his lumbering operations he protested to the authorities against the ruthless destructiveness of the methods of most lumbermen and pointed out that the inevitable result would be the wasting of a large proportion of one of the country's richest assets. He particularly protested against the destruction of small trees, the wasting of the upper portions of the larger trees, the destruction of the hardwood in making lumber roads, and the lack of attention to the prevention and extinction of forest fires. His outspoken denunciation of existing methods excited the hostility of some of his brother lumbermen, who proclaimed that if all his fine principles were put into effect the industry would be handicapped to the point of ruination.

He was in grim earnest, however, and to prove the soundness of his arguments he put his principles into practice throughout his own limits. When his choppers felled a forest monarch they dare not cut a log or two off the butt and leave the rest for rot in the moss or to provide fuel for any incipient forest conflagration. They had to make every inch of the stem into logs, and the smallest logs had to go out with the drive. The tree tops had to be gathered together and burned. In making their roads and trails through the bush his foremen were instructed that it was as important to avoid unnecessary destruction of young timber as to locate direct routes.

The other lumbermen operating in the same district as Mr. White soon saw the practical advantages of his system, and one after the other adopted it. One of the results of Mr. White's original forest conservation policy, appreciated by many thousands of people at this season of the year, was the preservation of the younger forests in the picturesque Muskoka district in a condition much nearer approaching their primeval state than was possible under less favorable conditions. So much of the present beauty of the territory surrounding the Muskoka lakes is due to the foresight and patriotism of the man who held the timber limits along their banks forty years ago.—Family Herald and Weekly Star.

Recreation Reading.

It is well known that clergymen and professors, who are obliged to read a good deal of serious literature, are seldom fond of "heavy" novels, preferring those which are merely stories. The minister of a Montreal church recently declared that he would not read "Les Miserables" nor "Robert Elsmere" for anything in the world, preferring a Zenda story to anything more imposing. There is a professor at Queen's University, who is known as one of the most intellectual men in Canada, but whose relaxation in fiction consists of the immortal works of the Duchess and other sprightly feminine novelists.

Some years ago, when the late Sir Oliver Mowat was Premier of Ontario, he was on his way from Yoho Island, where he had been spending a few days, and most of the passengers on the Muskoka recognised the well-known features of the leading citizen in the province. As the boat reached Port Sandfield, the passengers crowded to the side to see the jolly crowd which usually assembles at the resort, and Sir Oliver joined the gazers, leaving in the chair the book he had been reading.

Now, Sir Oliver was known as a writer of theological treatises in his leisure hours, and several passengers were somewhat curious concerning his holiday reading.

"I'll bet it's theology," said one—"something by Henry Drummond."

"I'll bet it's politics," said another.

They approached the chair, where the Premier's book was lying, and read on the paper cover—"Dearest—by Mrs. Forrester."

Just then, the boys at Port Sandfield broke forth in glad shouts of—"What's the matter with Mowat? He's all right."

Who Wins?

"Dear philosopher," writes a correspondent, "will you please settle a dispute for us? A and B make a wager as to which can 'shoot' the most rabbits. The contestants take different territories and hunt all day. At the time appointed they meet. A has no rabbits at all, but B has an animal which proves to be A's pet cat. Who wins?"

It is hard to decide this bet. In view of the fact that B gets not only A's cat, but his boat, we should say that A should buy the cove oysters.

According to Rules.

"Why, you absent-minded man, are you starting out with an umbrella on such a shiny day?"

"I am bound for the art gallery."

"But you cannot exhibit an umbrella!"

"Of course not, but a notice on the catalogue says that one must leave his cane or umbrella outside before he can enter."

Secret Cameras.

HARD TO PLEASE.

The Country Visitor Decided After All to Go Elsewhere.

A London clerk, on a holiday tour in the country, called at a farmhouse and asked if he could be taken in as a boarder for a few days. The farmer shook his head.

"I'd be glad to oblige you," he said, "but you London people are too hard to please."

"I am not at all exacting," the tourist replied; "you will find no difficulty in pleasing me."

"That's what the last man who came along said, but it wasn't true. In fact, nothing pleased him. His first complaint was about sleeping in the same bed with a hired man; and we gave him a bed to himself in a room with four of the children, but that didn't satisfy him. Next he grumbled about being awakened at half-past four in the morning by the men getting up to go to work—said he wasn't accustomed to get up before half-past seven. Then he objected to go to the pump, like the rest of us, to wash — actually wanted a washbasin to himself in his own room! He was upset because the servant girl robbed his boots with cart-grease, which keeps 'em nice and soft, instead of polishing them with blacking, as he said they did in London. The food didn't suit him. At breakfast he wanted coffee and bacon and eggs, or kippers, or smoked haddocks, as though we could get such things in these parts. Boiled skimmed milk and bread and treacle, same as we had, weren't good enough for him. Dinner came, and he turned his nose up at bacon broth, pilchard pie, boiled bacon and cabbage, with nice apple pie or rhubarb pie to follow. He would like to have had ox-tail soup and boiled fowl, and roast beef and mutton, and potatoes, and milk pudding or roly-poly, and cheese and fruit. Our supper is generally boiled ham and bread or bread and cheese and onions, with a mug of cider to wash them down; but this wouldn't do for my gentleman—fried fish or chops and a drop of whisky were his fancy. And, last of all, it upset him to have to go to bed before it was dark; we are never up after eight. Couldn't he have lights, and sit up until eleven or twelve, as he did at home? Did you ever hear of such things? I don't know if you would be so kind to please or not?"

"Well," said the tourist, "perhaps, after all, I'd better not trouble you to try me."

Pleasant For Shaw.

For Madox Hueffer, in his "Memories and Impressions," says that on his first coming to London Bernard Shaw wrote a pamphlet called "Why I Am an Anarchist," which was published at the Tomb press. "Some time later," relates Mr. Hueffer, "when Mr. Shaw, having advanced a stage further toward his intellectual salvation, was addressing in the park a Socialist gathering on the tiresome text, 'The Foolishness of Anarchism,' the young proprietors of the Tomb walked round and round in the outskirts of the crowd offering copies of Mr. Shaw's earlier pamphlet for sale and exclaiming at the top of their voices, 'Why I Am an Anarchist! Buy the Lecturer!'"

Wayside Fruit Trees.

Fruit trees are planted by the roadside in several parts of Germany, but passersby are not permitted to help themselves to the fruit. The trees are closely watched, and at the end of the season the fruit is sold. At intervals along the road signs are placed bearing the statement, "A Good Man Injures No Tree." But little fruit is stolen, it is said.

MR. KERR'S SPLENDID CAMPAIGN CONTINUED; GREAT LAKEFIELD MEETING

Large Gathering in Town Hall Last Night Heard Logical Convincing Addresses on Reciprocity.--A Splendid Success.

Last evening Mr. F. D. Kerr held another magnificent rally at Lakefield, the large Town Hall being filled with a splendid gathering of the voters of Lakefield and the surrounding district. The chair was taken by Mr. Richardson, of the Lakefield Canoe Company, who introduced the speakers to the audience.

Mr. John M. Kerr, Wholesale Dry Goods Merchant, Toronto, made the opening address and strongly emphasized the fact that Sir Edmund Walker, in his speech before the Board of Trade, had made the mistake in saying that lumber coming into Canada was at the present time subject to a tariff, and that he did not think that the benefit of the Reciprocity Treaty was to put Canada and the States on a fair basis; whereas at the present time the Canadian manufacturer was not on a fair footing with the American.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, the candidate, delivered a more than usually able address, and his clear explanation of the advantages of Reciprocity went home to the audience who evidenced their pleasure by frequent outbursts of applause. His denunciation of the Bourassa Alliance, threatening, as it did, the stability of Canada, made a deep and lasting impression on the minds of all present. Mr. Kerr's speech, eloquent and convincing, was a marked feature of the evening.

Mr. R. S. Muir, of Toronto, Manufacturing Agent, delivered a most convincing address, taking up the Reciprocity tariff, and showing in a most clean-cut and convincing fashion the advantages of Reciprocity to the consumer, and pointed out that the workingman was bound to benefit by the operation of the Reciprocity tariff. He also pointed out that the farmers stood to gain, and that the only person that would not enjoy it was the man who charged excessive prices, such as the middlemen, who took away all the tax.

Mr. Muir showed that it was necessary for the benefit of the people who did not have to pay the tax. Mr. Muir's earnest address was listened to with deep attention by the audience, and one of the best meetings ever held in the history of Lakefield was concluded with cheers for the King, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Candidate.

No Doubt About The Alliance Between The Conservatives & Bourassa

Nationalist Leader is Given Enthusiastic Reception in Sudbury by the Leaders of the Conservative Party There --"Three Cheers for Borden and Bourassa"

SUDBURY, SEPT. 18.—The Conservative party has crossed the Rubicon. The alliance of Borden and Bourassa has developed from that of common interest into that of proclaimed contract. No bones were made about it. From the moment of the arrival of the Nationalist leader this morning, when President R. R. McKessock, K.C., of the Sudbury Conservative Association, called for "three cheers for Bourassa and Borden," placing the potent partner in the premier position, to the final acclaim for our two leaders, with which the call for cheers for Sir Wilfrid Laurier was countered at the close of the great meeting, the definite character of the union was emphasized.

Conservative Sentiment.

Mr. Irwin Hilliard, K. C., of Morrisburg, opened the meeting by claiming to represent Sir James Whitney, in declaring that "the English-speaking Tories of Ontario are going to resent at the polls The Globe's slander of Mr. Bourassa."

Mr. George Gordon, the Conservative candidate, told the people: "I welcome Mr. Bourassa from the bottom of my heart. He and I are hand-in-hand in opposition to Laurier's silly naval policy. I give him, as your representative, the keys to the whole north Ontario district."

President McKessock of the Conservative Association declared the Nationalist chief to be "one of our greatest leaders, a worthy and most delightful statesman, a brilliant orator and a distinguished citizen."

Finally Mr. Bourassa himself assured the people that the Opposition had remodelled its naval policy in accordance with the position of Mr. Monk, and accordingly he was lending his aid to their cause.

AWarm Welcome.

The Nationalist leader was accorded an elaborate welcome. He was accompanied by Messrs. Henri Morel, Conservative M.P.P. for East Nipissing, and A. A. Aubin, Conservative M.P.P. for West Nipissing. He was met at the depot by the Federal candidate, Mr. Gordon, and by Presidents McKessock and the Executive association and escorted to the home of Mr. W. J. Bell, a friend and supporter of Hon. Frank Cochrane, for luncheon.

The town was gaily decorated with flags and bunting. The North Bay and Sudbury bands led in the welcome with the strains of "O, Canada." "Three cheers for Bourassa and Borden," called President McKessock, "Vivi Laurier," shouted back a French-Canadian in the crowd, and the procession moved off with the counter-demonstration.

Long before the commencement of the meeting the modest Opera House was thronged beyond its capacity. Sentiment was by no means unanimous. Even the procession which escorted Mr. Bourassa to the hall was greeted by cries of "Hurrah for Laurier" from portions of the crowd.

Two boxes were reserved for the ladies and escorts; both were thronged. Over the platform was the streamer, "Welcome, Bourassa. Tell Quebec Ontario will do its duty."

In the course of his address, Mr. Bourassa declared significantly that "the Nationalist movement would go on whether Sir Wilfrid were elected or not"—meaning, no doubt, that in the latter event, it would be safe in the hands of Mr. Borden and Mr. Burnham.

Hamilton Runners Wanted To Enter Road Races

The Examiner to-day received a letter from Jack Kennedy, of Hamilton, Ont., asking for entry blanks for the Examiner's Thanksgiving Day road races. Mr. Kennedy stated that he would have an entry for the ten mile event and also for the five mile junior race. However, the conditions of the race prevent the acceptance of Mr. Kennedy's entries, as both races are confined to bona fide residents of Peterborough and the adjoining counties. The events are emblematic of the road racing championships of the Midland Counties and are, therefore, only for residents of that district.

SCOTCH REUNION TO BE HELD IN KNOX CHURCH

Friday, September 22nd, is to be a day of days with our Scottish compatriots of Peterborough. For many weeks past a committee of the natives of the "Auld Land" have been busy as bees preparing for a meeting to bind closer the ties which surround the different families in our city. This will reach a climax on Friday evening, when a bill of fare will be laid to view on tables, reminding each that it's just like hame!"

Such toothsome dainties as oatcakes, soda scones, pancakes, shortbread and tattie scones, (many of these also having journeyed over the herring pond), heather and tartan ribbon, and haggis'—all go to make "Scots buddies," and their Canadian friends, meet around the hospitable board for a "rale square meal."

In addition to the supper, a concert has been arranged and this promises to be of a high class order. It comprises all Scots selections, solos, duets and quartettes, with lantern slides of Old Land scenes.

The committee have had to call a halt with the selling of tickets, as the tables are spread for 350, and this quota has almost been reached. After 350 have been sold, those wishing to gain admision will have to be content with the concert. Tickets, 35 cents. The door will be thrown open at 6.45, and the supper will commence at 7.15 prompt, till 8.15.

Rev. H. J. Keith will occupy the chair, supported by one or two other local clerics and gentlemen; and all will be done to ensure a pleasant "Scots nicht."

FANCY DRESS CARNIVAL

Grand Fancy Dress Carnival, Brock St. Rink, Friday evening. 16 prizes. ad-66-t-f

EGYPTIAN GRAVES.

Bodies Were Carefully Kept For Their Returning Souls.

The great pyramids of Egypt are merely the tombs of Kings. Although they are larger and much more imposing than any built in former ages, these tombs are constructed on the principle of all Egyptian graves. There is a chamber underground in which the body is walled up and protected against decay and spoliation, while above ground a mound of masonry or brick marks the grave and presents a place where the living may meet the dead with offerings and magic words which will secure to the spirit of the dead its daily bread and protection from evil.

An essential part of the Egyptian religion was the belief in another life after death and in some unseen way the personality of the dead man continued after death with the same necessities, the same fear of evil demons, the same work and the same pleasures as on earth.

On the graves of all classes food and drink were placed, and it was the duty of the relatives of the dead to renew these supplies. The Kings and great men founded endowments to provide for their wants after death. For these endowments farms and estates were granted to certain men, who thus became funerary priests and were enjoined to bring offerings of food and drink to the graves of the founders every day.

Thus it is that each pyramid not only contained the burial place of a King, but also presented on the side nearest the valley a chapel for the presentation of offerings and the performance of certain rites. The pyramids, with their temples, stand high up on the rocky plateau, and for convenience or some other reason which we do not know, a second chapel was built below on the edge of the valley. In such case the valley temple was connected with the upper temple by a causeway.

Straining For a Throne.

Each department of France has its royalist, nominated by the Duc d'Orleans, who is in close touch with the chief of his party's headquarters in Paris, the Comte de Laregle. The latter has under his orders a press bureau, known as the correspondence nationale, from which all the French royalist papers take their cue. Yet another division of the royalist bureau politique in Paris is the so-called Librairie Nationale, which furthers the monarchial cause by circulating hundreds of thousands of pictures, fly leaves and popular pamphlets. Finally there is a service of special messengers, answering to the king's messengers of the English Foreign Office. To these men is intrusted the duty of conveying the commands and instructions of the pretender from his home at Wood Norton to the royalist leaders in France. Owing to the activity of the cabinet noir of the French postoffice, a detective service which makes no secret of examining all royalist correspondence, it is impossible to confide any letters of importance to the mail.

Circus Bareback Riders.

The career of a bareback rider with a circus is limited to about ten years. It is short not so much because these men and women lose their agility, but because they lose their nerve. The tension and application are so strained and marked that it is only a few riders who are able to perform their startling feats more than a decade. Recklessness and daring die when youth ripens into age, and as all riders, as a rule, marry young added responsibilities, coupled with a lively sense of danger, cause them to retire or else seek some less strenuous life. These riders are well paid, the majority of them commanding from $150 to $250 a week.

Just Where She Was.

Mr. Oldboy walked into the library the other evening and beheld his only daughter comfortably ensconced on the knees of young Squire Beeswing. He looked his surprise, and the young couple blushed.

The older man was the first to recover his presence of mind and smiled sardonically.

"I see you've nearly finished your race for a husband, Marianne," he observed.

"I don't understand you, papa."

"Well, my dear, I notice you're on the last lap."

Chinese Music.

The notes of Chinese music read, like the written characters, from right to left, and the intervals of the scale are different from those of the scale adopted by the nations of the west. The music is not very harmonious and sounds meaningless and jangling to western ears, but it has a pretty musical cadence that makes it attractive and interesting in spite of its frequent discords.

A Pioneer of Modern Business.

Captain Kidd told how he buried his treasure.

FINDS NEW RACE.

Explorer Stefansson Makes Discovery In Arctic, B.C.

A race of people who had never before beheld a white man or an Indian, has been discovered in the Arctic regions of British Columbia by Vilhjmar Stefansson, the explorer who left in April, 1908, according to a letter received from him recently.

In his letter, which is dated "Mouth of the Dease River, Oct. 18, 1910"—and is the first intelligence received from the party within a year—Stefansson says:

"It doesn't look on the map that we have done much; we have had predecessors in Dolphin and Union Straits—ours is merely the first winter journey, and the first land journey. Ethnologically, we have done something, however, and geographically too, for we have discovered people in a region supposed to be uninhabited, and have lived a few months among people who had never seen a white man or an Indian (though they had heard of both), and did not even know I was not an Eskimo—so little were they informed on what white men are like. We have discovered Eskimo (in speech and habits) who are Scandinavians in appearance.

"This find is the beginning of the solution of one of two problems: 'What became of some of Franklin's men?'

"What became of the three thousand Scandinavians who disappeared from Greenland in the fifteenth century?

"Or, if neither of these questions is to be answered, then we have introduced a new problem of scientific interest: Why do some of the people of Victoria Land differ markedly from the rest of their race? Why are they so European in type?

"Besides this discovery, which was a chance happening, we have done our routine work as well as we could. We have discovered no large, unknown rivers, but we have discovered the non-existence of a stream which the maps make the size of the Hudson River—when the River La Roncierre disappears from the map I shall feel I have done some house cleaning.

"We have found a certain cape to be an island and a certain island to be a cape; we know the source of Rae River, of which only the mouth and lowest ten miles were seen by Dr. Rae. And a few other odd things we have done that are in the nature of discoveries. But, of course, if we deserve any credit it will be more for our routine work than for any discoveries properly so-called."

Canal Traffic Decreases.

Statistics of Canada's canal traffic to the end of July show a decrease of 4,314,146 tons. The total tonnage is given as 17,143,603. Over four million decrease is accounted for by a falling off in ore traffic at the Soo. Less lumber was shipped over the Ottawa and Chambly canals, but in other cases there are slight increases.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Full of fun and frivolity, which will make its audience fairly quiver with delight, is what is promised in De Koven and Herbert's new musical play entitled "The Beauty Spot," which will be the attraction at the "Grand" next Saturday, matinee and evening.

This new musical play will bring Mr. Frank Deshon once more before the theatre-going public of this city as a star. He has been provided with several exceptionally clever songs, among which are "She Sells Sea Shells," "I'm Going Crazy," "Foolish Questions" and others, all of which are said to give him an abundant opportunity for that class of comedy, of which he has no superiors.

Mr. Deshon, as General Samovar in the play, to the delight of his audience, spends the entire evening in a state of trepidation concerning a painting of Mrs. General, formerly a famous artist's model, which has been dragged out of a musty attic, and placed on sale. The General's pretty daughter, Nadine, is in love, and wishes to marry the artist, who is responsible for the troubles and the paintings, but the General wants her to marry a cousin to whom she has been betrothed since she was a baby and whom she has never seen. The cousin finally comes upon the scene, bringing his pretty little Borneo wife with him, and he and the artist change identities. The General has his hands full trying to straighten out his domestic tangle, but he finds time to sing his several songs to the accompanyment of a group of pretty girls.

The production is promised to be on the scale of magnificence seldom seen outside of the larger cities, and comes here direct from the Princess Theatre, Montreal, and plays the week of Oct. 2, at "The Princess," Toronto.

The seat sale for the local engagement opens Thursday morning.

Luxurious New Cars for C.P.R. Montreal Service

Another triumph in car building has been achieved by the C. P. R. and it marks a further advance in railroading.

The new compartment observation cars which have just been sent out from the Angus shops, are intended for the service between Toronto and Montreal, and as evidence of the growing popularity of the service between the North Toronto station and Montreal, they are attached to the train, leaving that station at 10.00 p.m. daily.

These new cars have seven compartments, a drawing room, an observation parlour and an observation platform. The entrance to the rooms is from aisles running along the sides of the cars, ensuring absolute privacy. There are two berths, the lower being made up from two double seats and there are all toilet requirements in each compartment.

The cars are lighted with electricity, and in the warm weather are kept cool with electric fans.

These cars are models of luxury and comfort, in which the C. P. R. standard of equipment excels.

Try on Some of Our New Suits and Overcoats

See how attractive they are in style, how perfectly they fit, and of what excellent fabrics they are made. You'll see an immense line of quite practical and refined styles which are so much in demand by correctly attired men. The gaudy, loud and freakish garments are entirely omitted. The garments we show will appeal to discriminating men who appreciate distinction, yet desire refined styles. We always put the importance of Quality before Price. But our prices are low when you consider the quality. As people grow more careful in buying, the surer we are of their trade.

A CRISIS IN SPAIN

Strikes Are Only a Blind for Revolutionary Moves—Martial Law Has Been Declared by the King

RIOTING FREQUENT

Madrid, Sept. 20.—King Alfonso yesterday signed a decree suspending the constitutional guarantee throughout Spain. This is equivalent to declaring the country under martial law.

This act which had been under consideration for some days, was taken to give the Government powers to deal sharply and promptly with the revolutionary agitation now fermenting in many parts of Spain, especially in the cities and industrial districts where Republican and revolutionary plans are being furthered, under cover of workingmen's strikes.

Well-known Republican Parliamentary leaders stand aside from the present movement, which is socialistic and destructive in character.

The most serious situation is at Valencia, where a general strike was declared Monday. The city was at once placed under martial law, and there more or less rioting throughout the day. After dark the disturbers attacked the officials in the adjacent township of Cullera, murdered a judge and wounded other officers of the court, which had been engaged in the trial of those arrested earlier in the day.

A revolutionary plot uncovered at Valencia and Barcelona was to assassinate Gen. Weylor.

The General Union of Labor yesterday decided to call a general strike throughout Spain on a date to be fixed later.

Boy Burglars.

New York, Sept. 20.—Two boy burglars, aged 9 and 5 years, were on Monday captured at the revolver's point by a reserve squad of three detectives and three uniformed policemen, while ransacking the home of August T. Day in Williamsburg. John Kenchinsky, the older boy, defiantly cried: "I ain't a squaler. The gang knows I'm square," while little George Bills, anything but a bold burglar, wailed: "I wanna go home!"

The younger lad was taken home, while the [illegible] in the children's court. It is thought that they were being used as tools by some gang of burglars.

Montreal, Sept. 20.—Pleading guilty to seven charges of burglary, committed in the north end of the city and of securing in this manner goods to the value of $2,000, Emile Harpin, the 19-year-old son of respectable parents, came before Judge Choquet yesterday morning for sentence, and was committed to the penitentiary for three years.

Trial Trip of Princess Alice.

London, Sept. 20.—The Princess Alice, the latest C.P.R. steamer, has just completed its trials at the mouth of the Tyne. It was built by Swan & Hunter for the British Columbia service, and is the first of the C.P.R. fleet raising steam by oil fuel from the commencement, although several of the older steamers now possess the apparatus.

Garage Burned.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 20.—Fire destroyed Humphries garage with touring cars at Queenstown. An overhead engine is believed to have caused the blaze, which did nearly $3,000 damage.

HE HAD A BIG CHEQUE

Toronto Bank Balks at a Paper for Six Millions Presented by Man From Minneapolis

A QUEER STORY

Toronto, Sept. 20.—"Is this any good?"

Frederick A. Turner handed the cashier of the Dominion Bank a yellow slip of paper which purported to be a check of the Bank of England for $6580, payable through the Dominion Bank of Canada, Montreal branch.

On the bottom of it was a seal which read: "Official stamp of the Court of Superior Sessions, Toronto, Canada, Aug. 22nd, 1911."

The cashier looked up in surprise at the note.

"Oh, I have a bigger one than that," said Turner.

Then he produced a similar check for $6,686,000 made payable to him and signed John Dodgson.

The police department were notified and Detective Wallace went to the bank and took the man into custody.

At detective headquarters Turner claimed he was a foreman of the Canadian Fish Co. of Minneapolis and to prove it he had letter heads of the company in his possession.

He said that he had received the notes from John Dodgson, who was an egg dealer of Minneapolis and an Englishman. He had helped Dodgson when the latter had a sore leg and the two were coming to Toronto together to cash the checks. He, however, had lost Dodgson at Detroit and came to Toronto alone.

Turner claims he just went to the bank to see if the checks were all right and that he had not tried to cash any of them. There were five altogether, the other three being for $225, $225 and $100.

Trolley's Awful Plunge.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 20.—Two persons were killed and a third probably fatally injured on Monday night when a street car leaped from the tracks and plunged over a hundred foot hill. There were only three passengers and one was killed.

Several hundred feet before the [illegible] man lost control. Bounding from the rails at a terrific speed, the car described a complete somersault before it landed at the foot of the rocky cliff.

Candidate's Deposit Seized.

Montreal, Sept. 20.—The curious situation of a candidate with his deposit under seizure is the case in Bagot, where Tancrede Marsil, the Nationalist candidate, owes $85. He had agreed to pay $4.40 weekly, but has neglected to do so lately.

So yesterday a seizure was put on the deposit, and if he is to receive his deposit back after the election he must get it from the court with the $85 and cost deducted.

Burned His Baby Sister.

Charlotte, N.C., Sept. 20.—The peculiarly atrocious burning to death of the two-year-old child of E. G. Friday, a farmer of Iredell, by her brother, four years old, came to light yesterday. The older child deliberately ignited a small torch and applied it to the clothing of his baby sister. Asked his reason the child replied: "Just because." He has repeatedly set fire to furnishings of the house.

VAN HORNE SPEAKS.

C.P.R. Man Denounces Reciprocity In Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 20.—Sir William Van Horne made his long-promised appearance here to-day and condemned the reciprocity pact. The Premier's presence in the city effectively damped the interest in his arrival.

Sir William's theme was reciprocity, which he attacked unsparingly, both from the economic and national viewpoint. He addressed his appeal to all the various elements, which make up the population of the division, having something to say, to French, English and Hebrew alike.

Mr. G. F. Johnston, the Opposition candidate of the division, also spoke to the electors.

After brief introductory speeches by [illegible] was called upon.

"The campaign is now practically over so far as argument is concerned, and there is no doubt that the advocates of reciprocity have been completely worsted in the argument. It only remains to do the necessary work of polling the vote.

"To-day, I believe that there is not a single constituency in Ontario which is really safe for the Government. It is sincerely to be hoped that every man who feels the importance of defeating this ill-advised and improvident surrender of our national interests will not cease to work for the good cause until the election is over.

"With earnest and enthusiastic work during the next two days, I am confident that we shall win.

"When it came before the American Congress reciprocity was supported by a large majority of both political parties. They had much to gain and they ignored party lines. We have much to lose by it and we should likewise ignore party lines."

Sir William then quoted extensively from speeches and articles appearing in the American press to show that the leading men of the United States hoped that reciprocity would finally be consummated by political union.

The divergence of traffic to the American railroads and ports would greatly harm those of this country.

He then pointed to the freedom which the French-Canadian enjoys in Canada. The speaker referred particularly to the school question. If Canada should ever be swallowed by the United States, he said, the British treaties which guarantee French and Catholic rights would be gone; the Canadian constitution which supports religious schools for the Catholic people would be gone; annexation would put an end to parish law in this province and would refuse to French-Canadians the right to speak in their own language in the national parliament.

Irish Strikers Quiet.

Dublin, Sept. 20.—There was no improvement yesterday in the situation resulting from the strike declared originally on Friday night on the Great Southern & Western Railway, and which is extending over the Great Northern and the Midland Great Western, the three principal lines in Ireland.

Traffic generally is disorganized.

The executive of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants was in session yesterday. Pending the outcome the strikers generally are quiet.

An effort to fill the places of the men who quit is being made. Forty Scottish strike-breakers arrived yesterday morning, and met a hostile reception. A big police escort routed the attacking party. Another party from Manchester were met by strike pickets, who persuaded most of them not to work.

Bernier Coming Back.

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—Captain Bernier, the Canadian Arctic explorer, is back from a year's cruise in the far north. Bernier wintered in the Arctic seas, and had not been heard from for over six months up to yesterday morning, when the Arctic was reported off Point Amour, on the Labrador coast.

Bernier's long silence, and the uncertainty as to the exact whereabouts of the Arctic, had caused some anxiety in official circles in Ottawa. The return by way of Labrador suggests that Capt. Bernier failed in his intention of making the northwest passage.

Yes, Gotham's a Big Place.

New York, Sept. 20.—It will cost $174,000,000 to run the city of New York this year. To show how this immense sum is spent, the city will lay out $35,000 next month on an exhibit that will plainly reveal the details of city administration.

STREETS CROWDED

Sir Wilfrid Addresses Large Crowds in Montreal and Gets an Enthusiastic Welcome on all Sides

TWO MORE MEETINGS

Montreal, Sept. 20.—Montreal was deluged with political meetings last night. In an effort to counteract Sir Wilfrid Laurier's meetings the Nationalists and Conservatives organized meeting in various parts of the city, and used every known device to draw the crowd away from the Liberal leader. Their efforts proved unavailing, however, and at one point the audience numbered 20,000.

In talking to the English electors present he said: "In my early career I determined to model my Liberalism upon that of Bright, Cobden and Gladstone. I am a Liberal of the Liberal school of old England, and there is therefore a bond between you and me. The measure of freer trade which I am giving you it but part of the principle adopted in England during the past century. I rely upon the English-speaking people of this Dominion to do their part in returning the Liberal party to power in order that we may put into effect this most desirable measure of reciprocity in natural products."

Speaking in French, Sir Wilfrid entered into an exhaustive argument regarding the reciprocity agreement.

From Atwater avenue Sir Wilfrid journeyed by auto to Mr. R. Bickerdike's headquarters, where he addressed another monster crowd. It was, however, at St. Jacques Market, on Amherst street, in St. James' division, that he met his greatest reception. The crowd here extended for blocks in every direction. Thousands hung upon the outskirts of the crowd in the hope of seeing their leader or of catching an occasional word. The cheering at all his meetings was of a most enthusiastic nature.

Sir Wilfrid left the city at 11.30 last night and proceeded to Quebec He will speak to-day in Quebec County, and in Montmorency County at St. Anne de Beaupe. This will wind up his tour.

In the Thick of Fight.

Toronto, Sept. 20.—Every Minister in the Ontario Cabinet is still in the thick of the political campaign. Yesterday the Premier was in Cornwall, where he addressed a meeting last night. Hon. W. J. Hanna and Hon. Dr. Beaume are in Western Ontario. Hon. J. S. Duff is in the Georgian Bay district, and Col. A. J. Matheson is in the east. Hon. Adam Beck left yesterday afternoon for Markham and addressed a political meeting there last night. Hon. F. Cochrane is nearly always at the Conservative organization headquarters, while the Attorney-General, Hon. J. J. Foy, is assisting in the campaign in the Toronto ridings.

Volunteer Police For Britain.

London, Sept. 20.—The Home Office has issued a detailed circular to the chief constables in the United Kingdom, instructing them how the volunteer police force, which it is proposed to raise in each of the large centres of population, should be organized. It will consist of a registered police reserve in two bodies, the first reserve consisting of men who have previously undergone police or military training, and who could be temporarily attached to the regulars with uniform and pay, and the second consisting of men registered as willing to serve as special constables.

Home Secretary Churchill suggests that this scheme would to a great extent obviate the necessity of calling out the troops. He further proposes that in times of strikes it might be legitimate to enroll strikers as special constables, because strike disorders, he points out, are for the most part prompted by hooligans, and the strikers themselves would likely be anxious to suppress disorders which would bring discredit on their cause.

Getting Nearer Agreement.

Paris, Sept. 20.—A semi-official note issued yesterday afternoon says that the French negotiations with Germany entered a new stage during the conversation between the German Foreign Minister and the French Ambassador to Germany on Monday, promising an early agreement.

The conversation, the note adds, makes a satisfactory issue probable, but it would be premature to consider all divergencies as having disappeared.

It is hoped that, by the end of the week, the negotiations will have reached a decisive turn.

Every Man Should Vote.

St. Catharines, Sept. 20.—"Any man who lives in a free country and takes no interest in an election for representatives to Parliament and lower Houses, disdaining to mix up with the common herd and voting, is not fit to live in a free country," said Mr. Justice Riddell, in his address to the grand jury on opening the fall assizes.

He added that any man who would sell his vote, is not fit to have a vote, and should be in the penitentiary, likewise any man who buys a vote.

Aviator to Cross Lake.

Lockport, N.Y., Sept. 20.—James J. Ward, the second aviator to start in the flight across the continent for the $50,000 prize, in order to thank in person a benefactor of his earlier years, is diverging one hundred miles from his course in his daring coast to coast flight. Yesterday he visited Wm. A. Hescock, a Lockport manufacturer, and later will proceed westward to Brantford, Canada, where he will deliver a message.

Russia Will Deal Firmly With Socialism and Judaism.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 20.—The court influences are mobilizing for the fight to control the Government that shall succeed that of the late Premier Stolypin, who succumbed from bullet wounds received last Thursday night at Kiev. The impression prevails that the tenure of office of M. Kokovsoff, the acting Premier, will be temporary. The Nationalists fear that they would be set aside if Kokovsoff remained at the head of the Ministry. Several Ministers are also out of harmony with the acting Premier.

M. Kokovsoff is generally respected and is enlightened on foreign and financial matters and a straightforward conservative in home politics. The phrase, "It is time to wind up the nationalistic animation and inaugurate conciliation" is attributed to him.

There is much speculation as to whether a more liberal or a more reactionary policy will be adopted.

The Novoe Vremya yesterday said: "A new chapter in the history of Russia commences with the death of Stolypin. Socialism and Judaism must be taken in an iron grasp."

The Reich considers that Stolypin was big in individuality, but a political bankrupt, and that he has left the country an enormous task as a political legacy.

Throngs Cheer the Czar.

Kiev, Sept. 20.—A mass for the repose of the soul of the late Russian Prime Minister, M. Stolypin, who was shot Thursday night, was celebrated yesterday at the Kiev Hospital. Emperor Nicholas participated.

His Majesty left Kiev last evening for Sebastopol, where the Imperial party will take up for three months their residence in the newly-built palace at Yalta, in the Crimea. Thousands of persons, cheering enthusiastically and singing repeatedly the national anthem, accompanied the Emperor through the streets.

To Woo Japan for Peace.

New York, Sept. 20.—Rev. John W. Hill president of the International Peace Forum, and pastor of the Metropolitan temple, left New York yesterday for Japan in an effort to bring Japan into the peace treaty between Great Britain, France and the United States.

Tried to Sneak In.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 20.—John Rybiski and George Zeabeski, Russian Poles, were fined $10 each yesterday for entering Canada illegally. They paid a boatman $3 each to row them across the upper river Monday at midnight after being rejected at the bridge.

SURPRISE WAS REAL.

Husband Did Not Expect Company Was in Parlor.

"We have the surprise beautifully planned," said young Mrs. Westerleigh to the guests, "and Frank doesn't suspect a thing. I think he has even forgotten that today is his birthday. He will get home from the office at about 7 o'clock. Then he always goes upstairs to take off his coat and put on his smoking jacket for the evening. When he is upstairs I will call out suddenly: 'Oh, Frank, come downstairs—be quick! The gas is escaping.' Then he will rush down here and find the crowd of friends waiting for him."

It went exactly as planned. Westerleigh came home at the regular hour and went directly upstairs. The hidden guests held their breath while Mrs. Westerleigh called out excitedly: "Oh, Frank, come down quick! The gas is escaping in the parlor."

Every light had been turned out, and the parlor was in perfect darkness. There was a rapid rush of feet down the stairway; then a voice said, "I don't smell any gas."

"Better light the jet," Mrs. Westerleigh suggested tremulously. "Here's a match."

The match was struck, and suddenly the room was flooded with light. Everybody screamed. The hostess fainted. For there in the center of the room stood Westerleigh attired in his old faded bath robe, with a fresh pair of trousers carried over his arm. —Ladies' Home Journal.

Beyond the Law.

When Farmer Fairweight came to London on a flying visit he discovered many things—that 'buses could go without horses, that you could walk for a whole hour without striking a field or an acquaintance, and, finally, that you couldn't hit a policeman simply because he compels you to move out of other people's way.

As he was being taken to the station he inquired what the policeman intended doing with him.

"You'll find out soon enough," said the policeman grimly. "Seven days, probably."

"Seven days! Ah, that's where I have ye, old bigebottle!" chuckled the farmer triumphantly, producing the return half of his tickets. "I've to go back on Monday!"—Answers.

Handier to Carry Than a Cork.

The elevator to the department store was nearly full.

Rayner, who was one of the passengers, drew a small and withered potato from his trousers pocket.

"What do you carry that for?" asked Shyne.

"Protection."

"Protection from what? Rheumatism?"

"No; hatpins."

By way of illustration he deftly impaled it upon the point of one that was within two inches of his left eye.—Chicago Tribune.

Not For Christening.

A clergyman had been displeased with the quality of milk served him. At length he determined to remonstrate with his milkman for supplying such unworthy stuff. He began mildly, "I've been wanting to see you with regard to the quality of the milk with which you are serving me."

"Yes, sir," uneasily answered the tradesman.

"I only wanted to say," continued the minister, "that I use the milk for drinking purposes exclusively, and not for christening."—Dundee Advertiser.

Tired In Body and in Mind

Worn Out by the Monotonous Indoor Life of Winter

Spring Finds the Blood Weak and the System Run Down—Vigor is Restored by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Just at the time when the buds are bursting and the birds are chirping merrily in the treetops, many people feel most keenly the debilitating and enervating effects of indoor winter life.

The blood is so thin and watery that it fails to supply nutrition to the nervous system and to the vital organs. You feel tired, weak and discouraged, appetite fails, digestion is impaired, energy and ambition are lacking, and strange depressing feelings come over you.

But nature has provided certain restoratives to be used at this time of year to form new, rich blood and create new nerve force. These elements are found in condensed and easily assimilated form in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Thousands of men and women have learned to escape this spring depression and weakness and discouragement by using this great restorative.

Vitality is increased, strength and confidence return, buoyancy is felt in every movement of the body, pallor and weakness and disease give place to the glow of health and vigour of mind and body.

THE CHECKROOM BOY.

Blessings on thee, little man,
Checkroom boy, with subtle plan
To secure the trickey dime
When I come at luncheon time!
How thou smil'st when I appear!
How thou seem'st about to cheer,
Deferential, confident,
Evening not to care a cent
Whether ere I leave I slip
In thy palm the hard wrung tip!

Though I'd rather take my hat
With me, thou wilst not have that.
Firmly dost thou take the thing
As thou'dst catch a bird on wing.
Aye, and now thine optics gleat
When thou grab'st my overcoat!
Sometimes greatly do I fear
That some day when I appear
Then wilt check my coat and vest,
Tie and shoes and all the rest!

And thy little companion, too,
He whom we with trembling view
When we go to wash our hands,
In the wash room there he stands
With a whisk broom in his grasp.
We cannot escape his clasp.
Merrily he flicks his broom
Like a shuttle in a loom.
How his whiskbroom blaps and blips
As he brushes out the tips!

Blessings on thee, little man,
One of the tip getting clan!
Couldst thou know the thoughts we think
Thou wouldst never even blink.
For with checks for hats and coats
Thou dost also get our goats.
Blithely brush and gayly check
And take tips in by the peck,
But some day, I am afraid,
Thou wilt cause a new crusade.

The Gentle Hint.

A north country collier anxious to pop the question to a girl whom he honestly admired, but unable to sum up courage to ask her the question outright, adopted a method of sounding her as to her idea of matrimony.

"Jenny, ma lass," he said nervously, "Ah've insured my life."

"Has ta, lad?" said Jenny indifferently.

"Aye, and Ah'm a silly for doin' so."

"How's that?"

"Why, supposin' Ah get killed t' pit, where dust t' think t' money go?"

"Why, to thy feyther, for sure."

"True enuf, an' it isn't fair. It ought to be paid 'o ma wife."

"To thy wife! Why, tha hasn't got one."

"That's just it!" said Bill. "But thou's a nice lass, Jenny, and I want thee to hev that money."

"Why couldn't tha say so at first?" cried Jenny joyfully.—Tit-Bits.

I used to live down that way for awhile, and in the village which I graced with my presence a certain old horse doctor was elected justice of the peace. What he didn't know about the law was sufficient. He knew nothing; he should have made an ideal justice of the peace.

"His first case, however, was that of a man arrested for stealing a horse.

"'Guilty or not guilty?' asked the justice.

"'Not guilty,' answered the prisoner.

"'Then what the deuce are you doing here?' demanded the justice of the peace. 'Get out!'"—San Francisco Chronicle.

On Friday evening the members of the Epworth League gave their first vice-president, Miss Gerda Copeland, a 'kitchen shower' at her home. The gifts were all useful ones and were presented to Miss Copeland in a metallic tub, also a gift. The bride-elect was taken entirely by surprise, but thanked those present in a few well chosen words. Music and games were indulged in and later refreshments closed a very pleasant evening.

Dr. Thompson, who acted in the capacity of chairman, introduced, in a few well chosen words, the speaker of the evening. Mr. Hogue, in his speech pointed out that reciprocity, in reducing the taxes on food stuffs, would benefit the farmer, by enlarging his markets. He appealed to each voter to overlook the political side of the question and consider the subject of reciprocity as being for the best interests of Canada.

The congregations of the Methodist church last Sunday were furnished a rare and rich treat in the musical part of the services. The organ was played by Mrs. Ryker, of New York, who is an accomplished organist, as well as possessing a full, sweet contralto voice. Her voluntaries were well chosen and perfectly rendered, she one during the offertory showed the affective use of the oboe and flute stops for solo work, being especially well received. Mr. Ryker, who is easily the finest tenor ever heard in Omemee, held his audience entranced from the first note. His rendition of "Fear ye not, O Israel" in the morning, brought the tears to many an eye. His wonderful command over his voice was shown in the contrasts from pianissimo to fortissimo, the voice remaining full and true on the highest notes. Mrs. Eaton sang very sweetly in the evening, her solo confirming the knowledge that Omemee audiences have of her thorough musical ability.

Rev. J. Line is in Toronto trying supplemental exams., preparatory to taking up his third year work at Victoria College in October.

Very successful Harvest Home services were held in Christ church on Sunday morning and at St. James' in the evening. Rev. C. E. After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, when a host of friends congratulated the young couple. Why Should I Use Cuticura Soap?

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the Best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. 7M, Boston, U. S. A., for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two page book on the skin and hair.

THE TERRORS OF THE TINY TADS

1—The Tiny Tads are frightened; they are saying, "Hist!" and "Hark!"
For first they hear a whining sound and then they hear a bark.

2—And all at once they see a beast that stands upon some logs,
His head just like an elephant's, his body like a dog's.

3—A Bookshelfkin comes up to them and tells them not to fear.
"I have two little books," says he, "to carry you from here."

4—Two of the Tinies sit astride of a Jackalmanac;
A Pussycatalog then takes the others on his back.

5—"Git up!" the little riders cry, and then they cry, "Whoa, there!
Just see that Almanacrobat do stunts up in the air!"

6—"Say, fellows," says a Tiny Tad, "I'm glad we got away
From that barking Mongrelephant that came along to-day!"

HER SKIN SEEMED ON FIRE

Every Other Treatment Failed But "Fruit-a-tives" Cures

GRANDE LIGNE, QUE., Jan. 2nd, 1910.

"My wife was greatly distressed for three years with chronic Eczema on the hands, and the disease was so severe that it almost prevented her from using her hands. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, but none of them did any good. He also advised her to wear rubber gloves and she wore out three pairs without getting any benefit. As a last resort, I persuaded her to try "Fruit-a-tives", and the effect was marvellous. Not only did "Fruit-a-tives" entirely cure the Eczema, but the Asthma, which she suffered from, was also completely cured.

We both attribute our present good health to "Fruit-a-tives". N. JOUBERT.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Eczema or Salt Rheum because "Fruit-a-tives" purifies the blood, corrects the Indigestion and Constipation, and tones up the Nervous System.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices and valuable tonics, and is the greatest of all blood-purifying remedies.

YOUNG THROUGH OLD

Maxims Which Will Help You to Carry Youth Into Age

Inspect a good long, useful life.

Hold your thoughts persistently.

Simply refuse to grow old by counting your years or anticipating old age.

Refrain from all kinds of stimulants and sedatives; they will shorten your life.

One of the best preventatives of old age is enthusiasm and interest in affairs of the day.

Keep in the sunlight; nothing beautiful or sweet grows or ripens in the darkness.

Avoid fear in all its varied forms of expression; it is the greatest enemy of the human race.

Nature is the great rejuvenator; her spirit is ever young. Live with her; study her; love her.

Avoid excesses of all kinds: they are injurious. The long life must be a temperate, regular life.

Contemplate beauty in all its forms, and you will drive everything that is ugly out of your life.

Keep mental cobwebs, dust and brain ashes brushed off by frequent trips to the country, or by travel.

Don't allow yourself to think on your birthday that you are a year older, and so much nearer the end.

Never look on the dark side; take sunny views of everything; a sunny thought drives away the shadows.

Be a child; live simply and naturally, and keep clear of entangling alliances and complications of all kinds.

Cultivate the spirit of contentment; all discontentment and dissatisfaction bring age-furrows prematurely to the face.

Keep your mind young by fresh, vigorous thinking, and your heart sound by cultivating a cheerful, optimistic disposition.

Don't live to eat, but eat to live. Many of our ills are due to overeating, to eating wrong things, and to irregular eating.

Don't be too ambitious; the canker of an overvaulting ambition has eaten up the happiness of many a life and shortened its years.

Throw aside your dignity, and romp and play with children; make them love you by loving them, and you will add years to your life.

Think beautiful thoughts—harmony thoughts, beauty thoughts, truth thoughts, thoughts of innocence, of youth, of love, and of kindness.

BRIGHT SAYINGS

Mrs. Nellie L. McClung:—A home can never be replaced by anything else.

Ernest Thomson Seton:—There is little doubt that few men live their full term.

Marion Harland:—There is a closer connection between cooking and conduct than is often admitted.

Dr. James W. Robertson:—No children should be allowed to leave school before they are sixteen years of age.

Arthur Stringer:—Much that has been written might have remained unwritten, and the world no worse off.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson:—If political power becomes divorced from knowledge and sense of duty it will be disastrous.

Capt. Clive Phillips-Woolley:—There are some orators to whom the discharge of a certain number of speeches is necessary for health.

Principal Schurman:—The cause of temperance can be fostered and pushed forward better by educational work than by anything else.

Agnes C. Laut:—When women have got over their want of confidence in their own sex the number of women doctors will largely increase.

Mrs. Margaret Scott:—The most thankful, joyful, and glad-hearted people we come across are often those who have least in this world to make them happy.

Premier Botha:—On broad national lines, with aspirations and ideals in harmony, Canada is moving rapidly ahead—east and west, in city, town, and in prairie. South Africa will do likewise.

NATURAL HISTORY

"Papa," said Harry, infant phenomenon, aged nine, "will you give me my pocket-money in advance? I want to buy a book on moths."

"Certainly, my boy," said the proud father. "Here's a quarter for you. I am delighted that you should take such an interest in natural history."

That evening all papa's best friends came to dinner.

"Now is my opportunity," reflected the proud parent, "to show these people what a clever boy my son is. I shall have him in at dessert-time!"

So Harry came in with the pears and pineapple, and in loud toned the parent remarked:

"Well, Harry, did you get your book on moths?"

"Yes, papa," answered his son.

"And what is it called?" pursued the delighted father.

"Oh!" said the unsuspecting phenomenon, "it is entitled 'Hints to Young Mothers.'"

MAGISTRATE CURED OF PILES & ECZEMA

"One of the latest prominent gentlemen to speak highly in Zam-Buk's favour is Mr. C. E. Sanford of Weston, King's Co., N.S. Mr. Sanford is a justice of the Peace for the County, and a member of the Board of School Commissioners. He is also Deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick. Indeed it would be difficult to find a man more widely known and more highly respected. Here is his opinion of Zam-Buk. He says:—

"I never used anything that gave me such satisfaction as Zam-Buk. I had a patch of Eczema on my ankle which had been there for over 20 years. Sometimes also the disease would break out on my shoulders. I had applied various kinds of remedy and tried all sorts of things to obtain a cure, but in vain. Zam-Buk, unlike everything else I had tried, proved highly satisfactory and cured the Eczema. I have also used Zam-Buk for blood spiles, and it has cured them completely also. I take comfort in helping my brethren, and if the publication of my case of the healing value of Zam-Buk will be the means of bringing relief to any other sufferers to try it, I should be glad. For the relief of suffering caused by Piles or Skin Diseases I know of nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk ... eczema, abscesses, blood-poisons, ringworm, festering or running sores, bad legs, varicose ulcers, cold sheens, pimply faces, scalds, burns, bruises, baby's sores, etc. Purely herbal. 50c box, druggists and stores. Before imitations.

Mooney:—"Who says I beat her, sir?"

Magistrate:—"She herself testifies to it."

Mooney:—"What! The old lady herself don't deny it? Well, then, I'll pay wid pleasure, for I'll be hanged if it isn't the first time in all our rows that she's owned up to coming out second best."

Corning, N.Y., Man Found Buffalo Widow Too Fond of Vanities

George Eddy, of Corning, N.Y., believed that matrimony was desirable, and for some time back carried on a correspondence with a widow, Mrs. Dowell, of Buffalo, with that object in view. The pair, who are both about 50 years of age, met in Buffalo, and decided to get married. The bride-to-be was a Roman Catholic, and the priest who was asked to perform the ceremony asked for the bride's baptismal certificate. This could only be obtained from her birthplace, Malton, Ont., so the couple set out for Malton by way of Toronto. While in Toronto they boarded in Mutual Street, took in the Exhibition, and the prospective groom lavished presents on his intended bride. He found to his sorrow, however, that his sweetheart had extravagant tastes, and he took this to heart to such an extent that he decided to retreat.

He paid his own bill at the boarding-house and then hurried away to catch the boat for Niagara. But, alas! His intended arrived before the boat left and complained to P. C. Skelton that she had been deserted. The stalwart guardian of the peace immediately took the affair in hand. The woman wanted her ticket and her transportation papers; the man wanted his diamond ring back. The policeman acted as conciliatory agent and suggested, later insisting on, a fair exchange. The man then produced the required ticket and papers, but the little romance hand ended in irreparable disaster.

MUSEUM CRACKING AGAIN

Some of the Plumbing Fixtures Have Broken Under Strain

The famous crack in the walls of the new Victoria Museum has again broken loose and is now beginning to cause some real alarm on the part of the employes in the building. The fissure, which extends in the form of an ellipse across walls, ceiling and floor inside the main entrance, was, a week or so ago, patched up afresh, as has been done almost a score of times since it first developed. It has now opened, however, wider than ever, and is large enough to permit of an index finger being inserted in it in some places.

A new evidence of the stress at work within the building has developed in the breaking of the plumbing fixtures in a few of the offices.

THE MISSING LINK

In Kentucky lived a quaint character named Ezekiel Hopkins, who once gained local fame by discovering a piece of broken railway line and stopping an excursion train in time to prevent disaster. So it was decided to present Ezekiel with a gold watch. The head of the presentation committee, approaching Ezekiel with a grave bow, said: "Mr. Hopkins, it is the desire of the good people of Kentucky that you shall, in recognition of your valor and merit, be presented with this watch, which they trust will ever remind you of their undying friendship."

Without the least emotion, Ezekiel took the watch from its handsome case, turned it over and over in his wrinkled hand, and finally asked "Whar's the chain?"

YAMEN IS HOOTED.

Rebels in Suifu Rob the Prefect and Many Are Killed.

Pekin, Sept. 20.—The French legation has received a despatch from Sui-Fu that the precincts yamen at that place have been attacked and burned by the rebels. Many persons were killed. The Chinese Foreign Board has received reports of an attack on the yamen at Kiotang-Fu, but details are lacking. The board also has been advised that the yamens have been looted in five towns in the neighborhood of Cheng-Tu.

A message from General Charles Erh Feng, commander of the troops within the besieged capital, says that he will despatch troops to the disturbed districts as soon as it can be arranged. He is evidently awaiting reinforcements.

Official advices received by the Government indicate that Chengtu, the Szechuan capital, was safe up to September 15.

London, Sept. 20.—The Foreign Office has received a cable despatch from the British Consul-General at Chengtu, of date of Sept. 14, which was transmitted through the Minister at Pekin, in which he says that the city on that date was still threatened with attacks. Up to the time of writing all the attacks had been repulsed.

Unrest In Norway's Army.

Christiania, Norway, Sept. 20.—The Government, through a general court-martial, has handed down sentences against nearly two hundred soldiers, who have taken part in mutinous demonstrations brought about through the influence of the young Socialist party, which of late has obtained great influence in the army.

The ostensible reason for the demonstration by the troops was that the men who violated some of the rules of the army were punished too severely, but the anti-militarist propaganda of the Socialists is believed to be at the bottom of the trouble.

Yesterday a general court-martial sentenced 130 soldiers to 24 days' arrest. Of the other demonstrators two were sentenced to 25 days' arrest, and fourteen to 20 days' confinement.

RHEUMATISM AND COMMON SENSE

Father Morrisey's No. 7 Eliminates the Uric Acid.

Many treatments will relieve the aches and pains of rheumatism, but there is only one way to cure that dread disease. The common sense method is to remove the cause, and the effects will soon disappear.

Rheumatism is caused, as is well known, by the failure of the kidneys to perform their intended work of filtering the uric acid out of the blood and eliminating it from the body through the bladder. When the kidneys go on strike, the uric acid is carried to the joints and tissues, where it causes stiffening of the muscles, and the excruciating pains of rheumatism.

Father Morrisey, the learned priest-physician, after much research devised a prescription which would act directly on the kidneys, and by toning them up to vigorous action, cause them to clear the system of the uric acid. This remedy, known as No. 7, has been used successfully in thousands of cases.

Father Morrisey's Liniment will bring relief from the effects of rheumatism, while his No. 7 Tablets will get to work on the cause and in due time cure the disease.

Why suffer from this painful and troublesome affliction, when by using the common sense methods originated by Father Morrisey and successfully followed for years, it is possible to aid Nature to restore you to health?

If you are not yourself rheumatic, you doubtless know of some one who is, and who would be glad to learn of a treatment which has such a consistent record of cures. It is easy to take and sure to benefit and ultimately cure rheumatism. 50c. a box, at your dealer's, or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co., Ltd., Montreal, Que.

Morgan as a Peacemaker.

New York, Sept. 20.—A cable to the World from Paris says:

J. Pierpont Morgan has been asked by German financial interests to lend part of the money that may be needed to avert any possible panic and failures that may threaten in Germany. Mr. Morgan has agreed to lend the money at 7 per cent. interest on one condition:

That the German Government accept France's proposals relative to Morocco and the Congo; the American millionaire expressing the opinion that a prompt acceptance of the proposals will of itself go far to relieve the financial uneasiness.

MONTREAL, Sept. 19.—There was an increased enquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, there being bids in the market for over 250,000 bushels, but as they were all 1c to 2c per bushel out of line, no business was done. The local and outside demand for oats was better, and a fair amount of business was done at steady prices. The foreign demand for spring wheat flour was fair, and as bids were in line sales of several thousand sacks were made. A good business continues to be done for local and country account. Demand for mill feed is good and prices are firm. Cheese is fairly active and strong. Butter is quiet and easy, and eggs fairly active. Demand for provisions is fair.

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 20 1911

Vote For J. R. STRATTON The Man That Gets Things Done!

A POLICY OF ACTING OR A POLICY OF WAITING?

In regard to reciprocity, the difference between the Liberals and their predecessors is that the Conservatives tried to get it, and the Liberals got it.

Conservatives like Sir John Macdonald, Sir A. T. Galt, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir John Thompson, were doubtless sincere in their desire to obtain reciprocity. It is true also there were difficulties in the way; that the United States were less inclined to talk reciprocity twenty, thirty, forty years ago than they are to-day.

Still the fact remains that it fell to the lot of a Liberal Government to achieve what others had attempted. And this is true with every part of the Liberal record.

A British preference was talked of for many years before the Liberal Government came into power. The Liberal Government took the bull by the horns and established a British preference. The promptness with which the thing was done astounded the Opposition. They wanted delay, they wanted to wait and see whether the British Government and Parliament would revive protection and give Canada preference for preference.

It is the same with reciprocity to-day. The Liberal Government gets the reciprocity which its predecessors tried to get for forty years. And the Opposition again cries, "Wait—wait, and see whether the Democrats will take the duties off without any agreement."

Before the Liberal Government came into office, we waited for population to fill the great fertile lands of the West. Under the Liberal Government the population came. The prairie that had so long waited for farmers became a field of wheat. The production of wheat increased by leaps and bounds. New towns sprang up, old towns became cities. Under the Liberal Government there has been an enormous expansion of trade. Since 1896 our foreign trade has increased more than threefold. Manufacturing industry has also shown marvelous expansion in the same period.

Reciprocity will mark another era in the prosperity of Canada. There will be still greater expansion in agriculture, in commerce, in manufacturing industry, under the Government that ACTS instead of WAITING.

The same applies to the representation of West Peterborough. In the Liberal candidate we have the man of business, the man of action, the man who acts instead of waiting, who has the industry, the business ability, and the influence with the Government to bring things West Peterborough needs West Peterborough's way.

White Star Liner In A Collision

Over Three Thousand Passengers on Board Are in No Immediate Danger

Special to The Examiner

SOUTHAMPTON, ENG., SEPT. 20.—The steamer "Olympic" of the White Star Line, the biggest passenger-carrying vessel in service, which left here at 11.35 this morning for New York, with more than three thousand people aboard, was rammed in a collision with the British protected cruiser, "Hawke," on the north side of the Isle of Wight, this afternoon, and was so badly damaged that Captain E. J. Smith immediately beached her in Cowes, Roadstead. The Olympic then signalled to Portsmouth for assistance, and a number of Admiralty tugs were immediately sent out, eventually bringing the Olympic back to Southampton. Assurances were given that the passengers are in no danger. Both the "Olympic" and "Hawke" had large holes stove in their hulls, and the damage and danger is very serious.

The Tri-colour Is The Flag Of The Burnham-Borden Bourassa Alliance

What the alliance that is waving this flag means was revealed by the utterances of Hon. Jean Prevost, at St. Jerome, Quebec, in the peresent campaign.

Referring to Bourassa as "our beloved leader," Prevost said:

"This is the flag we are going to wave on high on the 21st of September," and he waved aloft the tricolour of France. Then folding his arms about the flag he said:

'The red is for Prevost, still rouge—the blue is for Nantel, our Conservative ally, and white for our beloved leader, Henri Bourassa."

Then leaning over the railing to be near his audience, he denounced the navy, England, and everything British. He shouted, "We will never be ready to give our families to be used as targets in defence of England. The training ships we possess are schools where our children will learn to shoot, and later serve as targets for the cannons of Germany, or Japan or China."

Mr. Omer Heroux, editor of Mr. Bourassa's paper, Le Devoir, in an article in Le Verite, said that "We (the Nationalists) believe the constitution of an autonomous French state is our logical destiny."

Mr. Borden and his followers are working hand in glove with these wavers of the French flag.

Well, may such a compact be labeled—Borden, Burnham and Bourassa.

EXAMINER'S BULLETIN SERVICE FOR ELECTIONS

The Examiner will, to-morrow night, have the full returns of the Dominion Elections, not only for the East and West Riding of Peterborough, but also for Canada at large. Rundle, the local George street tobacconist and barber has in his window a unique souvenir of the golden west in the shape of an exhibit of wheat sent to him by Mr. Edgar Williams, formerly of Peterborough, and now of Saskatoon. The wheat has been woven into the form of a whip and is in itself a remarkable piece of workmanship which has been attracting a lot of attention.

LOOK OUT FOR ANOTHER.

A day or two before the last election — Oct. 26, 1908, the Review issued an "extra" asserting the falsehood that Messrs. Burnham, Kendry and Bradburn had secured a big Hydro-Electric contract for the Canadian General works..

This was doubly false, because these gentlemen had no power to influence the award of a contract that would go to the lowest tender ;and besides, as a matter of fact, the contract claimed, was not awarded at all.

Look out for another—or something similar in connection with the Canadian General.

WHAT GOES AND WHAT STAYS.

Mr Hawkes, the subsidised friends —at so much per day—of the British Born, has come and gone, and that is the last we or the British Born in Peterborough will hear of him.

What the British Born need is the friend that will stay with them and their interests — that will help give them employment, something they cannot get from the man that is gone and will never be back, or from the man he was speaking for.

The British born working man will stand to get more directly and indirectly from Mr. Stratton than from the man for whom Mr. Hawke talked last night, the man that was either afraid or ashamed to appear with him on the platform.

Mr Hawkes loves British Born and British fair play so much that when a British born at last night's meeting, wanted to ask a quest ion or two, he was thrown out of his meeting.

HOLD WHAT WE HAVE.

If manufacturers oppose reciprocity it is for some other reason than its effect upon them. The Liberal Government has only the interests of the manufacturers at heart. Mr. Fielding refused to even talk about reciprocity in manufactures with the United States—a protective tariff was needed to enable Canadian manufactures to compete with the longer established and more specialized industries of the United States. The Government, at present in power, has been the best friend the manufacturers of Canada ever had. The manufacturers got a tremendous lift by the action of the Government in reducing the duty on raw materials used in manufacturing operations.

The best assure of protection the manufacturers ever had consisted not in high tariff, but in reduction of duty. The duty taken off raw materials cheapened production to such a degree that the manufacturers of Canada have never prospered as they have done for the past fourteen or fifteen years, and their working men have never had such high wages—wages, however, that meant less, owing to the high cost of living, due to the rise of prices brought about by the combines in food products, and other lines of living.

The Liberal Government would, and do not, propose anything that would injure the manufacturers or the working man. It should be remembered that the manufacturers of Canada benefit under the present Government by the advantage of importing raw materials to the value of 106 million dollars a year.

The most effective way to keep the conditions that have made us prosperous is to keep in power the Government that created them which the electors are sure to do to-morrow.

The only way to give Peterborough good representation is to elect the men who gets things done and that will be done by—

VOTING FOR STRATTON.

HOW WILL YOU VOTE?

The issue of the campaign is narrowed to the all important issue of, how you will vote.

There is no shadow of doubt that the vote of the people will be to sustain the government.

The issue of the hour in Peterborough is the character of our representative.

We shall make no comparisons, but will ask the elector, which of the two candidates whose names are on the ballot, will make the best representative for West Peterborough. We all know what Peterborough needs in a member.

It needs a member of business ability, of action, of influence.

It needs a man to push to completion the important public works his energy and interest in Peterborough have brought under way in Peterborough—enterprises that, under less capable representative, would perhaps languish and fall by the wayside.

The question the electors should ask themselves is—can Peterborough, in the interests of the city, in its commercial and business interests, afford to "turn down" a member who has shown in a hundred ways his ability to bring benefits to Peterborough? Can Peterborough afford to lose the friend that is able to do in the future what he has done in the past in these respects?

The question becomes a purely business matter.

Will it pay Peterborough to lose the services of a man who everybody admits—and none deny—has made the best member Peterborough has ever had —who has done more to help the city in the way of public improvements, and is capable of doing more to advance its industrial and business interests, than any other available, or possible, or any representative in the past.

In casting his vote, the elector should ask—"Shall I vote for the interests of my city and myself, or for some other interest?

This is the real question to decide, and if you vote according to this consideration, you can do no other than

Vote For Stratton

THE UNHOLY ALLIANCE.

Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader, has issued a new manifesto. What he said in it didn't amount to much; what he didn't say amounts to a tremendous deal.

He didn't say anything about Bourassa, who has blossomed into a new Conservative leader—he burst into full bloom at Sudbury, when Mr. Gordon, the Conservativce candidate, "gave the keys" 'of the Sudbury district, "into the hands" of his new leader, Mr. Mr. Bourassa.

In the Sudbury district, it is a matter of fact that, as leader, Mr. Bourassa has taken the place of Mr. Borden.

This would be ludicrous if it were not so infamously serious.

There is no objection to Mr. Borden seeking to gain power by legitimate party and political means, but when he descends to an alliance with, and accepts the help of, a man of Bourassa's political character, it becomes a matter of grave national import.

At Sudbury, Mr. Borden might just as consistently have occupied a seat on a Conservative platform with Mr. Bourassa as his supporter, Mr. Gordon. Mr. Gordon, for the time being, represented his leader and placed the responsibility of "handing over the keys" to Mr. Bourassa, upon Mr. Borden.

Mr. Borden must have known what was to take place. He knew that Mr. Bourassa appeared on the platform with the Conservative candidate — his candidate—at Hull and he had no word of reproof. He has had a hundred chances to repudiate the Bourassa traitor and he has not done so—therefore, he accepts his services.

There is no doubt whatever that Mr. Bourassa is the accepted co-worker with Mr. Borden and Mr. Borden's party.

What do self-respecting Conservatives think of the combination? A great party stooping to accept the help of the arch Canadian traitor, who hates, and has declared his hatred, of everything British, who not only declares in favour of replacing the Union Jack, with the French Tri-colour, but insults the British flag as the flag of oppression—says the French "have had to shoot bullet holes through it" to let in the breath of free air.

How are we to build up a great and united Canadian nation under such conditions? It is hard enough to fight such an element as Bourassa and 'Nationalism" represents; but the danger becomes real and great, when, instead of being denounced by every true British Canadian, the leader of one of the two great parties of Canada commits himself to the degradation of accepting the help of the declared enemy of everything British ,and forces his followers into association and cooperation with such a man and such a cause.

T--he Ever

If Mr. Borden should win with Bourassa's help, the matter will not end there. The party can't shake itself free from such an entanglement in a day.

R--eliable

At Sudbury, Mr. Bourassa, the British-hater and Briton-hater, spoke of the "Nationalist government." How can there be a "Nationalist government" without the help of the party he is trying to place in a position to form a government?

Mr. Bourassa said at Hull that "twenty Nationalist members of parliament elected, could sway the destinies of Canada?"

How? Certainly not through the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, whom Bourassa, hates only less than he hates the British. Then it must be through the government which Mr. Bourassa is helping Mr. Borden to form.

Mr. Borden by accepting the help

T--rusted And of Mr. Bourassa, is helping him to play the role of a political blackmailer; to say to Mr. Borden, "We hold the balance of power. You must do as we say, or we will smash your government."

That's the logical outcome of the Borden-Bourassa alliance.

Mr. Borden by accepting Mr. Bourassa's help commits himself to Mr. Bourassa's policy.

There was no flag waving at the Borden meeting in Sudbury like there was at the Borden meeting in the Opera House here.

The former was a meeting in the interests of the Conservative candidate, Mr. George Gordon.

And at Sudbury there was need of some assertion of the supremacy of the flag. In Peterborough it was in no danger. In Sudbury the Conservative candidate in "handing over the keys" of the district to Mr. Bourassa, handed over the flag and what it represents through the Conservative party, to the bitter enemy of everything British, the man who tramples on the flag and repudiates it.

This is what Mr. Gordon said at Sudbury in presence of Mr. Bourassa, but 'in presence of no waving flags:

"The Liberals," he said, "are blaming us for bringing the Nationalist leader here. I am willing to take full responsibility, and to express my full admiration for Bourassa."

Could identity of interest be more complete? Could there be any stronger proof of the unholy alliance with the British hater and his works?? The Conservative candidate, representing Mr. Borden, "gave Bourassa" the keys and "took full responsibility" for the insult to Canadians — Liberals and Conservatives alike — of bringing to Ontario and welcoming to a Conservative platform, the arch traitor, the enemy of everything British, the trampler of the British flag.

What do good, honest, loyal Canadians, not to speak of Conservatives, think of it? Will they swallow the pill?

Anyway, Borden is slated to win by the help of Bourassa.

A VOTE FOR BURNHAM IS A VOTE FOR BORDEN, AND A VOTE FOR BORDEN IS A VOTE FOR BOURASSA; AND A VOTE FOR BOURASSA IS A VOTE FOR CANADIAN AND EMPIRE DISRUPTION.

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 26th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained by writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Mr. Arthur Hawkes has come and I presume gone, and I would like to make some comment on the rally of the English Born in the Opera House last evening. Mr. Hawkes started off with a very sarcastic reference to an estimable citizen of Peterborough, and the coming representative, to such an extent that an Englishman on his platform felt it necessary to make a protest and enquire whether this was purely a political gathering in the interests of the Conservative party, or a rally of the English Born. It is unnecessary to say that his question did not receive the attention, which it deserved, but he was summarily ejected. Mr. Hawkes says that the Englishman coming to this country should be very slow in accepting the doctrines of any party, which I believe is correct if he allotted to the party he represents. He said the Liberal Government in the old country and the Liberal Government in this country were not the same. Here they try to borrow the title "Liberal" and attach it to Conservative.

He asks who has a better right to direct an Englishman how to vote than one of his own countrymen, who has travelled from coast to coast and been a resident here for twenty-five years? He forgets that there are other Englishmen who have been here for a longer period than that, and the English immigrant who lands in Canada to-day is also as well able to read as Mr. Hawkes.

He should also remember that the Englishmen in this town realize that he is a paid advocate for the Conservative party. He appealed to the love of the old Union Jack, which he knew every man in the audience felt, but in this business deal of reciprocity, our loyalty to the British flag is entirely aside from the mark. We are just as loyal to use American products with the duty off, as we are with the duty on ,in fact more loyal to ourselves.

Mr. Hawkes stated that there were two kinds of fools—the one who gave advice, and the one who took it. I think there will be only one kind of fool evolved from the meeting of last night.

The Conservative party has engaged Mr. Hawkes to work on the loyalty of the British people, and he made the statement last night that there were enough English-born in the country to carry the balance of power in any election. If that would not be setting him against his Canadian brother, then I don' tknow what other effect it would have.

We have an English Born Society in our country—that is strong and flourishing, in which any English Born might do well to connect himself with, namely, "The Sons of England Society"—an organization that does not participate in party politics.

The speaker referred to Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a great statesman, a very great statesman, and at another time a great diplomat. It is dollars to doughnuts that the speaker himself has been a staunch Liberal, and it is even hard to say how he will vote in this election. Had it not been for the offer of the Conservative party, which proved very tempting, Mr. Hawkes would not be the advocate of the Opposition that he is to-day. He has been heralded by some of the papers as an inflammatory speaker, but I consider him far from that, and his mild voice was not discernible in all parts of the house.

I would like to comment further on the meeting of last night, but know that the space in your paper is limited at the present time. I might just remark, that from my standpoint, I think Mr. Hawkes is too well paid by the Conservative party for the amount of work he does or the influence he has.

Yours sincerely,
A "Son of England."

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

The arguments have all been made and comparative prices have been quoted at length. You have doubtless read, heard and digested. It only remains to recall the outstanding features of the question before the country—reciprocity in natural products with the United States.

Reciprocity will injure or disturb no industry or factory or workman, in Peterborough or elsewhere, but on the contrary will materially promote the interests of all.

The protection which the Fielding tariff has always accorded our manufacturing industries, will be continued unabated. Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding have time and again given assurance of this. The mutual effect of freer trade in natural products and protection for our manufacturers cannot fail of being beneficial by giving the workingman cheaper living and the manufacturer a more prosperous home market.

Reciprocity will benefit the farmer by giving him an unlimited market in the United States for these products which he cannot ship to England, or which he cannot sell at home to advantage.

Reciprocity will reduce the cost of living from twenty-five to thirty per cent. It will benefit the consumer in about sixty of the chief elements of his diet.

American eggs, all American fruits, fresh and dried, and all vegetables, will come in free of duty at the seasons when there is no production here.

Fish of all kinds, oysters and shell fish will come in free.

The existing duties will be materially reduced on fresh meats, bacon and hams, dried, smoked and salted meats, canned meat, canned fish, sardines and the like, canned vegetables, flour, oatmeal, pearled barley, macaroni, biscuits, etc.

These reductions will materially reduce the prices of these articles to the consumer.

How, you may ask, can reciprocity raise the price to the farmer and lessen it to the consumer?

The answer is simple enough. Reciprocity takes down two tariff walls which stand between the natural products of Canada and the United States and their natural disposal.

The American tariff is the wall against the producer, against the Canadian farmer, which prevents him seeking an outlet for his surplus in that direction and leaves him at the mercy of the Canadian food combines.

The Canadian tariff is the wall against the Canadian consumer, which prevents him from getting the benefit of cheap American products at the times and places when these do no compete with Canadian products.

At present the Canadian farmer receives less for his products than the American farmer and the Canadian consumer pays more for his food than the American consumer.

Reciprocity in natural products removes these two artificial barriers and allows the food products of a continent to find the most convenient channels.

The relief to producer and consumer should be almost immediate. Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

What are the side issues that have been dragged into this campaign—the loyalty of the Liberal party, annexation, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion and the British Born.

They are almost too absurd to mention, but I will answer them briefly.

Loyalty of the Liberal party? The answer to that is British preference, South African contingents, the Canadian navy. Actions speak louder than words. The very men who are plastering the majority of the electors of Canada with the imputation of disloyalty, have a working alliance in Quebec with the firebrand Bourassa, who hates England and preaches destruction to British ascendancy and Canada.

Annexation? The answer to that is that Lord Elgin, Governor-General of Canada, in 1854, a Conservative and an ardent Imperialist, was the chief instrument in obtaining the reciprocity treaty with the United States, which lasted from 1854 to 1866. His avowed purpose in securing reciprocity, was to cure the annexation sentiment, then prevalent among Canadian business men on account of the hard times.

Lord Elgin believed, with Lloyd-George, that reciprocity in natural products between Canada and the United States, was crystallized common sense, and with the London Times, that a happy and contented member of the British Empire, is better than an unhappy and discontented one. Lord Elgin's cure worked. Instead of annexation, reciprocity brought Confederation in its train, and gave this country the great blessing of national unity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion? The Protestants of Ontario outnumber the Roman Catholics six to one. Protestantism is in no more danger from a Liberal Roman Catholic premier than it was from a Conservative Roman Catholic premier, Sir John Thompson. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has no more Roman Catholics in his cabinet than Sir John Macdonald had, or Sir John Thompson or Sir John Abbott, or Sir Charles Tupper, or last but not least, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, once the Grand Master of the Orange order. Sir James Whitney has two Roman Catholics in his cabinet, and they have shown themselves equitable and capable administrators.

The British Born? We are all British born if we are born within the Empire, and we are all equally proud of it. Those who were born in the Mother Country and have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions need not be told what the Liberal Government has done to help the workingman and to open up the great Northwest prairie to the land-hungry homeseekers. In Canada, as in England, most of the workingman's blessings have been the gift of the Liberal Government. Neither need they be told what a Liberal Government has done for the old land across the sea in the matters of British preference, the South African contingents and the Canadian navy. The British born may be depended upon to rally to the side where they find their best friends.

Hoping to receive the same confidence from the electors of West Peterborough as I have received in the past, I am,

Yours Respectfully.

ACCIDENT AVERTED

An accident was narrowly averted on Aylmer street this morning when a milk vendor drove up too close to a horse tied near the Peterborough Creamery. The driver untied his horse and was about to turn it away when the other horse bit at it, and it turned around quickly and ran up the street. The drivur managed to get into the buggy, however, and succeeded in getting the animal under control.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville; "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

Lawn Social At Ennismore

A successful lawn social was held at Ennismore last evening. After a dainty tea had been participated in, many of the younger of the assembly indulged in dancing, while a well-stocked refreshment booth was the rendezvous of others. At 11 p.m. supper was served and shortly afterwards the gathering dispersed.

A special feature of the evening's proceedings was a speech by Mr. Daniel O'Connell, and Mr. R. R. Hall

ARTHUR HAWKES' RALLY TURNED INTO A ROUT

The Special Missioner Misses the Mark and Is Kept Busy Explaining

The large audience that gathered in the Opera House last night, most of them out of curiosity to hear what Mr. Arthur Hawkes could possibly have to say against the British-born rallying to the side of their real friends, the Liberals, found themselves gazing on a stout, well-fed looking patriot, as professional patriots usually are.

Mr. Hawkes has a pleasant smile. Why shouldn't he have?

SOME OSTENTATIOUS ABSENCES

Mr. Hawkes slipped quietly into town, had his dinner quietly, and went quietly to the Opera House. There was no brass band, and Mr. J. H. Burnham was ostentatiously absent. The chairs on the platform were half empty, but the house was well-filled, thanks to the good advertising the Examiner gave Mr. Hawkes last Saturday. The chairman was Mr. W. C. Common, who made three speeches of his own before he would consent to introduce Mr. Hawkes. The chairman took occasion to explain that he recognized no difference between British born and British born, except that some had come here more recently than others. He asserted that the Canadian British Association had no political connection.

A pamphlet was distributed at the entrance, and the pamphlet took the trouble to point out that it was written and printed in February before ever an election campaign was thought of. Great pains were taken all round to show that Mr. Hawkes' efforts were a spontaneous offering.

But as Hamet says, "Methinks the lady doth protest too much."

The British-born who attended the lecture were disappointed that Mr. Hawkes' language didn't sound more like home, the fact of the matter being that Mr. Hawkes' colours have run a little in the wash, and he has almost no accent left. He did his best, of course, but he talks like a Canadian, which is his ordinary gait when an election doesn't throw him out of his stride.

THROWING OUT THE DOUBTERS

Mr. Hawkes paid his attention to the Examiner at the start, and at the finish, and sandwiched his lecture on "The Place of the British Born in the Coming General Election" in between. He hadn't gone far in his preliminary remarks before a young man of unmistakably British-born accent, stepped forward and said: "May I ask, do you represent any political party, or do you say this on your own account?" The young man stood his ground in spite of cat calls from a small but noisy part of the audience, and the powers were called upon. The heckler was thrown out but his question remained unanswered, and was unanswered during the meeting.

The truth was that it kept Mr. Hawkes so busy answering the Examiner, that he didn't have time for hecklers. Among other things he said, "The fellows who are giving me these raps in the Examiner are being paid so much per rap for it." His statement is approximately correct, although the Examiner reporters are paid by the week, not by the rap.

WHY HE BUTTED IN

Mr. Hawkes went at some length into the reasons which caused him to butt into the election campaign with his special strife-breeding mission. The idea had come to him months ago, when he had written an appeal to the British born and had also made one on the platform. After that he was invited to speak at Massey Hall, and on having some conversation with Hon. Frank Cochrane, it was found that the Conservative party could make use of the 100,000 deftly chosen words against reciprocity and Sir Wilfrid Laurier which it was a dead certainty no Liberal paper would publish. In fact, Mr. Hawkes proved out of his own mouth just what the Examiner said, namely—that Mr Hawkes is as much a tool of party in Ontario as Henri Bourassa is in Quebec.

The next stage of Mr. Hawkes' defence was that reciprocity was not an economic question at all, but a national one. He carefully avoided the word loyalty, his expressions along that line having been so thoroughly discounted beforehand, but he did say that he, Mr. Hawkes, considered reciprocity detrimental to the British Empire. In this matter Mr. Hawkes disagrees with Premier Asquith, who says it is good for business and good for the Empire, with Lloyd-George, who says it is crystallized common sense, and with British Ambassador Bryce, who helped to make the agreement. But what are these three great statesmen's opinions against Mr. Hawkes'?

A SPECIAL CALL

Another reason Mr. Hawkes gave for butting in was that the British born only ten or twelve months in the country, needed instruction in Canadian politics. This is not flattering to an intelligent newspaper-reading British born, but Mr. Hawkes, thinks he has a call as special instructor, a sort of anti-reciprocity Mahomet, moved to vision only at seasonable times, and he is going through with the job, if it takes a leg.

Mr. Hawkes touched a number of things in his lecture but always with a view to spiking that sheet up street, the Examiner, which had told so much plain truth about his mission. Mr. Hawkes does not like "the gospel according to J.R." He was nettled. In a man less phlegmatic than Mr. Hawkes it might have been mistaken for downright bad temper. It certainly is annoying to come to a town with 100,000 beautiful words to throw around, and then find that you have to use most of them glossing over what the other fellow said. First and last, the hard facts in the Examiner cost Mr. Hawkes half his lecture to get around. The lecture should have had another title. It should have read, "How Arthur Hawkes Tried to Square Himself." Mr. Hawkes objects to the evidence in rebuttal. He now objects to Sir John Macdonald's ghost being invoked. He stops his ears to "voices from the tomb," believing that Mr. Hawkes' alive-and-kicking opinion is better than dead Sir John's any day. There are others, of course, who think differently, but Mr. Hawkes doesn't want to see them.

Mr. Hawkes drew a beautiful word picture of Canada with which every Canadian will agree. He used some of the very best of the hundred thousand words to do it, but when it came to arguing, he only got down to bras stacks once and that was the old wheeze about north and south trade instead of east and west. The answer to this is that the railways are not kicking, that C.P.R. stock went up from 193 to 250, and that a certain amount of north and south trade will develop the length of each province as well as its breadth, and give the small local shipper his turn.

WHAT HE LEFT OUT

There were a number of things that Mr. Hawkes did not touch in his lecture. He did not tell what membership the Canada-British Association had outside his own mind, although he explained that its one object was to fight reciprocity now, and after election it could have whatever opinions it liked. He did not explain how it was while he waved the flag at North Bay, Henri Bourassa was allowed to trample on it at Sudbury, not so many miles away. He did not tell how Arthur Hawkes and the arch firebrand and Britain-hater Bourassa came to be working for the same end, the defeat of Laurier. In short he did not tell how milk and vinegar could mix, and be good drinking.

He did not tell how Borden and Bourassa would get along together if Mr. Borden had the misfortune to become premier, nor how Mr. Borden would have to throw the Canadian navy in the junk heap or turn the Niobe and the Rainbow into pleasure yachts for Bourassa and Armand Lavergne. Mr. Borden couldn't send any Canadian money to help the British navy—Bourasa wouldn't stand for that—and altogether poor old England would get mighty little from the outfit Mr. Hawkes is trying to keep pace with.

On the whole, Mr. Hawkes' speech was good as poetry, poor as argument, and worse as explanation.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—With your kind permission, I would call the attention of your readers to the annual canvass now being made in this city, in the interests of the Harvest Thanksgiving Fund of the Salvation Army in Canada and also to some facts concerning the objects of this fund.

In the first place, this canvass is an annual appeal to our friends to unite with us in a practical expression of our gratitude to God for all His goodness to us as a people, irrespective of our race, creed or calling. Talk about "favoured nations," surely few nations have been more favoured than this fair Canada of Ours.
